AS GREAT LAKES BEAT OHIO—Action from the Great Lakes-Ohio State cage game played in Cleveland is pictured. Jimmy Sims, Ohio guard, has the ball and a planned shot at the basket is being "waved" by Walter Budko of the Sailors. Behind Sims is Paul Cloyd. Great Lakes won, 60 to 50, for the 10th straight cage victory for the Naval Training unit.

CURLING NEWS

By HERB MARTIN

When the boys came off the ice around 10:30 o'clock Friday night, they had completed the playing of 81 scheduled games. This as remarkable for so soon after the first of the year. Of course where we got the big lift was the week between Christmas and New Year's. This is a big help and as far as we can judge the boys are enjoying it. And then another big help is the double-headers played on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

And now if somebody would please use their influence with the Weather Man and ask him to please let up a little we would be all set for a big season.

The ladies' section was out in full force on Friday afternoon, in fact it was their first appearance in the schedule games and the outstanding features of the afternoon play were the manner in which the new skips handled the games and also the showing of the many new players. There was some mighty good curling for the start, and we expect they will improve as they go along.

The players are reminded that the mixed bonspiel is set for 7.30 o'clock this evening.

McSpaden Leads At Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES Jan. 6—(AP)—Defending champion Harold McSpaden and the former New York Yankee baseball player, Sam Byrd, long since turned golf pro, shot one-under-par 70's today to tie for first-round leadership of the 19th annual 72-hole Los Angeles Open.

McSpaden, now registering from Sanford, Me., coupled a 34 and 36 for the round. Byrd played the 7,000-yard Rieviera Course in 36-34.

The ex-ball player would have enjoyed the top spot to himself, except for bad luck on the first hole. He drove out of bounds, but dropped a 16-footer on the 18th for a birdie 3 to even up for the earlier penalty.

The below-par feats were the only two racked up from a field of 132 pros and amateurs in the initial 18 holes of the $13,333 war bond event, concluding nevt Monday.

Eight topnotchers, including the tournament co-favorites, Sam Snead and Byron Nelson, finished in a tie at par 71. The others were Tony Penna, Chick Rutan, John Revolta, amateur Bruce McCormick, Claude Harmon and Ray Mangrum.

The United States open champion, Craig Wood of Mamoroneck, N.Y., fiddled through a round of 75, the same number of shots needed by Willie Goggin, White Plains, N.Y., and MacDonald Smith, who was trying for important championships before some of the present contestants were born.

Cookies Defeat Valleyfield Team

CORNWALL, Jan. 6 (CP)—Cornwall Cookies edged closer to the league leading Valleyfield Braves in the Interprovincial Hockey League following a 2-1 victory over Shawinigan Falls Cataracts here last night. Cornwall now is two games behind Valleyfield.

The Cataracts went ahead 1-0 early in the second period on a shot by Bisson with Larry Laframboise assisting, and held the lead through most of the middle frame until Bernie Lauson converted a pass from Real Savard and Jerry Gravel into the tieing counter.

Early in the closing period, Dick Proulx scored the winning goal, assists going to Ray Marechal and Joe Desroches and Andy Perron added another for good measure on a solo effort just before the final bell rang.

Purpur Leaves Chicago Joins Detroit

By FRED KERNER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Clifford Purpur—who goes by the "doggy" nickname of Fido is the latest to leave the Chicago fold and join the dashing Detroit Red Wings. Cliff is a product of high school hockey in Grand Forks, N.D., and has been with the Hawks for four years during which time he showed himself to be an average player.

The move was motivated by President Bill Tobin's plan "eventually to strengthen" his club, and the Chicago report said that in return the Hawks will get a Detroit player to be named before the end of the season.

The 28-year-old right-winger will join his former team-captain, veteran Earl Seibert, who was traded to Adams' team earlier this week for three Detroit players. But the question seems to be where is all this trading getting Chicago.

Chicago is only anxious to get one place right now, and that is out of the N.H.L. cellar where they have been successfully languishing for the best part of the season. Hawks have only managed to win three games in 22 starts and scraped together three more points by virtue of ties.

Hawks now own Defenceman Cully Simon, who in many instances has not proved himself "big league" material; Don Grosso—with a bad hand; and Byron McDonald, at present with Wings' farm team, Indianapolis Capitals. Probably Hawk's best rookie this year, Lude Check, an aggressive two-way puck chaser, is also with Capitals—all of which leads one to believe even further that the Detroit-Chicago deals may be "inter-departmental."

Jack Adams explains the first trade simply as "I wanted to make a deal which would help us to catch Canadiens." What explanation he'll give last night's announcement remains to be seen. Perhaps he can out-do Tobin's "eventualy strengthen the club" comment.

Meanwhile rumor row has it that Simon has refused to join Hawks. Adams denies it and there's no word from Brockville—Simon's home —that either affirms or denies. But tonight will tell the tale with Hawks at Montreal and the former Wing defenceman due to play.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Jan. 6 — (CP). — A communique received by this department from the Winnipeg Tribune staff says that it is their proud boast that their Tony Allan is the only Canadian sports editor "erudite enough to understand those tough cartoons in Punch," the British humor mag Mr. Allan, it seems, passed a "Punch cartoon appreciation test" recently by decoding the "Lampreys" cartoon in the November 29 issue, and is willing to explain it to anyone who is stumped by it. Fortunately we had not seen that particular cartoon, and now we are afraid to look at it for fear of embarrassing consequences. However, it's a golden opportunity for sports editors across the country to take a chance.

Here and there:

The Ki-Toule alias Rosario Joanette of Valleyfield in the Inter-Provincial Hockey League, is much in the news these days. Ki-Toule, who is being considered by Montreal Canadiens, is touted as one of the best stickhandlers in the game to-day......Flt.-Lieut Art Ross, Jr., son of Boston Bruins' mentor, has been posted to Ottawa with the R.C.A.F.....The aforementioned Tony (Punch) Allan of the Winnipeg Tribune says it is probably just as well United States authorities moved to prevent transportation of horses to Canadian tracks. If the gee-gees could come here freely, that would create quite a boom in racing this side of the border, and might cause no end of ill-feeling among the Americans who are deprived of their own pastime....The youthful Howie Morenz is showing plenty of class in Montreal, but there is no indication yet he will ever match his father's brilliance. Competent judges, however, say he is sure N.H.L. material at some future time.

Saints Capture 2nd Place Over Staffords

(By The Canadian Press)

St. Catharines and Toronto Staffords battled in a free-scoring engagement last night at St. Catharines to break the deadlock for the runner-up position in the Senior O.H.A. race and the issue was not decided until five goals had been notched in the overtime session with the Saints coming out on top 8-7. It was the third victory of the season for Saints and gave them undisputed hold on second place in the standing, still four points behind the leading Hamilton Majors.

Three times during the struggle did St. Catharines overcome a Toronto lead, coming from behind twice in the overtime play alone to set some kind of a record. It looked easy for Saints at the outset with Doug Fritz performing the real hat trick of three goals in a row and the first period concluded with the homesters edging Staffords 3-2. The end of the second period saw Saints still one to the good, 4-3, but the visitors outscored the Garden City crew to equalize the score half way through the third chapter.

In the wide-open overtime period, the teams see-sawed for the lead with alternate scores until Adamson clinched the verdict with scarcely more than a minute to go, Wallace setting up the play for the winning counter.

Fritz was the hero of the piece in the accumulation of five points for individual honors on three goals and two assists while Comfort was in there for the winners with a goal and two assists.

The 10-man major league committee charged with re-drafting the 24-year agreement for the control of baseball by a commissioner, met in Chicago yesterday for three hours after which it was announced another meeting would be held in New York, Feb. 2.

John F. Meehan, president of the proposed trans-America pro football circuit, announced yesterday at Dallas six clubs had secured franchises in the league and were ready to start. The six comprise Dallas, New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Los Angeles and Brooklyn. Meehan said Houston, Tex., and Denver were also expected to join.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP)— The American League has averaged 488 home runs a season during three war years as compared to a 786 average for the seven previous seasons.

Congratulations

This department's nomination for the title of "Man of the Year" in sports for 1945 goes to the New Yorker who managed to get himself pinched for bookmaking on Wednesday, Jan. 4.

Did you know that baseball's first "ladies day" was staged at the old Polo Grounds in 1883? . . . Dave Crowley, who had some food fights in the United States before the war, has won 17 of 21 "comeback" fights in England and later reversed his three setbacks . . . The Amateur Hockey Association of the United States is circularizing all rinks to find out how many high school leagues are in operation. The idea is to put up a championship trophy for each league to encourage the kids.

Zivic Batters Billy Arnold

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP).—Old Fritzie Zivic of Pittsburg sprang a major boxing upset last night by handing youthful Billy Arnold, Philadelphia, the first defeat of his meteoric career in winning an eight-round decision at Madison Square Garden.

The 31-year-old Zivic, a 5-to-1 underdog in the betting, stunned a crowd of 16,923 by outsmarting the Philadelphia High School student who previously was unbeaten in 31 scraps. The gross gate was $57,576.

Zivic Paces Himself Well

Pacing himself beautifully, the cagy Zivic, former welterweight champion and veteran of 14 years in the ring, took everything Arnold threw and twice in the fifth and eighth round staggered his 18-year-old opponent with vicious lefts and rights.

Judge Marty Monroe voted five rounds for Zivic and three for Arnold. Referee Arthur Donovan gave four to Zivic, two to Arnold and called two even. Judge Jack Gordon gave each four rounds.

The Associated Press score card had Zivic winning five rounds to two, with one even.

The 153-pound Zivic, on a 15-day furlough from his duties as an army corporal at a Texas camp, let the 144-pound Arnold force the fight all the way, but he made the Philly Negro look silly time and again by ducking and sliding away. Arnold missed numerous punches as Zivic, cool as a cucumber, backed away and counter-punched with left jabs and hard overhand rights.

NEWMARKET, England, Jan. 6 (CP)—An Epsom veterinary surgeon pocketed a small fortune on an outlay of $94 in one of the racing world's most remarkable bloodstock deals.

It came at the December Bloodstock Sales here when the Hon. Dorothy Paget, wealthy breeder and owner, paid $51,800 for Sister Clara, a mare that the veterinary, Maj. E. C. Doyle, D.S.O., bought "dirt cheap" in Ireland in 1939.

Sister Clara was then a yearling, so big and backward none about the sale ring gave her a second look But Doyle liked her breeding, "took a chance," and snapped her up for $94.

"I didn't know what to do with her," Doyle said. "She could not be trained. Then I had her mated with Stardust. The foal fetched $31,000. Now I believe her to be in foal again."

Sister Clara is by Scarlet Tiger out of Clarence, dam of the famed National Stud Product, Sun Chariot, who won the 1,000 Guineas, the Oaks and the St. Leger, three of the season's five classics, while running in the King's colors two years ago. It was Sun Chariot's success that called attention to Sister Clara's breeding.

Lord Milford, one of racing's luckiest owners and standing nearly seven feet high, outbid many other turfmen to purchase the brood mare, Exhibitionist, for $49,500. Exhibitionist won the 1,000 Guineas and the Oaks in 1937. She is by the St. Leger winner, Solario, and already has produced winners.

Purchase of Flamingo as a yearling for $8,500 was Lord Milford's first turf venture several years ago. Flamingo was second in the Derby and won the 2,000 Guineas and nearly $100,000 in stake money.

The fashion of paying sensational prices at the sales spread to two eight-month foals of Derby winner Watling street who brought $14,130 and $13,188, respectively. Since each foal weighed about 49 pounds, the purchasers paid something like $313 a pound.

While the foals were being sold, a wooden rocking-horse, of all things, was being knocked down for $122 — more than five times its peacetime value—less than 200 yards away in a sales room.

Bloodstock breeders in all parts of the world always anticipate eagerly the Newmarket sales. They provide opportunities to replace wastage and there have been occasions when brood mares have been purchased and the foals they were carrying became classic winners in the country of their adoption.

From their establishment nearly 60 years ago, the December Sales soon became a tradition. At first sales extended only over one or two days until finally, more than 40 years ago, five days of the first week in December were reserved for the sales of mares and fouls, horses in and out of training, as well as stallions and potential stallions.

Breeders and trainers from nearly every country came to the peacetime Sales. Now they mostly are represented by British agencies. Even saddlers and racing color manufacturers in Newmarket town itself enjoyed remarkable peacetime prosperity.

Mrs. A. A. McIntyre Begins Third Year As Aid President

Mrs. A. A. McIntyre was returned as president of the Ladies' Aid of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church for her third term, at an impressive installation of officers Friday evening.

As the executive for the new year stood in a semi-circle, Rev. Samuel Johnston charged each of them to endeavor to fulfill her duties to the best of her ability, and installed them as follows: Honorary presidents, Mrs. R. Fortye, Mrs. J. H. Savigny, Mrs. C. E. Blewett and Mrs. W. H. Hill; past president, Mrs. James Dutton; president, Mrs. A. A. McIntyre; vice-presidents, Mrs. J. J. Craig, Mrs. T. McArthur, Mrs. W. A. Burrell and Mrs. T. H. Taylor; treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Fry; assistant, Miss I. Brailey; secretary, Mrs. W. A. Cochrane; assistant, Mrs. W. Young; corresponding secretary, Mrs. D. W. Clark; envelope secretary, Miss Lena Eakins; press secretary, Mrs. D. P. Dickson.

Other members and conveners are: Social, Mrs. W. H. Howson and Mrs. J. H. Rosenburgh; social committee, Mrs. E. Bathgate, Mrs. K. Mohood; visiting committee, Mrs. Fred Finnie; sick and shut-in and strangers, Mrs. G. Sproule, Mrs. T. Hendry, Mrs. P. Hawthorne; manse, Mrs. R. Ross and Mrs. W. J. Moorhead; church and floral, Mrs. W. Bristow and Mrs. J. Spencely; telephone, Mrs. F. Haggart; kitchen, Mrs. W. J. Moorhead; pianist, Mrs. W. D. Taylor; assistant, Mrs. G. Coleman, Jr.; group leaders, Mrs. D. Miller, Mrs. W. C. Steinkraus; Mrs. A. Powers, Mrs. J. Milby and Mrs. R. W. Buchanan.

In recognition of her 15 years of service to the society, Mrs. W. A. Burrell was presented with a gift on behalf of the group by Mrs. R. H. Fortye and Mrs. W. H. Hill. Mrs. McIntyre, for the society, presented Mrs. T. Hendry, the retiring treasurer, with a token of the esteem and apreciation of the members. Mrs. W. C. Steinkraus, in expressing their thanks to the president and the executive for their fine work during the year, spoke of the added difficulties of holding office in serious times, and complimented the entire executive on the successful year just completed.

Hear Reports

Mrs. W. A. Cochrane, the secretary, presented her annual report, reviewing the meetings and activities of the year, and paying tribute to the various groups for their excellent work. Mrs. T. Hendry, the retiring treasurer, in her annual report, outlined the money received and the expenditures for the year, showing a balance of $240.90 in the bank to begin 1945. Miss F. Rosenburgh presented the annual report of the South End group, reviewing the year's activities. In the absence of Mrs. W. Young, Mrs. James Walker gave the account of the Christmas boxes sent to boys and girls from St. Paul's, serving in Canada in the armed services, and Mrs. R. Ross read her report for the Christmas Cheer committee.

One of the highlights of the evening was the reading of a number of letters of thanks from boys and girls, overseas and in Canada, who had received Christmas boxes from the Ladies' Aid. Each one expressed heartfelt appreciation for the beautiful box, and the feeling that it was wonderful to be remembered by people at home. At the conclusion of the meeting, the letters were placed on the table and their relatives were free to take them home.

Rev. Mr. Johnston, in giving a word of encouragement to the executive beginning a new year, and also to all members of the society, said that God helped those who made use of the talents He had given them. Quoting a few verses from the Bible, he asked "What have you in the house?" asking each one to "look into her heart," and discover the particular talent she possessed which would be of use and value, to mankind. He felt that every person had a particular gift, and that none was insignificant or trivial, since nothing which God gives is insignificant.

Each Has Part

He went on to say that there was something for everyone to do, and God had a use for each, asking that they realize that there was a divine plan, and that recognition and use of that plan brought peace of mind. He said that God gave His strength to those who attempted to do His bidding, arguing that the more people turned to Him for help and guidance, the more of His guidance and love they would receive and be able to absorb and use.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. McIntyre and Mrs. S. Johnston, while Mrs. W. A. Burrell, Mrs. D. W. Clark and Mrs. T. McArthur were hostesses. Mrs. T. Hendry and Miss I. Brealey were in charge of the registration of guests. The social conveners and committee supervised the arrangements for the supper, which was served by members of the Young People. Mrs. Johnston, accompanied at the piano by M. B. Chenhall sang "The Promise of Life" and "Don't You Listen." Rev. Mr. Johnston dedicated the regular cent-a-day offering, and pronounced the benediction.

For the occasion, the platform was decorated with poinsettias and ferns. The head table was centred with a bouquet of pink and white 'mums, flanked by tall white tapers in silver holders. Pianist for the evening was Mrs. W. D. Taylor.

Authorities say the difference between husky children and those who are poor eaters, underweight and nervous is often simply a matter of proper nourishment, especially an adequate supply of vitamins.

But vitamins alone are not enough. For authorities now agree that vitamins do not work alone. They work as a team with certain other food elements.

For this reason, thousands are switching to Ovaltine. Unlike mere "vitamin carriers," Ovaltine food beverage contains not only extra vitamins but nearly all the precious food elements needed for health and top vitality. These include Vitamins A, B1 and D, the important minerals calcium, phosphorus and iron, high quality proteins and quick energy fuel-food—a combination of food elements authorities agree are needed for best results.

So, if your child is thin, nervous and not developing properly, why not turn to Ovaltine as thousands are doing. Three normal meals plus two glasses of Ovaltine a day give your child all the extra amounts of vitamins and minerals needed for health and top vitality. 144

NEEDED—A SCHOOL FOR PARENTS

Parents Need Enlightenment On How To Deal With Their Children.

THERE is much talk about establishing a School for Parents. Let us hope and pray that it will materialize and that the time is not far distant when the professor will beat the stork to every home in which a baby is due to arrive. For if there is one thing about which the average man and woman are grossly ignorant and on which they need enlightenment, it is about how to deal with their children.

Curiously enough, although everybody knows that parenthood is the most important job that any human being ever undertakes, heretofore nobody has thought it worth while to prepare themselves for it, as they would to be a blacksmith, or a truck driver, to say nothing of qualifying for a career as a doctor or a stenographer.

They seem to think that how to be a wise and successful father and mother will come by nature, and that they will be miraculously inspired about how to handle an immortal soul when the need arises. Yet while there is a proverb about lucky infants having been born with a silver spoon in their mouths, there is no record of anyone having arrived with a Baby Book in his hands.

Absolve Selves From Responsibility

The great majority of fathers and mothers meet all the problems of being parents with bland fatalism. They say: "You never can tell how a child will turn out," and they absolve themselves from all responsibility in the matter. Except, of course, when Johnny gets to be a Major General, or Sally develops into a cinema star. Then they beat on their breasts, and say: "I did it!" You never hear a father say: "My son is a tramp because I drove him away from home by my harshness and tyranny." Or a mother say: "My daughter went wrong because I never watched over her and taught her to walk the right road."

Yet if there is one thing in the world that is truer than another, is is that children are clay in their parents' hands, and, ninety-nine times out of a hundred, they are what their fathers and mothers made them—vessels of honor and worth, or shards to be thrown on the scrap pile.

For in the great crises of life we don't stop to reason. We act the way we have been brought up to act. The principles, good or bad, that our parents inculcated in us are part of us that we can no more shed than we can our skins.

Sin Through Ignorance

Now when men and women are bad parents, they sin oftener through ignorance than intent. Sometimes they drive their children away from them by bringing them up in the hard school in which they were reared, and often just because they have the memory of such a bitter childhood they are over-indulgent and put no restraint whatever upon their youngsters. Many a mother ruins her children by spoiling them with too much love, and many another mother blights her children by starving them for affection.

And thousands upon thousands of parents never really get acquainted with their children, or find out how to appeal to them, or spend as much time and trouble in trying to teach them the things they are going to need to know in life as they do in training a dog to do tricks.

And in combating this ignorance the School for Parents could do a great work. If a course in it could be made compulsory for everyone with children, we could solve the juvenile delinquency problem.

Congregation Honors Wood Family

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 6.—(ENS). — Rev. S. A. R. Wood, Mrs. Wood and their three children left this week for Thornhill, where Rev. Mr. Wood will assume his new duties as rector of Thornhill parish.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood and their children will be greatly missed in the village. Mr. Wood, since coming to Lakefield three and a half years ago as rector of St. John the Baptist Anglican church, and chaplain at the Grove school, has always taken an active part in civic affairs, as well as his own church work.

Prior to their departure, a congregational meeting was held in the parish hall, when members of the Anglican congregation met to say good-bye to Mr. and Mrs. Wood. Mrs. S. E. White read an address to Mrs. Wood, thanking her for her friendship and kindly interest in the W.A. and wishing her happiness in her new home. Mrs. Wm. Armstrong then presented Mrs. Wood with three Spode service plates on behalf of the W.A.

Appreciate Work.

O. A. Langley addressed Rev. Mr. Wood, recalling many things he had done to endear himself to his parishioners, mentioning especially his leadership in financial matters. Under his guidance the church had paid off all debts, painted the masonry of the church, installed two furnaces and kept both the church and rectory in good repair. He expressed the congregation's regret at losing a leader who had helped them so much. He then called on Mr. J. F. Harvey, who presented Mr. Wood with a purse of money. Mr. Harvey corroborated Mr. Langley's statements and added his approval of Mr. Wood's interest in civic affairs in the village, particularly his interest in the public school, of which he was a board member.

Mr. Wood replied, thanking the congregation and expressing his regrets at leaving a church, a village and its citizens whom he had learned to know and love so well during the period they resided here.

Refreshments were then served by members of the Guild, Mrs. O. A. Langley, Mrs. R. Campbell, Mrs. J. Twist and Mrs. W. Croft.

During the holidays a jolly party was held in the parish hall for the Sunday school pupils of St. John's [illegible] Jimmie and Katharine, were presented with gifts from the Sunday school and Mr. Wood with a wallet on behalf of the Sunday school scholars. The children were in charge of the teachers, Rev. Mr. Wood, Mrs. Croft and Mrs. Twist. Games were played and Miss Joyce Hutt and Miss Jean Eagleton were in charge of a short program.

The program was made up of choruses by the school, readings by Bill Twist and Colin Campbell, recitations by Kenny Henry, Teddy and Doug Eagleton, songs by Katharine and Jimmy Wood, trio by Mary Ann Wilson, Betty Birch and Bill Twist. The children were then given a gift and a bag of sweets.

Here are some recipes for small cakes and cookies that are easy on both butter and sugar.

Oatmeal Macaroons

2 teaspoons butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2½ cups rolled oats, 1 teaspoon vanilla, or ½ teaspoon of bitter almond flavoring, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Add rolled oats mixed with baking powder and salt and drop from a teaspoon on greased baking sheet about 2 inches apart. Bake in a slow oven 15 minutes. This amount will make 5 dozen macaroons.

Chinese Chews

1 cup dates chopped, 1 cup nuts chopped, 1 cup sugar, eggs, ¾ cup flour, 1 teaspon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Mix all dry ingredients, together, put in the dates, and nuts and stir in the eggs after beating them until light. Bake in a very thin sheet and when done, cut in small squares and roll into balls. Then roll in granulated sugar and bake.

Honey Drop Cakes

¾ cup honey, ¼ cup butter, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 1-3 teaspoon cloves, 1 egg, 1 cup raisins cut in small pieces, 1½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon soda, ½ tablespoon water.

DREAM DRESS—To judge by the expression and remarks of service men at holiday dances, the prettiest sight is that of a charming young woman wearing a foamy, dream-like dance frock. Here's a dress, by a New York designer, that certainly takes care of those specifications. It is a dream dress of white net strewn with confetti sequins, made on demure and dainty lines. A ruffling of net falls over the shoulders and forms a little cape effect in back. The midriff is moulded with white taffeta.—By Alice Alden.

Improvements In Labrador Explained To Art Group

Beautiful colored moving pictures, showing the picturesque coast of Labrador, and excellent examples of the handiwork of the people of that country, were shown to a large audience in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A., Friday afternoon, by Miss E. G. Graham. The meeting, sponsored by the Women's Art Association, was open to the public, and a great many members of the Peterborough branch of the Grenfell Mission, as well as others interested in the work, were in attendance.

Miss Graham is now secretary for the Grenfell Labrador Medical Mission, in Ottawa, but served for fifteen years in Labrador, and spoke with a first-hand knowledge of the people, their customs and their characteristics. She explained that she had returned to Labrador last summer, after an absence of five years, and described her trip, and the impressions she formed on her return.

Explaining that Dr. Wilfred Grenfell had first come to Labrador more than 50 years ago to make a survey, she said that he was immediately conscious of the desperate need of these people for better living conditions and medical care. Most of them are descendants of hardy fisher folk who came out from England about 200 years ago, and have lived ever since by fishing. At first the barter system was used exclusively in trade, and the fishermen were often exploited. Although this system is still used to a great extent, the terms are much fairer. Co-operatives have been started, and the people have been educated to make the best use of their combined efforts and talents, she declared.

Outlining the many improvements which the Mission has helped to bring about, Miss Graham stressed that the people themselves were improving their country, under the supervision and guidance of trained men and women. Schools have been built, where boys are taught correct ways of fishing and preparing fish for market, and girls are girls are taught housework and handicrafts. A great many boys and girls are sent to Canada for advanced training, and return to their homes to teach their people.

Unusual Phrases

Interspersing her talk with anecdotes and snatches of patter, Miss Graham kept her audience extremeinterested at all times. She said that the residents always mixed their pronouns, and that their talk was naturally colored with nautical phrases. One particularly pertinent phrase she quoted, was from an old lady, who was telling her that she just couldn't believe the story someone had told her, and expressed it this way: "I couldn't hoist that aboard." The speaker also told of the great strides made in the medical aid and supervision for the people, and told of the hospitals and nursing station set up and maintained by the Mission.

Tuberculosis Flourishes

Most prevalent of the diseases which must be conquered is tuberculosis, she explained, stating that there was hardly one family that didn't have at least one member ill with tuberculosis at home or in the hospital. Others are scurvy and beriberi, but the gardens which the people have been encouraged to grow are helping considerably to conquer these. "I was disappointed, I must admit, when I first returned to Labrador after seven years' absence," Miss Graham went on, "But as I continued my trip, I saw how much had really been accomplished, and knew that the entire 1,500 miles of coastline could be made into thriving little communities like St. Anthony."

The colored moving pictures were principally of St. Anthony, and Sir Wilfred himself was the main character in many of the scenes. The wild, rugged, picturesque country appealed greatly to the audience, and the modern improvements already installed showed the progress which has been made since the first beginnings of the Mission. L. Bird was in charge of the projector.

Serves 15 Years

Miss Graham was introduced by Mrs. G. R. Langley, who explained that she was a native of Vancouver, and had gone to Labrador for a summer's visit, and had remained 15 years, working among the people. Mrs. J. E. Munro, president of the Art Association, thanked Miss Graham for her informative address, and expressed her appreciation to the Grenfell Mission, which had made Miss Graham's visit possible.

On display around the room were various pieces of handicraft made by the people of Labrador. One item in particular was a prize-winning hooked tapestry of the Canadian coat of arms, on a black background, which won first prize in a Canada-wide competition. Others included attractive and useful after-skiing boots, with bright hooked soles, and red knitted tops done in the cable stitch. Several of the famous hooked rugs were also on display, as well as other novelties.

Mrs. Munro announced that the next meeting of the Association would be held Friday, January 19, when a display of silk screen reproductions of work of Canadian artists would be shown.

Prior to the meeting, Miss Graham was entertained at luncheon at the Empress Hotel by members of the executive of the Grenfell Mission in Peterborough.

A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of plain syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make in your own kitchen. Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble! (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.)

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16-ounce bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really splendid medicine for bad winter coughs. It makes a real saving for you, because it gives you four times as much cough syrup for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is a very effective, dependable, quick-acting cough medicine for the whole family. Quickly, you feel its penetrating effect in the air passages. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes and makes breathing easy. You will be delighted with its quick effect in clearing up coughs.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a well known reliable soothing agent for winter coughs. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Main Street Topics

POLICE COMMISSION

The first meeting of the board of police commissioners will be held on Monday and it is expected that Chief Constable John W. Thompson will present his first annual estimates.

RETAIN PRESIDENT

George Elliott of Norwood was re-elected chairman of the Cheese Producers' Association of this county at their annual meeting here Friday. Gilbert McIlmoyl, vice-president, and the other officers were also retained.

TO ADDRESS ROTARY

A. A. Gardiner, general traffic manager of the Canadian National Railways will address Rotary on Monday on "Some Observations at Two Conferences." He will be accompanied by J. H. Pringle, vice-president of the C.N.R.

PARATROOPER HOME

Pte. Anthony Schiarizza, who was wounded while serving with the Special Service Force of paratroopers in Italy, arrived in Peterborough Friday. He returned home aboard the hospital ship Letitia. The young soldier is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Schiarizza, 582 Bethune street.

HOMES LACK HEAT

The unusually cold snap of the past few days has been putting householders on the spot. Landlords have been keeping the temperature of their apartments and duplexes in some cases at a low figure, and the severe cold has kept the temperatures in some apartments as low as 60 degrees, with discomfort and embarrassment to a lot of people who detest having to ask for more heat almost daily.

SERVING OVERSEAS

Pte. Vincent Dwyer, son of Jeremiah Dwyer of Douro, is serving overseas. Prior to enlisting in 1942, Pte. Dwyer was employed by the Quaker Oats Company.

TWO CALLS

Two alarms were answered by the Peterborough Fire Department Friday. The first, at 4:45 o'clock in the afternoon, brought firemen to the Fish and Chip store of Mrs. Mary Carr, 215 Charlotte street, where a quantity of grease on the gas stove had taken fire. Later, at 6:07 o'clock, a chimney fire was extinguished at the residence of R. Pacey, 53 Victoria avenue.

WEATHER NOTE

Doug Hammond swathed in beaver skins and Burrill Moore with earmuffs. The big strong men are succumbing to the luxury of comfort, one by one, and other are weakening. However, some of the barehead lads are sticking it out, defying the weather as it plays on the lower register of the thermal strings. They're bears for punishment, unless they want folks to think they have no sensibilities.

THE WRONG NORMAN

Not Norman Lean but Norman Wilson is the reeve of Burleigh-Anstruther for 1945, to correct the Examiner's report of the constitution of the county council for this year. Reeve Lean, dean of the council and a former Warden, withdrew from the municipal on intimations that his Councillor, Norman Wilson, would like to take a turn as chairman and member of the county council. Mr. Lean simply retired and Mr. Wilson takes his place without a contest.

Hospital Train Brings Veterans Of Italy, France

KINGSTON, Jan. 6—(Special to The Examiner)—Wounded young veterans of the fighting in Italy and France arrived here Friday aboard a hospital train. Although they saw the heaviest fall of snow since arriving back in the Dominion, it made them happy because it was a typical Canadian winter they had waited for long months to see, and, it was home.

Among the group was Pte. A. P. Schiarizza, Peterborough, who lost his left eye through shrapnel while spearheading the invasion of Southern France with the Special Service Forces.

Overseas for nearly five years, Gnr. J. Sherboneau, of Gananoque, was greeted at the Outer Station by his English bride, who preceded him from England with their young son by about six weeks.

Capt. W. L. Graydon, of Kingston, who was wounded in the left leg during the enemy action in Italy was one of the three Kingston officers to return in the group. Capt. Graydon and Capt. K. C. Hodgins, also of Kingston, were both admitted to Kingston Military Hospital. Capt. H. G. G. Tolchard, also of Kingston, was able to proceed immediately to his home.

Others admitted to Kingston Military Hospital were Pte. R. H. Harrison, of Kingston; Pte. G. D. Mattis, Consecon, who suffered a compound fracture of the left leg during action near the River Orne in France; Pte. H. F. Quinsey, Belleville, who was clipped on the head by a sniper's bullet on the border of Belgium and Holland, and Pte. C. R. Hoople, Wales, Ont., who lost his right leg while on a reconnaissance patrol along the Leopold Canal in Belgium.

Among those who proceeded directly to No. 3A District Depot at Fort Frontenac, and were given leave immediately after documentation were:

Pte. L. Brant, Shannonville; Spr. H. S. Calberry, 409 Braidwood Ave., Claraday, Peterborough; Pte. E. W. Caron, 268 Wellington St., Kingston; Cpl. L. M. Dewell, Ajax; Pte. A. R. Edwards, 415 London St., Peterborough; Pte. W. Groves, 3 Bedford St., S., Cornwall; Rfmn. J. H. Johnson, Mill St., Napanee; Pte. J. E. Kewin, 65 Charles St., Oshawa; Pte. F. R. Lustic, 313 Louis St., Peterborough; Dvr. C. B. McKenzie, Gilmour; Pte. W. A. Phillips, 72 Albert St., S., Lindsay; Pte. W. J. Pigden, Madoc; Tpr. W. J. Reppard, 310 Bleecker St., Belleville; Sgmn. W. Revoy, Marmora; Pte. P. G. Reynolds, 32 McConnell St., S., Cornwall; Pte. A. P. Schiarizza, 582 Bethune St., Peterborough; Gnr. J. Sherboneau, Garden St., Gananoque; Pte. G. D. Stephens, the Hatches, Farnham, Hants, Eng.; Pte. G. H. St. Louis, 17 Couliff Ave., Cornwall; Gnr. L. T. Teasdale, Eagle Lake; A/Cpl. R. B. Waudby, R.R. 2, Lakefield.

BORN IN STORM-BOUND AUTOMOBILE — Mrs. Roy Luzon and her baby daughter, born in the back seat of a car, hopelessly stranded in a snow drift, after a bumpy 16-mile ride over snow-drifted roads and through fields the car pulled by two tractors. Her doctor, unable to reach her, thought a casaerian birth would be necessary. Both she and the baby are doing well in St. Joseph's Hospital, Chatham. They were rescued from the car by a snow plow several hours after the birth and taken on to the hospital.

Burma Soldier Finds Jungle As Great An Enemy As Japs

The Burma front, as it fits into the picture of the war against Japan, is vitally important, and the Japanese military leaders have shown they know the fact by greatly reinforcing their troops occupying the country, declared Major Frank Ashton, of the Royal Artillery, in an address to the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon.

Major Ashton, who at 27 years of age has become a professional soldier, served in the South East Asia Command as a naval bombardment expert, although officially, he was still an army man. Later, his training and experience resulted in a recall to Britain, where he helped plan D-Day events.

If any soldiers now fighting in Europe are to be sent to Burma they must be acclimatized he said. Approximately 70 per cent of the soldiers at one time became sickness casualties, although this has been knifed to about 30 per cent. Malaria, and other jungle diseases were the causes.

"It is a horrible country, but one that is ideal for defence," Major Ashton emphasized. Miles of mangrove swamps, with vegetation so thick you must hack your way through, up to the knees in mud, bothered continually by leeches and a myriad of other biting insects, are only some of the reasons a soldier in Burma is fighting the dense jungle as much as he is against the Japs, he said.

Guns Sink

He told Kiwanians he had watched a field gun sink into the swamp and disappear from sight, and that he had heard of a unit which lost a majority of its guns this way.

This Japanese soldier, of course, is a fanatic; not at all like the German soldier, who contrary to popular opinion on the civilian front, is definitely very brave and well-equipped, Major Ashton pointed out. As an example of the fanaticism of the Nipponese snipers, he said, they would much rather kill a soldier of higher rank than themselves, as this gives them more marks in heaven, when they die.

Commando Training

Major Ashton was among the first to land on the beaches of France on D-Day, serving with an American unit which came ashore under particularly heavy fire. Among his jobs before the invasion, were to form plans for the artillery assault, and final reconnaisance of the beaches. A member of the famed commando outfit himself, Major Ashton reported that all assault troops taking part in the invasion had received exactly the same type of training as the commandos. This included 20 mile hikes with full pack, long swims, coming back for supper and then swinging into night exercises.

The young officer colorfully outlined in all its complexities the events that made up the great invasion of France last June. Southern England before the invasion was an enormous camp, and along the coast, as far as the eye could see were all types of landing craft, intermingled with destroyers and other warships. In every little bay, concrete slipways were ready to

Handicraft Boys Extend Help Given By School

The word handicraft has a pleasing sound, and signifies something that is useful. So it would seem a fitting appellation to apply to a class of boys who were being taught with a view to filling a niche in later years to make their livelihood when they otherwise might fail from an academic standpoint.

The forming of such a class demonstrates an intent of purpose on behalf of some of the younger generation, which is quite laudable, one now being in operation at the Queen Mary School, with some 22 boys in attendance from all parts of the city, instructed by a teacher specially trained for such purpose.

Here they receive training equally divided between the academic and manual arts to better fit them for life's battle. That they are doing something constructive in this way is shown by their making useful and adorning articles, which they sold, to raise a sum of $6.60.

To put this usefulness into play for a much wider sphere, they have given this money so that it can help others in far-away Britain, through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, thus extending the aid of $53 given by their school at Christmastide.

Pleasing memories are also recalled of a fine git made in mid-December by the Students' Council of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School, when a gift from Room 17 is recorded in to-day's receipts.

Coffee Club Totals $85.

A resounding echo of the help the Coffee Club members gave at the Christmas season is to be found in in another gift of $25.50, which enlarged upon the helo given by the same group a year ago for the same purpose. This year the total stands at $85.50, as against $75 on the previous occasion.

On the Saturday before Christmas Day, Carl Salmonsen dropped in to join the group in their morning's libation, and the first thing he did was to drop a $5 bill of Yankee vintage into the pot, which of course, meant an extra 10 per cent premium, signifying that he wished to have a real part in this good purpose. Then he participated to the same extent as the other habitues in helping to swell the amount to the figure as it is registered to-day. His visit proved to be one of the most pleasurable features of that morning's session.

The fund management is now pleased to report more than $1,000 on hand towards another donation of 500 pounds, which in view of reports of further raids in the last 24 hours would be of real use to those so recently stricken.

NO DEPRESSION HERE

LONDON — (CP). — General post office staffs last year handled 6,000,000,000 letters and parcels, 2,000,000,000 telephone calls and 75,000,000 telegrams.

RECEIVES OBE—Lieutenant-Colonel Dennis Ross-Smith, whose wife and two children live at 87 London street, was one of the Canadian officers upon whom King George VI conferred the Order of the British Empire in His Majesty's New Year's honors. He was engaged in business in Montreal prior to the outbreak of the war.

Officer Honored Family Hears

Lieutenant-Colonel Dennis Ross-Smith, of Montreal, whose wife and two children live at 87 London street, was one of the Canadian officers enrolled in the Order of the British Empire in the New Year's honors conferred by His Majesty the King.

A veteran of the Sicilian and Italian campaigns, Lt.-Col. Ross-Smith also saw service in Africa, and latterly has been engaged in Belgium and Holland. He was born in Hull, England, came to Canada in 1928, and was president of Canvas Goods Company in Montreal, manufacturer of tents and tarpaulins. At the outbreak of the war he enlisted in the Canadian Army Service Corps and was for two years an instructor at Camp Borden before going overseas. Prior to his enlistment he was attached to the R.C.A.S.C. of the serve forces in Canada. Some time after his arrival overseas he was assigned on loan to the British 8th Army in Africa, and proceeded with it through Sicily and into Italy.

Lt.-Col. Ross-Smith was married about six months before the Germans opened war on Poland. During his appointment at Camp Borden his wife lived for a time at Barrie, followed by a year's stay at the home of her brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Stanley-Jones of "Spring Farm" on No. 7 Highway, thirteen miles east of Peterborough. Since then Mrs. Ross-Smith and her two children, Anne and Graham, have been residing in this city. Her husband was promoted to the rank of Major while at Camp Borden.

A brother, Flying Officer W. D. Ross-Smith, is with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

"Horse Palace" By Contrast Swanston Says

Word has got around to Alderman Swanston that some of the neighbors are referring to the city's new building on Townsend street as "the horse palace." The phrase mainly smacks of good humor, out there seems to be mixed into it a grain or so of sarcasm, possibly suggesting the notion that something cheaper might have been put up for the horses that draw the city's garbage to the incinerator.

"That's perfectly true," the Ashburnham representative declared this morning. "When you compare our new barn with the old one, any one would be justified in calling the new one a horse palace, and as ratepaying citizens they ought to be proud of it. I don't think there is any criticism in the phrase. The contract was let by tender, and I think the Eastwood Construction Company gave us a good job. Probably there will be a new chairman of the property committee after next Monday. I have had four years of it, and the committee had most of the detail of the building of the new incinerator and the new horse barn. I think every member of the council is satisfied that we got good value in both these investments."

Alderman Swanston said that if anybody had asked a ratepayer where was the garbage collection department's horse barn he would probably have said there was none, rather than "admit that all we had was that dilapidated old shack the Allin ice people used for years. It was all right then, but it is outworn, and looks as if it was going to tumble down at any time. The council was practically forced into the business of collecting the garbage ourselves, and that required us to go into the buying of horses and equipment, barn and so on, and the hiring of men to do the work.

Get New Equipment.

It seems to me that we are pretty nearly set now. We even have two chassis, low and underslung, on which garbage boxes will be set, for use in the spring. So that criticism of the high box wagons is not entirely justified. We ordered these trucks months ago to try them out. We have just received them, and they look as if they are what we have been thinking of. However you can't have everything just as you would like it all at once.

I wish some of the citizens would go down and compare the two buildings the old and the new horse barns, and I feel sure they would agree that the council did the right thing in building a spacious barn for the needs of the future. The men doing the collection work can't say that we have let them down even in that detail of a building, and if any one wants to call it a "horse palace" it's all right with me."

Two Cars Damaged In Highway Crash

Two cars were damaged but no one was injured in a traffic accident near the Keene intersection on Highway 7 at 12.45 o'clock this morning.

Murray Thackeray, Roseneath, was driving a car owned by Lloyd Parker east on Highway 7 and it collided with the rear of another east-bound automobile driven by William McIntyre, R.R. 8, Peterborough. The McIntyre car had engine trouble and was travelling slowly at the time of the accident. The rear of that automobile and the front of the car driven by Thackeray were damaged.

Thackeray told Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure, who investigated the accident, that he had been blinded by the bright headlights of a west-bound car and did not see the slowly-travelling automobile in front of him in time to avert a crash.

Motorists Trapped When Car Overturns

Imprisoned in their car when it turned over in the ditch on Highway 28 near Fraserville Friday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Davis, 375 Stewart street, were rescued soon after by the driver and passengers of a Collacutt bus.

They were shaken up but escaped without injury.

Davis was driving his car toward Peterborough and had just come over the brow of Wood's Hill when his automobile struck some loose snow. As the driver tried to pull back to the centre of the road, the vehicle went into a skid and eventually shot off the highway into the ditch where it overturned against a tree.

The occupants were unable to extricate themselves but fortunately the bus arrived in the scene shortly afterward and they were rescued.

The accident was investigated by Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure.

Brig. C. Hepburn To Visit City

Arrangements have been completed for the forthcoming visit to this city of the Principal Protestant Chaplain (Army), Brigadier the Rev. Canon C. G. Hepburn, M.C., of Ottawa, on January 15.

Brigadier Hepburn will be the speaker at the noon luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club; and the members of the Peterborough Ministerial Association have been invited to attend as guests of Rotary.

At 8:00 p.m., that evening, the Principal Chaplain will speak on "Canadian Unity" at a gathering to be held in the Collegiate Institute, under the auspices of the Unity League. He will be introduced by the Rev. W. A. Filer, (president of the Ministerial Association and rector of All Saints' Church) and thanked by Captain Harry Marsh recently invalided home from overseas). Mrs. James Goldie has kindly consented to act as soloist for the evening with Mrs. Gwen Craw accompanying.

There will be a silver collection to defray incidental expenses. Doors will open at 7:30 p.m., and the meeting will be called to order promptly at 8:00 p.m.

Brigadier Hepburn served overseas during the last Great War, and for many years was rector of All Saints' Church of England in Ottawa. He went overseas, as a chaplain, in this war, and was returned to Canada, in the Fall of 1943, to receive the appointment of Principal Chaplain (Army) his headquarters being at Ottawa. Brigadier Hepburn comes to this city with a nation-wide reputation as a great Canadian and public speaker.

One Case On Docket Of Saturday Court

Pleading guilty to having been begging Friday, Calvin Cruikshank was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to six days imprisonment in the county jail. Cruikshank told the court that he had no home and was unable to get a place to stay.

This was the only case on the docket at police court this morning. "It was too cold for any one to get into trouble Friday night", one of the officers thought. Anyway there were no arrests except that of Cruikshank and few complaints.

Most of the telephone calls coming in this morning were from persons who wanted to know how cold it was.

Western Tunes Serenade Spoils Breakfast For Early Morning Lunch Counter Patron

To the much married man there may be times when the impersonal lunch counter seems to hold out attractions. For instance, if the baby's got a pain and is bawling; or the vision of delight isn't quite up to par of equanimity; or the furnace is down to its second last gasp; and a lot of other things are bucking against the accustomed groove. And that is when you may have misgivings about the whole scheme of things.

But, brother, about all you can say for the lunch counter atmosphere is that you can run out on it, if you must. You get all set before the orange juice, bacon, toast and coffee spread. Nothing worrying you; not even the weather, though all the company is talking about it and how low it went.

The day is starting out on the beam, and just then somebody tinkers with juke box and it blares out a lachrymose story, at least it sounds sad (they all sound that way) about "My Brown-Eyed Prairie Rose", with guitar and all the rest of the torture. You can't argue with the darn thing. It's a free country especially for those who like horse-opry vocals. You squirm and want to run out on the coffee and bacon and the damsel next to you brashly smoking at 8 o'clock cigarette. What a mixture of "canned corn" and "filly folly", juvenile brashness and pretense of sapience.

Visualize that little counter scene brother when the domestic matins seem a little out of tune. Still, if you can stand for that Brown-Eyed Prairie stuff maybe you were intended to breakfast at lunch counters and beside crazy dames that scoff at warning against those early fags.

Police Shortage

TORONTO, Jan. 6.—(CP).—There is a shortage of police constables in Toronto, but it is not serious enough to hamper efficient law enforcement, Mayor Robert H. Saunders said last night in comment on a report that Montreal had asked for release of its former policemen from the armed forces. The force had dropped from pre-war strength of 1,000 to 800, the mayor added.

launch the landing craft, all of which had been beached.

Twice as many bombs, or twice as great as the weight of bombs the Germans had thrown against England were dropped on the coast before troops landed, he said. "I've never seen anything like it in my life; it was the mightiest bombardment ever made."

The three main targets for the swarms of bombers that roared over in never-ending waves, were the coastal defences, the Pas de Calais, area, and the supply and communication lines behind the coastal defences, he outlined.

Germans Diverted

In an explanation of a few of the German plans for anti-invasion attack, Major Ashton said that behind the coastal defences, the Nazis had grouped armoured formations and crack troops, which they could rush to any section of the beach the Allies should attack. The bombing of the coast defences did little damage to them, he conceded, adding that the Allies had known beforehand that it wouldn't. It's purpose was mainly to divert the attention of the soldiers, and facilitate the landing of United Nations men.

About 400 yards off shore, the men in the landing craft saw the bombardment halt, and the Germans began firing. The first big problem of landing was the steel defences the Nazis had placed in the water, about 250 yards off shore. Courageous assault engineers helped destroy gaps in the defences so that the landing craft could get through, he said, although they suffered 50 per cent casualties in only 20 minutes.

High admiration for the magnificent air support, given was expressed by Major Ashton, an expert not only in army affairs, but also in naval gunnery, parachute jumping, and all branches of amphibious warfare.

Luftwaffe Banished

For eight days, on the fringes of France, not a German plane was seen, so skillful were Allied planes in keeping the Luftwaffe away. After setting foot on shore for the first time, a line of barbed wire was the first obstacle, but commando training enable the assault troops to climb over it without any trouble. These troops were the assault troops; their job was to push inland, to make way for the follow-up men who were coming. And for that reason, minefields on the beaches were ignored, although as Major Ashton said, "It's not a wise thing to ignore a minefield, because they often make their presence felt."

Later, on a mission to Caen, Major Ashton said he saw extremely brave and well-equipped German troops fighting, not at all as Nazis are sometimes described in the papers, as downcast old men. Many of them were from 17 to 23 years of age, he said.

About the French underground, Major Ashton related that in the St. Nazaire raid, months before the invasion, the French underground came out and aided the Allies, thinking it was the invasion. After the Allied soldiers withdrew, the Germans executed many of them. This time, the French were more cautious and took a few days to decide if it was the real invasion. Then, they helped, and did some extremely valuable work. On several occasions, he said, German tanks were seen abandoned, because they had run out of gas. French underground workers had sabotaged the gasoline supply trucks during the night.

The recent German drive only illustrates more clearly than ever, he said, that Germany will probably never collapse internally all at once, because there is a lot more fight left in the people.

Plenty of Experience

Few soldiers of Major Ashton's age can have more experience of amphibious warfare. He took part in the landings at Sicily, and served during the landings with the commandos at Algiers at the start of the Tunisian campaign. After, he fought with the 78th division in that war theatre.

Originally intending to be a dentist, Major Ashton is hoping that his experience in land, sea and air warfare may be found especially useful as the war creeps nearer to Japan.

Tom Rodger thanked the speaker, for a particular interesting and informative talk.

During the meeting, Harold B. Wyman was inducted into the Kiwanis Club, with John Troke officiating and Charles Huffman was the winner of the weekly draw.

Among the special guests at Friday's meeting were a number of young servicemen, including Flying Officer William Hamilton, D.F.C., just returned from overseas, Lieut. W. O. Thirnbeck, also just returned from overseas, A. B. Gordon, K. Fraser, RCNVR, and Captain Arnold Smedmore.

A number of Kiwanians made plans to go to Oshawa in the near future for the Kiwanis bonspiel to be held there, when representatives from other cities and towns will be present.

While most of the donors Thursday night came from the Training Centre and the city, a few braved the country roads into Peterborough. There were people from Norwood, Lakefield and Apsley. # Hospital Wing Struck By Bomb

LONDON, Jan. 6 — (CP) — V-weapons are still falling on southern England.

A hospital was blasted in one recent attack, but only one wing was affected and casualties were said unofficially to have been extremely light. A medical officer, his 17-year-old daughter and a woman lost their lives. Six injured people helped rescue workers dig for hours before the bodies were reached in the debris. Windows were broken in a large area around the hospital.

The explosion of another V-bomb trapped three blind persons. Fifty-year-old Jack Bass was pinned down by rafters and his daughter, a 26-year-old land army girl, were held fast under debris. All night long these two were imprisoned while rescuers tried to get to them, and all the while the man talked to the daughter, who was injured, and to a third blind person with them. Only the girl was hurt.

1,546,000 Tons Bombs Dropped On Enemy

LONDON, Jan. 6 — (CP Cable) R.A.F. and United States bombers plummeted 1,546,000 tons of explosives on enemy targets in Europe during 1944, it was announced last night. The R.A.F. said its bombers—of which the R.C.A.F. bomber group forms a part—dropped 588,000 tons.

Lt.-Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commander of the U.S. Strategic Air Force, said 958,000 tons were dropped by American planes, including those both in Britain and in the Mediterranean theatre.

Thirty-five per cent of the R.A.F. total fell on German industrial cities, devastating at least 36,000 acres.

The tonnage — more than twice the total weight unloaded by the R.A.F. during the first 4½ years of war — compares with 450,000 tons dropped in 1944 by the United States 8th Air Force, whose heavy bombers usually can carry three tons. The British Lancasters and Halifaxes can carry up to eight tons. All tonnage figures are given here in short tons.

20 Jap Division Regrouped In China

CHUNGKING, Jan. 6 — (AP) — A Chinese Army spokesman estimated today that the Japanese now have between 19 and 20 divisions aggregating more than 300,000 men available for action in central and south China.

At present, he said, the Japanese are regrouping and reorganizing after their long campaign in this area. He predicted their next move would be to close the Chinese-held gap in the Canton-Hankow Railway.

He likes shovelling snow and with practical Scottish insight has pointed out that the reason Canadians are not plagued with shoe rationing as are their United States neighbors is that the Canadian wintry carpet conserves shoe leather.

Canuck Fliers Clip Luftwaffe

LONDON, Jan. 6 — (ENS) — Flt. Lt. Dick Audet of Lethbridge, Alta., destroyed a German Focke-Wulf 190 yesterday and shared in the destruction of another to raise to 7½ his bag of enemy planes knocked down in a week, the R.C.A.F. reported.

Flt. Lt. Audet, who shot down five German planes in a little more than five minutes last Friday and got two more New Year's Day, shared one plane yesterday with Flt. Lt. J. J. Boyle of Toronto.

The German planes downed were among six destroyed by the R.C.A.F. Grizzly Bear Squadron in a mid-afternoon fight against seven aircraft just northeast of Hengelo, Holland.

Other scorers were FO. MacGraham of Dutton, Ont., who got two, Flt. Lt. Boyle, who destroyed one in addition to the plane he shared with Flt. Lt. Audet, and Flt. Lt. H. D. Carr of Saskatoon, who downed one.

A later action in which the Caribou Squadron participated resulted in probable destruction of a Messerschmitt 109 by Flt. Lt. M. Johnson of Selkirk, Man., and the damaging of a Focke-Wulf 190 by Flt. Lt. R. C. Smith of Lancaster, Ont.

In addition to these actions, a Canadian Spitfire wing damaged five locomotives and seven railway cars while a Typhoon fighter-bomber squadron damaged one locomotive.

CAVAN, Jan. 6.—(ENS).—An accident happened on the 8th Line, when the cutter in which Mr. and Mrs. Leonard McNeil were riding ran up on the hard snow at the north side, where it had been thrown up by the snow plough, and upset, throwing them both out. Mrs. McNeil had her right arm broken near the shoulder.

OPTIONAL PLAYS TO TRY

ONE POINT of value about a trump suit with four cards in your own hand and four in the dummy is the pliability of that situation. You have a choice among several different kinds of procedure which is seldom possible with five trumps opposite three. Every method possible with the 5-3 is usually available, and in addition a better chance for a good cross-ruff or for selecting which holding to treat as the master hand, while you use the other for ruffing.

North: ♠ 7 6 4 ♥ K J 9 6 ♦ J 7 5 2 ♣ Q 8

West: ♠ K J 9 ♥ 3 ♦ A K Q 10 9 ♣ K 9 5 4

East: ♠ 8 5 2 ♥ 8 7 5 2 ♦ 6 4 3 ♣ J 7 3

South: ♠ A Q 10 3 ♥ A Q 10 4 ♦ 8 ♣ A 10 6 2

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♠ | 2 ♦ | Pass | Pass |
| Dbl | 3 ♦ | Pass | Pass |
| Dbl | Pass | 4 ♥ | |

That was pretty smart bidding by North, in calling 4-Hearts. If he had bid only 3-Hearts, South would almost surely have passed him out shy of game, as he had already taken pretty strong action by repeating his double at the height of three. Thereby South took entire responsibility for a vulnerable contract that high if his partner had an utterly worthless hand. Under these circumstances, North properly figured, he had enough himself to make the game try worthwhile.

North was glad he did it, for he made his game. East led the diamond 6 to the Q and West switched to his trump singleton. North decided to do some ruffing, and so took that trick with the heart J, to lead the diamond 5 and ruff with the heart 10. Next he led the club 2 toward his Q, letting West have his K, and scored the return with his club Q.

The diamond 7 was next ruffed by the heart Q, the club A brought discard of the spade 4, the club 10 was ruffed by the heart 6, the diamond J by the heart A, the spade A was won and the 3 led. East with only his last three trumps left took this and North got the last two tricks with the heart K and 9. He lost tricks only to the diamond Q, club K and East's trump, which ruffed a spade.

What are the three main reasons why a declarer should sometimes deliberately play a king from his own hand or the dummy under an ace from the opposite hand?

Pres. Roosevelt To Discuss Foreign Affairs

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 — (AP) — President Roosevelt will include comprehensive discussion of foreign affairs in his annual message to Congress tomorrow.

It is not believed, however, that he will attempt to define exactly United States policy toward current European political problems.

The president is represented as wishing to keep his hands free for reaching future agreements with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin in the forthcoming big three conference.

After his initial talks with them he should know more exactly than at any time since the Teheran conference a year ago what are their plans and purposes with respect to the smaller countries of Europe and the extent to which basic American policies already enunciated may be put into practice there.

As highly-placed informants see the background of the big three meeting, it may be summarized in this manner:

Mr. Roosevelt will enter the conference strengthened in position because American armies are now fighting a great campaign on the Western Front and no question can any longer be raised about America's unstinted participation in the Allied war effort.

At the same time, responsible persons here say, he has the handicap which results from American desires to see certain policies made effective in Europe without American willingness to take the responsibility for making them effective.

As a result of the big three conference and of the forthcoming foreign policy discussions in Congress, diplomatic officials hope and expect the United States government may soon be able to say what degree of responsibility it is willing to accept in European affairs.

The situation arises primarily because of the lapse of time between the liberation of territories overrun by Germany and the proposed creation of a world security organization which would embrace the United States as well as the other great Allied powers.

If and when the United States enters such an organization it will assume a large measure of responsibility for European as well as other world affairs covering the interests of the great powers as well as the rights of small nations.

However, at the moment American foreign policy is limited to:

1. Helping to win the war.
2. Seeking creation of the world security organization.
3. Upholding various principles of European settlement.

Allied Attack Just Starting

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—(AP).—Gen George C. Marshall said yesterday that the Allied counter-offensive against the northern flank of the German bulge in Belgium "is just getting started."

He made the statement as he left the White House, accompanied by Gen. H. H. Arnold, Chief of Army Air Forces.

The Army Chief of Staff told reporters that on the second night of the Nazi offensive last month, Field-Marshal Montgomery took command of armies on the northern flank.

Field-Marshal Montgomery organized the counter-offensive on that side, while on the south another was begun, largely by the forces of Lieut.-Gen. George Patton under the group command of Lt.-Gen. Omar Bradley.

"The salient was sticking out and we were split in the middle," Gen. Marshall said, "and there was a normal division there. One man took one side, one the other. The fact that we'd done it we didn't want to convey to the Germans."

Gen. Marshall and Gen. Arnold were at the White House for presentation by the President of a Distinguished Service Medal to the widow of Field-Marshal Sir John Dill, who was senior British representative here on the Combined Chiefs of Staff.

village and the Italian home in which the mess was situated. Before the fireplace in the living-room we sat, sipped tea, chatted, and then set forth on the return journey. A blasted village this, a front-line town in truth.

To say Canadian boys in Italy appreciate their padres is putting it mildly. Whatever regard they might have for "religion" in "civvy street," up here at the front they respect the man who shares life with them, who both preaches and lives the Gospel, ho stands by them when they are in danger—and who ministers to them when they are dying.

Often has Major Warrander done this, and often laid them away in at the front, rows of white crosses Italian hillside, tenderly marking the place witha white cross, then writing words of consolation and hope to the loved ones back home.

I saw those Canadian cemeteries, saw them near Cassino, saw them up at the front, rows of hite crosses dotting the length of Italy, where our brave dead lie.

I join a multitude in paying tribute to Padre Neil Warrander and his comrade padres of all denominations, who toil on the world's battlefronts, in step with their men, sharing their hardships and dangers, giving manly words of spiritual confidence and cheerful handclasps when the days are dour, all in the name of our blessed Lord.—The War Cry.

Postpone Conference

LONDON, Jan. 6—(CP)—Postponement of a two-day Conservative party conference originally scheduled to open January 29 led today to renewed speculation on the possibility of an early meeting between Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin.

Mr. Churchill, as well as Foreign Secretary Eden, would normally participate in the party conference.

The diplomatic correspondent of the Press Association suggested that an impending meeting of the big three had been advanced and now was scheduled to take place late this month.

Dazed Canadian Flier Mumbles 'O Canada' Escapes Death From American Patrol

TORONTO, Jan. 6 — (CP) — Shot through the neck by a looting Nazi soldier, FO. Orlando (Lon) Cook, 33, escaped summary execution at the hands of a United States patrol 40 hours later because he was able to mumble the words of "O Canada."

Cook, who will enter hospital for treatment of affected vocal cords and a partly paralyzed hand, was one of 20 airmen returned from overseas service who arrived in Toronto Friday. His home is in Guelph.

Parachuting from a burning plane after a raid over Germany, Cook was unconscious when he landed in a German field.

"I think a German soldier stole my valuables and probably shot me when I stirred,' the flier said. "The bullet hit me in the neck and came out my back."

"I stumbled and weaved around going through forests, dodging ack-ack batteries and villages, but I don't remember meeting anyone. I tried to cross a river to reach the Allies, but I don't remember whether or not I made it.

"Next time I came to I found an American Army patrol until standing around me. They thought I was a spy because I had torn off some of the markings on my unifor and I had on that German flier's vest. I told them I was a Canadian airman, but they were suspicious and asked me to sing the National Anthem. I was so dazed I couldn't remember it, but I stumbled through 'O Canada.'"

St. Andrew's WA Appoints Helpers

MILLBROOK, Jan. 6—(ENS)—Mrs. H. R. Edmunds was hostess for the initial meeting of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's Church in the new year, the gathering being at her home, King street, on Wednesday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. P. I. Bentley, in the chair, and Mrs. Percy Stinson presiding at the piano.

Mrs. A. L. Sisco took charge of the opening devotional period on the theme, "Adventuring with God in the New Year," a new heart and new plans for a new world being stressed. The prayer was offered by Mrs. Edmund Ball.

Receipts from the December meeting were reported as $1.45 in the mile of coppers, $2.25 in fees, and $1.15 in donations, with a balance in the treasury of $214.98, plus a $300 Victory Bond; $4 had been received by the treasurer since the last meeting, making the receipts for 1944, $625.63. Miss Sutton handed in a donation of $25 from Mr. M. Coon, Toronto, one of the owners of the local Docon Telephone Company, and was instructed to send him a letter of thanks.

Before the general meeting, the executive had met and arranged the following committees for 1945: Devotional, Mrs. Edmund Ball, Mrs. Franklin Bannister, and Mrs. A. L. Sisco, taking three months in turn and securing their own helpers; pianists, Mrs. J. H. Barringer and Mrs. P. During business discussion, it was decided to build a cupboard in the church for the silverware, table linen, glassware and cup towels, these articles having previously been kept at the Bentley store. The annual bazaar will again be held on the third Saturday in November, the waiting-room having already been spoken for on that date.

There will be a pot luck supper on Wednesday, January 24, followed by the annual congregational meeting of the church, and in February the meeting will be at Mrs. H. D. Bigelow's home, with afternoon tea served, the first Wednesday in the month. To this, outsiders will be invited. For the supper on the 24th, Mrs. Sisco and Mrs. Edmunds were placed in charge of the hot meat dishes, everything else to be pot luck which members of the congregation will provide. Heads of tables are: Mrs. J. H. Might and Mrs. Ball, Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Bigelow, and Miss J. Sutton. The hour is to be 6.30 p.m., and these women will get their own helpers.

Rev. Mr. Sisco dismissed the meeting with prayer and the hostess served lunch during the social hour. No holiday cards nor sunshine bags will be used this year to add to the funds.

Warm Tribute Paid To RCAF

LONDON, Jan. 6—(CP Cable)—The magazine Aeroplane, as a "Tribute to all the ranks of the R.C.A.F." Friday devoted 24 pages to the history and war activities of Canada's Air Force, now the fourth largest in the world.

A foreword by Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, Air Officer Commanding the R.C.A.F. Overseas, expressed the hope that the stories and pictures of the R.C.A.F. "may contribute to a better understanding of the splendid co-operative effort which has made possible the achievement of Allied air supremacy."

A prominent place is given to operations of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, now closing down, which Aeroplane said turned out 60,503 R.C.A.F. air crew as well as 29,065 R.A.F. and 8,067 Royal Australian Air Force and Royal New Zealand Air Force crew.

Describing the work of Canadian fighter pilots in the fighter-bomber group commanded by Air Vice-Marshal Harry Broadhurst, Aeroplane said:

"Of 532 German aircraft shot down by Broadhurst's group since the invasion, no less than 472 have been credited to R.C.A.F. pilots, both in the Canadian and R.A.F. squadrons; proportionately the same applies to probables and damaged planes."

Officers for 1945 are: President, Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe; secretary, Mrs. Gordon Faux; treasurer, Mrs. H. E. Oliver.

As the great powers in Europe attempt to look into the future planning for the post-war days, it is believed they—namely, Russia and Great Britain—will have in particular mind the countries that border their frontiers. These post-war spheres of influence would, then, perhaps line up as are shown on the map above, with only Ireland and Switzerland remaining strictly neutral, unaffected by their own choice. The question, observers are asking, is should these spheres of influence become realities, would half of Europe then be Communistic?

Canada Ideal Affiliate Editor Claims

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6— (CP). — Canada, already experienced in three forms of co-operation— the British Commonwealth, North American fellowship, and the League of Nations — should be "an ideal affiliate" of a post-war international organization, a newly-published book, "An Intelligent American's Guide to the Peace," said on Friday.

The book, prepared under the general editorship of Sumner Welles, former United States Under-Secretary of State, declared the Dominion would emerge from the war with "a really superb industry" and, if industrial exports become as vital to her economy as farm products have been, she "will be completely dependent for her welfare on world peace and prosperity."

This 370-page volume, as Mr. Welles, author of the best-seller, "Time for Decision," says in the introduction, gives "a brief picture of every independent nation and of every major dependent people of the world."

The book, prepared by a research staff, credited Canada with possessing "certain well-defined assets: A model banking system, an intelligent policy of stimulating external trade; a thrifty, orderly and well-educated people who are members of the far-flung British Commonwealth of Nations and who have, at the same time, the example of America's large-scale industry and unparalleled wealth immediately across their southern border."

"This fortunate configuration, together with the certainty of increased domestic mineral production, should suffice to ensure that any economic difficulties will be mere interruptions to a definite phase."

Of the Dominion's racial makeup, the book concluded: "The industrialization and urbanization of French Canada must create patterns conforming more closely to those of the external world, and the praiseworthy conservation of the traditional speech and manners of French Canada need not always take the political form it has so often assumed in recent years."

Living Cost Shrinks A Bit

OTTAWA, Jan. 6 — (CP) — The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported to-day its official cost-of-living index, calculated on the basis that 1935-1939 equals 100, declined from 118.9 at Nov. 1 to 118.5 at Dec. 1 for a wartime increase of 17.6 per cent.

Fluctuations of the index are not reflected in wages as cost-of-living bonuses have been merged with basic wage rates under the Federal Government's wage-control order.

The bureau said the decline was wholly accounted for by a reduction in the food group index from 131.6 to 130.3, with lower prices for eggs, vegetables and fruits contributing the major portion of the decline. The December, 1944, cost-of-living index of 118.5 compares with a 1943 year-end figure of 119.3, and with 115.8 Dec. 1, 1941, when maximum price regulations went into effect.

Group indexes other than foods remained unchanged for December, 1944—rentals at 112.0, fuel and light at 108, clothing at 121.6, home furnishings and services at 118.4 and miscellaneous items at 108.9.

When Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the merging of the cost-of-living bonus with basic wage rates, he said the Government would review the whole program of price control and wage control if the cost of living increased more than three per cent and remained at that level for two consecutive months.

Permit Travel To Interior Zone Of France

OTTAWA, Jan. 6.—(CP).—Small numbers of Canadian businessmen and accredited representatives of newspapers may be permitted to travel to the interior zone of France in the near future, the Department of External Affairs announced today, but in a lengthy statement stressed the difficulties and limitations of such travel.

Travel to other liberated parts of Europe might be possible later as they cease to be zones of military operations, said the statement.

Application for travel in the case of business men should be sent to the Department of Trade and Commerce and in the case of newspapermen to the Wartime Information Board.

"The number who can go forward would, for the time, be strictly limited by the inadequacy of passenger accommodation both from Canada to the United Kingdom and from the United Kingdom to the continent," the statement continued.

"As applications would undoubtedly exceed accommodation there would have to be a careful review of all applications in order to determine the most essential before granting permission to proceed. Each case would be considered on its merits."

Business men are advised to state in their applications whether they have agencies there or wish to establish new industrial or commercial establishments.

Even on applications finally approved, the statement warned, lengthy delays may be inevitable before movement is possible.

Shorthand Ace Dies At Age 91

TORONTO, Jan. 6—(CP)—Thomas Bengough, 91, for 30 years official reporter for York County Courts, died at his home here Thursday.

Regarded as the dean of the shorthand profession in Canada for many years, he was secretary of the Royal Commission and Industrial Training and Technical Education from 1910 to 1913. Born in Whitby, Ont., he assisted his brother J. W. Bengough in establishing the cartoon weekly, "Grip," in 1874.

He later jointed the reporting staff of the Canadian Senate. In 1888 he organized the first Canadian convention of shorthand writers and the first speed tests held in Canada. Mr. Bengough organized the Chartered Stenographic Association of Ontario and was a pioneer in experimenting with the phonograph for dictation purposes.

Surviving are his widow and two sons, E. J. Bengough, registrar of McMaster University, Hamilton, and W. L. Bengough, Grimsby Beach, Ont.

20,000th Blood Donation

The 20,000th donation of blood to be made at the Red Cross Clinic was given this morning by 19-year-old Jack E. Bowen, 298 Pearl avenue, who previously gave five others. The Clinic has been in operation since July 22, 1942. Two brothers on active service with Canada's armed forces provided the incentive that brought Mr. Bowen to the Clinic for the first time in October, 1943, when he was 18 years of age. Cpl. Fraser Bowen, RCAF, is serving in Holland, while Torpedoman Allan Bowen, RCNVR, is aboard the corvette HMCS Halifax.

"If they should ever get wounded over there, I like to think that perhaps the blood I give here will save their lives," Mr. Bowen said.

"Giving blood doesn't hurt a bit, and as a matter of fact, you actually feel better after giving a donation. I'm going to make as many more as the Clinic will let me," he declared.

Mr. Bowen, an employee of the Tool Room department at the Canadian General Electric Company, said he came to the Clinic to give blood for the first time with a group of other CGE employees. He was working nights, and came down one morning. Since then, it has

Expulsion By C.C.F. Party Labelled "Despicable Act"

TORONTO, Jan. 8—(CP).—Leslie Hancock, CCF member of the Ontario Legislature for Wellington South, today described as a "most despicable act" the action of the riding CCF executive in recommending his expulsion from party membership. He announced his withdrawal from the party and said he will sit in the next session of the Legislature as an Independent Farmer-Labor member.

The action of the Wellington South Riding CCF Association executive was taken at a meeting last night and officials said the resolution would go before the membership at an early date. The resolution, which charged that Mr. Hancock refused to accept majority decisions of party conventions in regard to political co-operation with the Labor-Progressive Party, also asked that he resign his seat in the Legislature.

Mr. Hancock gave a statement to The Canadian Press by telephone from his home near Cooksville, Ont., saying he dealt "directly and honorably" with the riding association by presenting a prepared statement on his position to about 20 of its members at a meeting Thursday.

Mr. Hancock is the second CCF member of the Legislature to withdraw from the party in a month. Norman Alles, member for Essex North, announced December 12 he was withdrawing from the party and would sit in the Legislature as an Independent Labor member.

The double withdrawal reduces to 32 the number of C.C.F. members

Bracken Visits Vimy Ridge

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

BRUSSELS, Jan. 8 — (CP Cable) —John Bracken, after spending three days among Canadian soldiers of this war, yesterday visited Vimy Ridge, famous Canadian battlefield of the First Great War.

The Progressive Conservative National Leader drove to Vimy from Brussels during the morning, and there saw the impressive memorial to Canada's 60,000 First Great War dead. He returned to the Belgian capital last night.

Mr. Bracken's stay among the Canadians ends to-day when he will leave for Paris, where he will see Maj.-Gen. Georges P. Vanier, Canadian Ambassador, and possibly also Gen. De Gaulle.

After a few days in the French capital, he will return to Britain and then travel to Italy to visit men of the 1st Canadian Corps. He will return to Canada via Britain.

Mr. Bracken has seen the complexity of the 1st Canadian Army machine during his present visit to Canadian formations, and in a

Japs Strengthen Chinese Coast

CHUNGKING, Jan. 8 (AP)—Japanese forces have landed fresh troops on the coast of northeastern Fukien province in an obvious preparation to counter any Allied attempt to establish beachheads on the Asiatic mainland, the Chinese high command announced tonight.

The Japanese landed Dec. 26 and advanced inland, occupying the town of Siapu about 70 miles northeast of Japanese-held Foochow. A Chinese counter-attack rewon Siapu Jan. 3, and the enemy retreated to the east, the high command said.

The landing was considered as one in a series of enemy measures to gird against Allied landings on the China coast. Although the Japa-

Soviet Army Loses City In Hun Push

Reds Claim Gains In Budapest And North Of Danube

LONDON, Jan. 8—(CP)—The German high command claimed today its counter-offensive northwest of Budapest had gained up to 25 miles and that the garrison of the Hungarian capital was still holding its own.

Berlin commentators, however, said the "beginning of a major military operation" might be foreshadowed in fighting activity revived in the Russian bridgehead at Baranov and Sandomierz about 120 miles south of Warsaw where the Russians several months ago lunged to within 35 miles of Karakow.

Meanwhile Moscow said today that Russian forces have been ousted from the key Danube bastion of Esztergom by powerful Nazi counter-attacks bent on relieving the Budapest garrison 20 miles to the south, but have registered a 12½-mile gain north of the Danube in an out-flanking threat to the attacking Germans.

A broadcast Soviet communique said 1,400 Germans had been killed, 300 captured, and 49 tanks and 16 armored troop carriers knocked out before the evacuation of Esterzgon, and reported German progress had been checked south of the city.

The same communique said the Red Army had crossed the Hro (Garom) River to the north and, driving along the Danube, had reached a point 10 miles from the communications hub of Komarom, west of Esterzgon.

In Budapest, the garrison had launched 12 consecutive counter-attacks in an attempt to spring the Russian armored vice that has pressed them back to the Danube both in Buda, on the west bank of the Danube, and Pest to the east.

The Soviet communique said the Germans lost another 400 men in the attacks and that Russian storm troops had captured another 116 blocks of buildings, giving them the control of more than 1,800 of the city's 4,500 total.

Esterzgon, captured December 26 by the army of Marshal Geodor Tolbukhin, was described Saturday by the Berlin radio as the northern anchor of positions the Nazis have gained north-west of Budapest in their furious counter-assault.

The new Russian bridgehead over the Hron River in Southern Czechoslovakia is due north of Esterzgon. The Soviet communique said 1,300 Nazi officers and men, 58 tanks, and 28 guns had been captured in the drive in that area.

The advance brought the Russians to within 60 miles of Bratislava, and 95 miles east of Vienna.

Meanwhile, the German radio reported signs of an impending Russian offensive along the Vistula River in Southern Poland, where the Russians are believed to have massed great concentrations of men and equipment on that long-dormant front.

Huns Retreating Beyond Port Of Ravenna

ROME, Jan. 8—(AP).—Canadian troops of the British 8th Army have driven to the Adriatic Sea at a point nine miles north of Ravenna and in four days have pushed the Germans out of 50 square miles of the marshy land between that city and Lake Comacchio.

Fanning out east and west along the highway from captured Sant Alberto, the Canadians reached the Sea of Casal Borsetti at the base of the spit of land separating the Commachio lagoons from the Adriatic.

Meanwhile, snow and cold weather confined activity on the rest of the Italian front to patrol activity, Allied Headquarters announced.

Allied 5th Army patrols maintained contact with the enemy south of Bologna as German artillery and mortar fire decreased somewhat from the fierce barrages of recent days.

To-day's Allied communique did not report details of the situation on the extreme eastern flank of the front where the Canadians had driven to the Adriatic, cutting off enemy troops holding swampy ground north of Ravenna.

2 Units Cut Off

Lt.-Gen. Foulkes' men had reached the coast nine miles north of the city, at a point where the coastline narrows to an isthmus about two miles in width, between Lake Comacchio—an inland lagoon—and the sea. The Canadians held the foot of this spit of land, as German units retreated in disorder along it last night.

One report said two German companies were cut off in the nearby marshes and most of their men were killed or captured.

Lines of retreat of several enemy detachments in the marshes south of Mandriole, 9½ miles north of Ravenna, had been cut, as the Canadians drove ahead through demolitions, mine fields and partially-flooded areas in a thrust toward the mouths of the Po and Adige rivers.

Headquarters said the British destroyer Lookout and the American destroyer Woolsey took part yesterday in the bombardment of vital targets in the Massa area, southeast of Spezia on Italy's west coast, where the Germans are bulwarked behind mountain defences.

It was in this sector that the German radio announced several days ago that there had been an Allied landing—an announcement obviously unfounded.

The attack was made from five miles off the Tyrrhenian shore. Direct hits were scored on a German command post, on an enemy battery and several buildings.

Germans Speed Withdrawal Threat In Alsace Lessened

By JAMES M. LONG—Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Jan. 8 — (AP). — Mile or more advances by the American 1st and 3rd Armies in the worst blizzard of the winter narrowed the waist of the Belgian salient to less than 10 miles tonight and caused Field Marshal Von Rundstedt to speed the withdrawal of his survivors from the western tip of the salient.

The 1st Army captured five villages and won domination of 15 miles of the St. Vith-Laroche Highway, one of the two last escape routes for three crack panzer divisions in the toe of the sock of the bulge. The other road, leading up through Houffalize was under artillery fire from both sides of the salient.

British and American assault teams on the 30-mile attack front on the northern side of the bulge kept up their slow, measured gains and the British 6th Airborne Division, veterans of Normandy, kept three crack German armored divisions tied up in heavy battle at the toe of the sock.

In the Ardennes Salient in Belgium and Luxembourg, a two-day attack from north and south not only cut one of the last two German supply and retreat routes in the bulge, but brought the other under close range artillery fire in the area west of Bastogne on the south.

The United States 3rd Army on the south captured Flamierge, only two miles from the last German road leading from Libramont through Houffalize to St. Vith.

The German diversionary threat to Strasbourg was described officially as apparently lessened as the Allies hurled in counter-attacks against German armor which speared north upon the Rhine city from the Colmar pocket. The Allies wrested back some of the ground lost eight miles north of the city on the west bank of the Rhine.

The western third of the Belgium bulge was all but nipped off, with one of the last two supply roads cut in three places by the Allies and the other brought within easy artillery range for the capture of Flamierge.

As these hard-driven wedges deepened, the hours of doom neared for three crack Panzer divisions still tied to the battleline at the "toe of the sock." American units in Alsace fought around a reinforced and stubbornly held German foothold on the west band of the Rhine eight miles north of Strasbourg.

Restricting Transfer Of Jews To Palestine

LONDON, Jan. 8—(CP)—Britain is again restricting the transfer of Jews from the Balkans to Palestine, a Foreign Office spokesman said today, but he denied a report that Britain was cancelling a promise to give Palestine visas to all Jews arriving in Turkey.

The report was made Sunday in New York by Alex Wilf, executive director of the American League for a free Palestine. Wilf said he had received word from Eri Jabotinsky, member of the Hebrew Committee of National Liberation who went to Turkey to arrange for evacuation of European Jews, that Britain had compelled Turkey to stop the issuance of transit visas to European Jews bound for Palestine.

"Jacobinsky does not know the facts," the Foreign Office commentator said.

Russians Voice Support World-Wide Press Freedom

MOSCOW, Jan. 8—(AP).—The magazine War and the Working Class said Saturday that ideas presented by Kent Cooper, executive director of The Associated Press, for world-wide freedom of the press deserve wide support, but at the same time said Mr. Cooper was misinformed about press freedom in Soviet Russia.

The Soviet publication in a 6,000-word article referred to an address made by Mr. Cooper in furthering his campaign to break down barriers against free interchange of news among countries.

The fortnightly review's article said the American press was business-controlled and compared it unfavorably with that of the Soviet Union.

"The Soviet people will never consent to replace its freedom of the press for the American one," the article said.

"Does Mr. Cooper really believe the Soviet people are the opponents of freedom of the press? No, he does not seriously believe this nonsense....

"But if Cooper, without any prejudice, could get an idea of the origin and development of the Soviet State and the real conditions in our country, he would become convinced that the circumstances are different because in our country we have conquered and realized the widest freedom of the press, and that we highly esteem freedom of the press in other countries, and like Cooper

The Americans, attacking after R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. night strikes at Munich, also hit rail centres supplying troops on the Saar front. The daylight bombers were escorted by more than 200 fighters.

Story Claims Several Prisoners Shot

LONDON, Jan. 8.—(CP Cable.) —The Sunday Pictorial said in a news story yesterday that 1,500 Canadian prisoners of war in Stalag IID near the Baltic port of Stettin attempted a mass break-out last November and that some were killed.

The story added that it was not known how many escaped.

The Pictorial account said the revolt was led by Pte. Gerald M. Johnston, a Broadway actor who played under the name of Gerald Kent and who was captured at Dieppe, presumably during the Canadian reconnaissance in force against that French port in August, 1942.

Johnston, a member of the Black Watch, Montreal regiment, was shot dead by guards along with other prisoners, the Pictorial add-[illegible]

Eisenhower Satisfied With Progress

Power Of Hun Attack Due To Concentration Of Forces On Shortened Front

By DEWITT McKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The hind-sight calamity howlers who have been feverishly seeking a victim for public sacrifice, because of the German surprise break-through in France, have their answer—and now maybe they can get ahead with their personal contributions towards winning the war.

President Roosevelt says "General Eisenhower has faced this period of trial with admirable calm and resolution and with steadily increasing success," and "he has my complete confidence. Simultaneously we learn from Allied Supreme Headquarters not only that there won't be any sacking of Allied Generals but that Eisenhower himself thinks his commanders have done a remarkable job in stemming the drive.

All this fits into to-day's picture of the battle of the bulge. While the situation still is dangerous, and there's bloody fighting ahead, the Allies are doing well. Field Marshal Montgomery sums the situation up succinctly by saying that while the battle is "far from over," the Germans "have been halted, then sealed off, and we are now in the process of writing them off."

That sounds like the Monty who, back in the days of his African campaign against Rommel, told me the only way to win wars is to crush the enemy troops on the battlefields. He possesses a lot of Cromwell realism.

Monday is a good time to examine another erroneous impression about the war in western Europe. The business-like way in which the Nazis cracked the Allied line has given rise to the idea that they actually are stronger than they were before D-Day.

What has happened isn't that Germany suddenly has discovered an Aladdin's source of war-wealth, or has fooled us with secret stores, but that it has concentrated its waning strength.

We shouldn't forget that at the time of the Allied invasion of Normandy the Germans were holding thousands of miles of "front" in western Europe. Their communications were vastly extended, calling for great consumption of gasoline and oil to move supplies. Mountains of material of all sorts were needed for the widespread fronts.

Once the enemy had retreated across France to his Siegfried defences, however, his active fighting front was reduced to some 500 miles. We don't need a pencil and paper to figure out that his striking power was multiplied overnight by this concentration, without any actual [illegible]

Western Road Links North

Trucks Serve Military Bases And Mines

OTTAWA, Jan. 8—(CP).—Fleets of trucks laden with equipment and supplies will move out of the little northern Alberta town of Grimshaw again this winter and head northward over the frozen muskeg that leads to military establishments and mining developments in the Great Slave Lake area.

They will follow a route which was nothing but a tractor trail in 1939, but which now is an important link with the rich northland's strategic metals, gold and oil.

Used only in winter months when water routes are frozen over, the road runs 385 miles from Grimshaw to Hay River, on the south shore of Great Slave Lake. There are branch roads leading to defence establishments on the northwest staging route and to the oil fields at Norman Wells.

The road was begun early in 19[illegible] and was intended mainly for the hauling of radium concentrates from the Eldorado mine and gold ore from the Yellowknife mines to the railhead at Grimshaw.

Then came the war and with it the great demand for radium and the need for military establishments in the north. The Alberta and Dominion governments agreed to keep the winter road open and the agreement has been renewed each year since.

Giant bulldozers clear paths for the trucks, which under good conditions can travel at a clip of 30 or 40 miles an hour. Once the snow is cleared away the bulldozers are kept busy filling in ruts and cutting off bumps that develop from [illegible] traffic.

Monty Claims Allies Hold Initiative Now

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

21ST ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, Jan. 8 (CP)—The Allies have regained the initiative from Field Marshal Von Rundstedt in the battle of the Ardennes salient, says Field Marshal Montgomery, but "there is still a great deal to be done" before the battle is over.

Holding his first press conference for five months, the commander of Allied armies to the north of the German salient said Sunday two basic reasons which had halted the German drive in December into Belgium and Luxembourg were Allied teamwork and the "courage and good fighting quality" of the American soldier.

Field Marshal Montgomery in the course of an hour-long talk with war correspondents of British 2nd and 1st Canadian Armies and the United States 1st and 9th Armies emphasized the need for "Allied solidarity at this vital stage of the war" and said he deplored published criticism in British newspapers of Gen. Eisenhower, Supreme Allied commander.

Describing the enemy offensive, the British commander said the first counter-measure taken by the Allies was to "head off" Von Rundstedt from "tender spots and vital places." The next step was to "rope him in and make quite sure that he could not get to places he wanted, also that he was slowly but surely removed away from those places."

"He is now being 'written off,' and heavy toll is being taken of his divisions by ground and air action," Field Marshal Montgomery added.

"You must not imagine that the battle is over yet. It is by no means over and a great deal still remains to be done."

He disclosed that the British 6th Airborne Division, which was landed east of the Orne River northeast of Caen during the invasion of northern France last summer, was one of the units fighting along the western tip of the German bulge in Belgium. (Dispatches at the time of the Normandy operation said it included some Canadian personnel.)

He said he did not know what Von Rundstert was trying to achieve and added that the German commander "has been unable to gain any great advantage."

of the Legislature. The party standing in the 90-seat legislature now is: Progressive Conservative 38, C.C.F. 32, Liberal 16, Labor-Progressive 2, Independent Labor 1, Independent Farmer-Labor 1.

Hancock's Statement

If the reports are correct this is the most despicable act on the part of the executive of the C.C.F. riding association of Wellington South, particularly in view of the fact that I have already dealt directly and honorably with the Association by presenting a prepared statement to about 20 members from the riding last Thursday and at which meeting a resolution was passed approving my stand. All of the Riding Association were to have an opportunity to vote on the resolution before further action was taken.

In the short time that has elapsed since then, this could not have been possible. If a bona fide meeting for consideration of such a resolution was called, I should have been notified, having the right to attend as a member.

At the Thursday meeting, I expressed the view that even if a majority of the members in the riding approved my stand, I still would have to withdraw from the party and become an Independent in the House. This I intend to do and expect to sit in the Legislature as Independent Farmer-Labor member for Wellington South.

Foresaw Move

LONDON, Jan. 8 — (CP). — The Daily Mail said today that Field Marshal Montgomery "foresaw" the German counter-offensive in Belgium and, when it happened, he took command of all the armies on the northern flank on his own initiative.

Caucus Debates 3 Major Points

NORTH BAY, Jan. 8—(CP)—Three major problems highlighted the C.C.F. caucus held here Saturday and Sunday, E. B. Jolliffe, provincial leader of the party told a press conference following the party meeting last night. Provincial financing, social ownership of certain industries and civil service reform were the major points of the discussion attended by the 32 C.C.F. members of the legislature.

Referring to the second topic, Mr. Jolliffe said party policy was "socialization of key industries, in particular those which are monopolistic and which are essential to effective planning." He said the C.C.F. was interested in industries on which the majority of people depended for their livelihood, either directly or indirectly.

"That does not include agriculture, because it is not a monopoly. Agriculture is operated on a family basis."

In a statement issued after the caucus, eight points of discussion were listed:

1. Reformation of electoral law.
2. Grey North by-election Feb. 5.
3. Taxation problems of Northern Ontario municipalities.
4. The Hydro Electric Power Commission acquisition of Northern Power Corporation.
5. Taxation of co-operatives.
6. Increased grants to municipalities for education.
7. The forthcoming federal election.
8. Bills to be introduced at the coming session.

Mr. Jolliffe said there were many "loopholes" in the Drew education plan and that an investigation was being conducted by the C.C.F., but added he could not "discuss the decisions of the caucus."

At an open meeting here Saturday night attended by about 100 persons as the thermometer registered 30 below zero, Miss Agnes McPhail, member of the Legislature for York East said that the C.C.F. as the official opposition "works hard for the people, whether they know it or not."

C.C.F. Member of Parliament for Nipissing, Ben Levert, said he had factual proof of deceit and betrayal" on the part of the federal government in handling gratuities and allowances for returned men.

been quite a regular proposition, he said.

With the 20,000th donation, the Peterborough Clinic has achieved a record which compares favorably with any other city of the same size in Ontario. Life-giving blood plasma has saved many lives on battle-fronts throughout the world, and Peterborough citizens who have contributed some of their blood, can feel proud to have taken part in an extremely worthy enterprise.

Not only people of Peterborough have been regular visitors at the Clinic, but also many who live in this district. Another group which has done much toward the success of the Clinic, is the volunteer workers, whose service has been faithful and tireless.

Trap Shaping

The Germans also reinforced their Colmar pocket to the south, captured Witternheim and Friesenheim and drove north along the Rhine-Rhone Canal within 18 miles of the city, reported being evacuated hastily. Allied Supreme Headquarters said "fighting continued north of these towns."

Moreover in the extreme north, the German bridgehead across the Meuse north of Venlo endured Allied attacks, and headquarters reported a second crossing of the river 38 miles northeast of Antwerp in the Geertruidenberg area. This holding was described as an outpost and Gen. Eisenhower's communique called the engagement a "mopping-up."

Pushed Back 8 Miles.

American counter-blows were declared beating back a German column which last week gouged within 10 miles of the Saverne Pass, threatening to cut off Strasbourg.

Fighting flared fiercely against the latest German onslaughts onto the northern edge of the Alsace plain, where the U.S. 7th Army has been pushed back eight miles through the Wissembourg gap. At points, the Germans were within six miles of the important base of Haguenau.

None of the German drives in the south had been beaten back and perhaps not yet stopped, but these appeared primarily diversionary—at least none showed the initial force expected of a major offensive.

The 20 divisions comprising Field-Marshal Von Rundstedt's three armies in the Ardennes bulge were fighting stubbornly as the U.S. 1st and 3rd Armies and elements of the 9th, and the British 2nd Army compressed the perimeter of the salient.

South of captured Lierneaux, the U.S. 1st Army advanced two miles. La Falaise and Fraiture were captured and the ice-covered St. Vith-La Roche road was cut at three spots.

The attack front on the north was 30 miles wide.

The 3rd Army on the south increased the threat to the Germans appreciably by taking Flamierge, five miles north-west of Bastogne and 1½ miles north-west of Mande-St. Etienne. Limited gains were reported south-east of Bastogne to within a mile east of Harlange. Flamierge is close to the diagonal highway from Libramont to Houffalize to St. Vith.

The neck of the salient was 10 or so miles wide, every inch of it commanded by American Long Toms and Howitzers on both sides of the gap.

The British 2nd Army on the north-western edge of the Belgian bulge advanced more than a mile south-east of Marche, Headquarters said.

Tension continued in Strasbourg, a city of 200,000, but this was described officially at Headquarters as apparently diminishing.

The excitement and rumors of the first days of the German threat caused several thousand persons including some minor French officials to evacuate, it was announced officially.

This movement was primarily by train and did not jam the military supply roads. Headquarters said that by now, many of those who fled have returned.

German forces that crossed the Rhine north of Strasbourg were estimated to have from five to eight tanks, and to have expanded their bridgehead to a width of six miles and a depth of three miles. Censorship permitted the disclosure that about 600 enemy soldiers now were operating in this area.

Far to the north in Eastern Holland, the Germans lashed out across the Maas and established a bridgehead which was under counter-attack by British troops. The German communique located the bridgehead at Wanssum, 26 miles east of the Allied base at Eindhoven and 12 miles north of Venlo.

CCF Candidate Enters Election

OWEN SOUND, Jan. 8 (CP) — Third candidate for the Grey North riding Federal by-election was nominated Saturday night when the C.C.F. Grey North Riding Association nominated Air Vice-Marshal A. E. Godfrey to oppose Defence Minister McNaughton, Liberal, and W. Garfield Case, Progressive Conservative.

Gen. McNaughton is making his venture in the political field in the Feb. 5 by-election, while Mr. Case is former mayor of Owen Sound.

A veteran of 42 years in the armed forces, Air Vice-Marshal Godfrey in accepting the nomination advocated "a just and effective program of total mobilization for an all-out war effort."

"Monpower alone won't win the war. It takes industrial power too ...We should be prepared to conscript wealth an industry—mobilize all our resources, financial and industrial as well as human, to the great task of victory."

The campaign is the result of resignation of W. P. Telford, former Liberal member, due to ill health. Mr. Case opens his campaign with a speech at Shallow Lake to-night, while Gen. McNaughton is expected to open his campaign Thursday.

Discussing the by-election, Air Vice-Marshal Godfrey said one of the real issues confronting Canadians—conscription—would be kept off the platform by the other parties.

"The Liberals would like to keep it off the platform altogether," he said. "The Conservatives want conscription but only up to a certain point that takes the men but leaves finance and industry."

"It is one thing to recognize by law the right of citizens to publish newspapers and magazines which serve their interests and quite a different thing to guarantee the people the use of their right....

"In 1913 in Russia 859 newspapers with a circulation of 2,700,000 were issued. In 1939, 9,000 newspapers with a circulation of over 38,000,000 copies were issued in the USSR. As to magazines, in 1939, 1,592 were published all over the country....

"In the Soviet Union the press serves the interests of the masses."

Cooper's Comment.

In New York Mr. Cooper made this statement:

"Mr. Baltisky has made a welcome contribution to the international discussion on the proposal of freedom of information by making clear the Soviet conception of freedom of the press which, as I have always said, and repeated in the address referred to, differs from the American conception which in turn he does not describe as would an American.

"There is some indication of error somewhere in his understanding of what I said. I have of course long been aware of the Soviet constitution guarantee of a free press and it was exactly that which I had in mind in the statement I made on the difference in the Soviet and American conceptions of the term. In the same address I spoke of the tremendous strides Soviet Russia has already made in following out its plan of press freedom....

"Meanwhile I am sure Mr. Baltisky would agree with me that if there had been freedom of information in the Axis countries, especially Germany, Russia would not now be suffering from the most cruel and most unjust war in its history."

Mr. Bracken said the three main objects of his visit were to see the Canadian men and women in the Active Army overseas, to understand the character and extent of the operations in which they were involved, and to try to "plan wisely for the future of these men and women when they return to Canada."

No Confirmation Of Attack On Luzon Isle

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ADVANCED HEADQUARTERS, Jan. 8 — (AP) — American troops were within 90 miles of Manila today but Army and Navy communiques offered no support to Japanese claims they were preparing any immediate invasion of Luzon island.

Gen. MacArthur's Tuesday communique said his forces have moved 15 miles up the west coast of Mindoro Island to capture Palaun town. Palaun is 30 miles from Luzon and Manila is less than 60 miles further north.

The communique said air pounding of enemy installations on Luzon was continuing.

Navy carrier planes also attacked Luzon. Fleet Admiral Nimitz announced at Pearl Harbor that the attack was made Saturday (Philippine time).

This was the same date given by Tokyo radio in first reporting United States warships were in Lingayen Gulf bombarding Luzon defences and "apparently planning a landing there." The Japanese said the bombardment continued all day Sunday (Philippine time) accompanied by carrier plane harassment.

Vice Admiral McCain's carriers swung south to help MacArthur's airmen cripple the enemy on Luzon after a two-day raid on Formosa and the Ryukyus.

The Navy communique said incomplete reports showed 27 Japanese planes destroyed, eight in the air and 19 on the ground.

MacArthur's communique said heavy bombers of his command destroyed 18 enemy planes in the latest attacks on Clark, Nichols and Neilson airdromes on Luzon.

The comparatively low 45-plane total, with nearly all destroyed on the ground, seemed to indicate Japanese air power on Luzon was reaching a low ebb.

Paluan, the new point of advance on Mindoro, was taken by a 6th Army Force which was landed seven miles down the coast from the harbor-town. The seizure placed virtually the entire west coast of Mindoro, first invaded Dec. 15, in American hands. Original invasion on the southwest coast resulted in the immediate occupation of San Jose and airdrome.

Nearly 700 more Japanese were killed and 11 captured in further mopping-up on Leyte.

1945 CITY COUNCIL INAUGURATED — Peterborough's City Council was inaugurated at eleven o'clock this morning with a special prayer being offered by Rev. W. A. Filer, president of the Ministerial Association, and the Mayor's inaugural address, following which the council resolved into the committee of the whole to select the standing committees.

Early Attention To Requirements Of New Ward Urged By Mayor

Peterborough's increased municipal household and responsibilities ensuing from the annexation of large areas of North Monaghan were salient topics in Mayor Hamilton's inaugural address to the Council today.

His worship suggested early consideration of the most pressing service requirements in the new part of the city, advising that the question of the streets to receive first attention should be dealt with as soon as the council's affairs permit.

The following is the text of Mayor Hamilton's address:

In commencing this my eighth term as Mayor of Peterborough I desire to assure the citizens that my appreciation of the great honour again conferred upon me has not lessend but rather has increased in measure with their expression of continued confidence.

I renew my pledge at this time, as I know each of you do as members of this Council, that I will earnestly fulfill the responsibilities of my office, and give my best thought and effort to giving Peterborough good government in order that its affairs and those of its citizens may fully prosper. Any success gained or progress made in conducting the City's affairs during my tenure of office has been due entirely to the co-operation and united wisdom of succeeding councils.

To assist the Council in its deliberations I am happy to welcome back to their seats here—Herbert I. Bradburn, Maxwell J. Swanston, Adam B. Sands and James Dutton. I congratulate each of you on your re-election. You are all busy men engaged in conducting successfully your own affairs, but to your great credit you have given time and thought without stint to serve the interests and progress of your City. The work you did here previously was of real value and well merited the endorsation given you by the Electors.

I want ot convey a particular welcome to our one new member, Hurrell Dodds. Alderman Dodds also has shown by his energetic work in one of our service clubs that he is willing to serve the needs of others. He is particularly interested, as we all must be in, in aiding in the re-adjustment into civilian life of our citizens returning from war service. We know that Alderman Dodds will have much to contribute."

Hope For Victory

"We all hope that this may prove an historic year, historic in that it will see final victory of our armies over a still vigorous enemy. Victory will bring new problems, but problems with which I am sure we are willing and eager to meet and solve so that mankind can move further away from oppression, want and misery.

Financially, our city is in a sound position with our debenture debt being steadily reduced and a reasonable tax rate having been achieved. Municipal services have been satisfactorily maintained. I believe, despite a definite shortage in workmen and in some cases, particularly in the collection of garbage and ashes, our services have been greatly improved.

"We all recognize that as a result of the Monaghan annexation our municipal services must be extended. The equipment of our Fire Department has been improved and increased in recent years, but I believe you will agree that we must add materially to its strength. The Board of Commissioners of Police also will probably desire to augment the Police Department. But it is the Board of Works that will have the biggest problems in the new area.

"Our Health Department is looking forward to one of the most useful years in its existence, with its staff back again to strength. In preventing diseases, the Department is doing a marvellous job, bringing untold benefits to our City, and paying the City larger dividends."

Monaghan Attention

"In order to assure an orderly development in the Monaghan area I would suggest that the Council should consider deciding at an early date which streets will first receive local improvements such as sewers, water, sidewalks and street lights. This should result in these areas being economically developed with housing being built in some regular and compact fashion. If such a policy is not adopted I am afraid that new housing may be built widely and irregularly and it may prove very costly in establishing municipal services.

"Housing continues to be a pressing problem. We all know that many families in our city have inadequate and unsatisfactory housing accommodation. This Council must continue its efforts to encourage the building of homes, but I do not favour any municipality-financed housing project. However, we should urge constantly upon the Dominion Government, upon financing houses and upon our citizens that Peterborough families require better housing and that an investment in Peterborough homes is a good investment.

Last year the Council set up a City Planning Commission. The members of this Commission undertook the task of City planning with considerable enthusiasm. A number of meetings were held, and considerable progress made. Most of it of a preliminary nature towards a complete study of the City, which of course, is advisable before plans are considered and formulated.

"Now Peterborough is a beautiful City and is rather well arranged, but I do not know any other City that offers the same possibilities of providing all round recreational facilities. It is true that we have no undesirable business enroachment on our residential areas but we are going to have traffic problems as time goes on, and now is the time to study all these problems and to plan how they can best be handled. So I hope the Council will continue their Planning Commission, and will supply them with some trained guidance and help. It will pay in the long run."

Hospital and Memorial

The citizens have indicated emphatically their endorsation of the Memorial Community Centre project and their desire for a new Civic Hospital. The Centre is to be planned and built by a commission to which this Council must appoint three representatives. The new hospital is entirely a municipal project and will require the closest attention of the Council in all phases of its planning and in the setting up of its board of management. Council also must turn its attention early to the definite planning of the new City Hall, the funds for which have been left to the city, a munificent bequest of the late Mr. George W. Morrow. This building must be planned not only to properly house the city's administration in all its branches, but also as a fitting memorial to its donor. The citizens should have the benefit of this building as soon as possible.

Council should also assure itself that the promised new federal building will be one of the first post-war projects undertaken by the Dominion Government. The site for this structure continues to contain dilapidated buildings on one of the city's main business thoroughfares, which is not favorable to city.

"This Council has pledged that early action will be taken to clean up the unsanitary conditions in the river and in Little Lake. Plans for the correction of these conditions should be ready for consideration at an early date, and nothing should be permitted to interfere with implementing them at once."

Transportation Problem

"I would suggest some definite action upon Council leading to the necessary improvement in the city's transportation facilities. The services extended to Peterborough by the railroads are proving most insufficient in all respects. For some years there have been repeated requests for improved highways, and we know that the Provincial Government has an extensive post-war highway building program. The City Council has been studying the establishment of an airport, and progress is being made in this. All these are transportation problems and might be dealt with more successfully by the appointment of a committee embodying representation of the Chamber of Commerce Automobile Club along with this Council.

"Council last year gave some consideration to a contributory pension plan for our municipal employees. The need for such a plan is most apparent, and I hope definite progress in introducing a satisfactory plan will be made this year.

"Our decisions here would not prove effective if it were not for the continued, efficient and loyal work of the civic employees in all departments. I appreciate their services and the contribution they are making in helping to supply Peterborough with good municipal administration and services.

"I am confident that we in the Council will perform our duties in a spirit of harmony and sincerity which will prove satisfactory and to the benefit of all citizens."

"Certainly, I Remember You"
Such was the greeting of The Imperial Life branch manager to the young airman as his thoughts raced back over the years. "Last time I saw you, you were just a schoolboy; and now look at you!"
The boy's presence recalled many memories. In 1925 his father had purchased what proved to be his last life insurance policy—just six months before he contracted a fatal attack of pneumonia.
For the widow and young son life would have been cruel, indeed, but for the husband's Imperial Life insurance. That guaranteed her a life-income; permitted her to continue living in the house where the little family had been so happy. And now, here was that son, grown up, in Air Force uniform.
"You know," said the airman, "it was life insurance that gave me a college education. Mother and I are living proof of the benefits of life insurance. I'm married now. I want my insurance in the company my dad chose. That's why I'm here."

FATHER WILL REMEMBER
You don't have to be old to remember the days when milk was delivered "in bulk" . . . ladled out on the doorstep from the milkman's big tin can. And you don't have to be very observant to notice how, in these days of modern dairy service, youngsters seem to be growing up taller and stronger than their parents.
Of course, nobody would claim that today's fresh, pure, bottled milk is the only reason. But you can be sure that your dairy's strict attention to cleanliness and sanitation—all the way from the farm to your table—makes milk more than ever the foundation-food for strong limbs, straight backs and happy health.
Everybody takes this protecting kind of dairy service for granted nowadays. After all, perhaps that's compliment enough to the community-minded dairymen who have made today's pure, fresh, bottled milk the food that everybody trusts.

Congratulations To Cornwall

For 110 years Cornwall has been a town; on New Year's' Day it became a city, the 28th community in this province to attain that dignity. It has almost 15,000 people within its limits, and another 9,000 nearby who work in the manufactories and offices of Cornwall. It has distinguished itself for good local government and it is in every way fitted to be a city. Today, under the leadership of Mr. Aaron Horovitz, who has been Mayor for eight years, the first City Council of the Corporation of Cornwall took office. Congratulations to Cornwall.

Cornwall has a long history for a Canadian community. It was 160 years ago that United Empire Loyalists formed the settlement of Johnstown on its present site. It has long been the principal community of the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, and for at least ten years it has had a population large enough to support an application for incorporation under the Municipal Act. But Cornwall did not rush into its new dignity, and now, though the youngest city in the province, its population is greater than that of four of its seniors — Welland, Galt, Woodstock and Owen Sound.

In Canada, as in the United States, a community becomes a city when it achieves a certain population and expresses a wish to be incorporated. In Great Britain the only cities are the principal towns of royal boroughs, and the seats of bishops of the Established Church. Thus London, one of the greatest communities in the world, is merely a town, with the City of London and the City of Westminster — comparatively small areas—contained within it. It is well for us to recall this fact from time to time, for we sometimes tend to regard population as the only necessity for city status. Legally this may be so, but it must be clear to anyone concerned about the future of Canada that a city must earn its title in other ways. It must be a genuine centre of business, industry, education, recreation and culture for the area in which it exists, and if it is under-developed in any of these respects it is something less than a city. These developments depend only secondarily upon bulk of population; quality of population is what really counts, and what makes a city.

We wish Cornwall every happiness in its new dignity, and a progress in the future commensurate with its progress in the past.

The V.C. And a Pension

The Brantford Expositor, with a group of other papers, has been advocating that the Victoria Cross should carry a pension with it, and the Examiner has disagreed. The Brantford paper has dismissed our arguments against such action as "glib generalizations", and we have somewhat hotly replied that it has allied itself with the 'Dole For a Good Deed, or nursery, school of morality'; our opponent replies that "nobody was talking about either doles or morality". We feel that this calls for an extended reply.

We were talking about doles and morality, for we feel that a pension attached to the V.C. would savour of a dole, and we think that the objection to it is primarily a moral one. The V.C. is given "for most conspicuous bravery or some daring or pre-eminent act of valour or self-sacrifice or extreme devotion to duty in the presence of the enemy". Now we are sure that no man has ever done a deed of this character in the hope or expectation of getting a money reward for it; valour cannot be bought with money, and to give a present of money for it cheapens it, in our opinion. The V.C. is the proudest decoration that a British subject can receive for bravery in war, and we think that the receipt of it is enough for any brave man. If he is short of money, let us arrange to take care of him in some other way, and not put a price on the medal. As a matter of fact, a trifling pension of £10 a year goes with the medal, with an extra £5 for every bar; in 1856, when the decoration was established, this may have been a substantial addition to a private soldier's income, but it is so no longer.

Let us suppose that a yearly pension even of $500 was awarded with the V.C. —who would pay it? At present the pensions are paid by the Crown from, as we understand it, the Privy Purse. There have been 78 V.C.s awarded to Canadians alone (figures from the Canadian Almanac of 1944), and though they are not all living, this represents a heavy drain on the Privy Purse over the years. The money for the Privy Purse is put up by the people of Great Britain; are they to find $500 a year for every V.C. in the Empire? And if each Dominion and Colony finds the pensions for its own V.C.s the award ceases to be a gift from the Sovereign and becomes what we called it—a dole.

We do not think that V.C. winners want a dole with that particular decoration. If they are in want, let us care for them generously. But let us get this clear: there are things which cannot be valued in money, and valour is one of them; to offer money as a reward for valour is insulting; the honour that goes with the Victoria Cross is the only fitting reward for the deed which won it. That is arguing the matter on a foundation of morality, which we think is the only right one.

How Is Your Biblical Knowledge?

The most recent issue of the Ontario Library Review has come to hand, and among other more serious matter it contains this story, which is said to be true:

A college girl came into the public library the other day and said "I'm trying to find a well-known poem that has a line in it that's always being quoted but I don't know the name of the poem or the poet. Do you suppose you could help me find it?"

"Perhaps we can", replied the librarian. "What is the line you want to trace?"

"They that go down to the sea in ships" the girl answered.

"Why, that's from the Bible" said the librarian.

"Oh, is it?" asked the student, "well, maybe it is, but it's also in some well-known book, I'm sure".

The librarian took the Bible and read to her from the 23rd through to the 31st verse of the 107th Psalm. The young lady thanked her and left saying, "I'm certainly glad I found it. The whole United States Navy's been trying to locate that line".

It is a long way from this attitude to that which was prevalent a hundred years ago, when great numbers of people accepted every word of the Bible as written by God, and read and re-read it in a condition of uncritical awe. To know nothing of the Bible is to be ignorant of one of the great classical literatures of all time. Of recent years fewer and fewer people have been studying the literatures of Greece and Rome; now it looks as though the literature of the Hebrews were being discarded as well.

Not long ago a large group of CWACS was given a general knowledge test, one of the questions being: "Who led the Israelites out of Egypt?". Not one of them knew the answer.

Can Bible study in schools correct this condition? We doubt it. The Bible is a long, densely packed book which demands slow, appreciative, intelligent reading if it is to make any impression on the student. Our schools have little time for slow and appreciative study of anything. True study of the Bible has always demanded a vast amount of solitary hard work. And it appears that our age and our system of education are not productive of a love of solitary hard work of this particular kind.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Allied censorship is treating the Belgian Bulge as certain other bulges are treated; they're draping it cunningly and pretending that it is a bust.

A Calgary writer plans to hang several 'planners' in effigy when the war ends. But why in effigy? Wouldn't the stuffed shirts do just as well?

Both Lent and the Ontario Legislature begin this year on St. Valentine's Day. The jolly old saint will have his work cut out to counteract these two depressing influences.

Field Marshal von Rundstedt is reported to be resting for a time because of a stomach ailment. We hope it is the result of biting off more than he could chew.

With tears of pride and affection in his voice, Dr. Goebbels tells the world that in Hitler's hair there may now be discerned "a slight gleam of silver, the only sign of unnumbered days full of work and anxiety". Sure, he loves the dear silver that shines in his hair, and the brow that's all wrinkled and furrowed with care.

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

LIVESTOCK men in this province will be quite interested in the recent announcement that Dr. C. D. McGilvray, Principal of the Veterinary College at Guelph, is retiring from his position in June of this year. Dr. McGilvray has passed his seventieth milestone and is entitled to some leisure. Charlie McGilvray has been an important figure in the livestock development of Canada. He came from Scotland to Western Canada when a lad of fourteen years and he has grown up with the country. His family were the victims of some of the efforts to enlarge deer forests at the expense of farming land. His father, however, was an engineer so was better enabled than some other emigrants to get a start in a new country.

Charlie McGilvray was educated for the veterinary profession, but he was keenly interested in livestock development and travelled through Western Canada with the first livestock trains that moved demonstration work over the prairies. As a young man Charlie had his feet in many barnyards and gleaned first hand the knowledge that cannot be taught, but must be experienced to be understood. He joined the staff of the Dominion Veterinary Director General when the late Dr. J. G. Rutherford was in charge of that work at Ottawa, and later was in charge of the Western office at Winnipeg.

It was at the time when the present Veterinary College was being built at Guelph that Dr. McGilvray came down to take the Principalship. I think he had charge for its final year in Toronto. The new College Building at Guelph was built with Federal money. When Hon. Martin Burrill had $10,000,000 voted at Ottawa to assist Agricultural Education in the different provinces, he engaged Dr. C. C. James to take charge of the fund. On Dr. James' recommendation it was agreed to use part of this money to build our Veterinary College for the whole of Canada, that it should be built at Guelph and Ontario should pay the cost of operation, and students from other provinces should be admitted on the same terms as those from Ontario, it being understood that other provincial governments might assist their students in the necessary travelling expenses to attend it. Dr. McGilvray has been principal since one year previous to the opening of the new building, some twenty-nine in all. He now leaves at the end of this college year, having done a good job and leaving a record of usefulness to the livestock industry of Canada.

Dr. Andrew L. MacNabb, who has been in charge of the Laboratories of the Provincial Department of Health, has been appointed to succeed Dr. McGilvray, and brings to his new duties some years of investigation and research in Veterinary Science, and is highly spoken of in connection with his work.

THE Toronto Stock Yards come in for some mention in this announcement from the Department, and some new attention is to be given this newly acquired asset. It must be remembered, however, that the Health of Animals is a Federal division of Animal Industry in Canada. The Veterinary Director General of Canada has a branch office at the Toronto Stock Yards in charge of the efficient Dr. Wm. Moynihan and a testing barn is in the Stock Yards where cows purchased to go into dairy herds can be tested, but such cows to go into accredited herds in Canada, or to cross the line into the United States require to be tested by an official of the Federal Department. For some years protests have been made about overlapping of Provincial and Federal Departments of Agriculture, and any effort by one of these Departments to undertake work now performed by the other may lead to confusion.

IT looks as though congestion at livestock yards in Canada was over for the present but in the matter of cattle it can easily happen again with the first sign of spring. For this reason farmers who are feeding will do well to look to marketing possibilities early. If a man has a stable full of good cattle he will be able to get a fair price and, if you know values, and every feeder should keep posted, you can often make a better sale at home. The late Thos. McMillan of Seaforth, told me after a quarter of a century of experience of selling cattle out of his barn, at home, at Toronto and on Markland's Wharf in Glasgow, Scotland, he found it a little more profitable to sell at home. I know that complaints are always made about the drover, or middleman, and he is grudged his having of profit, though sometimes farmers think he takes the hides, but the thing is to know what your cattle are worth, what they cost and what it took to feed them, and if on that you can get a fair return you will come out all right. You can arrange if you make a sale at home to ship part of them at one time, and the rest later, when the thinner ones will have more finish. The buyer will be in touch with receipts at the Stock Yards and it will be his business to house and feed them until they are slaughtered. You can get home weights and it is only the odd farmer who will be safe to "dollar" his cattle, as one needs to have a good few cattle passing through his hands before he can judge weights well enough for that. It is a good plan to do a little calculating on weights, but what is far more important is to know values and to know when to take a profit. It's another thing to know when the bottom has gone clean out of the market and tragedies such as followed the last war are enacted.

I know quite a few good feeders in Middlesex, Elgin and Kent who sell at home and do well by it, but they fully understand the importance of knowing both values and costs. The farmer must be a marketer.

I HAVE noticed with interest that Oxford County Holstein breeders have been discussing a proposal which will come before the annual meeting of the Canadian Holstein-Friesian Association to be held in February. The purpose of this move, which will take the form of an amendment to the constitution of the parent association is to refuse registration of bull calves of rather inferior ancestry. Every breed association that fairly increases the useful qualities in its animals to qualify for registration is taking a step forward in the improvement of its breed.

It has been demonstrated that both the quantity and quality of milk that a cow gives is definitely inherited, and breeding for a heavy flow of milk and high percentage of butter fat has been the practice for years of the best men in the dairy cattle business.

The new proposal is that all bull calves to be registered should be out of dams that grade "Good Plus" or better, and have a milk record at least 50 per cent above the amount required for entry in the R.O.P. The Holstein-Friesian cattle have made rather amazing progress in Canada for some years. The men who have contributed to the progress of the breed are almost numberless, but it would not be invidious to mention the late T. B. Macaulay of Hudson Heights, Quebec and his purchase of the great bull Johanna Rag Apple Pabst. Looking over the breeding record of that bull, brings up the age old question: What is a good bull worth?

This dairy cattle association will make a move of far reaching effect, if they establish a pedigree that stands for further improvement.

THEORY AND PRACTICE

Once The End Of The World

FOR centuries the British Isles were considered to be the end of the world, that is, the end of an ancient or medieval world whose centre was somewhere in the Mediterranean basin —in Greece or Egypt or at Constantinople or Rome. The civilised people of the warm Mediterranean countries, if they happened to know that the British Isles existed at all, thought of their barbarian inhabitants as living near Ultima Thule—Farthest North—among volcanoes, icebergs, and the mouths of Hell.

When one looks at a map or globe of today there seems to be at least some justification for those old ideas. The islands do lie between the same latitudes as the bleak coast of Labrador and the subartic Kamchatka Peninsula. Yet in the North Atlantic, as in the North Pacific, persistent ocean currents and winds make the eastern margins very much warmer than the western. The British Isles have much the same moist, temperate climate as the Pacific coast of North America between northern California and Alaska. They never become yellow and brown with winter as do regions much farther south elsewhere, for frost and snow seldom last for long, and abundant, intermittent rains make much of the landscape green and parklike all year round....

There is little that is violently dramatic in the apearance of the British Isles. Most of England is less than four hundred feet above sea level and the hills seldom rise above a thousand feet except in the west (Cornwall and Wales), or in the central spine of the island which reaches down from mountainous Scotland. The highest mountain in England and Wales is Snowdon (3,560 feet), and Scotland's moor-topped mountains seldom rise above four thousand feet or Ireland's above three thousand. The endlessly varied contours of these islands are for the most part gentle and rounded, worn smooth by time. Nature rouses the emotions only by the thunder of the seas along the coasts, the eerie emptiness of the water-soaked, infertile moors, and the uninterrupted areas of low, but veritable, mountains in Wales and Scotland and Ireland....

England, where most of the population is concentrated, is a small region, a sort of triangle whose base, close to the Continent, is about three hundred miles long and whose sides, reaching up to Scotland, are about fifty miles longer. The total area is aproximately that of Illinois. No part of these islands can be very far from the sea, and their natural centre, London, can be reached from almost any point within a day by train, or in two or three hours by air.—From "The Making of Modern Britain—A Short History," by John Bartlet Brebner and Allan Nevins.

American Woman Shoots Stalin

AT five minutes to seven the government car swept me through the Kremlin gate in the Borovitsky Tower—the same gate through which Napoleon had entered. Bells began ringing, the signal that a visitor is entering the Kremlin walls. Soldiers looked into the car to ascertain my identity and, seeing me, saluted and smiled. At each bend in the road there were more soldiers, and more salutes, and so many smiles that I guessed it was not very often that an American girl came to the Kremlin to visit Stalin....

Our procession wound its way through the group of ancient cathedrals, whose onion-shaped domes are just visible over the top of the Kremlin wall, and passed the Bell Tower, completed in 1600 during Boris Godunov's reign. I was surprised to see how high above the city we were. The British Embassy lay below, just across the Moskva River, and beyond was a great stretch of Moscow, the outlines of its soft, rounded domes and hard modern architecture contrasting in the low sunlight.

We drove past the great Czar Bell, set in the middle of a garden, and then we were in a triangular courtyard of the old Czarist palace where leading government officials have their offices. At the door more soldiers looked me over, saluted, and smiled, and my equipment was lifted out.

An escort of soldiers took me up in a little gilt, red-carpeted elevator to the second floor...

During the long wait the soldiers questioned me about life in America and about my impressions of the Soviet Union. We discussed the beauties of the republic of Georgia, the pleasures of riding horseback in the Caucasus, what time it was in New York when it was eighty-thirty in Moscow, and such nonpolitical subjects.

They were in the midst of teaching me a list of new Russian words when I was sent for.... I had just time to remind myself not to be nervous when I was whirled through door No. 1 and found myself in a long bare room. I was conscious of the fact that Mr. Hopkins was standing at one side, but it took me an extra instant to find Stalin.

I think my eyes instinctively went up toward the ceiling, for I remembered those giant statues I had seen; and then I looked ahead at eye level again, and there, standing very stiff and straight in the centre of the rug, I saw Stalin. ....My own height is five feet five, and Stalin came a fraction of an inch below me. Not only was he short; his whole figure was rather small.

I observed that Stalin wore no medals; in fact, he was the only person I had seen in the Kremlin with no decorations....His rough pitted face was so strong that it looked as if it had been carved out of stone....

As I crawled on my hands and knees from one low camera angle to another, Stalin thought it was funny and started to laugh.

When his face lighted up with a smile, the change was miraculous. It was as though, a second personality had come to the front, genial, cordial, and kindly. I pressed on through two more exposures, until I had the expression that I wanted.

I got ready to go, and threw my stuff back into the camera case; then I noticed a peculiar thing about Stalin's face. When the smile ended, it was as though a veil had been drawn over his features. Again he looked as if he had been turned into granite, and I went away thinking that this was the strongest, most determined face I had ever seen.—From "Shooting the Russian War," by Margaret Bourke-White.

Children's Theatres

A British version of Soviet Russia's children's theatre movement was launched this fall under the leadership of Dr. James Mallon, one of the governors of the BBC and warden of Toynbee Hall, London's historic social settlement house. The British Children's Theatre company is a permanent touring group of 15 professional adult players, complete with orchestra, stage staff, portable scenery and lighting. It opened in Manchester in October and is now on tour. Educational authorities in the various areas have undertaken to pay all expenses and make travelling and billeting arrangements for the company. The theatre aims to serve youngsters between seven and sixteen. Four productions a year are schedulued, for which plays are to be specially written by modern authors and adapted from the classics. Before the war the Soviet Union had 100 such children's theatres, with three in Moscow.—Toronto Star.

Unconsidered Trifles

They had been saying good night for hours, and the girl was obviously pleading with the boy in vain.

"It's no use, darling," he said at last. "I simply cannot face your father to ask him to let you marry me."

"You needn't be frightened of facing him, dear," replied the girl, "the great danger is when you turn your back."

As they propped themselves up against the bar, Jones remarked:—

"I say, old man, when your wife's away, do you have to tell her everything you do?"

His companion put his empty glass down and smiled sadly.

"Not at all necessary," he replied. "She tells me that she always gets a more reliable account from the neighbours."

The little man dashed into a pub and said to the landlord: "A large ginger ale!"

He looked a little shaken, so the landlord asked him what was wrong.

"I just got home to find a strange man kissing my wife!"

"And what did you do?" inquired the man behind the bar.

"I picked up his umbrella and smashed it across my knee, and said: 'There! I hope it rains!'"

A Bible Message

Then there were brought unto him little children, that he should put his hands on them, and pray: and the disciples rebuked them. But Jesus said, Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven. (Matt. 19: 13, 14.)

And when he was demanded of the Pharisees, when the kingdom of God should come, he answered them and said, The kingdom of God cometh not with observation: neither shall they say, Lo here! or, lo there! for, behold, the kingdom of God is within you. (Luke 17: 20, 21.)

And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea. And I John saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband.

And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away. GETTING RID OF A NUISANCE

A drunk who wanted to go to Boston climbed on a bus about to leave and starting making a nuisance of himself. After demonstrating with him, the driver said: "Okay, Mister, you either quiet down, or this bus ain't leaving for Washington tonight.

"Washington?" mumbled the drunk. "I don't want no Washington bus," with which he scrambled out of the door and the bus left for Boston.—Wall Street Journal.

DEBT TO CHURCHILL

Letter to N.Y. Herald Tribune

Sir,—There is no individual on this planet who did more than Churchill to sustain human freedom during the days of supreme danger. It was the very same influence now directed against him which brought the democracies to a state of weakness, indecision and confusion prior to the war.

It is self-evident that the demoralized people of Europe would be the victims of any roving bands who seized control and called themselves the government unless the United Nations established some orderly process of authority.

The assertion of principles or ideals cannot be effective unless those who now have the power and facilities establish order in the liberated countries to permit the functioning of self-government.

WILLIAM F. FOWLER.

Lynbrook, N.Y., Dec. 1944.

TORTOISE LIVES LONGEST

As far as present information goes, tortoises hold the longevity record among all backboned animals: (100 years and upwards). Crocodilians have the reputation for having a potentially long life but perhaps 70 years would represent a top figure and that would be attained perhaps only under the sheltered conditions of captivity. The longest lived mammal is man, living to over 100 years. The only mammals besides man that are known to attain 50 years of age are the Asiatic elephant (oldest reported, 78 years), and in very, very rare cases, the horse. Few other kinds of mammals exceed thirty years of age.

There are now many dependable records on the length of life of birds, in captivity and in the wild state. Here is an abbreviated report on the Methuselahs of the Canadian bird world: Birds in captivity—whooping crane, 38 years; trumpeter swan, 33 years; yellow-headed blackbird, 18 years; raven, 13 years; brown thrasher and rose-breasted grosbeak, 8 years. Wild birds —osprey or fish hawk, 21 years; ferruginous rough-legged hawk, 20 years; herring gull and gannet, 17 years; mallard duck and crow, 14 years; common tern, 13 years; cardinal, 13 years; flicker, 11 years; Canada jay, 9 years; crested flycatcher and evening grosbeak, 8 years; chickadee, white-throated sparrow and robin, 7 years; tree sparrow, barn swallow and purple martin, 6 years.

In general the upper limit of age of animals has been very much over-estimated. Stories about pet parrots which are centenarians and "Dobbins" which have been faithful steeds since Confederation will have to be revised, or accompanied by birth certificates.—Royal Ontario Museum News.

People Urged To Get More Exercise

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, Jan. 8 — (CP). — Never before in history was there a greater chance of reviving amateur sport in Canada and never before was there a greater opportunity of turning the professional sports fan into a participant of an amateur sport, Maj. Ian Eisenhardt, national director of physical fitness, said to-day in an interview.

Maj. Eisenhardt, former Canadian Army sports officer and now attached to the Federal Health and Welfare Department, said he could not agree with those who claimed sport was suffering as a result of Government manpower policies.

It is true professional sports had been curtailed to some extent, but these sports provided only entertainment and not exercise for the average man and woman.

Sports pages in newspapers these days were carrying headline stories saying the banning of professional racing in the United States was a "terrible" blow to sports. Some sports writers were claiming the sport was being killed off by Government restrictions.

"This is not the case at all," said Maj. Eisenhardt. "Let the man who used to spend his afternoons at the track take his family out for a good walk, let him take them out for a game of golf, or let him take them horseback riding, and he will wonder why he had so often spent his time watching others get all the exercise out of sport."

Sports writers could do a "tremendous amount of good" for the health of the nation by urging professional sport fans to become active participants in the various amateur sports. A healthy nation should be the aim of every Canadian.

Maj. Eisenhardt said he recently returned from the United States, where he conferred with Selective Service, physical fitness and Army health authorities.

John B. Kelly, national chairman of the United States Physical Fitness, had said he planned to draft a Bill along the lines of Canada's Physical Fitness Act and submit it to Congress.

Photographs of children for tomorrow's appreciation have to be made today.

Conscription Has Weakened Case Of The Nationalists

By GRANT DEXTER

Apart from a minority of the Quebec members of the House of Commons, represented by the Bloc Populaire, Hon. P. J. A. Cardin and a number of Independents, there is no substantial difference between the 1944 opposition to overseas conscription in Quebec and other parts of the country. This was illustrated in two of the motions moved by L. P. Picard, member for Bellechasse. In both, the seconder of the motion was a westerner—Walter Tucker, native of Portage la Prairie and member for Rosthern.

In the sense of dividing the country, the conflict was between the Quebec minority and the rest of the House of Commons. This minority is in direct succession to the old Nationalist party of Bourassa. So far as the record goes, it is a minority only in the Commons. It appears also to be a minority in Quebec but, until an election takes place, this will not be certain. It is evident, however, that the Liberals of Quebéc disagree with the Nationalists. In 1917, the two took common ground in opposing conscription.

The position of the present-day Nationalists is most interesting. Up to and including the 1917 controversy, their argument was that Canada, being a self governing colony, was under no obligation to send soldiers overseas in a war except voluntarily. Canada had no voice in British foreign policy and had no policy of her own. Overseas conscription, therefore, meant obligation without representation.

Between the two wars, Canada became an autonomous nation, with full control over her own foreign policy. Canada declared war in 1939, and has functioned throughout as one of the United Nations.

Mr. Raymond, the leader of the Bloc, argued that our self-government was an illusion. There was much talk about independence, but the acts of the country had become increasingly "imperialistic." How could it be said that we are free when we always go to war in support of Britain?

Mr. Lacombe said that conscription was "anti-national" and was a reversion to colonialism.

Mr. Cardin said:

". . . In reality we are only a colony in the British Empire and are not, as I said when speaking on Bill 80 in the House of Commons, really an independent and sovereign country."

Mr. Anjou felt that the imposition of conscription proved that Canada was a colony. He hoped we could become independent in the near future.

Mr. Choquette devoted much of his speech to showing that the Bloc Populaire was not an isolationist movement but one which desired to co-operate with the rest of the country. The trouble was that the Bloc did not want to engage in war.

Compared with the debates of 1917, this is feeble argument. The rapid constitutional progress in recent years obviously has destroyed the basis of the Nationalist case. Not one of these members suggested that the present situation is one of obligation without representation. But their arguments did show an ingrained colonialism. They made is clear that the chief purpose was not to make Canada a nation, but to avoid war in general and conscription in particular.

Being a nation involves obligations, but the present-day Nationalists are not prepared to accept obligations. Rather than face the fact that Canada is an autonomous nation, has declared war in her own right and now applies overseas conscription to assure reinforcements for her armies—rather than do this, these members preferred to seek refuge in the old colonial argument.

They had nothing to support such a position, but they boldly claimed that conscription, of itself, is proof of a colonial status. This argument is so obviously false that no one bothered to answer it. What they did make clear was that they would prefer to be colonials and possess a constitutional right to exemption from war than to be a nation and shoulder the obligations of nationhood.

It was certainly true of the House of Commons that the self-confession of the Nationalists that they are only interested in Canadian independence if it means escape from obligations—which is a contradiction in terms—was a surprise. These speakers were without influence even among their fellow members from Quebec. Whether this will hold true in the greater constituency of Quebec remains to be seen.

Cobourg Temperature Leaves Zero Mark

COBOURG, Jan. 8 —(ENS) — The cold spell which gripped Cobourg and district in the iciest grip of the winter over Saturday, eased off on Sunday when the mercury climbed up over the zero mark. The temperature dropped very rapidly on Friday night and householders arising on Saturday found windows covered with frost and an immediate need to stir up the fire. The average temperature was 15 below but up at the C. N. R. station, coldest spot in town, the mercury dipped to 18 below.

Compared to the rural parts, Cobourg enjoyed a mild day. Out on the hill near Coldsprings the temperature went down to 30 below while at Harwood and Roseneath it was around 28 and 29 below. All day Saturday the mercury stayed under the zero mark but moderated slightly during the night and on Sunday morning was two degrees above zero but a cold east wind made it seem as bad as the previous day. By Sunday evening it had moderated to around ten above.

Few farmers came in on Saturday and stores which had loaded up with bread for rural customers had large stocks still on hand at the close of business. Few cars put in appearance during the week-end and there were consequently few calls to garages to start reluctant motors.

New Year Resolutions Read By Rotarians

COBOURG, Jan. 8 —(ENS)— The week-end meeting of Cobourg Rotary Club took the form of the annual New Year's resolutions recital. Each one had a resolution ascribed to him and of course in each case somebody else was the author with the result that a list of humorous resolutions were read out. Dr. Fred Blackwell and Ruben Freeman took turns reading the list. A few Rotarians who were not present, did not escape but on their next appearance at Rotary will have to listen to the resolutions prepared for them.

Flu Scourge Baffles Medical Men

TORONTO, Jan. 8—About twice every century influenza has become a menace and a killer, the epidemic of 1918-19 having caused 21 million deaths—a record for one disease in one year—exceeding in its toll even bubonic plague, said Dr. Ronald Hare, research associate of Connaught Laboratories, in his lecture on "Influenza and Other Epidemics" before the Royal Canadian Institute at Convocation Hall Saturday.

Epidemics would seem to serve some useful mechanism in nature, Dr. Hare said, and there is no way yet of knowing how man's interference will affect the general scheme.

It has been found possible to block many diseases by learning their channels and adopting precautions, he said, but most respiratory diseases have not so far proved amenable to control. Some, such as measles and mumps, are usually contracted by the young and give an immunity for life, but influenza and colds do not immunize. These two he said, are not at all the same disease.

Influenza is believed to have first appeared in England during the Wars of the Roses. In 1743 the Italians gave it the name of influenza. It usually occurs in winter months before or just after Christmas, and epidemics are likely to occur every two years. The only sure escape is to be cut off entirely from other human beings, but most people have to take pot luck. Australia kept it out for three months by strict quarantine, but broke down in the end.

Group tests of vaccine have been made, and fewer cases of infection have been recorded where the vaccine has been used than in the control group, but that, he stressed, is the only evidence so far of its value.

Influenza is caused by an invisible virus which can grow only in living cells. Dr. Hare gave details of how it is cultivated in ferrets and in fertilized eggs. Strangely, unhatched chicks are highly susceptible to influenza, while once hatched they are immune.

Dr. Hare told of other epidemics and plagues, and how empires had been upset and civilizations ruined by them.

Mercury At Roseneath Registers 28 Below

ROSENEATH, Jan. 8 — (CP)— Temperatures in Roseneath and vicinity dropped to 28 degrees below zero it was reported and at Alfred Braithwaite's it went down to 35 degrees on Saturday. At noon it was still 10 below, and Sunday's temperature was 10 below with a driving east wind.

St. Mike's Beat Marlboros; Oshawa Beaten

In Saturday's carnival of O.H.A. Kazarian scored half of Galt's four goals in whitewashing Young Rangers, with Krompotich and Babando notching the balance. Red Wings led off with three counters in the first period, added one more in the second and then let the third stanza go scoreless.

In the matinee scoring bee at Toronto, St. Mikes showered 10 tallies into the net in the first 20 minutes alone and added four more in each of the succeeding periods, the Dukes earning one lonely counter in the second and finding their second in the final spasm.

Johnny Blute padded his individual scoring account with four goals and three assists, while Leo Gravelle and Bob Paul each added up three goals and six assists. Joe Sadler returned to the hockey wars after a lengthy layoff to ring up a pair of counters. Costello also accounting for two scores. # Buffalo Wins Four Points Over Week-end

By The Canadian Press.

Buffalo Bisons, victorious in both their American Hockey League week-end games, widened their lead in the Eastern Division to four points.

The Western Division leaders, Indianapolis Capitals, lost their only game and had their margin sliced to three points by Cleveland Barons, successful in one of two fixtures.

Buffalo stretched their home-ice winning streak to 12 games as they handed Cleveland a 3-1 defeat last night. Tommy Birlington scored Barons' lone goal, while Roger Leger, Paul Mundrick and Doug Lewis scored for Bisons.

Indianapolis Capitals suffered their first home defeat in 17 starts last night to Pittsburg Hornets 6-2. Tied 2-2 at the close of the second period, Hornets rammed in four goals in the final session. Bob Gracie starred for the winners with two goals and two assists.

Coach Gord Minty and the members of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. swim club are to be congratulated on the success of the swim meet they staged Saturday night and upon the fine showing the local performers made against the crack team of the Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. The Queen City team took the meet by a score of 34 to 21 but they ran into plenty of opposition. Peterborough entrants won one of the two relays, the 200 yards free style in fine style and Ernie Lee grabbed off a Peterborough victory in the 40 yard free style event, a contest in which second place was also captured by a local entry, Lieut. Emmett Pritchard. The 40 yard breast stroke contest was anybody's too until the final yard for Bill Lech, Peterborough's junior Dominion champion was beaten only by inches by Bob Dean of the Toronto Central squad. That event was almost a dead heat and Dean won because he was quicker in the final reach for the end of the pool. The meet was a real success and the capacity audience which attended saw keen competition and fine performances by the swimmers of both teams.

The ruling of the O.H.A. that no player who is a member of the armed forces is to be allowed to play for a civilian team in any series of the Ontario Hockey Association is rather drastic, particularly when it applies to service men who may happen to be home on leave. It seems tough that any hockey player who may be back from Italy or the European front on furlough, after being away from his home country for years should be deprived of the thrill of playing a few games with the team in his home community if he should desire to do so. Similarly with a sailor who has been overseas for a long period and now finds himself at home during the hockey season and forced to stay out of his favorite game because of this O.H.A. ruling. It will appeal to many fans as reasonable that even if the governing body believes in keeping members of the armed forces out of civilian hockey it might have made an exception in the case of men who are home on leave after long service out of the country. There cannot be enough players in this category to constitute much of a problem and there seems no reason why the ruling should not be made elastic enough to let such boys have fun of playing a few games during their furlough. Playing hockey is a symbol of what those lads have been fighting for and it is a harsh regulation that robs them of an opportunity to indulge in their favorite game.

Will Help The Wings

Earl Seibert, former Black Hawk made an auspicious debut for the Detroit Red Wings against the Leafs Saturday night, scoring the first goal for Jack Adams' team. Doug Vaughan of the Windsor Star is one sports writer who believes that the veteran rear guard will prove valuable to the Wings. He says: "The 34-year-old Seibert should help the Wings. Despite the fact that he is in his 14th season as a National Leaguer, Earl is still one of the best defencemen currently active in the business. He doesn't use the 210 pounds of muscle he's got stretched over a six-foot two-inch frame to hand out bodychecks the way he used to. Nor does he give the fans a chance to scream very often, "Look out, here comes Seibert," as he steams down the ice to cut loose with a blistering shot that was on the target nine times out of 10. But he can still jar you with a bodycheck when the occasion demands and he's still good for one or two rushes down the ice a game. Back of the blue line, Seibert has always been a smart, cagey performer. You don't spend as much time in the N.H.L. as he has without learning all the tricks of the trade. In that series of last spring with the Wings Big Earl drove the Detroit forwards dizzy with checks and long-reaching arms. When he couldn't reach a puck carrier he at least tried to cover his shot. As a matter of fact, game for game, he probably stopped as many shots as did the Chicago goalie, Karakas. Adams has announced that he will team Seibert with Captain Flash Hollett. That is a logical move, for Hollett is the best puck-carrying defenceman in the N.H.L. this season."

"Billy Southworth will have to reach into the minor farm system of his St. Louis Cardinals for a capable replacement for Stan Musial, who is booked for U.S. Navy chores later this month," points out Bill Gaynon in the Niagara Falls Review. "It's improbable that a stand-in of equal ability can be resurrected as Musial is just about the finest flychaser in the senior group, and comparable to most of the headline gardeners of past races. In 1943, he led the batters of the Frick loop and was awarded the circuit's most valuable playing prize, and the most recent race found him a few points behind top man Dixie Walker. He has held down an outfield spot on Card pennant winning crews of the past three seasons and has rated high among bigtimers in that space of time. In addition to his hard hitting, Stan is good defensively and very fast on the paths, so filling the shoes of such a performer is a man sized job for any athlete. The Cards are going to miss this star, but recalling how they have replaced so many other greats in recent campaigns, there's no saying how good his successor will be."

Again The Red Wings

Detroit's mastery over the Toronto Leafs was convincingly demonstrated once more in Toronto Saturday night when Jack Adams' second-placers had little difficulty in polishing off the Daymen 5 goals to 2. The last time the Red Wings were in Toronto they won the decision the hard way, spotting the Leafs three goals in the early stages and then pulling the game out of the fire with a late rally. Saturday night they used different tactics. They opened out with a blazing offensive that saw them sweep through for four goals early in the first period and the ball game to all intents and purposes was over then and there. Even Foster Hewitt had to admit somewhat dolefully over the air waves that the Wings were merely coasting during the last two periods and when Elmer Ferguson came up with his three stars after the game he couldn't locate a Leaf who had looked good enough to get one of the awards. The Leafs of this season are still looking for their first win over the Wings on the showing Saturday night are likely to keep right on looking. Incidentally a feature was the performance turned in by Syd Howe, the veteran Red Wings forward is one of the solid stars of the circuit and rarely plays a bad game.

* * * * * *

The Red Wings had themselves a good week-end for after beating the Leafs Saturday night they hammered the Boston Bruins to the tune of 8 to 4 and the four-point splurge put Jack Adams' crew into a tie for the leadership with Canadiens who only played once over the week-end. Bruins made a good stand for two periods against the Wings in Detroit and overcame a three-goal deficit to leave the count tied at the end of the second period but the powerful Detroit attack got rolling in the final session when the Wings scored four goals, three of them in 48 seconds. Canadiens had a field day against Black Hawks at Montreal Saturday night winning 10 to 1 and oddly enough the winners' power line had to be satisfied with a goal each. Sunday the Black Hawks, fed up with seeing so many pucks seeping into their net, staged a tight defence against the Rangers in New York and the result was a scoreless tie.

Toronto Team Captures Aquatic Honors

Coach Charlie Tinsley's Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. swim team triumphed over the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. team in the dual meet in the local pool by 34 points to 21 but not until the local swimmers had given the crack visitors plenty of opposition. Competition was keen and some good performances were turned in by the rival squads.

Although beaten Coach Gord Minty's Peterborough squad gave a good account of themselves and won two events including the 200 yards free style relay. Lieut. E. Pritchard, former Upper Canada College swimmer who is at the local Military Training Centre was a useful member of the Peterborough team.

In addition to the races there was a varied program that kept a capacity crowd interested. The Y.W.C.A. Silver Finnettes under the direction of Mrs. James Forbes gave a fine exhibition of ornamental and trick swimming.

Arleigh and Donna Brotherstone staged a clever exhibition of life-saving and also demonstrated the Schaefer method of resuscitation. Two of the visiting Toronto swimmers shone in an exhibition of precision swimming and Ernie Wright and Doug Brown, Toronto and Stan McBride, Doug Plunkett, Bonnie Jackson and Cliff McInroy of the Peterborough team entertained with some fine diving with the clowning of Cliff McInroy a feature.

The Dr. Eve method of resuscitation, commonly called the rocker or the teeter method was demonstrated with Dr. Kelly, the city's M.O.H. as subject. When the straps of the apparatus failed to do their stuff Dr. Kelly came near making a three-point landing but the exhibition sufficed to show how the new method works.

Following were the results of the races:

100 Yards free style—1, Doug Brown, Toronto; 2, Don Campbell, Peterborough; 3, Ted English, Toronto. Time 1.01:4-5.

40 Yards breast stroke — 1, R. Dean, Toronto; 2, Bill Lech, Peterborough; 3, D. Brown, Toronto. Time .25.

Club handicap, 100 yards free style — 1, Keith Reid; 2, Harold Grafstein; 3, Ted Payne. Time 1.25:3.

40 Yards back stroke — 1, Bob Dean, Toronto; 2, Doug Brown, Toronto; 3, Doug Plunkett, Peterborough. Time 25:1-5.

Harris To Coach Y Juvenile Team

G. Harris, well-known Peterborough hockey coach, will pilot the Y's Men's Cubs in the coming Juvenile Hockey tangle. The Y's Men, on Thursday night, decided to sponsor a juvenile team and asked Coach Harris to look after the lads. This is the first time that the Peterborough Y's Men have sponsored a hockey team and it looks like they are swinging into line with the other Peterborough Service Clubs in giving young Peterborough a hand in the line of sports. The Y's Men were unanimous in their approval of sponsoring a team and the players should remember that without this help, there would be only two teams instead of three. So far, it looks like a good juvenile season, with a Collegiate team, Y's Men's Cubs and the Hawks. Age for the teams is 16-17-18 and practices will start this week, with the first games scheduled for the week of January 16th. The Collegiate team will be in the capable hands of Coach Bev. Goulding and their practices will be on Riverside Rink this week. King Edward Park rink will be used for practices for the Cubs and Hawks, notices of games and practices will appear later. The Hawks will be coached by Sid Craig and Bob Dorrell. Teams have not been organized as yet but by the end of this week, the lads will be ready for their first games.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8. — (AP).— When the National Football League meets in Chicago this week it will entertain a proposal to abolish the point after touchdown and substitute a "sudden death" overtime period to avoid ties....Or maybe the proposal merely will entertain the club owners while they laugh it off....On the theory that it won't be harder to consider 22 rule changes than the 21 now listed, this corner offers still another way of eliminating ties. That is to borrow the "rouge" from Canadian football.

Good Neighbor's Game

If the pros adopted this substitute for the uninteresting automatic touchback, there'd be plenty of chances to score tie-break points; a lot of these hopeless field-goals tries would be eliminated; there'd be reward for good kicking and for advancing the ball near enough so that the kick would count.... For the fans, there'd be the added excitement of runbacks from behind the goal line....At least, it would be better than 'sudden death' periods—which would be just that, the way those guys play.

Ruling May Hit Professional Sport Activities

By JIMMY JORDAN
Associated Press Sport Writer.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8 — (AP). — Professional and intercollegiate sports leaders to-day awaited War and Navy Department orders as they contemplated possible cessation of competition for the duration.

Virtually in one voice, leaders echoed the same sentiment in answer to President Roosevelt's recommendation for "labor draft" legislation with:

"If suspension of athletics will aid in winning the war, we don't want to continue."

Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, director of athletics at North-estern University of the Western Conference, summed up the situation confronting sports when he said:

"I don't think there were many more than 15 4-F's in the whole Conference during the past football season. I know there was not a 4-F playing football that would not be in uniform if he could. We don't intend to let our athletics interfere with the war effort, and I don't think any other athletic organization will do so."

Meanwhile, other heads of sports organizations adopted an attitude of "wait and see."

Both major league baseball and National Football League Service rosters already are headed by outstanding stars, and both sports were ready to suspend activities if asked by the Government.

It appeared professional sports might be harder hit by the President's recommendation than college sports. During the recent football season, and in the current basketball season, both Navy trainees and boys under 18 have been the mainstays of college sports.

UTAH CAGERS — DEFENDING NCAA CHAMPIONS—Here are the University of Utah Cagers, defending NCAA champions, who recently returned home from a trip east. ## Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Jan. 8 — (CP). — With the bookies looking around for other means of revenue, now that the horses are frozen in their tracks south of the border, the boxing game seems a logical place for the furtive fin-or deuce-takers to expand their business operations. Especially since boxing seems to be coming back in a big way in the major centres. The fans in Toronto showed remarkable interest in to-night's bout, between Arthur King and Nick Poppa, while Joey Peralta and Montreal's Dave Castilloux attracted much easy money in their Toronto and Montreal bouts.....Down in Montreal they are predicting the rise of boxing to the status of a major sport, and increased interest in things fisticuff have been reported from coast to coast.

Such softies:

Old-timers are firmly convinced the hockey youngsters of to-day are sissies after several games were cancelled during the recent blizzard blitz in Ontario. In the good old days, say they, the boys would have travelled by sleigh or they would have donned snowshoes or skis to get there. Hal (Guelph Mercury) Cole, subscribing to the sissie theory, tells of a Guelph youngsters a few years back who disapproved heartily of the transportation available to take him to a game at Stratford. The automobile, it seems, had no radio or other sources of music handy, so it was thumbs down.

Incidentally:

Ted Reeve, Toronto Telegram sports columnist, who has been invalided home from overseas service with the Sportsmen's Battery, is getting quite a welcome home. Among tributes to The Moaner, the most striking is the full column devoted to his history, antecedents, and character by Bill Walshe in the Ottawa Journal. Says Bill: "Canada's war effort would be much easier for all if there were a few more Ted Reeves to take their share, physically and financially, and also politically."......Hockey promoters around Hamilton are puzzled by it all. They are firmly convinced the brand of hockey dished up in the Ontario Hockey Association senior group is far better than the N.H.L. brand, but the fans aren't coming out in droves at all, at all. After all, the N.H.L. has plenty of prestige to keep the turnstiles clicking regardless of what the experts think of its quality.

Sgt. Hec Kilrea Hurt In France

OTTAWA, Jan. 8 (CP) — Sgt. Hector Kilrea, who starred in the National Hockey League with the old Ottawa Senators, Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs, has been wounded in action in France while serving with the United States Army, his wife said Sunday.

Mrs. Kilrea, who lives here with her mother, said Kilrea wrote that he had suffered machine-gun and shrapnel wounds, but assured her there was "no need to worry" as he was being well cared for in hospital, where he spent Christmas.

"I was struck by machine-gun fire in the leg above the knee and earlier in the day was hit by shrapnel in the back of the left hand," Kilrea wrote. "I was acting platoon leader at the time and was due for promotion, but I guess that's out for a time until I get back in the line."

Kilrea, who wound up an illustrious hockey career with Indianapolis, is attached to the Texas division of the United States 7th Army and landed in France with that unit after taking part in the Italian campaign. He went overseas a year ago.

Detroit Moves Into Tie With Canadiens

By The Canadian Press

Capping a six-week drive from third place with two typical week-end triumphs, Detroit's powerful Red Wings to-day rested in a first-place tie in the National Hockey League with Montreal Canadiens.

And the robust Detroiters probably weren't even breathing hard after disposing of their favorite cousins, Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins, by 5-2 and 8-4 margins. Last night's triumph at Detroit, their 11th in the last 15 starts against two losses and two draws, was featured by a quick-scoring feat in the third period, when the Wings rammed in three goals in 46 seconds.

Canadiens held their two-point margin Saturday by smothering Chicago Black Hawks 10-1 at Montreal, but were idle Sunday. They have two games in hand over the Red Wings. In the other week-end contest, Hawks battled to a scoreless impasse with Rangers at New York.

Tony Bukovich, up from Indianapolis to replace the injured Carl Liscombe, led the Detroit attack against Boston with two goals and an assist. One of his tallies came between shots by Murray Armstrong and Ted Lindsay to create the three-goal splurge between 5.18 and 6.04 of the period.

Two other Detroit goals, by Syd Howe and Steve Wochy, came in the wide-open final period against Kenny Smith's lone reply for Boston. The clubs were deadlocked 3-3 after two periods on goals by Flash Hollett, Bill Quackenbush and Bukovich for Wings and Bruin tallies by Armand Gaudreault, Bill Cowley and Bill Jennings. The victory was Detroit's sixth in as many games with Boston this year.

Brilliant Net Job

Young Harry Lumley's brilliant goaltending and a four-goal first period outburst made it easy for Jack Adams' men to score their fifth season's victory over Leafs. Big Earl Seibert, playing his first game in Detroit uniform since being brought from Chicago in a player trade last week, started Wings rolling with a goal at 3:16 and before the 10-minute mark Bukovich, Lindsay and Jud McAtee had added tallies against the demoralized Leafs. Lumley kicked out 38 shots in the course of the game as the Leafs battled hard to get close. Bob Davidson and Pete Backor got the Toronto goals and Howe fired the finaly tally for Wings.

Ken Mosdell scored three times as Canadiens gave an impressive display of power in downing the hapless Hawks. Fern Gauthier had two and Dutch Hiller, Elmer Lach, Toe Blake, Maurice Richard and Butch Bouchard added to the Montreal field day. Bus Brayshaw bagged the lone Chicago tally.

Dutch Refugees Confused But Courageous

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

NIJMEGEN, Holland, Jan. 6 —(CP). — The boy stood close to his dog, a big, black-and-white Setter. The rope around the dog's neck was wrapped several times around the boy's band. These two were not going to be separated without a struggle.

Behind them was a pitiful bundle of belongings, wrapped in a blanket.

The boy was a refugee. The muddy, tired-looking people about him were refugees, Dutch farmers whose fields lay between the Meuse River and the Neder Rhine and who had been brought here to safety when the Germans blew a dyke and flooded the land that was their home.

None of them had wanted to leave their farms.

Lorries had brought them across the bridge — still being shelled by the Germans — into Nijmegen. In the courtyard they were unloaded with their belongings.

At the refugee centre which is a spacious brick monastery, they were being given a chance to wash, have a hot meal and rest, before trekking on to the refugee camps farther behind the line.

Boy Was 16

The boy with the dog had been here overnight and was waiting to move on. He was 16, he said.

When a German shell set the house on fire, some Canadian soldiers helped him save his cows, which he left with a neighbor living on higher ground. He came away then, bringing the friendly Setter.

Each refugee was examined by a staff of Netherlands doctors. "Most health is good," said one doctor. "There isn't much malnutrition among the farmers. Some are suffering from exhaustion but the morale is good. We haven't had much infectious disease, except some diphtheria. We've had a lot of scabies though."

In one room, four Canadian sergeants waited for the refugees to give them the field security examination. They were Sgt. Stephen Fontaine, Winnipeg, Sgt. John Kazakoff, Edmonton, Sgt. J. M. O'Brien, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Sgt. Rene Steiner, Edmonton and Calgary.

"Our job is to determine if any Germans or pro-Nazi Netherlanders have slipped in among them," said Sgt. Fontaine, a former Royal Canadian Mounted policeman who speaks some Dutch, Polish, German and French. More than 1,200 came to the centre some days, he went on, and the daily average was about 600. In less than a month, 15,000 refugees have been evacuated by the centre.

Health Officials Seek Summer Camps

OTTAWA, Jan. 8 (CP)—Fitness: The Physical Fitness Division of the Federal Health Department is attempting to interest provincial governments and Canadian organizations in a plan to send every child to summer camp for at least one month every year.

Maj. Ian Eisenhardt, national director of physical fitness, said it was hoped that in the post-war every Canadian child between the ages of five and 14 would spend at least one month in a suitable camping spot.

Under the plan the various sports and other organizations in Canada would sponsor the idea of getting the children to camp and looking after financial arrangements. The Dominion and Provincial governments would co-operate by providing camp sites in national and provincial parks.

Greater Market

GUELPH, Jan. 8 — (CP). — Hon. Robert S. Hudson, British Minister of Agriculture, speaking at a meeting at the Ontario Agrculture College here Saturday, said the post-war market for cheese and butter in Great Britain will be much greater than before the war, "although who is going to provide it I cannot say."

Sunday School Holds Supper

MILLBROOK, Jan. 8 — (ENS). — The teachers and officers of St. Andrew's Sunday School filled the role of hosts for the scholars, their parents, and friends, on Friday evening for the annual hot supper, more than 100 being in attendance.

Tables were attractive with orange and gold fluted streamers down the centre and laid crosswise at intervals, and following the substantial meal, games were enjoyed by the younger folk.

Later the superintendent, Wilfrid Elson, took the chair, and after welcoming the guests of the evening, presented a Bible for high attendance record to Teddy Skitch, and for recital of verses to Gerald Hubbeard, who incidentally, had only missed two Sundays during the year, illness preventing his being at the school sessions.

For the brief program, which opened with Christmas carols, Miss E. L. Hetherington being at the piano, Helen Ingham recited, "Dorothy Rose With The Turned-Up Nose", Marlene Richards gave as her selection, "The Kittens' Christmas", and Arlene McPherson sang, "Peace And Good-Will To Men."

Announcement was made of the annual Sunday School meeting on Sunday, January 14, following the regular session, Elizabeth Olan recited, "Generosity", and Rev. Mr. Sisco dismissed the gathering with the blessing.

POST-WAR FAMILY AIR CRUISER—The factory is all set to roll with this family cruiser-type airplane called "Voyager 125." Production will be started 90 days after V-Day—or after wartime restrictions are removed. The plane combines safety, reliability, ruggedness and utility of the "Flying Jeeps" being produced by Stinson for the U.S. Army as observation, utility and ambulance planes. It can carry three or four passengers, and has a range of 470 miles. New conveniences for the pilot including simplified steering wheel, automotive-type starter, push-pull button for locking parking brakes, compact radio installation on dashboard, and full vision windscreen and windows show in this interior view of the new ship.

Parallel Case

VANCOUVER, Jan 8—(CP)—The situation on the western front at the present time parallels that in Italy a year ago and Allied soldiers will eventually overcome the enemy on the Rhine as they overcame him along the Tiber, Peter Stursberg, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation War Correspondent, told a Canadian Club meeting here yesterday.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results your druggist will gladly return your money.

Army Demands To Boost Budget In 1945

By the Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press

OTTAWA, Jan. 8 (CP)—An enlarged war budget for the fiscal year 1945-46 is foreseen in political circles in the capital but there is no certainty yet when it will come before parliament and whether before or after a general election.

While the winding up of the British Commonweath Air Training Plan will bring a reduction in air force expenditures army outlays will likely be higher and the intensified fighting on the western front, if it continues, may mean additional outlays for war industrial plants to produce more munitions and equipment.

The overseas army establishment is not expected to be larger but the movement of larger numbers or reinforcements, necessitated by casualties, will result in higher costs. The return of men to Canada on leaves and the care, discharge and rehabilitation of the wounded and unfit will cost more money. Naval expenditures will run about the same as in the present year.

A War Appropriation Bill in the neighborhood of $3,750,000,000 to $4,000,000,000 is seen as possible as against the appropriation of $3,650,000,000 for the present year.

Pro Workers: Position of professional workers in Canadian industry under the compulsory collective bargaining terms of the federal labor code will come up for consideration before the National Labor Relations Board this week.

Delegations representing professional groups and labor organizations are expected to take part in the hearing. Last April, at its first meeting, the Board heard the representations of some groups and gave a tentative decision that professional workers, including engineers and chemists, should be regarded as being employed in a confidential capacity and so were not within the terms of the Code.

The professional workers objected at the April hearing to being put in a position where Labor Unions would speak for them. They maintained that their position was between that of management and labor.

The decision given by the Board in April was to be subject to review in six months.

Woos Labor

NORTH BAY, Jan. 8 — (CP). — C. H. Millard, C.C.F. member of the Ontario Legislature for York West, speaking at a trade union meeting here last night urged the trade unionists to support and work for C.C.F. candidates. He said the C.C.F. did not intend to go into power to "do something for you but . . . to make it possible for you to do something for yourselves."

A Pimple Covered Face Kills Many a Romance

The lives of many young people are made miserable by the breaking out of pimples, and you probably know of cases where a promising romance has been spoiled by those red, white, festering and pus filled sores on the face.

The trouble is not so much physical pain, but the mental suffering caused by the embarrassing disfigurement which very often makes the sufferer ashamed to go out in company.

The quickest way to get rid of pimples is to improve the general health by a thorough cleansing of the blood.

Burdock Blood Bitters helps to cleanse the blood and with the blood cleansed the complexion should clear up.

Old Offender Gets 3 Months

An old offender Thomas Gorman who pleaded guilty in police court this morning to having been drunk Saturday night and admitted two previous convictions was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to three months in the county jail.

Magistrate Langley threatened to send the accused to the Onario Reformatory but Gorman pleaded for a jail sentence and finally got his request.

Kenneth Crocker who pleaded guilty to begging was sentenced to ten days in jail to date from January 4. The accused stated that he had come from the Maritimes.

Another visitor from New Brunswick, Clinton Tobin, also pleaded guilty to vagrancy and was remanded for a week.

William McIlmoyle, Young's Point, who had been given suspended sentence in September for failing to accept employment under the Selective Service regulations was charged today with a breach of his probation.

John A. Bradshaw who appeared for the youth asked for an adjournment stating that the case probably would not have arisen had the family told the facts to the Selective Service officials. McIlmoyle's father, he said, had been badly hurt in a car accident and the boy had been kept at home to cut wood.

W. F. Huycke, K.C., for Selective Service consented to an adjournment until February 7.

GENERAL MUD BOGS DOWN ALLIED BOMBS—Airmen struggle in the thick goo as they manhandle sticky 1,000-lb. bombs out of a muddy ammunition depot in a forest in Western Europe. This dump is one of the many supplying aircraft operating on the Continent and now engaged primarily in battering Von Rundstedt's forces in the Belgian-Luxembourg bulge.

Ald. Bradburn Succeeds Cotton Chairman Of Finance Committee

In the first phase of its administrative organization for the new year, the city council this morning conferred its committee chairmanships in the spirit of changing departmental leadership and disposing responsibility into new hands.

Two exceptions were the parks and legal committees which respectively retain Aldermen Curtis and Sands as chairmen.

Alderwan Ovens succeeds Alderman Dutton as head of the Board of Works. Alderman Bradburn was appointed chairman of the finance committee, the position held for some years by Alderman Cotton.

Alderman Cotton returns to the fire and light committee, a post that is not strange to him. He was chairman of the fire, water and light committee, as it was then designated, for several years previously in his long aldermanic experience.

Alderman Dutton becomes chairman of the property committee in the place of Alderman Swanston who after four years in that chairmanship takes the place of Alderman Bradburn as head of the manufacturers committee.

Alderman Mark was appointed chairman of the welfare committee, in succession to Alderman Glover who takes charge of the purchasing committee which for the first time becomes one of the council's standing committees.

Alderman Bradburn was also named head of the salaries committee, succeeding ex-Alderman J. E. Sullivan who had also been chairman of fire and light.

New Chairmen

The personnel of these main committees for 1945 follows:—

Board of Works:—Alderman Ovens chairman, and all members of the council.

Finance:—Alderman Bradburn chairman, and all members of the council.

Fire and Light:—Alderman Cotton chairman, and Aldermen Dutton, Dodds, Mark and Sands.

Legal, including reception, legislation and franchises, Alderman Sands, chairman, and Aldermen Bradburn, Glover, Mark, Swanston and Ovens.

Property — Alderman Dutton, chairman, and Alderman Bradburn, Curtis, Sands, Swanston.

Manufacturers, including publicity and transportation — Alderman Swanston, chairman, and Aldermen Bradburn Dutton, Glover and Dodds.

Welfare—Alderman Mark, chairman, and Aldermen Cotton, Dutton and Glover.

Purchasing — Alderman Glover, chairman, and Aldermen Curtis, Cotton, Ovens and Dutton.

Salaries — Alderman Bradburn, chairman, Aldermen Sands and Ovens.

The detail of the nominating of the standing committees was recommended in committee of the whole council, and presumably will be confirmed without change at the first business session this evening. The shift of most of the chairmanships proceeded harmoniously and with unanimous agreement. Alderman Dutton was at first proposed for the fire and light committee and Alderman Cotton for chairmanship of property, but discussion suggested their exchange of posts, partly for the reason that Alderman Cotton had conducted that committee previously, and also because he and Alderman Dutton both preferred the revision.

Opened With Prayer

At the request of Mayor Hamilton the formal opening of the council by prayer for God's guidance was conducted by Rev. W. A. Filer of All Saints Church, president of the Peterborough Ministerial Association.

Rev. Mr. Filer read the following from the first epistle of St. [illegible] ... Love the brotherhood. Fear God, Honor the King."

Criterion of Quality

After leading the council and the group of twenty-five citizens, including four women, attending the inaugural, Rev. Mr. Filer thanked Mayor Hamilton and his associate Aldermen for the honor paid to him in the opportunity of assisting at the beginning of the municipal year of 1945.

"I have no claim to address men of your position," he said, "excepting to say that I am necessarily interested in the work to which you have been called.

Anything that concerns Canada as a whole and Peterborough in particular has of course a special interest to me. I must remind you, as I need to remind myself, that life must be ultimately judged, not by quantity but quality of life. We have gone far in the mastery of certain forces. We can indeed remove mountains. We have telescoped the world so that distances mean little. All this miraculous advance is the triumph of the human mind, but the mind having triumphed, we cannot leave our work uncompleted. We must beware less having triumphed over matter, then matter becomes our master instead of our servant.

What value is our control over physical force, unless by means of it we can better the life of man. How profoundly true is the moral of the Bible,—what shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul? To make our city a better place in which to live is our supreme task. It is a glorious task, yea a God given task. Just before Mr. W. E. Gladstone passed away he wrote a letter to his friend, Lord Acton. "The world of today is not the world in which I was bred and trained and have principally lived. It is a world which I have had much difficulty in keeping on terms with."

No one can live entirely on the past if they desire to endure. We know that true progress must be an organic thing, like the growth of a tree; but we must make use of the old foundations otherwise we shall have a jerry-built erection, which will presently fall about our ears. That foundation is "The fact of God," His love, His way of life for all men. To this end may we turn our hearts and minds and all our strength."

Trapper Arrested On Liquor Charge

Following a raid by Provincial Constable Archie Grayling and Chief William Aikens of Havelock upon a house in Asphodel township just outside of Hastings early Sunday morning, Albert Scriver, 50, Asphodel township who described himself in court today as a fisherman and trapper, pleaded guilty to illegal possession of liquor.

He also admitted a previous conviction for the same offence last July and asked Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. to be as lenient as possible.

"I am given no latitude," Magistrate Langley stated. "The penalty is three months imprisonment. That is the minimum and also the maximum for a second offence under that section."

Six other men who were in Scriver's house when the police arrived on the scene are being charged as found-ins.

Westwood Unit Gives Aid To Bomb Victims

One of the finer things that can be inculcated into the minds of young folk is that sincerity of profession should have every consideration in their acts throughout this life, and that it should concern their every day consideration rather than like their Sunday clothes, which are put on just one day a week or on special occasions.

Thus when Sunday Schools, in propagating the Christian faith, teach their students it is more blessed to give than to receive, or that of the three great virtues of faith, hope and charity, the latter is the greatest, there is every reason to believe that the children would learn this in a far more indelible manner when they put these precepts into actual practice.

In a land where such institutions of Christian learning have little or no endowment to help them carry their own financial burdens, the carrying out of these principles beyond their own immediate circle may not seem to be the easiest thing possible. The fact remains that in so doing, all Sunday Schools can find no better way to teach the true gospel of the universal brotherhood that should exist between all peoples of the earth, than by leading their young charges into some practical acts and sacrifice for the benefit of others who may at any time in need of such help.

From time to time it has been the pleasure of the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund to report acts of their nature to assist the bomb victims in Britain from various Sunday Schools, the most recent of which appears to-day from the Westwood Presbyterian Church Sunday School, who thus show their brotherhood for unfortunate people in distress through no fault of their own.

A Memorial That Speaks.

There are two types of memorials —the inanimate which can only signify its import to those in juxtaposition, and the other which can carry its message in terms of helpfulness to whatever might be the purpose of its intent. The latter of course would seem to be the most preferable.

This preference is shown to-day by a gift to honor the memory of the late Dr. W. F. McElroy, which had been with others of a similar nature, placed upon the collection plates at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, since the donor felt that all gifts of this nature should receive the blessing of the Christian Church. From a knowledge born of inimate associations with the church for a long period of time, the writer feels that all churches would freely offer their offices when the opportunity afforded.

Another personal gift of $10 is acknowledged from Mrs. A. J. Hall of 457 Mark Street, who has a long chain of similar gifts to her credit; and a donation from Silverwoods Dairy completes the returns on this one day.

Remand Given Toronto Man

Arrested in the lobby of the Empress Hotel early Sunday morning, Arnold Cameron, Toronto, was charged in police court this morning with illegal possession of liquor and two bottles, one full and the other about half full were produced.

Cameron who pleaded guilty to the charge told the court that he had bought one bottle for $5 from a soldier in a Toronto hotel. "You didn't know who he was? I presume" said Magistrate Langley, and the accused said that he did not.

"That is the mysterious stranger who is never known" commented the court "I have been hearing about him in all kinds of cases for thirty years."

Cameron said that he had obtained the other bottle on a bus between Port Hope and Madoc but was not clear just how it had come into his possession. However he said he had left money at a barber shop in Madoc to pay for it.

Cameron told the magistrate that he was out on $500 bail in a Toronto case and should have appeared in the Toronto police court this morning.

Magistrate Langley remanded the accused until tomorrow. Cameron asked for bail and was told that it would be $2,000.

Priest Stresses Child Guidance

Solicitude of parents for their children in these days of increasing dangers to the family from without and also within was exemplified in the narrative of the finding of Jesus in the temple, said Rev. Father McCann of the Redemptorist Order, in his sermon on the gospel of St. Luke, at the Church of the Sacred Heart on Sunday.

Coming upon Jesus among the learned doctors His mother told Him that "we have been seeking you sorrowfully." And from that time on, from his twelfth to his thirtieth year, "He went down to Nazareth and was subject to them," during the magnificent years of His manhood.

Father McCann was speaking on the Christian family and the elements of family life. He appealed to parents to insist on parental authority within the home without being unjust or severe, but maintaining good order and respect for the fundamentals of law. That same respect within the home extended gradually to society with obedience to the laws of the community and respect for its constituted authority. The duty of parents was complemented by the duty of children as required by the fourth commandment. That was the ideal in the Holy Family, and should be cherished in the Christian homes of today. Parents had the very highest example presented to them by the spirit of the home of Jesus at Nazareth.

Woman Stricken Waiting For Noon Bus

Stricken with a heart attack while she was waiting for a bus in Payne's Drug Store at noon on Saturday, Mrs. J. E. Carr, 566 Weller street, died one minute after an ambulance delivered her at the hospital.

The 72-year-old woman had apparently been in the best of health when she set out Saturday morning to do her shopping, and she collapsed into unconsciousness from which she failed to rally, while standing in the Simcoe street store.

Born in Mariposa township, daughter of the late James Henry Robinson and Mary Ann Fleury, Mrs. Carr had been living in Peterborough for 43 years. She and her husband, who was employed at the Bonner-Worth Mills for 30 years, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1944.

The sprightly woman of 72 years delighted in recalling their first years in Peterborough, remembering the growth of the city in that time. When they first arrived most of the land below Charlotte street on Park was boggy, with very few houses. This section is now filled in, and King, Bolivar and Sherbrooke streets, and other parallel streets have been made.

The former Annie Isabella Robinson married Jabez Edward Carr in the Methodist parsonage in Lindsay and lived there for six years prior to moving to Peterborough. While in this city, she was a member of the Salvation Army.

Surviving are her husband, one son Virg Carr, a member of the Peterborough Fire Department; and two daughters, Georgina and Marie, all of Peterborough. There is also one brother, Peter Robinson of Kirkfield and two sisters, Mrs. Howard James and Mrs. Angus Murray of Peterborough.

The funeral service will be held Tuesday from the Belleghem Funeral Home, 190 Hunter street west, at 2:30 p.m. Major John Wood of the Salvation Army will officiate and interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

REAL HOLLYWOOD SWANK—As the twig is bent, so grows the branch, and that's why one manufacturer of sound clothes for youthful beaux chooses such styles as this Hollywood casual suit for his Three to Seven 'Age clientele. The idea behind the choice is good, too, for any male over the age of twenty, at the moment, can remember the thrill of the first long trousers; younger boys have had long pants all their lives, which must have given them a manly confidence early.—By Prunella Wood.

DOROTHY DIX . . . . .

SOME BOY FRIENDS ARE UNWORTHY

Army Training is Best Means of Making Real Men Out of Cads

DEAR MISS DIX—My 16-year-old daughter has a boy friend who takes possession of our home by pounding on the piano and turning on the radio to a station he likes, regardless of the likes of anyone else in the household. He criticizes her dress, calls her dumb, tells her she doesn't have to obey me and tries to get her to skip classes as he does. He tells her he doesn't have any money to take her out, yet spends $15 on himself trying to look like a second Sinatra.

My daughter tries to laugh off his lack of manners and his laziness, but I can't see anything amusing in his rudeness. Am I not justified in asking her to find a civilized boy friend who is a gentleman? Or have al the nice well-bred boys gone to war? Just what are the chances in life for a boy of this character or for the girl who falls in love with him?

MOTHER.

Parasites and Hangers-on

ANSWER — The chances for bumptious, conceited young asses, to be absolutely nil, for nobody would put up with their arrogance and their lack of manners. They never could keep a job or make friends. Everybody avoided them as the pests they were. They were doomed to become parasites on their parents and hangers-on of pool rooms and cadgers of drinks.

But the brightest spot in the war is that it takes these young cads and turns them into men. A drill sergeant gives them the discipline that their fond and foolish mothers didn't. They are being made to consider others instead of themselves, to do the things they don't want to do and to show respect for authority. It is working such a reformation that their own parents won't know them when they come back. If the war has robbed us of many fine young men, it is paying its debt in part by turning such as the one you describe, used

Paratrooper Does Invasions As Member Of Navy Force

He's a paratrooper, but he invaded Hitler's European fortress with the Navy and then slugged it out with the Infantry. He is Sgt. Anthony Schiarizza, and whenever the Germans proved too tough, the "Black Devils" were called in to clean them up.

Although the Special Task Force which proved so effective in Italy received regulation paratroop training in the United States, after going overseas, they forgot that paratrooper legends demand that they make thrilling jumps from fast moving planes, and instead became a fast hitting amphibious force, ready to take, on any kind of a job, as long as it was tough.

Sgt. Schiarizza, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Schiarizza, 582 Bethune street, is home on a 30-day furlough, after which he will report back to Kingston for further medical treatment. Twice wounded since going overseas in October 1943, the young paratrooper who suffered an eye wound, is now home for a well earned rest.

Mountain Battle

The "Black Devils," so named by the Germans because of their black painted faces and ferocious and uncanny attacks, saw a number of tough actions, but none could compare as an endurance contest with the eight days they spent fighting on Mount Defensa, the gateway to Cassino.

"For eight days we hung on before the issue was decided. Both the terrain and the weather turned against us, and it was the worst battle I was in," declared Sgt. Schiarizza. "Two American units had already been sent in to knock the Germans off this mountain and had failed completely. Then they asked the paratroop regiments to take over.

"The attack began in the murky hours of night and the first night we managed to get half way up the mountain. During the day we had to hide ourselves under brushwood and whatever other protection we could find and keep still so that no movement would attract enemy attention. The second night, after tough work, we reached the top, and the first job was done. Then the real fighting started although it was still dark. We would push the Nazis off and just as fast they would counter-attack and push us off. This went on for days. There was absolutely nothing there but the men fighting on the top of the mountain, just another "Impregnable" mountain peak which had to be removed as a German defense point.

"We started off on the attack with three meals in our pockets. Later on some food was dropped by plane one day, and other supplies managed to get through from the foot of the mountain. But it was really tough."

Beat Invasion

Four hours before the American 7th Army officially invaded the south of France, the paratroopers made an amphibious landing off the coast of an island. The men had the place to themselves for half an hour without a shot being fired. Then the Germans became aware of the situation. There was only one company, 145 men, left to protect the territory, but they put up a real battle, the young soldier declared. But, since they were hopelessly outnumbered, the fighting only lasted for a day and after 1½ days his outfit was transported to France itself.

"In Italy, you never knew who was for you or against you, but the people of France were grand. The Partisans were a wonderful help to our men. As soon as they knew the invasion was on, they began drifting in to our unit and attaching themselves to our command as scouts. They knew their stuff too. They directed us through enemy minefields in the earlier advance and kept us posted as to German movements."

Sgt. Schiarizza landed in southern France August 15 and 10 days later he became a casualty. He and his comrades were advancing one night south of Nice, closing off an enemy pocket of resistance, when fragments of a mortar bomb injured one eye. The scrap was taking place at 1.30 in the morning. That ended his battle activities and after about two weeks in the hospital, the paratrooper was sent to England.

But after action in Italy, France was pretty tame in the opinion of this man. Resistance in France was only isolated and was broken down into clearing up small pockets in the different sectors. In Italy it was almost a continuous battle.

99 Night Raids

Anzio, a name that stands for bloody fighting and terrible casualties in the minds of soldiers of the 5th Army, meant a tough siege to Sgt. Schiarizza's unit. In 99 days of bitter fighting, his unit made 99 raids behind enemy lines. It was in this fighting, that the paratroopers received their designation of "Black Devils."

The attacks were always made at night, and the men would silently leave the Allied lines in groups ranging anywhere from a battalion to platoons. Before setting out each man would study a map of the area to be attacked, and that made it simple to reach the objective, he declared. The wild attacks never failed to surprise the Huns and after raising hell with them, we would fight our way back to our own lines, he continued.

The paratroopers made an amphibious landing at Anzio too, according to the soldier. They went in in rubber boats, towed by barges and when close enough to shore, paddled the rest of the way. They did not hit the beaches fighting, a fact for which they were not sorry.

During the Anzio battles Sgt. Schiarizza was a machine gunner. There were four in the crew and they worked together in the attacks, and it was during a combat patrol as 30 men were engaged in fighting, that he was wounded the first time. Five men were hit in that battle, which was just a routine day. He and his comrades were in House 13 exchanging shots with the Germans who were in House 14 and a sniper's shot wounded him in the thigh.

Good Meals

Sgt. Schiarizza said the food which the Special Task Force got was excellent and they always managed to have lots of chicken and eggs. Night raids always proved a wonderful source of supply and no one ever asked questions as to where the food was picked up.

When his unit invaded France, Sgt. Schiarizza's job changed. Instead of being a machine gunner, he became a sniper and so worked alone. He said that of the two he thought he preferred the latter.

For two Christmases now, this Peterborough boy has celebrated with a hospital staff. In December, 1943, he was in hospital recuperating from his Anzio wound, and in December, 1944, he spent Christmas night at sea on a hospital ship. He praised the work of the medical staff, and mentioned that even though they weren't home, they managed to have some special fun Christmas, anyway.

Three other Peterborough boys were in the Special Service Force, although they weren't all in his regiment, he said. Mel Parnell, now in England and expecting to be invalided home; Ted Johnston, a patient at Christie street, and Sgt. Emmett Guerin, who was killed in Italy a year ago, make up the group.

Sgt. Schiarizza enlisted in March, 1942, with the Prince of Wales Rangers (CA) and in August, 1942, transferred to the paratroop unit and began training at Helena, Mont. Prior to going overseas he served in the Aleutians.

Publisher's Wife Dies In Sudbury

SUDBURY, Jan. 8.—The funeral of Mrs. William E. Mason, 61 wife of the publisher of the Sudbury Daily Star, who died this week-end will be held Tuesday at her home. She had been ill since early last month, when she suffered a heart seizure. She went into a coma on Friday and blood transfusions failed to revive her. Mr. Mason's brother, Stuart J. The former Alice Timlin, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Timlin, she married Mr. Mason in 1905. They moved to Toronto that year, when Mr. Mason took a position with Toronto Saturday Night. NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (AP).—Emerson Dye, newspaper advertising man, wondered why people stared in his direction as he sat at lunch. He checked to see if his tie was in his soup, mopped his face with his handkerchief to wipe off any smudge. Still people stared. Finally a waitress reassured him:

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, January 9

A FAIRLY active and eventful day, in which great strides may be taken in the way of placing the future and its accumulations on a sound and enduring basis, largely by hard work, well-organized methods and programs, application and sincerity of purpose and a sense of obligation and duty are bound to be rewarded by approbation and support of those in influential places, against small irritations, envy, strange or subtle antagonisms.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have the opportunity of making a worthy and successful place for themselves and their dependents, putting the future and its security on firm foundations. This may be accomplished by their own faithful and shrewd endeavors, industry, perseverance and fortitude, should small antagonisms, jealousy or subtle factors seem to menace. Sound policies and practical ideas and plans will attract support from influential sources, elders and superiors recognizing sound merit and fidelity.

A child born on this day may have much practical constructive ability, with the strength, endurance and meritorious purpose to secure a worthy place in life, with influence and possessions of stability.

Not Satisfied

SCHNECTADY, N.Y., Jan. 8—(AP).—Miss Bertha Venook's coat was taken from a restaurant while she ate. A more valuable one was left in its place. She still wants her own, she told police, because "someone might yell 'Stop thief!' at me on the street."

NEW YANK LANDINGS SEEN NEAR—Admission by the Tokyo radio that a big American task force has "gathered in the Sulu Sea (A) to effect new landings in the Philippines" has been followed by reports that Luzon may be the scene of the next invasion, although other smaller objectives might be used as stepping stones. A series of all-out attacks in many directions preceded this news. Guam was used for the first time as a base from which to hammer Nagoya; Formosa and Ryukyu Islands were hit by carrier-based planes; 26 Jap ships were either sunk or destroyed off Luzon coast and new landings were made on Mindoro.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

—By J. R. Scott

CAUGHT IN THE PATH OF WAR—Tragedy and weariness mask the face of the French woman looking from the battered window of her ruined home in Bliesbruck on the German border, which was torn by shells from the guns of both sides. The youngsters, with the precious gift of forgetting the frightening noise as soon as it died down, smile coyly into the camera.

Curling News

By HERB MARTIN

The cold dip of the last few days did not, in any way, "freeze" up the enthusiasm of the curlers. They were out in full force on Saturday afternoon. Every sheet of ice was in use. Some of the boys thought that on account of the heavy schedule the past two weeks that maybe there would be a drop-off in the attendance, but such was not the case. They played three 5-end games and were through by 5.15 o'clock.

The winners in the afternoon were:

First—H. Doleman, E. Purvis, C. Shaughnessy, T. McArthur skip.

Second—R. Grant, A. Archibald, R. Payne, S. Lowe, skip.

Third—R. Rutherford, E. Metcalfe, K. Hamley, M. Cruthers, skip.

Fourth—C. R. Mathers, R. Clark, F. Stenson, R. Williamson, skip.

At night the attendance for the mixed bonspiel was well above the average. This Saturday night 'spiel is going to get better as the season advances. Our guess is that it will, before long, be on even terms with the Saturday afternoon 'spiel.

Notices are out for the first open bonspiel. Wednesday, January 17th is the date. If you have not already made your entry do it at once or you may be left out.

Our schedule continues this evening at 7.45 o'clock. Group "C" will hold the spotlight.

Winning rinks at night were:

First—Mrs. S. Lowe R. C. Bastable, Mrs. G. Green, Leo Ackford, skip.

Second—Mrs. D. L. Davis, Mrs. A. Robinson, Mrs. J. Dunkerly, E. Metcalfe, skip.

many worthless boys into good men.

Your daughter certainly has little pride if she puts up with the insulting treatment that this ill-bred young man offers her. But I suppose now that dates are at a premium, girls feel that they must take what they can get and not be too choosy.

The only solution that I can see of your problem is for this lad to be drafted into the army. But his type is pretty likely to find some way to wiggle out and be a home-sitter instead of a fighter.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Can you please tell us what we can do with our mother who is ruining our home and making us all nervous wrecks with her constant complaining and nagging? In particular, she spends her time baiting our father, accusing him of doing things he has never heard of or thought of doing. He doesn't drink or go out anywhere, but works hard all day and at night to get more money to buy us kids nice things. Yet she never lets him have a minute's peace at home.

Our home would be very happy if she would only stop saying nasty things to Father.

EDNA AND ALICE.

ANSWER—Evidently your mother is one of the neurotic women who get their pleasure in life out of torturing other people, and as their families are the most available victims, they concentrate on pouring all of their venom on them.

The only way to deal with these domestic fiends is by frightening them. Your mother does not want to dose her good home and comfortable living by having to go out and support herself, so if your father would tell her that he was going to take you children and go off and establish a home where you could live in peace, it would make her behave herself, if anything would.

DEAR MISS DIX—My fiancee and I quarrel continually over every single thing, although we love each other. Do you think if we got married we would be able to live together in peace?

H. M.

ANSWER—No. You would find far more things to quarrel over if you were married and were thrown in continual contact with each other than now while you are single and not actually living together.

Evidently you are temperamentally antagonistic, and you will be wise to part and seek mates who are more congenial to you.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

THREE GOOD REASONS

A DECLARER is likely to find it necessary to overtake an honor in his own hand or the dummy for any of three different kinds of reasons. The most obvious is to unblock a suit which is longer in the overtaking hand. The second is to have an entry into that hand at some particular time when it is more important than the trick which would be saved by economizing on high cards. The third is to economize in total number of entries required in the overtaking hand for development of the main plan.

It was a shame to see the declarer miss his game on this deal, as it was really an open-and-shut thing if he played it right. West led the spade Q, which South won with the K. Deciding to work for diamond tricks, he scored the diamond K, then led to the spade A and laid down the diamond A, hoping for enough luck to catch the Q. When this failed, his game was impossible. Hoping to limit his loss to down one, he tried the heart finesse, which failed, so he was down two. The defenders got two tricks then in spades, one in diamonds and two in clubs, plus the one heart.

After winning the first spade trick, South should have led the diamond K and overtaken with the A, then played diamonds until the Q was used. This way, he would have had the spade A left as a reentry for established diamonds, so would have taken four tricks in diamonds, plus two in spades, one in hearts and two in clubs, the nine total which he required.

Nazi Luxury Car Ideal Guest House

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY IN HOLLAND, Jan. 8 — (CP). — A contractor for the German Todt organization has provided Gen. H. D. G. Crerar with a luxurious caravan for the use of distinguished visitors to 1st Canadian Army Headquarters.

Built almost on Pullman car lines, the caravan is self-contained with kitchen, living or reception room and bedroom with running water. It has electric lights and electrically heated stoves that make it comfortable in the coldest weather.

Cornelius, the contractor, had his headquarters in Ghent and Canadian engineers clearing away 150 tons of scrap metal from the sides and doors of a shed there, found the caravan, apparently never used, inside.

It was too elaborate and bulky for the sappers so they presented it to Gen. Crerar who decided that while he preferred his British-built caravan for his own use this vehicle would be ideal for overnight guests.

Maj.-Gen. Georges Vanier, Canadian ambassador to France, was the first distinguished visitor to use the caravan and a few nights later Gen. Eisenhower slept there. Gen. Crerar christened the vehicle "Vipers Nest," expanding V.I.P.—the army's abbreviation for Very Important Person—into this colorful name.

The original owner, Cornelius, has disappeared. No one knows his nationality, but it is assumed he left with the retreating Germans.

An excerpt from a G.H.Q. troops order dealing with the disposal of stray, injured or dead carrier pigeons reads:

"Any pigeons may be given water to drink, and, if they appear to require it, a little bread or broken biscuit to eat. They will not be eaten themselves."

Sgt. John Carlova of New York, a sub-editor on The Maple Leaf, daily newspaper of the Canadian troops on the west front, has spent a month with Gen. Eisenhower as the supreme commander's personal correspondent.

The general always has one newspaperman on his staff and secently decided to choose his reporters from the services papers rather than from the ranks of war correspondents. A reporter from the United States services paper The Stars and Stripes was the first soldier selected and when his month ended Carlova took over.

Reports on the general's activities are pooled.

Pre-War Cars Must Last For Long Time

OTTAWA, Jan. 8—(CP)—Canadian motorists are doing a good job of keeping their prewar cars on the road, and they will have to get along with them for a long time to come, information gathered from the Munitions Department and other sources indicated today.

The disappearance of automobiles from the roads has not been nearly as rapid as was anticipated two or three years ago, and this, officials say, is due to action of drivers in taking greater care of their cars and in reduced mileage travelled under wartime restrictions.

Latest available figures show there now are some 1,170,000 cars licensed in Canada. That means that since 1941, when war conditions really began to seriously affect driving habits, some 113,500 cars have disappeared from service, but this is about 80,000 less than would have been junked under normal peacetime conditions.

The drivers of those cars still in operation—and those who have had to give up driving during wartime—face little prospect of early relief. New demands on war industry make it unlikely that there will be an early resumption of the manufacture of passenger cars, which was halted early in 1942. When materials, labor and plant equipment are available, trucks will have priority over passenger cars.

Gasoline and Tires

There are no indications of any easing in the gasoline supply situation, and today Rubber Controller A. H. Williamson had this stern warning: "The tires you have may be the last you'll get for some time."

Mr. Williamson said military requirements were likely to result in the tire situation for civilians becoming increasingly acute within the next few months. Plans made three months ago to increase the production of tires for highly essential civilian drivers, such as doctors, police and fire departments, had been cancelled to make way for more military tires.

Again the prospect of reduced output of civilian tires this year is an increasing demand with old tires reaching the stage where they are completely worn out. Drivers would have to take every possible care of their tires and have them retreaded when they showed signs of wear the Controller said.

High Point in 1942

In keeping their cars on the road motorists have done a far better job than was expected in the earlier stages of the war. Normally about 61,000 cars a year go off the road. In the year 1941-42 this figure climbed to 65,000, but that was the high point.

The next year, with no new cars available and with gasoline and tire rationing imposing restrictions on driving, motorists apparently gave more thought to the care of their cars and for the year 1942-43 the number that went out of service dropped to 23,500. Preliminary figures for 1943-44 show some 25,000 cars taken off the road.

Back in June, 1942, some top officials were predicting that 150,000 passenger rars would be off the road within the next year, but supply conditions turned out to be not as bad as they feared at that time and motorists did a much better job than was expected.

Millbrook Ministers Plan Prayer Services

MILLBROOK, Jan. 8 — (ENS). — The local clergy have arranged for the annual Week of Prayer services, the general theme being "The Lord's Prayer", as stated by the Canadian Council of Churches. The opening service will be on Tuesday, January 9, in St. Andrew's United Church, with Percy Hamilton giving the address for Rev. A. E. Chevis, Anglican rector, who is still unable to fulfill his pastoral duties owing to ill health.

The next will be Wednesday, January 10, in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, with Rev. Walter Patterson, Presbyterian minister, as the speaker, and Thursday, 11, in Grace Presbyterian Church, with the address by Rev. A. L. Sisco. Any money in the offerings left over the small expense involved, will, as usual, be given the Bible Society through the local branch.

Watch For Spies

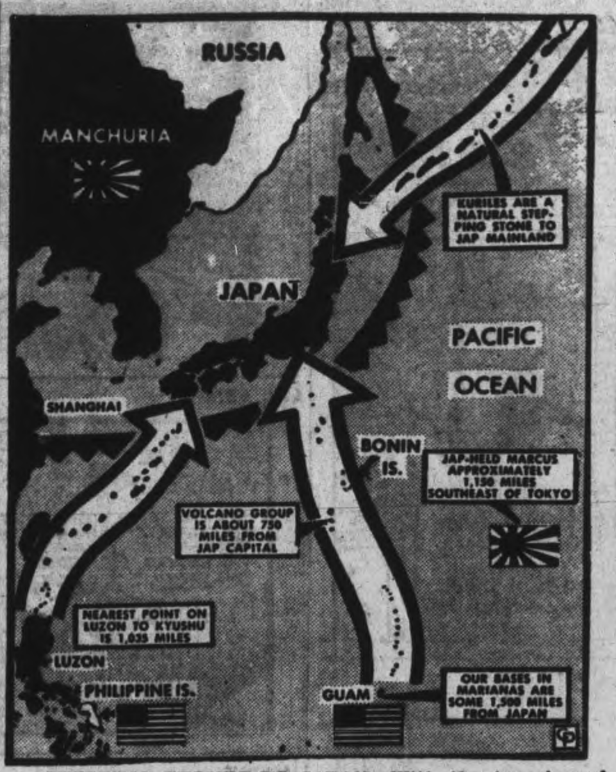
HALIFAX, Jan. 8 — (CP). — Declaring that "Nova Scotia might well be the logical point selected by the enemy for the landing of spies," Assistant Commissioner A. N. Eames of the R.C.M.P. yesterday called for vigilance on the part of all residents of the province.



STEPPING STONES TO JAPAN—With the invasion of Luzon in the Philippines imminent, according to military analysts, another Allied war objective in the Pacific—the recapture of Manila—may soon be accomplished. Clearing the Japs out of the Philippines will bring the Allies only slightly closer to Japan, but they will provide in the Western Pacific the large land mass essential for great supply dumps, airfields and troop-concentration areas needed to support an invasion of Japan. From the Philippines Allied forces could strike out at the Jap mainland in conjunction with attacks from Pacific islands that point at Japan from varied directions. On the above map are shown the mileages from such stepping stones.

She continued working at her club during continuous bombing by the Nazis until the rumble of approaching enemy tanks could be heard. Ordered to cover Peggy and two women companions were aided by some soldiers as they crept along, hugging walls of buildings until they came to a road. Later, they reached Bastogne still under heavy fire, and had Christmas dinner with the troops on the run, and finally managed to gain Mezieres and safety.

83 Billions Wanted By Roosevelt

U.S. Budget Demand Down 17 Billions Over First Estimate

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 —(CP)— President Roosevelt today asked Congress for $83,000,000,000 for expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1946 but warned that battle developments might make the sum inadequate.

Declining to comment on the possible length of the war the president said: "My only prediction is that our enemies will be totally defeated before we lay down our arms."

The budget message estimated $70,000,000,000 would be needed for war purposes but said this was a compromise between a number of estimates submitted to the president, ranging from $60,000,0000,000 to $80,000,000,000.

The president's message asked for $17,000,000,000 less than the original estimate of $100,000,000,000 for the current fiscal year.

No substantial tax changes were proposed and the message estimated the federal debt now expected to reach $252,000,000,000 June 30 next, was likely to be $292,000,000,000 on the same date next year.

On Decline

War expenditures were expected to decline in the next fiscal year because war construction and military equipment are "substantially complete" and supply lines filled.

"The extent of that decline depends on the course of the war," the message said. "There has been over-optimistic speculation about the possible cut in war expenditures when major hostilities in Europe end and our main efforts are concentrated on the Japanese campaign.

"We should make a great mistake if, in our military and budgetary planning, we under-estimate the task of defeating Japan.

"Our task in Europe will not end with the cessation of hostilities there. The war will not be won unless we accept our share of responsibility for the administration of occupied territories for relief

The men quit work Thursday night, a spokesman said, when the store refused to sell them cigarettes.*

Strike Ties Up 3 Coast Cities Use Navy Tanks

VANCOUVER, Jan. 9—(CP)— Transportation systems in three Pacific Coast centres — Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster — ceased operation at 4 a.m. P.D.T. (7 a.m. E.D.T.) today as 2,700 street railwaymen and bus drivers went on strike for increased wages and working conditions.

Last minute efforts to avert the strike, which has been threatening for more than week, broke down earlier today and thousands of residents in the area will be forced to hitch-hike or walk to work. The federal Department of Munitions and Supply has authorized extra gasoline to civilians to transport workers to essential war plants and business.

Street railwaymen of the British Columbia Electric Company last night voted overwhelmingly to reject proposals aimed at averting a strike. The vote was 1,289 to 150.

An emergency meeting after the vote of company representatives, officials of the Regional War Labor Board and the Street Railwaymen's Union (A.F.L.) "Was a failure," said M. H. McGeough, administrator of the regional board.

The strike settlement plan, reached during week-end negotiations between union officials and the regional board, called for a 4½ cents an hour wage increase, retroactive to March 1, and several minor wage adjustments in various categories of workers.

After the emergency meeting Mr. McGeough said he brought to the meeting the National War Labor Board's approval of the compromise settlement voted on by union members and rejected. He said he had the national board's permission to advance the wage clauses of the compromise to 5½ cents an hour if the union rejected the 4½ cents increase proposal.

"They rejected by plea and said there was going to be a strike," he said, adding the 5½ cents increase had been approved by the company.

"They also refused my request for a 48-hour delay so that we could continue negotiations as we were making progress for the last few days," he said. "There will be no further effort on our part unless more instructions are received from

Costly Battle Raging Near Danube

Germans Continue Great Attack To Relieve Budapest

MOSCOW, Jan. 9 (AP)—Russian forces driving along the north bank of the Danube approached within gun range today of Komarom while a costly battle raged south of the river where the Germans are trying to reach the encircled Budapest garrison.

A three-mile advance north of the Danube yesterday carried Marshal Y. Malinovsky's troops to a point less than seven miles from Komarom, key communications centre for the region northwest of Budapest. There the Russians stood less than 50 miles east of the Austrian border and 57 southeast of Bratislava, Slovakian capital.

Dispatches said German troops last reported only 15 miles northwest of Budapest were shifting the weight of their attack southward in an apparent effort to cut through to the Hungarian capital from due west. The Germans were said to be using "large" tank forces. A Russian communique said Red Army forces disabled or destroyed 90 German tanks in that area in one day's fighting.

There was speculation here that Malinovsky might try to cross the Danube from the north and cut into the German left flank to relieve the pressure on Budapest. He is reported to be massing heavy strength east of Komarom.

From that sector, however, Malinovsky is believed to have a good chance to carry his attack farther along the direct road to Vienna.

The Red Army already has begun operating from at least one airfield in the newly-captured territory east of Komarom. Stormoviks and two-engined bombers were said to be flying from there today against the Budapest-bound Germans south of the Danube.

Capture of seven towns put Malinovsky's forces astride two roads leading westward and a railway leading along the north bank of the Danube.

The Russians inside Budapest captured another 130 blocks.

Double Trouble

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 9 —(AP).— John Cuminsky had a double dose of trouble in crossing the street here yesterday. He was about half-way across when he was hit by a car which sped on. A moment later another car came around a corner and ran over him. It, too, sped away. Cuminsky is in hospital here with a possible skull fracture.

British Troops Occupy Thebes, Rebels Fleeing

ATHENS, Jan. 9—(AP)—British troops pursuing E.L.A.S. forces retreating from Athens have occupied Thebes, forward base of the left-wing guerilla units about 48 road miles northwest of Athens, it was announced today.

The announcement said a British mobile forces had entered Thebes against slight opposition.

Fifty E.L.A.S. prisoners and a 75-mm. gun were captured just beyond Thebes.

Meanwhile, it was estimated 4,000 ELAS had been killed or wounded in the Athens battle.

The threat of arrest on charges of inciting rebellion hung over the heads of E.L.A.S. leaders today. The Athens press announced that warrants had been issued for the arrest of 150 alleged "leaders of the rebellion" and said three high-ranking police officers already were in custody.

Search of houses in the Athens area resulted in the seizure of about 1,400 rifles, 80 machine-guns and 11 tons of explosives.

With most of Attica cleared of E.L.A.S. forces, British spokesman said they expected the Insurgents to make their next stand in the Parnassius-Hellicon range, south of Lamia.

It was estimated that the E.L.A.S. suffered as high as 50 per cent in casualties in the Athens fight.

It was estimated a total E.L.A.S. force of 25,000 was mustered over the period of the Athens battle. This force was gradually dispersed until

Great Raids Hit Tokyo, Philippines

Many Warships And Convoys Nearing Luzon

By LEONARD MILLIMAN
Associated Press Staff Writer.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 9 (AP).—A second American invasion convoy was reported to have joined the assault on Luzon Island's Lingayen Gulf to-day as Superforts and carrier planes blasted Japan's Formosa-Ryukyu Island reinforcement line to the Philippines. Other strong B-29 forces bombed Tokyo.

Contradictory Japanese broadcasts reported successively that 15,000 American soldiers failed in a landing attempt at Lingayen, 110 miles north of Manila; that 70 bombarding U.S. warships turned and fled; that a "second enemy convoy" reached the Lingayen "combat zone" and its escorting warships joined the "first enemy convoy" in shelling coastal fortresses.

Tokyo said 150 transports were in the second convoy, more than double the size of the first. A third 150-ship convoy was reported on the way.

Tokyo radio reported U.S. warships, which began bombarding Lingayen last Saturday, were slackening their fire, "evidently due to the loss of regular aircraft carriers."

Japs Claim Ships.

Earlier the Domei Agency said U.S. warships steamed away Monday morning with Japanese planes in hot pursuit. It said some warships were sighted in flames west of Manila.

Japanese propagandists poured out their confusion of reports as Vice-Admiral John S. McCain's fast carrier forces combined with B-29s in a day-long raid on Formosa and three of the most important Ryukyu Islands. It was their second strike within a week.

These strikes were in strategic support of the reported operations

Huge Drifts Clog Battlefield Only One Escape Route Open

By JAMES M. LONG—Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Jan. 9 — (AP). — A big tank battle broke out today in a blinding blizzard three miles northeast of Laroche where American troops fought violently for Samree on the severed main road through the Belgian bulge. Other Americans were within a mile north of Laroche. The battle was in drifts four to five feet high and in heavy new snowfalls. All along the 30-mile northern flank of the Ardennes salient, the Germans were declared by one of Field Marshal Montgomery's staff officers to be on the defensive and fighting resolutely to bar the Allies from the one remaining escape route from the bulge This was the Houffalize-St. Vith road, and the American First Army was five miles or so from it and cratering it with artillery.

Three American and one British Army steadily were writing off the Ardennes wedge in the grim battle in zero weather.

On the southern flank of the virtually winter-bound bulge, German counter-attacks drove back the United States 3rd Army a mile on a three-mile front west of Bastogne. Field Marshal Von Rundstedt appeared to be trying to blast open communications on the south to compensate for the loss yesterday of the Laroche-St. Vith road.

The Germans threw half a dozen attacks against American and French troops in northeast France, including one powerful smash against the French Army south of Strasbourg. That drive from Colmar, where Gestapo Chief Henrich Himmler still was believed providing leadership and inspiration, was halted at Rossfeld and Herbsheim, 16 miles from the big Alsatian city on the Rhine.

Despite the paralyzing storm and drifts which impeded equally the attack and the German escape, the U.S. 2nd armored division struck heavily at Samree against mobile and dug-in German tanks.

The distance between the U.S. 1st and 9th Army elements on the north and the U.S. 3rd Army on the south was less than 10 miles. Within that deadly gauntlet, all raked by artillery, there was only a single good road for German retreat and that was hidden by the snow and ice and crated by shells.

The blizzard, comparable to those on the Russian front, slackened a bit today, but the snow still fell intermittently.

To the south, Lt.-Gen. Devers' 6th Army Group blocked German probing for weak spots in Alsace and Lorraine. At least temporarily, the U.S. 7th Army counter-attacks were plugging holes driven by the first fury of the German diversionary attacks on the Alsace plain. The immediate threat to the French Rhine city of Strasbourg lessened, too, although headquarters said Germans 16 miles or so to the south "continued to be aggressive."

Wipe Out Bridgehead.

Another diversion in Holland was erased. Britons and Canadians teamed to wipe out a bridgehead across the Maas (Meuse) north of Venlo.

The enemy pulled back 1,000 yards before the British 2nd Army in the wild, desolate Ardennes country of wooded tracts and steep defiles southeast of Marche at the northwest tip of the Belgian salient, but a spokesman at Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters in the north said:

"There is no sign of a German

EXPECT NEW NAZI THRUSTS—Military observers express the belief that a new German drive, similar to the one that pushed American forces back into Belgium, may soon begin. They point to the fact that the Nazis are drawing armored divisions from the front of their salient to form a semi-circular line running north from Bastogne. This spearhead (1) may regroup and push west once again. Other possibilities are drives north (2) and south (3) of the present bulge. Before this probable second offensive the Germans may strike at a number of places (4) along the line as feints. The present Nazi push (5) at the southern end of the line may be a feint, or may develop into an all-out offensive such as won the Nazis the Belgium Luxembourg salient.

Von Rundsted's Big Drive Failed For Two Reasons

By DON WHITEHEAD—Associated Press War Correspondent

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP).—Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's great gamble to smash the Allied invasion armies failed for two reasons: (1) His Panzer and infantry divisions never were able to swing north and capture Liege. (2) Von Rundstedt underestimated the Allied fighting men. The U.S. 1st Army's epic defence of its great bases and supply arteries was the turning point in the surprise German offensive, which caught the 1st Army off-balance.

Had Von Rundstedt crashed through defences on the northern flank of the salient 2nd and 1st Canadian Armies would have been threatened with destruction. Certainly the U.S. 1st Army would have been trapped.

The German drive to the west toward Sedan was the least threatening. Von Rundstedt could not continue driving west and leave formidable American armies in his rear as a continual threat.

Sooner or later he had to swing either to the north against the 1st Army or south to envelop the U.S. 3rd Army. He chose to hurl the weight of his attack north, pointing toward Cologne and the Ruhr.

They Knew How.

But veteran troops in the line had the "know-how" with which to stop

Gas Shortage Creating Crisis

By The Canadian Press

A cold wave with sub-zero temperatures reached southern Ontario today and in the southwestern part of the province a complete shutoff in the natural supply to customers of the Dominion Gas Company in the London area appeared in prospect.

At Windsor 20,000 war workers were idle for the second day in succession with the Ford Motor Company plants and two of the three plants of the Chrysler Corporation closed as a result of the shortage which is due to the cold weather. The cold wave today is expected to postpone any improvement of the situation at Windsor.

Revenue Is Down On Income Tax

OTTAWA, Jan. 9—(CP).—A decrease of $70,734,156 was reported today by Revenue Minister Gibson in income tax and customs and excise collections of $123,787,370 during December, compared with collections of $194,521,528 during December, 1943.

Income tax collections totalled $12,547,263, but customs refunds and drawbacks amounted to $13,701,401, leaving a debit of $1,154,138. Large drawback payments under Order-in-Council were made to the Munitions Department against war materials purchased.

Net customs duties in December totalled $12,175,331 which, with the $1,154,136, left a decrease of $13,329,469.

Net excise tax collections were $7,465,123, a decline of $43,291,460, while excise duties collected were $13,855,267, up $830,521. Sundry collections of $49,163 were off $4,396.

Income tax collections for the nine months of the current fiscal year up to December 31 showed a decrease of $5,537,218 at $1,183,005,242, compared with $1,188,442,459 during the corresponding period of the previous fiscal year.

Customs-excise collections for the nine-month period totalled $649,460,547, down $39,288,743.

Professional Groups Clash With Unions

OTTAWA, Jan. 9 — (CP). — Professional organizations and labor unions clashed before the National Labor Relations Board today on the question of whether engineers and other professional workers should be covered by the labor code.

Representatives of a group of 14 professional associations asked that they be excluded from the labor code, but covered under separate legislation which would provide appropriate machinery for collective bargaining.

Representatives of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and the Canadian Congress of Labor appeared to argue there should be no special legislation and that professional workers should have the same rights of collective bargaining under the labor code as all other workers.

Allies In Burma Nearing Mandalay

KANDY, Ceylon, Jan. 9 (CP) — Indian troops of the British 14th Army have entered Shwebo, 46 miles north of the big Upper Burma city of Mandalay, a Southeast Asia Command communique announced today.

Enemy positions at Kin-u, 15 miles northwest of Shwebo on the Myitkyina-Mandalay railway, were also captured, the bulletin added.

It was reported that two vital roads connecting China and Burma might be opened soon as the result of a race between two road-building teams.

One will run from Ledo across Burma through Namhkam.

The other road, which has become known as "Chiang's Lane," is being built from Tengchung, in Western China, toward Myitkyina.

400 Coming Home From Italy

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC, Jan. 9—(CP Cable)—Four hundred men—twice the previous number—will comprise the next batch of Canadian troops to go on home leave from the Italion theatre, following the original detachment which went before Christmas.

These men, who qualify by virtue of five years service, will depart soon, according to a statement yesterday from corps headquarters.

Just as the number has been raised, the basis of selection also has been changed from the pre-Christmas plan. This was on a system of points for service. Now, on the basis of one point for each month's continuous service overseas not in a theatre of operations and two points for each month's continuous service in a theatre of operations, the men must obtain a minimum of 80 to qualify for consideration.

However, time spent undergoing field punishment, detention or sentence for more serious offences will not count toward determining length of service. This restriction also held force in consideration of qualifications for the first detachment.

There will be no more extra points for men in field formations—a move to avoid placing wounded at a disadvantage and to give a fairer chance to long servicemen posted to base units in Italy. Nor will extra points be given for decorations.

There are 2,866 men with more than 80 points. Top priority goes to 37, leaving 363 vacancies for the remainder.

Names of all eligible men are being sent to their units, together with instructions to their commanders regarding the proportion that can be sent. The units themselves have final decision as to their eligibles.

The number of officers to go on home leave will be based strictly on the percentage of officers to men in the Italian theatre.

Americans Bewilder Japs In Pacific

Movement Of Surface Ships And Many Air Raids Have Enemy Guessing

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

One would expect to find considerable fire where there's so much smoke as the Japanese are reporting in their feverish predictions that American forces are about to invade Luzon, main island of the Philippine Archipelago.

Certainly the terrific lacing which American bombers have been giving objectives on Luzon, especially the airfields, the past few days is the invasion type of assault. Those airfields would have to be neutralized before amphibious operations could be undertaken. Then there has been the heavy aerial bombardment of the great Japanese stronghold of Formosa, which was continued today. This island is the main enemy supply base for the Philippines.

Obviously the MacArthur-Nimitz team is up to some fresh sleight-of-hand, which presumably was the subject of the conference, that we now are told they held a fortnight ago. The trouble with trying to guess just what they're doing is that these two old-timers get the attention of their spectators centred in one spot — as they now are doing with the Japs—and then extract the rabbit from a wholly unexpected place. That has happened in most of their operations—the latest being the surprise invasion of Mindoro Island at the southern end of Luzon, when the enemy was expecting invasion farther south.

Expect Trickery

The Japanese, of course, are expecting trickery and while they claim to expect invasion through Lingayen Gulf, north of Manila, they realize that the blow might come elsewhere. Gen. Homma, who attacked through Lingayen when he captured the Philippines, says that while a landing must be made there, it's probable that the Americans will also land at other points—which seems likely. They might, for instance, invade Luzon to the south of Manila, near Mindoro Island.

If we assume that American forces are indeed about to undertake a further invasion—and don't forget that Luzon isn't the only possible prime objective, by a long shot—then it will come with almost unbelievable speed after their successful conquest of Leyte, the establishment of a powerful air base on Mindoro, and the capture of the small neighboring island of Marinduque. This is in keeping with President Roosevelt's statement in his message to Congress:

"In the Pacific during the last year, we have conducted the fastest moving offensive in the history of modern warfare. We have driven the enemy back more than 3,000 miles across the Central Pacific."

The Americans are moving so fast they may have forestalled the counter-offensive which apparently was being prepared against Mindoro by General Yamashita, Japanese commander of the Philippines.

Flier Faces Court Martial

Fought With Republicans In Spain

MONTREAL, Jan. 9—(CP)—A court martial will open here Jan. 15 to judge Sqdn. Ldr. Harold (Whitey) Dahl, R.C.A.F., on undisclosed charges arising out of investigations in Canada, the United States and Brazil, it was learned today.

Sqdn. Ldr. Dahl, who came to Canada in June, 1940, from Urbana, Ill., to join the R.C.A.F., previously fought with the Republicans in the Spanish Civil War. Captured by the Spanish Fascists in 1937, he was saved from a firing squad when Edith Rogers, a vaudeville player, posed as his wife and sent her photograph to Gen. Francisco Franco. He was finally released from his Spanish jail in February, 1940.

The hoax played by Miss Rogers and Dahl on Franco was disclosed when, on July 26, 1941, he married Eleanor Bone of Belleville, Ont.

Prior to his fighting with the Spanish Republican Air Force, Dahl had been in the United States Army Air Force from 1931 to 1936. He also did some flying in Mexico.

Bracken Lauds Roosevelt

Calls For Greater Effort By Civilians

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

BRUSSELS, Jan. 9—(CP Cable)— John Bracken, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, in a statement issued here last night commended President Roosevelt's reference in his message to Congress to the importance of National service "for the total mobilization of all our human resources."

Mr. Bracken, who has been visiting 1st Canadian Army troops in this area, said:

"It is a policy Canada should have adopted at the beginning of the war. Over three years ago such a policy was unanimously endorsed by the Manitoba legislature. It is the policy of the Canadian Legion and in almost exact terms it is the policy of the Progressive Conservative party of Canada.

"With the great success of our troops in their drive from Normandy it was perhaps natural for our people at home to assume that the war was won.

"From first-hand knowledge acquired right here in a theatre of war I desire to point out to the Canadian people that this war is not over for our boys over here.

"There lies ahead a great unfinished job which if it is brought to an early, victorious and lasting victory, must have even greater effort and support from the Canadian people back home."

Garfield Case Resents Rank Outsiders

SHALLOW LAKE, Ont., Jan. 9—(CP). — Garfield Case, Progressive Conservatie candidate in the February 5 Grey North Federal by-election, declared at a meeting here last night that he was squarely behind the party's resolution in Parliament that the Government "give effect immediately to a total war effort."

Opening the campaign in this Grey County town, Mr. Case declared that because one province had voted "no" in the plebiscite to release the Government from its pledge of no compulsion for overseas service, Canada had been held up to ridicule and shame.

Mr. Case is opposed in the by-election by Defence Minister McNaughton, Liberal, and Air Vice-Marshal Earl Godfrey, C.C.F. He said that both opponents were "rank outsiders" and declared the riding "is not for sale." The by-election, he said, "involves the future of the nation, in that it has to do with what is left of national unity and our ability as a nation to maintain an even keel."

The Progressive Conservative candidate declared that former Defence Minister J. L. Ralston accepted the interpretation of Prime Minister Mackenzie King that the Government would seek to introduce a proper all-conclusive manpower policy which would provide compulsory service by selective means for troops to serve in any theatre.

"However," said Mr. Case, "he stood by until a very gallant soldier and sportsman, Major Conn Smythe, who was seeking no future in the army, returned and informed the Canadian people of the desperate plight of our soldiers in Holland, France and Italy.

"It raised a storm of agitation and protest which resulted in Ralston going overseas to obtain first-hand information. He found conditions which confirmed the Smythe report, and cabled Mr. King on Oct. 13 the facts he had found. He returned a few days later to urge the cabinet to lift the ban, to remove restrictions and give effect to a proper reinforcement policy.

"In the meantime we had seen the prime minister, anticipating the Ralston demand, had contacted McNaughton. The two of them connived or contrived to take the minister's measure."

The government then put into effect "what Mr. Ralston referred to as a 'piece-meal, half-hearted policy,' and that is the very mess we find today."

Ottawa."

Company and union officials refused to comment on the emergency meeting.

Last spring the regional board gave the men a 4½ cents an hour increase. The union appealed to the national board against that decision demanding increases from 12½ to 29½ cents an hour. The national board rejected the appeal and also eliminated the 4½ cents increase authorized by the regional board. The union then ordered the strike which began today.

Meanwhile a bus transportation dispute has left Vancouver Island residents without bus service for four days.

The Army, Air Force and the Vancouver Police Department all had made special arrangements for providing transportation for members of their own organization.

With extra gasoline available for essential industries, it was believed that most war plants would have most of their employees on the job this morning even if some were later than usual.

Picket lines were established at all car barns in the cities. Union organizers completed plans several days ago for putting the strike into effect all street railwaymen had been notified by Union officals to appear at car barns at their usual times this morning even though they wouldn't be working.

Only trams running were special mail cars on Interurban lines and these did not carry passengers. It was just about impossible to get a taxi except for an emergency.

Although no official statement was made, it was believed that taxi drivers decided to support the street railwaymen to the extent of not carrying persons merely going to work.

Potential Enemies

TORONTO, Jan. 9 (CP)—B. K. Sandwell of Toronto's weekly, Saturday Night, told the Young Men's Canadian Club last night that after Germany and Japan are beaten Canada's next enemy "is any and all persons, corporations or authorities which place any obstructions in the way of the fullest possible employment in an attempt to gain their own ends."

To Arrest 150

The Athens press announced that warrants had been issued for the arrest of 150 alleged "leaders of the rebellion" and that three high-ranking police officers already were in custody.

A foreign office commentator in London declared the report that the government of Gen. Nicholas Plastiras had issued warrants for the arrest of E.L.A.S. leaders was "absolutely without foundation."

The report has "been planted" either by "someone of the extreme left or the extreme right in an attempt to discredit the Greek government," he declared.

London dispatches said there were increasing indications that the E.L.A.S., who held out against the Germans for nearly four years, might take to the mountains and fight on.

The Times of London said the Greek political situation "would seem to have grown worse."

Clipper Crashes Loss Is Heavy

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 9 —(AP)—The crash of an Africa-bound Pan American Clipper at Port of Spain, Trinidad, last night killed at least eighth persons and 14 others are missing. There were only seven known survivors among the 29 persons aboard the Wyapto Flying Boat, once known as the China Clipper.

The Clipper carried 17 passengers and a double crew of 12. Five passengers were among the reported dead. None of those aboard were Canadians.

The boat crashed while alighting in the dark and the circumstances indicated there was little hope the missing persons would be found safe. Many divers are at work trying to raise the craft.

The Clipper was coming into Port of Spain about 9:15 p.m. when it crashed. It had left Miami at 6 a.m. yesterday en route to Leopoldville, Belgian Congo, and alighted at San Juan, Puerto Rico, yesterday afternoon.

The China Clipper first went into service on Pacific routes in 1935. At the time it was one of the largest used by any airline. Last September it inaugurated the Miami-to-Leopoldville service.

on Luzon, shutting off Japanese air reinforcements which might replace those destroyed in a two-day round-the-clock bombardment of Luzon by U.S. sea-borne and land-based planes.

A Pacific Fleet communique told of the new blow at Formosa, supply point for enemy armed forces in the Philippines, and major air fields in the Ryukyus, which link Formosa with Japan proper. Carrier pilots swept over Okinawa, Ishigaki and Miyako Jima in the Ryukyus. Okinawa was raided in last week's two-day Formosa attack which heralded intensified activity in the Philippines.

Details were not available, indicating the attack was continuing.

Superforts from China also hit Formosa while B29s from Saipan bombed Tokyo. A Japanese imperial communique said 60 Superforts came over the imperial capital in waves in mid-afternoon.

A new flood of Tokyo broadcasts did not repeat previous stories of United States landing attempts in the Philippines, but told of American convoys of more than 210 transports and 20 carriers, plus uncounted warships en route from the Marianas and New Guinea.

Japanese propaganda broadcasts reported that a U.S. invasion force "estimated to be approximately one division strong" had been dealt a "staggering blow" in "attempting to land" at Lingayen Gulf, invasion gateway to Manila."

The assault troops, Tokyo added, "are still unable to secure even a foothold there."

Await Major Blow

Nevertheless Japanese propagandists were obviously worried as to where Gen. MacArthur's major blow might fall in Luzon.

Domei News Agency said MacArthur was employing only "some 70 or 80 landing barges" and one division at Lingayen Gulf in contrast to the four divisions he used in the less difficult invasion of Leyte Island Oct. 20.

In 48 hours of unchecked operations over Luzon, Navy and Marine planes from Vice Admiral McCain's carrier force, and Army Philippines-based bombers and fighters blasted airfields on either side of Manila, destroyed at least 140 planes, sent Nipponese shipping fleeing into the China Sea, raised havoc with Japanese communications and established a blockade against potential air reinforcements from Formosa.

On the same two days—Saturday and Sunday — MacArthur's airmen destroyed 74 planes, mostly caught on the ground.

Admiral Nimitz disclosed that he conferred in the Philippines two weeks ago with MacArthur. The two previous meetings of these ranking commanders were followed by the invasion of Hollandia, New Guinea, and MacArthur's blow toward the Philippines.

A recapitulation of American communiques showed that in December, for the fourth successive month, Nippon lost 1,000 planes.

R.A.F. Increases Bomb Totals Reduces Losses

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (CP) — The RAF Bomber Command battered the Germans during 1944 with more than 525,000 tons of bombs—more than twice the weight dropped in the first 4½ years of the war from September, 1939, to December, 1943, the RAF adviser to the British Information Services reported tonight. The Canadian Bomber Group operates with Bomber Command.

Of this total, 35 per cent was dropped on industrial towns in Germany, 18 per cent on enemy transportation, 16 per cent in direct support of Allied armies. 11 per cent on V-weapon sites and supply depots, seven per cent on the oil industry, three per cent on oil storage depots, four per cent on the German aircraft industry, three per cent on ports and shipping and three per cent on miscellaneous industrial targets.

Mines Not Included

Mines laid in enemy waters are not included in these tonnages. Minelaying operations in 1944 were on a far greater scale than in any previous year.

Bomber Command dispatched seven per cent more aircraft on operational flights than in all previous war years together, and 2½ times the number of aircraft despatched in 1943. It dropped 3 1-3 times the weight of bombs dropped in 1943.

The casualty rate, however, was well under half that of 1943.

The Command operated 310 nights of the year, including 290 on bombing operations, and was engaged on bombing operations 167 days.

The greatest weight of bombs dropped in one night was just under 5,500. The greatest weight dropped in 24 hours was 10,300.

During the year the number of towns which received 10,000 tons was brought up to 13, of which the majority received considerably more. They were: Berlin, Essen, Cologne, Dusseldorf, Stuttgart, Duisberg, Hamburg, Frankfurt, Gelsenkirchen, Dortmund, Mannheim, Kiel and Hanover.

The total area devastated in German industrial towns is now at least 36,000 acres.

Bomber Command aircraft destroyed 536 aircraft for certain in 1943 and a much greater number probably did not reach base.

The Canadian Bomber Group dropped more than 85,500 tons of bombs on enemy targets during 1944, said a previous London despatch. The group flew more than 25,000 sorties during 1944 and group personnel flew approximately 156,000 operational hours. The ratio of operational losses for the group fell from just under five per cent during 1943 to 1½ per cent in 1944.

Market Posts Minor Gains

TORONTO, Jan. 9—(CP). — The market posted minor index gains by noon today but the afternoon trading brought a general tone of weakness. Turnover totalled 481,000 shares for the first three hours.

The papers, steels, building and senior oil stocks ruled higher. The Winnipeg electric issues gained on good volume. The common firmed ⅝ and the preferred was up 2 points. The 7 per cent. Abitibi Pfd. gained 6 points to 158, and the 6 per cent. issue was up a fraction. The Brown issues, Minnesota and Ontario, Consolidated and Great Lakes were all stronger papers.

A gain of 25 cents to $4 for Wright-Hargreaves was conspicuous in the gold list. Other stronger issues were Frobisher, Hollinger, Conlaurum, Leitch, the Powell Rouyn issues, Beattie and Wasa Lake.

Ventures again advanced, adding 7-8. Royalite gained a point and Anglo-Canadian 2 cents.

In the meantime supplementary supplies from the Union Gas Company are helping to meet the situation.

Hamilton, which is suffering a shortage of manufactured gas, reported to-day that hundreds of workers were idle following shut-downs by some industrial plants. The Canadian Westinghouse Company's domestic lamp factory is one of those closed and 300 employees are idle. The Hamilton shortage is attributed to heavier domestic use for heating purposes due to cold weather and heavier use by industry in heat-treating processes and annealing furnaces. An effort is being made to obtain more propene for gas manufacture which would relieve the shortage.

Sudbury Man Dies For Murder

SUDBURY, Jan. 9. — (CP).— Alpha Proulx, 26, was hanged at 12.35 a.m. to-day and pronounced dead 11 minutes later for the brick-yard slaying last April 24 of 64-year-old Joseph Dennie.

Proulx was arrested last April 27, a few minutes after Dennie, a railway cook from nearby Capreol, died in hospital from injuries received when beaten over the head with a brick and robbed of $100 and a gold watch three days earlier. Proulx was convicted of murder Oct. 23, after a six-day trial.

Father of five children, Proulx to-day walked unaided to the gallows after receiving communion and celebrating mass. Jail officials said that during his last days in the death cell his spiritual adviser made daily visits to the jail. Through an order-in-council the body was released for burial at Hanmer and a brief service was held in the Roman Catholic church here with Rev. Father S. Charpentier officiating.

He was buried in St. James' cemetery.

withdrawal from the tip, however, and (Field Marshal) Von Rundstedt may only be pulling back to better prepared positions."

Gen. Eisenthower's communique named five towns captured in the shrinking bulge—Regne, Sart, Verleumont, and Marcourt on the north and much-swapped Bonnerue on the south. Field dispatches listed others.

It was evident that the Germans were at least thinning out their salient at the western tip of the bulge, even though there was no sign of a general retreat. There was evidence that the Germans were preparing a stand near St. Vith, four miles from the German border. That Belgian road centre of 2,459 was in artillery range from Wanne, 10 miles north-westward.

Tanks Slowed.

The nearest approach to Laroche came in a drive south of Marcourt, where savage resistance was encountered. Numerous enemy pockets remained to be cleared in and around the town. Laroche is protected by the steep-banked Ourthe River.

Farther east, the American vanguards by-passing Vielsalm advanced slightly to the west of Salmachateau.

Through the storm yesterday, infantrymen frequently took over where the tank treads froze or slipped in hard-earned gains.

The 82nd Airborne Division drove down the west bank of the Salm River to just opposite Vielsalm in a fighting comeback over country it held against the first onrush of Von Rundstedt's December offensive.

The 82nd had been ordered back by Montgomery early in the counter-offensive to maintain the line from which the present counter-drive was sprung. Officers and men of that division, which had never before known retreat, said the withdrawal order was the hardest they had ever carried out.

Take Dochamps.

Capture of the villages of Sart and Verleumont extended the American hold on the Laroche-St. Vith road as far east as Regne, two miles south of Lierneux.

Dochamps fell to the U.S. 1st Army attacking through the Tave Forest.

On the southern flank, elements of the 12th Army group dropped back a mile on a three-mile front west of Bastmone under pressure of two German counter-attacks involving 23 tanks and assault guns. The disputed ground had been won by the U.S. 3rd Army the day before.

The 3rd, however, finally cleared Bonnerue, six miles east of St. Hubert, which changed hands twice yesterday. The Nazis infiltrated back into the village of Tillet and were fighting to hold it.

The Germans tried also to get into Millomont between Tillet and Bastogne by similar tactics and, failing, lashed out with an attack led by tanks. Up to dusk last night 12 of the 23 tanks had been destroyed and the battle continued.

A field dispatch said the Canadian engagement on the Maas wiped out a German threat to split the British army from the Canadian army. The latter has been holding the northern part of the front extending along the Maas river eastwards from the North Sea and including the Nijmegen salient north of the Maas. The British front extends southward along the Maas from a point north of Venlo.

Ministers Want To Welcome Returned Men

The January meeting of the Peterborough Ministerial Association was held Monday at the YMCA. The following were present: Rev. W. A. Filer (chairman), Dr. E. W. Young, Revs. J. P. Everson, Fred Craik, R. L. Casement, H. J. Mahoney, E. W. Rowland, E. J. Whan, Clayton Kidd, J. H. Sutcliffe, and J. L. Hodgson.

Rev. C. Kidd conducted a brief devotional period, and K. J. Currie, representing the Rotary Club, invited the Ministerial Association to be the guests of the Rotary Club at their next luncheon, when the guest speaker will be Brigadier the Rev. Canon C. G. Hepburn, M.C., principal Protestant chaplain for the Canadian Army.

The Ministerial Association offered their services to the Citizens' Committee in the matter of welcoming home the men and women of the armed services and British war brides. It was felt that in the past the citizens had neglected their duty and that a more demonstrative welcome should be arranged for returning men.

Rev. H. J. Mahoney, minister of Knox United Church, chose as his subject "The Art of Personal Counselling in War Time." He suggested that each minister spend an hour with each recruit from his church. A man is very receptive to guidance just before going into military life, he said. It is helpful for the recruit to learn that life is no different with its intelligence tests, impersonal problems, loss of privacy, subject to strict discipline, loneliness, anguish, resentments, impoverished spiritual resources. Rev. Mr. Mahoney suggested that ministers write out spiritual prescriptions, for example to a pilot—Psalm 139: "If I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall thy hand lead me and thy right hand shall hold me."

"Recruits should be warned of temptations and challenged to the ideal of continence. The greatest enemy of a soldier is boredom and so efforts should be made to seek companions with a wholesome outlook on life," he declared.

Watch Confidences

In the art of personal counselling it is imperative that the counsellor be steeped in sound Christian philosophy. He should be devoid of any neurotic traits and never use his parishioners for his own ends. He must keep inviolate all cases thus envoking the confidence of his patients. The counsellor should not degenerate to giving his own opinion but must make himself increasingly unnecessary and treat each person as an individual needing sympathy and help.

Regarding returned service men, the speaker asserted that it was the responsibility of the church to reach and minister to the men and women who are being demobilized. Nineteen hundred and eighteen caught the churches of Canada unprepared to meet this challenge. It must not happen again. What can the churches do in this matter?

The speaker said the church should study and know what is planned by the Federal and Provincial governments; the church should study and understand what the war has done to young lives. Some will have become hardened—perhaps cynical—others will have their religious experiences deepened. The church should know that there will be special problem cases requiring christian influence and friendship. Many of those demobilized from the war services will be suffering from psychiatric and emotional disturbance. The minister can help in difficulties of personal religious experiences, marriage and domestic problems, decisions on vocation. The church can give invaluable help in welcoming British war brides now numbering more than 20,000 and the church can organize committees composed of old veterans of the last war who will plan for an appropriate welcome and reception and who will invite the returned men to participate in the life and work of the congregation.

Germans Make Stand At River

ROME, Jan. 9.— (AP).— After withdrawing five miles from fallen Sant' Alberta within the last two days, German troops retreating before Canadian units of the British 8th Army have made a stand along the southern bank of the Reno river east of Lake Comacchio, Allied Headquarters announced to-day.

It was the first time in four days that Field Marshal Kesselring's troops had shown any inclination to fight in that sector.

Bitter winter weather and deep snowdrifts limited operations from coast to coast. In some areas south of Bologna the snow fell to a depth of more than 12 inches. White-clad reconnaissance parties were active on skis and snowshoes.

Last night Canadian and British units of Lt.-Gen. McCreery's army had been reported fanning out along the banks of Lake Comacchio —a sort of inland lagoon—to both east and west, and to have advanced up the Adriatic coast as far as Casal Boretti, 9½ miles north of Ravenna.

The Reno river runs to the south of the lake. Lt.-Gen. Foulkes' men had reached it at several points last night, as they continued a drive which in the previous four days had cleared 50 square miles of the approaches to the mouth of the Po river of Germans, and had taken 800 prisoners.

The Germans also poured a heavy artillery barrage into Sant' Alberto yesterday, while holding the Reno River bridgehead, apparently aimed at keeping open to Venice a back door formed by the spit of land separating Lake Comacchio and the Adriatic.

Patrols were active farther south along the entire length of the Senio River front. Enemy troops hold deep-dug positions along the west slope.

Patrolling increased sharply on the 5th Army's right sector south-east of Bologna, and there was limited action in the centre. One Allied group met heavy opposition near Barchetta, east of Route 65.

Wm. H. Stewart Is Laid To Rest

KEENE, Jan. 9—A large number of friends and relatives attended the funeral of William Howard Stewart, Sunday afternoon, to pay their last respects to a man beloved by many for his kindness and interest in the welfare of others, manifested throughout his life.

The funeral was held from the family residence, Lot 9, Concession 8, Otonabee, and burial was in Keene Cemetery. Rev. George Murray was in charge of the service.

Mr. Stewart passed away Friday morning in his 52nd year, after an illness of only two weeks. For several years, Mr. Stewart did much work in looking after the late Peter Robinson, who although handicapped by blindness, worked a neighbouring farm. He saw that Mr. Robinson's supplies and provisions were always in, and helped provide the medical services Mr. Robinson required after taking ill. Mr. Stewart continued this worthy work up until the time of Mr. Robinson's death, in 1939.

A very successful farmer, Mr. Stewart was born in Otonabee, the son of the late Alexander Stewart and Mary Keitel. He married Mary Mather in 1918, and shortly after, the couple went to live on the farm formerly owned by Benjamin Kindred, about a mile down the line.

During his lifetime, Mr. Stewart was a fathful member of the Official Board of the United Church, at Keene, and took an enthusiastic interest in all phases of church work.

He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife, two sons, Roy, at home, who will now manage the farm, and Raymond, RCNVR, who is serving aboard HMCS Kenogami; and one brother, Harry of Otonabee.

The pall-bearers were Gordon Taylor, Angus Adamson, Harold Wilson, Harry Short, Richard Short and David Kempt, all of Otonabee.

The large number of floral tributes testified to the high esteem in which Mr. Stewart was held during his lifetime.

Among those who attended the funeral were George M. Mather of Woodstock, a brother-in-law, John F. Mather, of North Tonawanda, N.Y., a brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Howson, of Peterborough, a cousin, Harry Howson, of Bailieboro, also a cousin, Clifford Curtis of Peterborough, T. Dalton Johnston and many others.

Once the Germans were astride the main Liege-Aachen highway, the 1st Army's main supply route would have been severed, and great stores of fuel and American equipment would have fallen into the enemy's hands.

A hook to the north would have placed the Germans in the rear of the 1st Army divisions fighting in the Duren area. In all likelihood Hitler would have had Aachen as a Christmas present.

From this position Von Rundstedt could have rolled up the 1st Army from the rear and hit the 9th Army on its exposed southern flank.

The German offensive has cost the Allies heavily in lives and material—and has disrupted the winter campaign—but it failed to achieve Von Rundstedt's aims of destroying the Allied armies. Now his own divisions are threatened with destruction.

Big Contingent Arrives From Britain

By The Canadian Press

OTTAWA, Jan. 8.—(CP).—Some of them returning for the first time in five years, a large contingent of Canadian servicemen and women has arrived in Canada from the overseas fighting fronts.

The big movement—domintaed by army men—also included nursing sisters and a handful of C.W.A.C. personnel, airmen and sailors, Canadian fire-fighters and a large group of British "war brides" of Canadian servicemen.

With the news from the western front taking a serious tone as they landed, many of the soldiers who fought in France displayed a sharp eagerness to get back into the fray.

More than 500 members of the army made the crossing. Included in the group were personnel coming back under medical care, some to await discharge. Others were back on leave or for assignment to new duties in this country.

A number of senior army officers, returned from tours of duty in Britain or across the channel, arrived. Among them were Col. G. R. Chetwynd, R.C.E., M.C., of National Defence Headquarters in Ottawa; Lt.-Col. H. W. Pearson, Assistant Director of Prisoners of War at Ottawa and Lt.-Col. M. Isbester, Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster-General of Military District No. 3, Kingston, Ont.

Lt.-Col. A. M. Clark of Montreal, till recently company commander in the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, was at 1st Canadian Army Headquarters on Dec. 6. He served in France, Belgium and Holland and returned to take up the post of chief instructor at Vimy Barracks, the Signals Training Centre near Kingston.

Col Pearson went overseas to make a study of conditions concerning the internment of prisoners of war.

Lieut. Dan Davis, whose wife lives in Niagara Falls, Ont., was in hospital in France after being wounded by a Nazi 88 gun in the Falaise drive. He said the Canadians got a rousing welcome in their march through Belgium and Netherlands towns.

Among the nursing sisters was Matron Edith Rainsford Dick of Milton, Ont., who is returning to civil employment. Others included Lieut. Jean Anderson Chisholm of Almonte, Ont.

Back for duty in the Dominion were more than 60 members of the Canadian firefighters unit in Britain.

Among the returning army officers were Lt.-Col. J. H. Knill, Hamilton and Majors H. S. Hadwin, London, Ont., and E. C. A. Campbell, St. Catharines, Ont.

Other officers among the arrivals included Capt. R. B. Forbes, Brantford, Ont., and M. A. Mackenzie, Hamilton; and Lieuts. H. M. Ellis, C.W.A.C., London, Ont.; G. D. Jodoin, Cornwall, Ont.; and F. T. Marlay, Kingston, Ont.

and rehabilitation of the liberated areas."

About one-sixth of the war appropriation is for lend-lease and for relief and rehabilitation. Lend-lease would be ended only when the war was ended, but relief and rehabilitation costs wuild continue indefinitely.

Veterans' pensions and benefits would take about $2,623,000,000 of the non-war appropriation in the next fiscal year, more than double the estimate for the current fiscal year.

A Break-down.

Here is the way Mr. Roosevelt broke down the budget, with comparisons with estimates for the current year and with the last full year for which exact figures are available—the 12 months ended on June 30, 1944:

| | 1946 | 1945 | 1944 |
|---|---|---|---|
| | In Billions of Dollars | | |
| War ........ | 70,000 | 89,000 | 89,720 |
| Int. on debt. | 4,500 | 3,750 | 2,609 |
| Refunds ..... | 2,725 | 2,173 | 267 |
| Veterans' aid. | 2,612 | 1,624 | 725 |
| Other Act'ties | 3,266 | 3,502 | 1,952 |
| Total ..... | 83,103 | 99,686 | 95,273 |

Against this outlay—third highest in United States history—Mr. Roosevelt forecast receipts of $41,255,000,000, a drop of $4,475,000,000 from the treasury's current take and a decline of $2,894,000,000 from fiscal 1944.

The precipitate drop in income was ascribed in large part to the $17,000,000,000 cut in federal spending, which, the President said, "before full reconversion to civil production will mean smaller individual incomes and corporate profits." This, in turn, will bring a decrease in tax receipts.

Mr. Roosevelt for the first time formally asked Cogress to approve the international monetary agreement reached at Bretton Woods, N.H., last summer. That agreement calls for the creation of a multi-billion dollar monetary fund and a world bank for reconstruction and development. The President also suggested that lending power of the export-import bank be increased and that legislation forbidding loans to government in default on previous borrowing from the United States be repealed.

"We have learned," he said, "that just as the United States cannot afford to be isolationist in its political philosophy, neither can it stand the malignant effects of economic isolationism."

Civic Hospital's Building Members Named

Appointment of building committees for the Civic Hospital and the Memorial Centre was completed by the council last night.

The members of the Hospital committee are those who advanced the project through the successful issue of the financing bylaw at the December elections supplemented by several others whose names were added by Alderman Sands' motion last night. They are Aldermen Sands, Glover, Swanston, Ovens, Dutton, Dr. H. M. Yelland, Dr. J. S. Cameron and Dr. J. Malcolm McCulloch, Mayor Hamilton, E. B. Fowler, W. R. Turner, John H. Hornal, Charles Lacheur, G. Wilson Craw, Mrs. Vernon Morphet, a representative of the County Council, a representative of the Allied Trades Council. The three new members appointed were Dr. Robert J. Young, Walter Wright, and a representative of the Local Council of Women.

Alderman Sands recommended the inclusion of Dr. Young and Mr. Wright. He suggested that the new Monaghan section of the city was without any representation on the Civic Hospital building committee, and recalled that Mr. Wright had displayed sufficient interest in the affairs of the enlarged city area to offer himself as a candidate for Council.

Alderman Bradburn pointed out that only one woman was a member of the committee, and proposed that Peterborough's womanhood should have further representation.

The Sands motion also provided for an alowance of $1,000 to be placed at the disposal of the committee.

Memorial Centre

The council's three representatives on the building committee of the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre, as nominated by Alderman Dutton, seconded by Alderman Sands, are Alderman Bradburn, [illegible] and Swanston.

The [illegible] committee of the Memorial Centre recently named their four representatives: George A. Macdonald, Frank Buckland, Clarence B. Neal and Thomas C. Ephgrave.

These are the seven members of the building committee who have now been assigned to proceed with the project as soon as the conditions relating to primary financing have been fulfilled. This committee of seven retains office until the first unit, the public arena for various community purposes has been erected.

To Public Library

The appointment of Rev. C. E. Moore, rector of St. George's Church, Braidwood avenue, to the board of the Public Library for a term of three years, was another recognition of the unexpressed claims of the new Monaghan citizens. Rev. Mr. Moore takes the place of the late Dr. H. R. H. Kenner.

He was nominated by Aldermen Dutton and Cotton in the bylaw introduced by Alderman Bradburn.

Alderman Glover was re-appointed to the committee in charge of the distribution of the charitable funds of the estate of the late Almira Grover Foley.

Board of Health

Alderman Hurrell Dodds was substituted for J. E. Sullivan, former Alderman and Board member, with Alderman Dutton and D. V. Canning as the council's appointees to the Board of Health.

Rotarians Hear Major E. Drope

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 9.—(ENS).—The Rotary Club at Woodlawn were hosts to the Mayor and Council of the town of Campbellford at their first meeting of the New Year and welcomed as a new member Mayor Long. On behalf of the council Mr. Long thanked the Rotary and as a member stated that he would carry on the best traditions of the club.

President Bert Taylor congratulated the members on the attendance which averaged 85 p.c. during 1944, and Monday was nearly 100 p.c. He called on Harold Carr, former M.P.P., to introduce the speaker. In doing so, Mr. Carr noted that they were both engaged in the creamery business, that the speaker was the Conservative candidate for the federal riding of Northumberland county and that he had spent four New Years' overseas in the last war.

Major Earl Drope said it had been a privilege to have been of service in the war, and confined his remarks to impressions made by improving the appearances of the farms, the villages and the towns. He noted that Campbellford had "welcome" signs on each road leading into the town, and in these days when this winter was making up for the mild winters of the past, when autos were stuck in the snow and travelling was hazardous, the welcome signs were a good thing, Major Drope declared.

He advocated tidiness in all surroundings, nice lawns, painted fences and buildings, also a place for everything, and everything in its place. Schools particularly should have orderly surroundings so that the children would learn the lesson of neatness and order, the

Had No Illusions At Conference About Early End Of The War

A breezy recital of his impressions of the two great conferences held at Quebec last year and in 1942 when Churchill and Roosevelt met at the Quebec capital was given at Monday's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club by A. A. Gardiner, general manager of the passenger traffic department of the C.N.R.

By reason of his position Mr. Gardiner had been brought closely into contact with most of the leading personages at the conferences and his reminiscences of the two gatherings were full of interest.

Of the conferences themselves, the speaker said that they were bound to result in a greater understanding of Canada on the part of those who attended and a deeper sympathy for this country and its problems. The delegates had seen Canada at its best, Mr. Gardiner stated and no place could have been selected where those attending could meet under more comfortable circumstances or with finer scenery to look at. Even the weather had done its best for there was no rain during either conference.

Speaking extemperaneoeusly, Mr. Gardiner told the gathering of the extraordinary railway arrangements which such conferences necessitated, of the essential secrecy surrounding the movements, and of the safety precautions to be observed in the operation of the trains. "On these movements," said Mr. Gardiner, "not more than ten men in the Canadian National knew of the identity of the central figures." Publicly, of course, there was a wide field of speculation, ranging from Their Majesties to a visit by the Pope.

Mr. Gardiner touched humorousberthing, to arrange assignment of ly on his trip to ship's side, before railway space and other transportation details; of his contacts with the picked Royal Marines and with high-ranking naval, military and air force officers. He recalled that on the first night in Quebec some of the English personnel walked the terrace all night just of the pleasure of "seeing the lights"; officers were known to walk long distances from the hotel, just for the pleasure of "a taxi ride back."

Had No Illusions.

"Those associated with the conferences with whom I talked," said Mr. Gardiner, "had no illusions about an early end of hostilities in Europe. Events have proved the realism of their views."

"The conference brought great honor to Canada," said Mr. Gardiner in his closing remarks. "The impressions of Canada gained on those occasions, of its people, of its countryside and of its industry, will be translated, in peace, in terms of greater understanding, greater sympathy, and their coming back to see us time and again."

C.N.R. officers visiting Peterborough with Mr. Gardiner included A. M. Kirk, passenger traffic manager, Gordon Smith, division freight agent, and C. W. Wells, general freight agent, all of Toronto.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Clare G. Collins and a vote of thanks was proposed by Rotarian Gordon Monkman.

The meeting voted a grant of $100 to help finance a hockey team to be sponsored by Rotarians in the league organized by the Peterborough Hockey Club.

A report from the fellowship committee was given by Rotarian Hugh Waddell who brought forward changes suggested by the committee for adoption by the club.

Among the guests were Major Archie Hamilton and FO. Jack Thompson, both back from overseas. They were warmly welcomed by President Gordon S. Matthews.

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 9—(CP)—An unidentified person who said he "pilfered" some money years ago from Dave Lippert, hardware merchant, has sent Lippert $50. The letter enclosing the money was unsigned.

AGREE—OR QUIT—Immediate withdrawal of American troops from the European theatre of war by presidential proclamation unless the United Nations reach an agreement on war aims, was demanded in a resolution introduced to U.S. Congress by Rep. Alvin E. O'Konski (above), Republican, of Wisconsin. Rep. O'Konski's concern for the lack of Allied unity in war aims inspired his dramatic demand. The Wisconsin Congressman declared that "the recent agreement between Russia and Great Britain to sell Poland down the river is definite evidence that this is a futile and senseless war in the European theatre of operations."

Three New Men To Be Added To Police Force

The annexation of a large section of North Monaghan was reflected at the regular meeting of the board of police commissioners Monday when it was decided to advertise for three new police constables and the estimates of the police department for 1945 were set at $47,500, highest in the city's history.

The increase was largely due to the addition of three new officers and the cost of their uniforms and equipment.

Chief Constable John W. Thompson, in submitting his first estimates set the amount necessary to carry on this year at $47,298.70 but the commission decided to bring the appropriation up to the round figure of $47,500 by adding $201.30 to the miscellaneous item in the estimates.

The commission will recommend to the city council that the police department for 1945 consist of a chief constable, police matron and 21 other officers and constables.

The estimates adopted by the commission were as follows: Salaries $40,372.20, Police Commission $550, telegraph and telephone $350, clothing and equipment $2,500, upkeep of station $450, printing, stationery and postage $352, miscellaneous $401.30, upkeep of automobiles and motorcycle $1,672.19, automobile insurance $77.31, police training school courses $300, annual convention $100, upkeep of radio including technician's salary $375.

It was decided to advertise for three new police constables who are to be appointed on a temporary basis. The applications will be considered at the next meeting of the board.

The commission also decided to take no action on the recommendation of Chief Constable John Thompson that Constables Ernest Beatty, Reg. McMillan, Andrew Dalton and Allan Edmison who are on a temporary basis now should be appointed permanently. The decision was in line with similar action by the city council who in view of the fact that veterans of the present war may be looking for civic positions when the conflict is over have been making all appointments on a temporary basis.

Judge S. L. Smoke was elected chairman of the commission for the current year after an unsuccessful attempt to pass the honor on to Mayor Hamilton.

Liquor Offences Are One-third Of Prosecution

The Peterborough Police Department prosecuted 1,192 cases during the past year, Chief Constable John W. Thompson stated in his first annual report, presented to the Board of Police Commissioners at its regular meeting on Monday afternoon.

The figures given by the report showed that offences under the Liquor Control Act were responsible for 376 cases, by far the largest number in the list. Highway Traffic Act offences were next with 173, and an unusual item was 148 cases of breach of the Militia Act.

An appendix to the report showed that property to the value of $34,662.94 had been reported stolen during the year, and of this amount property to the value of $25,986.53 had been recovered.

Lost property reported to the Department totalled $6,707.49, and of this amount $4,325.53 was recovered and returned to the owners.

The report follows:

"I have the honor to present to you my first annual report which explains the workings of the Police Department for the year ending 31st December, 1944.

"The Police Department has prosecuted 1,192 cases during the year and collected $8,331.95 in fines and costs, which cases are classified on the attached sheet. I am pleased to report that murder is not included in the past year's crime report for the city, although I have to report one charge of attempted murder was laid, but was later reduced to assault causing actual bodily harm. Thirty-eight thousand four hundred and fifty-four telephone calls were answered and dealt with during the year, of which a large number of these calls were regular

TUESDAY, JANUARY 9, 1945

The Mayor's Inaugural Address

In his inaugural address to the new Council, Mayor Hamilton outlined the unusually heavy program of work which lies before that body in 1945. The inclusion of a large new section in the city brings problems to every committee of the Council, and if the war in Europe is successfully concluded before the end of the year a great deal of extra responsibility will fall upon the Council, which will not be lessened for three or four years. But all the departments of civic administration are in good condition, all committees have new chairmen (with two understandable exceptions), and the Council has the vigour and the experience to ensure an excellent year's work.

There are certain aspects of the Council's job, as outlined by the Mayor, in which we think that the public takes special interest. The first concerns the dirty condition of Little Lake; good advice on this problem was secured last year, and plans for acting on that advice are almost complete. Little Lake is one of the principal natural amenities of the city and it is a pity that it should be fouled because proper disposal of some of the city sewage is lacking. The Mayor has pledged the Council to early action in this matter and the public will be anxious to see results of it.

The Mayor also mentioned the matter of the new City Hall, in connection with which progress has been disappointingly slow, so far as the public is concerned. It may be that complete planning of the building is impossible, or inadvisable, before the end of the war, but there seems to be no reason why a site should not be chosen, and the style and nature of the building decided upon. Where will it be? What will it include? What will it look like? There seems to be no reason why these things should not be decided soon, for there has been plenty of time in which to think them over. The Mayor's excellent suggestion that the City Planning Commission be given expert advice would give impetus in this direction.

The Mayor brought up the old and painful question of communications. Peterborough simply has not been given the consideration by the railway companies which a city of its size and importance has a right to expect. The railway companies are always hard to deal with in these matters; they are polite, but uncooperative. It must be said that Peterborough, too, has not treated this matter as well as it might have done. To appeal to the railways when they seem about to shut off some of the scant service they give us is not enough; we must keep our case constantly before them, hoping that in the days to come, when they are more anxious to please, they will make some concessions. It has been plain for years that Peterborough is handicapped by bad communications, and that the handicap will be even more obvious in the keen business competition which will follow the war. There is a real job here for the Manufacturers' Committee.

"Ask a Policeman"

Disquieting news comes from England that the Home Office is considering a plan to take the members of the Metropolitan Police Force of London — the world-famous 'bobbies'—off their beats, and send them out to patrol in radio cars, in the American fashion. We sincerely hope that this will not happen, and we think that anyone who has had experience of the London police will agree with us. They are a very great force — intelligent, reassuring, helpful, efficient and unfailingly polite — and they are astonishingly numerous. It is very often said that 'if you want a policeman there is never one to be found'; that is not so in London. If there is a dying shriek up an alley, there is a bobby on the spot within two minutes; if an old lady wants to know what bus to take to get to Richmond, there is a bobby on the corner to tell her; if you don't know when to cross the street, the bobby will miraculously know that fact and wave to you when your turn comes; if you have been celebrating too lavishly, there is a bobby to put you in a taxi and send you home; if you faint with starvation, there is a bobby to send you to the hospital; if you want to harangue a crowd about the iniquities of the British government, there is a bobby to see that nobody punches you in the jaw; and if you are thinking of starting a riot, there is a bobby to change your mind; and if you resist arrest, there is a bobby who will teach you a few new tricks in judo. And who is a better friend when you have lost your way, or when you want to know the way, than the bobby with his fat little black street-guide? And who is more necessary to those hordes of children who take literally the injunction of the music-hall song—

If you want to know the time,
Ask a policeman!

Our tradition-loving contemporary, the Kingston Whig-Standard, plainly feels as deeply as we do in this matter. This is what it says:

"The fact that the Home Office is even considering such a move strikes us as some form or other of war nerves. Have they forgotten Boat Race Night? What chance will the undergraduates down from Oxford and Cambridge have of pinching a policeman's helmet if the bobby is ensconced in a low-slung, radio-equipped and fast-moving car?

"The idea is preposterous. If the Home Office must import something from Hollywood, let it start with the impossibly beautiful secretaries, and the luxurious police offices. Let it even subscribe to Hollywood's ideas about newspaper men and detectives. New Scotland Yard could bear up under the latter far better than London could bear the disappearance of the bobbies from the beats".

The planners, the changers, the tinkerers and the malcontents must have their fling at London, we suppose. Let them drive new arterial roads through old buildings; let them take the Wren churches out of the middle of the Strand if they must; let them do their best to make old London look like Port Sunlight. But if they will only leave the flower-girls around the statue of Eros in Piccadilly Circus, and the policemen on their beats, London will still be London.

Saluting The Mayor

We were interested to read that the new Mayor of Toronto, Mr. Robert H. Saunders, has asked that the policemen of that city should not salute him when he passes them; such a salute, he says, is "silly and unnecessary".

Perhaps this is a democratic move, in Mayor Saunders' estimation. Perhaps he wants to be known as plain Bob Saunders, a good fellow with no swank about him. Perhaps he is thinking too much about Robert H. Saunders and not enough about the Mayor of Toronto, a form of egotism to which super-democrats are peculiarly liable.

The mayor of a city is an important person, for he holds the highest office in the municipal government. He is, among other things, Chairman of the Police Commission, and thus a man who merits every respect, including the salute, from the force. This saluting business received some attention several months ago when it was suggested in the British House of Commons that servicemen should be excused from saluting their superiors when on leave. Mr. Churchill gave the logical answer: the soldier salutes the King's commission, and not the particular man who happens to be inside the uniform. As the King's commission is eminently worthy of respect, saluting continues. The Red Army, which abolished saluting for a time, restored it because they found that it was good for morale.

Surely these examples are applicable to the Toronto case. If it embarrasses the democratic Mayor to be saluted, let him comfort himself with the realization that it is not Robert H. Saunders, but the Mayor of Toronto who is honoured. The police are saluting the people's commission.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Chatham News suggests that pedestrians should be seen and not hurt.

If all the gloomy prophecies of the past week come true about all we can look forward to through 1945 is 1946.

Nurses at Toronto General Hospital refuse to punch a timeclock, because they are "professional people". This also means that they don't drop the saws and the squirtguns the minute the whistle blows.

Albert Wiener, writing on New Masses warns against Ex-Empress Zita and her son Otto, who is Pretender to the throne of Austria. But it may be pointed out that Austria has had nothing but ill-luck and confusion since she got rid of the Hapsburgs, and was conspicuously happy and prosperous under their rule.

Radio And Monopoly

By GRANT DEXTER

THE Economist has published in recent weeks a series of articles on radio broadcasting which are of considerable interest in this country. The Economist points out that radio is less than 25 years old and is still in the experimental stage. Yet, in the United Kingdom, it is tending to ossify, to become set and incapable of adaptation.

At the outset, The Economist poses the question: What is the mission of radio? Some say its function is to educate, to uplift. Others regard it as the all-powerful instrument of propaganda, much too potent to be allowed out of the direct control of the state. Still others desire only amusement from radio.

But whatever its mission may be, The Economist suggests that one thing is clear. Radio programs must be interesting or they are as nothing. Even dictators have been unable to compel people to listen to programs. Broadcasting is not like school teaching, where the pupils are under discipline and the subjects are laid down. Rather it resembles the theatre, which must attract an audience.

The secret of interest, said The Economist, is variety in programs. There must be a choice, and the wider the choice the better. Competition is the necessary and indispensable mechanism of variety. Hence monopoly in radio broadcasting is condemned as fundamentally wrong.

THE Economist develops the case against monopoly with great cogency. The power of a monoply in radio is self-evident:

"That this enormous power should be placed in the hands of a monopoly, however high-minded and public-spirited, is so obviously and disastrously dangerous that it could only have happened in a freedom-loving community, in the way that it has happened—that is, by inadvertence and in absence of mind...."

The only medium comparable to radio is printing, and a monopoly of printing is not only unthinkable but the slightest infringement of the freedom of printing arouses public disapproval:

"If the radio is to be the servant of a free society, and not its assassin, it must follow in the printers' footsteps and it must regard itself as a free medium and be prepared to put out to the world virtually everything that is offered to it —subject to laws against libel and indecency. Only so can radio avoid becoming a prison for the human spirit."

But apart from the over-all case against radio monopoly, The Economist discusses at length the failure of a state monopoly to produce satisfactory programs. Monoply, it says, has both strengths and weaknesses, but on the whole it is the weaknesses that are most conclusive. Monopoly is strong towards the wrong people and weak toward the wrong people. It can take an immensely strong line with its listeners. Its ban is final: it rules its listeners with a rod of iron. Listeners may grumble but they cannot affect policy. Their weakness is that they are delivered to the monopoly by law, bound hand and foot. They must support the monopoly with hard cash in their radio license fees whether or not the like it.

The monopoly, on the other hand, is weak towards "the interests," to those who desire to influence programs. It is an easy victim of pressure groups:

"From every axe-grinder it will receive advice and admonition, to all of which it must listen, for the penalty of inattention is parliamentary criticism. Political parties are pressure groups in this sense. The incapacity of a monopoly to resist the government, which owns it, is notorious. The monopolist broadcaster cannot concentrate on his proper business of pleasing the greatest number of people; he is compelled to do the direct opposite—to concentrate on offending the smallest number of people. He is forced to be timid and mediocre and dull. Since every bright colour is displeasing to some raucous interest, he can use only grey. Since heat and cold can produce the boiling rage and the icy reproof, he is forced to be tepid. Since he may not put his left foot in front of his right, or his right in front of his left, he is compelled to stand still. Since every speaker who begins to acquire a radio personality will have a growing number of enemies, anyone who begins to be interesting must be removed. Since the fact that any program is popular will increase the alarm of those who disapprove of it, popularity must be frowned upon."

COMPETITION, says The Economist, is the only cure for these weaknesses. "If you don't like my line of goods, you are at liberty to go elsewhere." Anyone competing in radio can have only one objective—to please his customers, the listeners. Competing broadcasters are as clay in the hands of their listeners. "A monopolist tries to avoid mistakes, a competitor seeks success."

The problem, as The Economist sees it, is to achieve competition in radio without incurring the defects of the advertising system—meritriciousness, tawdriness and social irresponsibility. There are surprisingly good words for the United States system which, it is said, is much better than most people in the United Kingdom think.

The recommendations of The Economist, while of great interest, are not perhaps applicable to this country. Three competing systems are advocated instead of the present monopoly—the BBC. First, there would be a public corporation, like the BBC. Second, a co-operative broadcasting company. Third, a privately owned company. The revenues from radio licenses would be divided among the three on the basis of one-quarter to each. Listeners, when paying their license fee, could nominate which was to get the final quarter. The companies would thus compete for public approval. A small amount of advertising would also be permitted.

Outlets for the three competing systems could be provided either by the new frequency modulation technique or by wiring the homes of all license holders. The state, of course, would have to pay for this and, since the cost of three systems would be greater than at present, an increase in the license fee would be necessary.

SOVIET DECORATIONS

According to data of October 1, 1944, 2,868,962 persons, including members of every nationality of the Soviet Union, have been decorated with Government orders and medals during the Patriotic War.

Of this number, 2,026,693 were Russian; 409,668 Ukrainians.

From the beginning of the Patriotic War to October 1, 1944, the title of Hero of the Soviet Union and the Gold Star Medal have been conferred upon 5,901 fighting men of the Red Army—U.S.S.R. Bulletin.

"MADEMOISELLE FROM ARMENTIERRES"

Permanent War, Or Homo The Sap

A Booklet Review

By R. J. DEACHMAN

I LOST my copy of "Homo the Sap", or gave it away in a moment of weakness, then one day it crossed my mind again, so I blew a quarter on another copy and here I am, writing a pamphlet review.

"Homo the Sap" was written by Lorne T. Morgan, M.A., Ph.D., Associated Professor of Economics in the University of Toronto. It is a satire and I do not like the satiric vein. It takes more insight to write a satire—an excellent reason for disliking it, from a writer's viewpoint! The satirist must first measure the mind of his readers, a difficult task, for he doesn't know who they are. It is a style of writing which calls for delicacy of shade and tone. If it is keyed too high it will go over the heads of those who read it—if too low they will take it seriously and believe that the writer means, literally, what he writes. The author of "Homo the Sap" assumes that all forms of government are stupid and impossible, except socialism of course. Socialism is almost perfect, as the Professor sees it, but the people are too stupid to accept the God-given gifts of Marx. This judgment, it seems, is due to the fact that other forms have been tried, but not socialism. Many speak highly of the unknown. Heaven may not be so nice—for some of us—when we get there.

BUT writing of satires, my pet is, "The Petiton of the Candlemakers". It was written by Frederic Bastiat about 100 years ago. I admit that I am prejudiced in regard to it, for Bastiat always delighted me. Some years ago I re-printed his "Economic Fallacies", which contains this gem, an issue of 1,100 copies. I am still astonished at my audacity in trying to sell 1,100 copies of an economic book, 100 years old, but I got away with it—perhaps the satire sold it.

All other systems being utterly useless the Professor introduces his own pet remedy M.T.P.W. For the uninitiated let me announce that the M.T.P.W. stands for Morgan's Theory of Perpetual War. The grand idea is that we have done fairly well out of the war, that capitalism cannot provide everything we want, except in time of conflict and therefore we ought to arrange a nice little war with some South American country and keep it going, as a balancing factor to our economy—a creator of national unity.

Now this is burlesque, it is beyond satire. We are to spend about $1,500,000,000 per year. This, he writes, would go far towards settling our various Canadian constitutional and political problems, etc., etc. This is bosh! It would, in reality, be more likely to cause us to settle down in smug complacency. There would not be, in this petty scrap, a single stimulating impulse. Strange isn't it, when a Socialist has an idle moment, he rushes out to spend the money of others.

Let us look at that a moment. The good socialist is filled with the idea that a rush into debt is a way to heaven. This is the grand theory of deficit financing of which Mr. Alwin H. Hanson has been the main sponsor in the United States for a number of years. Hon. A. A. Berle, once Assistant Secretary of State—I have lost track of him lately—was another of its votaries. I doubt if their adventures along this line brought them any wisdom or helped in any way the cause of progress.

Of late the idea has been growing among the spenders that the restoration of full employment via the spending route is a bigger task than what they had at first anticipated. There was a time when they figured out that a little pump priming would do it. That day is past. It seems that technological change, once deemed a primary cause of unemployment, is not a temporary phenomena—things go right on changing, especially in time of war, and to spend continuously, as we do in war, is a little too much for the spenders, at least for most of them.

BUT light is dawning. Depressions come when costs get out of lines. Having run the gauntlet of fiscal and monetary remedies we will in the end come back to common sense. We shall examine our way of doing business, we shall not let one factor in production dominate the picture. We shall distribute the gains of economic progress not to labour, nor to capital, nor to the landlord but to the consumer, so that all will get a piece of it. We are beginning to recognize, as Bastiat put it, "that the interests of the consumer are the interests of the human race". Strange that for so long we should have ignored that simple fact.

So I come back to "Homo the Sap". In a sense it is brilliant, but it is the brilliance of burlesque, masking as satire. It lacks the fineness, the delicacy, the rapier touch. It is too smug. Mr. Morgan feels that socialism might build a world to please him, but he is frank enough to admit that the human race will have to be regenerated before it will try it. No wonder! So there we are—and what of it?

Contempt For Trees

(FAMILY HERALD AND WEEKLY STAR)

NEARLY all the striking differences between Canadian and British farming are due to two fundamental causes. The first is that in Britain the supply of land has been limited and the supply of labour plentiful, while here we have had the opposite condition. The second cause is that in Britain the farming of any given piece of land has been considered a permanent business by the farmer—lasting from generation to generation, while in Canada we have always had in the back of our mind the possibility of "moving on."

Trees have been almost sacred to British farmers and landowners for a long time—and that attitude is not a relic of ancient pagan "tree-worshipping" days, either. In Canada trees have been something to get rid of—to be cut down and burned if necessary, in order to clear the land for cultivation.

And in spite of the fact that in most good forest clearance is long past, and that there is too little wood rather than too much, our contemptuous attitude towards trees remains — a harmful hangover from the past.

These columns have stressed many times in the last few years that, whether we like it or not, we have ceased to be a country where any farmer can "move on" whenever his soil or his trees are exhausted. Farming and farmers are PERMANENT today—and if we act as if they were not, we will suffer.

In nine cases out of ten there is no ADEQUATE reason for neglecting the few simple, inexpensive precautions which will preserve a woodlot as a permanent asset to the farm. The fundamental precaution is simply to keep the animals out.

These lines are not written for anyone who simply does not want a woodlot. But any man who has any use for his patch of woods and who lets cattle or sheep graze in it, is just throwing money away.

It is just as sensible, and has just the same effect, as tethering a goat in the middle of a bed of perennial flowers or a rose garden! If you don't want flowers, well and good—let the goat eat them. If you want your flowers or rose-bushes to give you pleasure a couple of years from now—keep the goat out.

A wood has only one way of renewing itself so as to last indefinitely, that is by dropping seeds which will grow up into new trees. Cattle grazing in a wood do not eat tree trunks, and because that is so obvious many people feel they do no harm. But they do eat WOODS—they eat off and trample down the seedlings which are the trees of twenty years hence. Every spring a few cattle—getting mighty little benefit out of it, too, will eat up a whole, new-born woodlot.

POPULAR, AND FAIR

We note Albertans are taking a lesson from Ontario, asking the province to pay half the cost of education. It's a popular [illegible] with property owners who have been carrying the lion's share of the school burden.—Lethbridge Herald.

A Bible Message

Who can understand his errors? cleanse thou me from secret faults.

Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me: then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression.

Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer. (Ps. 19: 12-14.)

Then spake Jesus to the multitude, and to his disciples, saying, The scribes and the Pharisees sit in Moses' seat: all therefore whatsoever they bid you observe, that observe and do; but do not ye after their works: for they say, and do not...

Woe unto you, scribes and Phariseees, hypocrites! for ye make clean the outside of the cup and of the platter, but within they are full of extortion and excess. Thou blind Pharisee, cleanse first that which is within the cup and platter, that the outside of them may be clean also. (Matt. 23: 1-3, 25, 26.)

Unconsidered Trifles

The bazaar in aid of the local church had been widely advertised. For weeks collectors had been handing over vouchers in return for money, and when the great day arrived Mr. Blank had ten shillings' worth, which could be exchanged for equal value at any of the stalls. Mrs. Blank set forth rather late. When she came home she was looking annoyed.

"What did you buy, mother?" asked one of her daughters.

"Don't talk to me!" she snapped. "When I got there everything worth while had been sold, and I had to have ten shillings' worth of donkey rides!"

The new convict summoned the warder to his cell. "Warder," he complained, "I don't like the food here. I don't like my quarters. And, what's more, I don't like the type of work I've been given."

"Anything else you don't like?" inquired the warder grimly.

"Yes," added the convict heatedly. "I don't like that early-to-bed ruling. And also I don't like your face."

The warder tried to control his temper.

"Anything else you don't like?" he snapped.

The prisoner shrugged.

"That's all for the time being," he murmured. "I don't want you to think I'm being unreasonable!"

Lloyd George of Dwyfor

It is somewhat ironical that David Lloyd George, the great commoner, who once forced a budget bill through the House of Lords by threatening to pack the House with 500 new peers, should himself accept elevation to that august company as Earl Lloyd George of Dwyfor. But there are few Britons who will begrudge him in his eighty-second year any honours he chooses to accept. For the little Welshman, who tells us that one of the great memories of his bitterly poor childhood was the half of an egg he was accustomed to get on Sunday mornings, an earldom undoubtedly carries a great deal more significance than it does to the average American.

Whatever history's judgment may be on Britain's World War I Prime Minister, including his capabilities as a peace-maker at Versailles, no one can take from him the quality of leadership he showed in the dark days of that great struggle. As the dispatch from London to this newspaper declared, he probably meant as much to Britain in the last war as her present Prime Minister has meant to her in this one. Lloyd George, indeed, shares some of the credit for the elevation of Winston Churchill. He helped rally the forces that overthrew the Neville Chamberlain Government in May of 1940.

It is difficult, sometimes, for the people of one country correctly and objectively to judge the leader of another. In his prime, the Britons must have thought highly of his qualities. And the people of Caernarvon, his home constituency, must have too. They have kept him in Parliament for fifty-four years. For his overthrow of Lord Asquith in 1916, the man who had befriended him in many political crises of his career, he was called an ingrate. For many of his other acts he was labeled an opportunist. His private secretary probably came nearer to the truth when he said that the motivating principle of Lloyd George's actions was a facing of reality and "a broad and cheerful tolerance in dealing with people and facts as he finds them."

We wish the new Earl, Lloyd George of Dwyfor, continued good health. What honours have come to him have been well earned.—New York Times.

South America Needs Help Speaker Says

Dr. J. J. Talman, guest speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the University Women's Club at the Empress Hotel Monday evening, discussed the timely subject, "The Problem of South America". Dr. Talman is a professor of North and South American History, and also assistant librarian, at the University of Western Ontario, in London.

Dr. Talman felt that the problem of South America was not one of today, not a new one, but a problem of the past, which was weighing down on her. He explained that she had a history of cruel dictators, bloody revolutions, illiteracy and dishonesty, and that until she improved herself, she would not be the great market for which we hoped.

Continuing, the speaker said: "We might, for instance, have a trade agreement with Argentina today, and overnight, a new administration which would not honor it, would be installed. South America is not the gold mine we thought," he went on. "She is rich in natural resources, and perhaps in 200 years Brazil might be the greatest country in the world. But, she will have to improve her health, and standard of living, and become literate, and we must help her people, and not exploit them. To do this, we must have a greater knowledge and understanding and sympathy". In conclusion, he said "South America will not be for some time the country of which we can say, 'Go south, young man; go south'."

About 50 members of the Club were present at this meeting. The president, Mrs. C. A. Sollitt, was chairman, and Mrs. T. J. Carley voiced the vote of thanks to the speaker. Those sitting at the head table included Mrs. Sollitt, Miss Isobel Weddell, vice-president, Miss Margaret White, Miss Vera Hiland, Miss Earla MacVannell, Miss Nora Park, Mrs. J. Nornabell, Miss K. Macdougal, and Mrs. E. J. Thompson. The social committee, with Miss Macdougal as convener, was in charge of the arrangements for the dinner.

Queen for Day In South Seas

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC, Jan. 9 (CP) — A laughing, brown-eyed native girl named Betty Terry saved the day for the American soldiers who came to liberate the little island which is home to Betty and 34 of her people.

Betty speaks English well, and she appeared just in time to give the men a psychological lift after the landings.

The rifle companies were safely beyond the shore and back in the island undergrowth in pursuit of any Japanese who might have survived the air and naval bombardment when Betty came ashore with her grinning husband, Jacobus.

"My name is Betty Terry," she said, brushing back her long black hair, and from that moment on her admirers multiplied by the hundreds. To GI's who, for nine months had not heard a girl speak English, except from one USO platform, this was a great day.

"We've been out in our canoes two days waiting for you to come," she said. "We got your message to leave the island, that the bombers were coming. The Japanese did not want us to leave. 'We are going to die in these pillboxes and so are you,' they said, but we escaped two nights ago."

Word of the girl on the beach spread rapidly among supply dumps, kitchens and souvenir hunters. And news that 13 Nipponese had committed suicide with TNT at the other end of the island did not change the direction of the traffic.

Each arriving soldier had to talk to Betty.

"I am 30 years old," she answered politely some 20 times. "Jacobus is younger; he is only 26. He can understand English but he's not confident when it comes to speaking it.

"Thirty? Why, Betty, you don't look a day over 20." This was not flattery. She didn't look it. Betty Terry was queen for a day.

DOROTHY DIX. . . . .

DIVORCE IS NOT A CURE-ALL

Some Women Worse Off After Court Decree Than While Married

APART from the ethical side of divorce there is a practical angle which few women ever stop to consider when they get peeved with their husbands or lose their taste for them. Somehow the belief seems to be current among wives that a decree is a cure-all, so they rush to the quick-order divorce mills, as to a miracle-shrine, in the blind faith that they will emerge young and beautiful and without a care in the world.

Now we all recognize that there are many cases of domestic misery in which a divorce is as necessary as the surgeon's knife that cuts away a cancerous growth. There are husbands who are brutes who beat their wives, and sadists who torture them with their tempers and other abuse. There are drunkards who drag their wives down into the gutter with them. There are lazy loafers who make their wives work to support them. There are men who make human doormats of their wives and husbands who flaunt their infidelities in their wives' faces.

No woman is called upon to suffer martyrdom in marriage and if she has the ill luck to get a husband who takes away from her everything that makes life worth living, she is justified in asking the law to set her free.

Sometimes It's Just Boredom

But where there is one woman who has good cause for divorcing her husband, there are hundreds who break their marriage vows for trivial reasons, mainly because they are bored with cooking and babies and a man who sits around of nights in his stockinged feet and buries himself in his newspaper.

Back in their silly heads they have the notion that if they only had a divorce they would be young, gay and glamorous and that men would fight for dates with them and make love to them, as they did when they were girls. So they gather up the children and go back to Mother, who doesn't want them. Their old friends give them the cold shoulder, the children cry for Papa and it doesn't take them long to find out that they have jumped out of the frying pan into the fire.

Furthermore, the divorce discovers many things she had not taken into consideration: That mother's and father's peculiarities are just as aggravating as her husband's; that there is a lot of difference between living on the small part of her husband's income that the court awards her as alimony and having the whole of it to splurge; that few men want to marry divorcees with children, and that about the only freedom her divorce has given her is the freedom to go out and earn her own living.

Husbands Provide Security

Undoubtedly many women are bitterly disappointed in their marriages. Their husbands do not come up to all of their romantic expectations. Often they have faults that get on their wives' nerves. But they are good providers. They give their wives pretty homes, security, social position and a shopping ticket at the best stores and these are, at least, a consolation prize for the drabness of an unexciting marriage.

Hence, every woman who is contemplating swapping her wedding ring for a divorce does well to consider what sort of a bargain she is making.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, January 10

A DAY OF sound and serious openings to put affairs on a lucrative and secure foundation, is the augury based on the lunar transits and mutual aspects. Original ideas, brought to bear on old and outworn policies or principles, may gain most surprising results, with substantial support from those equipped and willing to demonstrate appreciation and give due rewards to merit. Unexpected developments may have curious inspiration, with determination and integrity vanquishing certain underhand elements. Consideration and fidelity may bring rich returns.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for an opportunity to place affairs on a sound future security, with comfort, contentment and the knowledge that virtue may bring rewards of a substantial, pleasant and gratifying quality. Hard work in developing or perfecting new, bold or ingenious ideas or tactics may bring desired returns of a surprising nature, although there may be enmity, jealousy or other sources of annoyance to overcome. Personal reactions may bring gratification and happiness.

A child born on this day should have originality, and inventive and creative skill backed up by sound tactics and integrity and firmness of character against some subtle or crafty temptations.

Home and School Association News

MAY'S SCHOOL.

Plans for the Founder's Day meeting, on February 12, were made at the regular meeting of May's Home and School Association, Monday evening. Following encouraging reports given by the various conveners, the president, Mrs. J. S. After the meeting had been adjourned, refreshments were served by the social committee.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA

Charles Birkin, speaking on "Good Citizenship," was guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association Monday evening.

Mr. Birkin felt that the foundation for good citizens was laid in the home, and further encouraged in the schools. He said that the home should be the centre where selfishness gave way to loyalty to ideals based on Christianity. "It is necessary for the good citizen to learn co-operation with his family, and school mates," he continued, "and each child should have his own duties to perform satisfactorily." He was greatly in favor of group effort of social, athletic, of musical clubs and group work, such as plays, salvage collections, war stamp sales, and so on, stressing the need for preparing children for adequate use of leisure time.

Included on a brief musical program presented by the pupils were piano solos by Miss Jean Smith, "A Curious Story"; Miss Ann MacDonald, "The Happy Farmer" and "The Jolly Rogers"; and David Bacon, "Marie Gavotte" and "Woodlake Waltz." The audience also enjoyed group part singing, conducted by Quirt McKinney of the Normal School teaching staff. Mrs. G. Wilson Craw read a paper, entitled "Good Homes," and Mrs. V. R. Henry read a report from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board Bulletin.

Miss M. Hart's room and Mrs. C. Pilon's room, in the senior grades, tied for the most parents present, while Miss I. Connolly's room was winner in the junior competition. Mrs. W. C. McBride, the president, welcomed the members, and read a New Year's prayer. Mrs. A. Nelson, on behalf of those present, thanked the speaker, Mr. McKinney, and others taking part in the program.

KING EDWARD

Dr. L. Mylks, newly appointed school doctor, was guest speaker at the regular meeting of the King Edward Home and School Association, Monday evening. He told the members what the Board of Education was endeavoring to do in the health line, and asked for the full co-operation of parents. "A child leaving school with a sound mind and body is worth more than riches," he concluded.

Members were reminded of the annual meeting of the Local Council of Women, January 18 in the Y.W.C.A., beginning at 10 a.m. with dinner served at 12 noon. Mrs. J. O. Fife gave the Scripture reading, from the second chapter of Matthew and Miss Betty Craig gave two monologues, "The Trousers Father Used to Wear," and "Bud Discussing Cleanliness" Mrs. Charles Wood sang two solos, "I Love Thee," and "Jeannie With the Light Brown Haiar."

QUEEN MARY.

The organization, aims, and plans of public health work were outlined in an instructive address to the regualr meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association Monday evening, by Dr. R. A. Kelly, the Medical Officer of Health for Peterborough. Dr. Kelly spoke on the topic, "Public Health and Its Organization."

The speaker explained that there were two medical divisions, curative and preventative medicine, and that public health dealt with the latter, aiming to have healthier and happier people in better surroundings. "Preventative medicine lacks the romance of surgery, and the prevention of pain is given very little credit," he went on, "but a change in attitude to public health will play a major part in post war times."

Dr. Kelly said that Canada's three types of government, Federal, Provincial and Municipal, had a part in the set-up of the Department of Health and Public Welfare. The Federal Government has charge of the inspection of all ships in quarantine, medical examination of all immigrants, care of lepers, care of sick marines, food, drug, and cosmetic inspection, checking on narcotics and on all drugs and patent medicines, and laboratory hygiene which is a division of nutrition services. He explained that the Provincial Department of Health governs the Public Health Laboratories, vital statistics, sanitation, industrial hygiene, tuberculosis prevention and cure, the prevention and curing of mental illness, and the prevention, cure, and education in connection with venereal disease.

Municipal Work

In the municipal field, every city is required to have a Board of Health, medical officer of health, and a sanitary inspector, Dr. Kelly continued. In the municipal health unit, there should be a stenographer, sanitary inspector, public health nurse and medical officer of health, the staff increasing with the population. He said that there should be one nurse for every 5,000 population.

Outlining the aims of the Department of Health, the speaker showed that they included not only the prevention and cure of disease, but the collection of information which would lead to better standards of living and the education of all citizens along correct public health lines. The collecting of vital statistics of disease was listed as the first aim and others were: sanitation, including safe food, checking on overcrowding in dwellings; mainly accomplished by the public health nurse, talking to mothers in the homes; the control of communicable disease by immunization; the control of tuberculosis; venereal diseases, their control, and regular treatment for patients; child hygiene, the supervision of the health of pre-school age children. In addition, dental health and mental health are of vital interest.

Speaking of future plans, Dr. Kelly told of the idea to organize the Province into health units, with boundary lines corresponding as far as possible with the boundaries of the counties, depending on the population. In addition, there would be four health districts, each to include five health units. In order to assist the municipalities to expand, the Province would give financial aid. He explained that the lack or personnel at the present time was one great drawback to the expansion of public health.

Health Meeting.

Members were reminded of the health meeting, to be held January 15 in the Y. M. C. A., sponsored by the Home and School Council. Reports were read by the secretary and treasurer, and the representative to the Local Council of Women and the Home and School Council. The roll call banners were awarded to Miss V. Robinson's room in the junior grades, and Miss E. Deyell's room for the senior grades.

During the evening community singing was enjoyed, with Mrs. H. V. Dobson at the piano.

Miss Jean McDougall, guest soloist, sang "Trees" and "Deep River," accompanied at the piano by Miss Ruth Gaskell. The president, Mrs. J. Matthews, thanked the guests for appearing on the program, and refreshments were served. It was announced that Mrs. E. Chambers, president of the Home and School Council, would be guest speaker at the February 5 meeting, for Founder's Day. Films from the National Film Board will also be shown.

Richard's 26 goals was tops in that column while Lach led the assists column with 27.

Bill Durnan of Montreal showed the best goal-tending average with 57 goals scored on him in 25 games, giving him an average of 2.280, while Frank McCool was second with 3.208, having 77 goals scored on his in 24 games. McCool, however, has the most shut-outs to date—two.

Pat Egan of Boston continued as the league bad-man, serving 48 minutes in the penalty box. He has few contenders for this title, Hal Jackson of Detroit being a distant runner-up with 33 minutes.

N.Y. Soccer Star Has Only One Arm

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (CP)—About three years ago Gonzalo Romero, a light-haired Spaniard, lost his right arm in an industrial accident in Brooklyn and it seemed that his brilliant career as a soccer star had ended.

Romero, who understands some English but speaks even less was playing the key centre forward position for the Brooklyn Hispanos of the American Soccer League. They went on to win the league title as well as the U.S. Open Soccer championship.

Born in Spain 32 years ago, Romero became a great player in his native land before it was torn by internal strife. Well-educated, he was a naval officer in Spain and fought on the side of the Loyalists during the Civil War there. When the Franco forces triumphed, he fled to Cuba where he remained for a few years and resumed his soccer career.

Three years ago he came to the United States but his fame as a soccer player preceded him and Manager Duncan Othen of the Hispanos signed him up almost as quickly as Romero reached New York. Meanwhile, a teammate, Fabri Salcedo, got him a job with the National Brick Co.

He played three games with the Hispanos before the tragic accident. One day at work his right arm became caught in a cement mixing machine and before the machinery could be stopped it had been mangled almost to the shoulder. Slowly his interest in his favorite sport returned. Before long he found himself anxious to play again and he joined the Segura F.C. of the Metropolitan League. He is with the Spanish eleven for the second season and is considered the best player on the team.

Schedule Revised

MONTREAL, Jan. 9 — (CP). — Bob Lebel, president of the Interprovincial Hockey League, last night released a revised schedule for the loop which provides 10 additional games and calls for the schedule to end February 25 instead of March 1. Cornwall, Ont., Valleyfield, Que., and Shawinigan Falls Que., each will play three additional games, and Lachine, Que., will play one more game.

Another change in the schedule calls for 14 of the remaining games to be played for three points instead of two, with teams getting 1½ points for a draw.

Three Major Tilts On Tonight's Card

PIERRE DEGLANE

The first Tunney wrestling show of 1945 at the Brock Street Arena tonight will be a three-ringed circus with a trio of star bouts. The new flash Larry Moquin meets Whipper Billy Watson in the main bout and that should be a sensation. In the semi-final the roughhouse Bob Wagner collides with the fiery Pierre DeGlane in a bout that promises plenty of fireworks. And if that were not enough Al Bunny Dunlop will tackle the jumping jack Johnny Gyroffy in the opener.

Basketball fans will be interested in learning that there will be a City League at the Y.M.C.A. this winter. As a matter of fact the schedule is being drawn up today and four teams will battle it out for the City League honors, with the opener scheduled for this Saturday. The probable entrants are the C.G.E., Outboard Marines, a team to be rounded up by Don McTavish and Bev Goulding's P.C.V.S. squad. The school team will use the City League as training ground for their coming Cossa battles which do not get under way until February and the arrangement is that the Collegiate outfit will play its home games on the school gym. That incidentally does not come under the heading of good news for the other teams in the loop for they will not be too plentifully supplied with subs and that big school floor is a killer-diller for short-handed cage machines. However none of the three other teams will have any particular advantage over the others in that respect. They will be handicapped alike and after all the school will have to play its Cossa games on its own gym and should have some practice workouts there.

Although nothing will probably come out of it it is interesting to Canadian football fans to learn that when the National Football League meets in Chicago this week there will be a proposal made that the Canadian rouge be added to the American brand. The suggestion has been made by Hugh Fullerton, Jr., who argues that if professional football would adopt the rouge as a substitute for the automatic touchback now in use there would be plenty of chances to score tie-breaking points, not so many hopeless attempts at field goals would be made and good kickers in the pro game would come into their own. Besides football fans would get the added thrill of being able to watch runbacks from behind the goal line, an exciting feature of the Canadian brand but missing altogether from the American variety. This column is a firm believer in the rouge. It adds a lot to football as it is played here and it is worthy of note that all the American players who have played the Canadian style have been sold on the advantage of being able to score single points. But it is not likely that the rule-makers across the border will pay much attention to the Fullerton proposal. It is too radical a change in the setup.

As Ken Saw Them

Ken Colling has the following comment on the Hastings-Norwood Combines after seeing them in action: "'Toots' Holway's local junior puckstars got away to a strong start with their 10 to 4 win over Hastings. Frankly the local kids deserved victory as all of their goals were of the combination nature except Billie Holway's first period solo counter. Al Meagher walked home with four goals and an assist, Doug Day came to life in the last period for two goals and should have had more, while Holway added another as Bill Greatrix had to go to the "sin bin" before he could get untangled to hit the twine. Then along came Bernie Meagher for a counter that Don Barrett set up. However, the unsung player was Jerry Moher, who did his best to play the new-fangled rules and accept passes in the middle zone, but he had little help. Maybe this can be remedied in games to come as the local kids were playing their first game under new rules. Orchids have to be handed to the local defence trio of Bush, Holway and Green. They did a grand job. Incidentally goalies never get credit unless there's a shut-out. On the other side of the ledger credit must be given to Jim Stephenson's Hastings kids, who bucked a snow-laden highway and were late in arriving, but did themselves noble. Joe Fife, Monsberry, Jack McDougall and Frank Pettigrew made matters rather interesting with their shiftiness and second period aggressiveness to outplay the locals in that stanza and gain the respect of local patrons."

"We don't know where Chick Appel got the idea but he has been telling his readers that this writer stated that the Junior "A" O.H.A. playoffs called for the first series to be between the 1st and 3rd teams," says George Campbell in the Oshawa Times-Gazette. "This of course is an error. We never were under any such misunderstanding—the Junior "A" playoff system this year is the same as a couple or three years ago, when it was all one group, namely similar to the N.H.L. system, with the 1st and 2nd teams meeting in the first series, 4-out-of-7 games. Chick should remember that long ago we were promoting the theory that the favored spot to finish in the group standing, if a team couldn't finish in first place, was to finish in 3rd. Assuming that St. Mike's finish on top of the heap—and at this distance, that looks like a mortal cinch, then St. Kitts or Galt can have 2nd place if they want it. We would like to see the Generals end up in 3rd place. Incidentally, if both St. Kitts and Oshawa win their home games and lose away to St. Mike's and Galt, then St. Catharines and Oshawa will finish tied for 2nd place in points and if that happened, 2nd and 3rd places would be decided on the goal average. However, the Falcons, Generals and Galt all have too many games to play with each other and with other teams in Toronto yet, to start figuring things too closely."

Athletic "Cripples"

Rushing to the defence of husky young college students, who are able to cavort around a gridiron with the best of them, although classified 4F for military service, one James H. Coogan, publicity director of Penn State University, disagrees with Director of War Mobilization James F. Byrnes' statement that he has seen men prove on the football field that they are "physically able to complete with the most powerful men that could be placed on the field," and that he was "unable to understand how these men could be said to be physically unfit," says Chick Appel in the Stratford Beacon-Herald. Naturally, there are cases where some of these husky young men have been placed in 4-F through some physical defect, and the estimable Mr. Coogan cites such a case in the person of Howard Caskey, 225 pounds, a freshman tackle who has been rejected three times for military service, and each time it was for a different reason. He goes on from there to content that "Unless Selective Service lowers its physical standards, a simple announcement that all 4-F athletes will be reviewed is not likely to make any change in the situation." In other words, Mr. Coogan entertains the opinion that a re-examination of the young men placed in 4-F would fail to produce any fit for war service.

The Peterborough Hockey Club's midget league is about all ready to go. The rival coaches have their teams out practicing, sweaters and other equipment have been ordered and the four-club loop with teams sponsored by Kinsmen, Lions, B'Nai B'Rith and Rotary should prove a real developer for players under 16 years of age. At Monday's meeting of the Peterborough Rotary Club a resolution was passed unanimously endorsing a grant of $100 to finance the club in the northern zone which by draw has become Rotary's responsibility. The other service clubs have taken similar action and their help will be very much appreciated. It is worthy of note that another service organization, the Y's Men's Club has adopted a team in the juvenile loop. That league consisting of the P.C.V.S., Y Cubs and the Hawks will provide organized hockey for the boys of 16, 17 and 18 years so that with the schools taking care of the younger lads the setup is now adequate for looking after young material all along the line.

OMEMEE, Jan. 9—(ENS)—The first game in the Intermediate "B" O.H.A. series, Lindsay group, resulted in a 14-10 victory for the Omemee Black Hawks when they defeated the Oakwood team in Oakwood Monday night.

The Black Hawks scored their goals as follows: Kingdon, 5 goals; Brooks, 2; Tompkins, 2; and one each by Burton, Blewett, Heal, Deyell and Bradley. In spite of the score, Coad, the Oakwood goal keeper, gave a creditable performance.

The line-ups are as follows:

Omemee: Goal, Fisher; defence, Burton and Williamson; centre, Kingdon; wings, Tompkins and Heal; alternates, Blewett, Brooks, Bradley and Deyell.

Oakwood: Goal, Coad; defence, Tamblyn and Jewell; centre, Tamblyn; wings, Tamblyn and Hilter; alternates, Anderson and Hilter.

It was a full house again on Monday. During the afternoon the ladies played their schedule games and six of the seven sheets of ice were in use. And speaking of the ladies schedule, at this early date it would appear that is is going to be a wideopen race. As far as we can judge there is no rink favored to win. It has all the earmarks of being the best balanced schedule that the ladies have had for some time.

At night the men were out in full force and played their games according to schedule. The Lowe-Welsh game was close as was the Richmond-Westbrooke game. The Harvey-Putnam game was also interesting. These were the ones that held the attention of No. 8.

Tomorrow night is bonspiel night and 7.30 o'clock is the hour.

COBOURG, Jan. 9—Cobourg intermediates had too much speed and polish for the husky Bewdley hockey team last night and the visitors had to be satisfied with the small end of a 6-4 count. # Clubs And Public Are Demanding Slice From The Soccer Pool Cash

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 9 — (CP). — Sports in Britain swirled to an unprecedented wartime peak in 1944 amid post-war plans eclipsing anything in history, based on widespread speculation that Germany will be smashed before D-Day's first anniversary.

For more than five years this sports-loving country has queued for war-rationed entertainment such as football, cricket, racing and boxing in the face of restricted transport, the blackout and the threat of sudden death from the skies.

Wartime football, of all the sports, has come nearest to preserving its peace-time program with a full list of matches through the country each Saturday, but it has been a piecemeal business with most players appearing during service leave and clubs borrowing each other's players, according to locality in which they are stationed with the forces.

Soccer is expected to hit its peace-time stride more quickly than other major sports and many reforms are in the offing. Most revolutionary of these is a demand that clubs and the public benefit from football pools which in the last year of peace attracted $187,200,000 in investments.

Soccer such an intense affair for millions, created a wartime attendance record for any sport when 90,000 jammed London's Wembley Stadium to watch the first international of the 1944-45 season a couple of months ago.

Lord's remains the world's cricket centre and the post-war problem for this most English of games remains, as always, the matter of raising money.

Horse-Racing Popular

Horse-racing, facing an immediate future of great prosperity has the immediate worry of restoring its tracks quickly. Fewer than a dozen have been used on an austerity basis during the war while normally 48 operate under Jockey Club rules. Experts say flat racing won't be back to normal until 1947, even if there is an early end to the war.

The government, with an eye on post-war export of bloodstock, has allowed the five major classics, including the Derby and the St. Leger, to continue through the war. December bloodstock sales just concluded at Newmarket created an all-time record — 669 animals sold for $2,388,575, an average of $3,572, compared with the previous best of peacetime 1928 when 882 lots made $2,317,050. Combined aggregate for all sales this year was $4,901,935, compared with $5,112,570 in 1928.

The outlook for greyhound racing is especially good and more tracks are certain to open in peacetime. The wartime ration of one meeting a week at each track has not been nearly enough to satisfy the wagering millions.

Tennis probably will be one of the slowest sports to return to normal. Only exhibition matches and a few junior tournaments have been played during the war, but the fames Centre Court at Wimbledon is ready for international competition as soon as conditions permit.

A major golf revival is in the offing. By government permission many courses have been cleared of the obstruction with which they were strewn when Britain expected invasion.

Boxing's Comeback

Boxing, which suffered severely from blackout restrictions, made a great comeback during 1944 aided by a handful of promising Canadian members of the armed forces. Probably the greatest surprise of the wartime ring came a couple of months ago when L. Cpl. Danny Webb, a young Canadian Army Negro from Montreal, beat Jackie Peterson of Glasgow, world flyweight champion, in a non-title bout.

Most of Britain's professional champions are veterans and everyone agrees that is need for new blood. That augurs well for the post-war period and promoters are pinning hopes on many men now boxing in the services. Ten thousand competed this year in the British Army championships alone.

Canadian Army sports thrilled thousand of British spectators during the year. Crowds thronged to ice-hockey matches arranged in the army and the air force and the interest shown betokened a return to the pre-war era when leagues made up mainly of players imported from Canada caught public fancy.

Britain's busiest wartime sports period was early this fall when, in 48 hours, there were a heavyweight boxing championship match, the St. Leger classic, an international soccer match and an "all-star" at London greyhound tracks. Almost on a peacetime scale, the crowded program gave a foretaste of peace-time boom days to come.

More than 30 ice rinks will be ready for skaters when peace comes, including a number that never closed. Several others should be ready within a few months. Canadians will be the backbone of the senior teams but young Britons will be the encouraged, particularly at smaller centres like Bristol and Manchester which always have been hotbeds of junior and intermediate hockey.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—This corner won't attempt to say who's right or wrong in the current argument about professional baseballers playing college basketball, but when it results in tossing harsh names at a good guy like Dan Ferris, the whole thing makes us mad. . . . Dan has been taking unfair raps for years merely because A.A.U. business is transacted through his office . . . When you come right down to it, the ruling that the cagers involved are ineligible for A.A.U. competition won't mean a thing to 99 per cent. of them because they won't ever want to enter an A.A.U. event.

Was He Kidding?

At the recent Blue-Gray football jamboree in Montgomery, Ala., someone asked Charley Trippi, the former Georgia star now with the Army's Third Air Force, about his plans for post-war athletics . . . Trippi, who has two years of college eligibility left, didn't even bat an eye as he replied: "I'm going to play professional football — at Georgia."

There are several reports on hand that I failed to send in, and owing to the fact it is old news wish to extend regrets to those who supported the column for failure to get down to the work of compiling the news. From now on your scribe will do his best to see that the news is sent in every week.

At this time I would like to thank those who through the past year have been sending in their reports regularly, and would say to them, carry on, I wish every leader would take the time to do so. It would make this column much more interesting.

Pack Divided.

All Saints' Pack has grown so large that the officers in charge had to divide the Pack into two sections, with Miss Leach in charge of one and Miss Houghton looking after the other.

Tests Passed.

In fairness to the boys who have been forging ahead along the Badge trail, we are going to list their names before destroying the old reports: From St. Luke's — Ken Pammett and Ross Withers passed leap-frog, hopping and book balancing; Carl Butcher, Bobby Fairs, Bobby Clark, Frank Tuck, Kenny Sharp, Orville Thompson passed signs and salute; Orville Thompson and Billy Fair were invested into the Brotherhood of Scouting; Ken Pammett passed somersault; Darrell Lipsett and Ross Withers, ball throwing; Larry Walsh passed book balancing and time; Ken Sharp, Bill Evans, Bob Allen, leap-frog and hopping. At All Saints—First Year Service Stars were presented Gordon Graham, Barry Hollingsworth, Kelvin Johnson, Gord White, Bab Allan; Second Year Stars, Marwyn Buchan. Tests passed: Union Jack, Doug Livingstone, David Brockwell. Time telling: Ronald Gray. Hopping and ball throwing, Ken Gadd, Oscar Schweirs, Ronald Gray. The King, George Allison, Allan Smith, Bill Goodson. St. John's: Peter New was invested into the Pack, Bobby Rogers passed Savings and Collectors Badge, as did Bobby Burgess, Trevor Hawkins passed ball throwing; Trevor Mitchell and Roderick Delaney, collectors; Michael Craig, skipping; and Clarence James, Union Jack. Bobby James, Stewart Brooks, and Keith Brown were recently invested into the Scout movement.

Local Association.

The local Association executive is scheduled to meet next week, and those interested are asked to keep Wednesday free. We are glad to report that the Scouters' Club has taken up the work of redecorating the headquarters, and that they have two willing workers on the committee, Scouters Ricard and Ingham.

Seen in Town.

Former Scouts Roy Gynane and Don Barringer were seen at the Uptown Canteen. The former is home on 28 days' leave, the latter for just a few days. We are wondering what action will be taken about those former leaders who have been returned from the services and are now floating around town. They are Gerry Grady, Lloyd Williamson, Gord White, all of whom I feel could be brought into the movement and help where there is a shortage of leaders.

Out in Scouting.

Let all our Scout leaders get that Out in Scouting working this year. Just remember that is the real essence of the pioneer spirit of which the late Chief Scout wanted when he started this splendid movement. Don't let it be said that we let it down. Your boys will enjoy Scouting much better, and you will hold your boys much longer if you give them some real Scouting to tackle and conquer.

Canadian Frigate Brings Santa To Children At Sea

HALIFAX, Jan. 9—(CP)—A story of how a Royal Canadian Navy frigate brought Santa Claus to a shipload of British and European children in the middle of the North Atlantic reached here today.

On the day before Christmas a great convoy of merchantmen was making its way from Britain to North America escorted by Allied warships. Out of the outer escort a Canadian frigate nosed alongside a combined freighter and passenger vessel. The frigate's signal lamp blinked out: "We are putting a line aboard."

The frigate fired a line across the bow of the freighter and while the passengers lined the rails a 10-foot Christmas tree was slid across the line to the freighter's deck. As the tree slid across the crew of the frigate gathered on their after-deck and sang carols.

"It was the most thrilling thing I have seen in my 31 years at sea," said the merchant ship's captain in relating the story. For security reasons the names of the ship and its skipper cannot be given.

Three Outfits Scrambling For Puck Title

By The Canadian Press

The mid-season mark in baseball leagues usually finds experts in that sports department predicting that the leading team will continue its advantage through the rest of the schedule, but the same predictions cannot be made for the National Hockey League which reaches the half-way mark of the 1944-45 schedule tonight.

New York Rangers visit Maple Leafs at Toronto to bring the total number of games up to 75 and victory for the Leafs would place them within four games of the league-leading Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings.

As it stands now, N.H.L. still looks like a free-for-all for the pennant between the Leafs, Red Wings and Canucks.

Looking back on the records, an observer will note the rather curious cycle in which Montreal seems helpless against Toronto, while Toronto seems to be unable to get anywhere against Detroit, which in turn seems to be an easy prey for Montreal.

If it's any consolation to Montreal fans, they can look forward to six more games with Detroit, three at home and three away, while the Habitants have only four games left with Leafs, two at Montreal and two at Toronto.

Toronto fans can derive some comfort from the fact that the Leafs have covered most of the road with the Red Wings, only four inter-city games left, one at Detroit and three at Toronto.

TORONTO, Jan. 9 — (CP). — Glancing at the Russian racing scene (we're talking of horse racing, not the pursuit of the frantic Fritzie), it strikes us that if the United States had adopted the Soviet system of betting, all this recent hullaballoo would not have been stirred up. The Russians, being a down-to-earth people, ran their parimutuels on the system that the bettor has to pick both the win and place horse before he can win. That not only provides more money for the state-owned track, but also must put a damper on excessive betting — which was the barnfull of straw that helped break the back of the racing setup south of the border.

Back to the land:

While on the subject of racing (who isn't these days) an item from Lyndonville, Vermont, stirs the fancy. Despite the ban on the cantering of aristocratic horseflesh the Lyndonville Driving Club held its annual harness race card down the town's main street—with the community delivery and garbage wagon steeds nobly matching their strides. Who knows but if the racing ban lasts long enough, the Seabiscuits, Pensives, Twilight Tears, and their ilk may be replaced on the nation's sport pages by old reliable Prince, Nellie, and their faithful friends?

Calling surgery:

Recalling that Maurice Richard was supposed to be the victim of a belly—(oops, tummyache) — the night he set a new point-scoring record, Tony (Winnipeg Tribune) Allan suggests that may have made him play better. It's Allan's theory that "nobody can put forth his best efforts when he is glowing with health, filled with good food, and at peace with the world. He naturally doesn't feel like exerting himself"....Don't be surprised if Chicago Black Hawks go out and throw themselves collectively in front of a fast freight.

Tuesday topics:

It now turns out that Rosario Joanette, that sterling stickhandler of the Valleyfield, Que., hockey squad doesn't answer to the nickname "Kitoule" after all. The handle is "Kitoute," which Monsieur Joanette modestly and freely translates as meaning "he has everything."....Bryan Hextall now is working in a war plant near Welland, Ont., and the former New York Ranger may be out helping coach the youngsters in the bantam and midget loops being formed there.....Talk around Hamilton is that Wildcats may be out if Tigers are in next fall, since the feeling is the city can support only one football club....Nearly half the 112 teams entered in the Ontario Minor Hockey Association lists are sponsored by various service clubs and teachers' associations.

Veteran Bob Gracie of Pittsburgh Hornets leaped to the top of the individual scoring table in the American Hockey League with 48 points after adding nine points during the previous week. His total was four more than for Tom Burlington of Cleveland, followed by Leswick of Indianapolis, Bob Walton of Pittsburgh and Gooden of Hershey, tied for third with 43 points.

Pitcher Lesly Fleming, who won nine games last season, has joined the U.S. Army, it was discovered yesterday by Chicago club officials. They did not know where he had been inducted, however. Pitcher Jess Flores of the Philadelphia Athletics is leaving Los Angeles today for Mexico City to twirl in the Mexican Baseball League next season.

Last staged in 1942, the national tournament of the Senior Profession Golfers' Association is scheduled to be revived at the Dunedin Country Club Jan. 15-18, it was announced at Dunedin, Fla., last night.

Tennis At Wimbledon

Although the grandstands have been badly bombed, Wimbledon will see its first big wartime tennis tournament in June, it was announced at London last night. It will be an invitation competition in which players from the United States, France, Holland and the Dominions may compete.

Although the United States government imposed a ban on the shipment of race horses except to home stables, announcement was made at Mexico City yesterday that a string of steeds owned by Stephen Sanford of Amsterdam, N.Y., had arrived at Hippodrome track there.

Voted last year's most valuable player in the American Association while with Toledo, Outfielder Boris Martin of the St. Louis Browns yesterday underwent an appendicitis operation. It was also stated by Vice-President Bill DeWitt that Outfielder Milt Byrnes had had an operation for hernia.

The second Pan-American physical education congress at Mexico City May 2-17, will consider the banning of women in sports, the Mexican delegates contending that athletics are too strenuous for the female sex. Male athletes are to be classified as amateurs, semi-pros and professionals in inter-American sports.

Snead Captures Laurels At Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9 — (AP). — Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., won the Los Angeles open golf tournament Monday with a 72-hole total of 283.

Snead, chalking up his third victory in the last five tournaments of the winter season, dropped a short putt on the 18th for a birdie and his first victory in a Los Angeles open. It gave him a last-round 69.

Displaces McSpaden

The putt enabled him to displace Harold McSpaden, Sanford, Me., as well as to stave off the last-hole challenge of Byron Nelson, Toledo, Ohio.

McSpaden, with a final 70, finished with 284, tied with Nelson, who missed a 20-footer and a chance to tie for the lead.

Came From Behind

Snead came from behind to overtake four others.

He passed up Nelson, biggest money-winner and leading golfer of 1944; John Revolta, Evanston, Ill.; Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles; and Sam Byrd, Detroit, Mich. Byrd and Revolta led the Virginian by two strokes at the end of the third round. Nelson and Mangrum were a shot ahead.

Snead teed off today on even terms with McSpaden, each with 214 strokes for 54 holes. McSpaden, winner of the Los Angeles open last year, made a stout bid to retain his honors.

Nelson, too battled it out in a neck-and-neck race. He missed his big chance on the 18th green, where a 20-foot putt stood between him and a tie with Snead. He missed the putt and a chance to play off for top prize. It was a $1,000 putt.

Snead took first money, $2,666 in war bonds, and Nelson's 284 gave him $1,600 in bonds, the same as McSpaden.

Byrd, winning $1,066, followed with 285. Revolta and Mangrum shared the 287 bracket, and Sgt. Jim Ferrier, Camp Roberts, Cal., carded a four-round total of 288.

St. Kitts Trim Hamilton 3-2

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton Majors lead the Senior O.H.A. race by only two points after suffering a 3-2 defeat last night at home by St. Catharines Saints in a near-crucial contest of the winter's campaign. The rivals played themselves into a tie in both the first and second periods and were on even terms up to 16 minutes of the third canto when Delmonte fired the payoff shot from 25-foot range. Majors showered the rubber on Goalie Ted Grosskurth throughout the last four minutes but couldn't gain the equalizer for a third time.

Fritz, Bellinger and Delmonte were the snipers for the visitors while Doug Runions and Johnny Conick scored Hamilton goals. Only one players was credited with an assist during the whole engagement, this being awarded to Dillon Brady when he set up Conick's second-period score. The game officials had little trouble, only five penalties being necessary.

DUCK HUNTER NOW—Maj. Joe Foss, one of the Pacific war heroes, who shot down more than two dozen Japanese planes, returns from a hunting trip near Klamath Falls, Ore., with a few geese. Foss is recuperating from tropical ailment.

Censorship has become more stringent over the years. The Hays office ordered a number of deletions in the reissue of that classic, "Sign of the Cross," which was made years ago . . . On Christmas Eve, Bea Lillie and Raymond Massey, both Ontario-born stars, visited a New York military hospital together. Although Massey was being visited by his son Geoffrey, a Canadian paratrooper, he was alone when he called for Miss Lillie. He had planned to bring Geoffrey with him but Mrs. Massey remembered that her son was about the same age as Lord Peel, the son Beatrice Lillie lost in this war.

Royals Dominate Senior Hockey League

MONTREAL, Jan. 9 — (CP). — Montreal Royals continued to dominate the Quebec Senior Hockey League picture with a commanding lead in the league standings to date, while Valleyfield Braves seemed well on the way to the leadership of the Interprovincial Hockey League, new Senior-B loop operating in its first season.

The Royals, with 12 games behind them, have piled up 21 points and have only one loss charged against them. One game was a draw. The Quebec Aces, winners of the Allan Cup last year, are trailing with 13 points but have only played 10 games so far.

The Aces have had difficulties in keeping up with their schedule in the provincial capital and have had to postpone three games in recent weeks. During the holidays games were cancelled because of travelling conditions.

The Ottawa Commandos and Hull Volants are hopelessly in the cellar, Commandos earning five points in nine games while the Volants have been able to gather only three points in 11 games.

Valleyfield Braves with 27 points have won 12 and drawn three of 19 games. Second in the I.H.L. is Cornwall with 21 games and nine victories and one tie for 19 points.

Cornwall's hold on second place is challenged both by Lachine Rapids and Shawinigan Falls Cataracts, both having three games on hand to reach Cornwall's 21. Lachine has eight victories and one draw for 17 point while Shawinigan has six victories and one draw for 13 points.

Quebec's contender for the Memorial Cup should either be Montreal Canadiens or Montreal Royals of the Junior Amateur Hockey Association.

The Q.A.H.A. is operated on a percentage basis to accommodate the Shawinigan Falls entry who play only home games. Shawinigan has played only three games and have an average of .500 which places them in a third-place tie with Verdun Maple Leafs who have won four and drawn two of 10 games.

Cold Weather Reduces Supply Of Gas

By The Canadian Press.

A shortage of natural gas in Western Ontario continued yesterday with industrial production most severely affected at Windsor where about 20,000 employees of the Ford Motor Company of Canada and the Chrysler Corporation were idle because of the shortage.

The Ford plants were closed down completely all day, as announced on Saturday. Chrysler employees came to work yesterday morning as usual, but at 10 a.m. two of the three plants closed down and about 75 per cent of the employees were sent home. A third Chrysler plant, the motor plant, was able to continue operations. Shipping operations and other activities were continued. Officials were not able to say when normal production would be resumed.

At London, officials of the Dominion Gas Company said there was some improvement in the supply of natural gas for its 24,000 users in the district as a result of a hookup of its lines with those of the Union Gas Company. They warned the situation is still "very critical" and said consumers should not increase their consumption.

St. Thomas reported an improvement in the supply there although householders and other consumers were still being asked to restrict use and take all necessary precautions. A nurse, Florence McAlpine, was found unconscious in her home. Officials said she was overcome by fumes from a gas stove used for emergency heating. As she slept the flame went out because of low pressure and later the pressure improved, sending the fumes through the house.

No hardship resulted from below-normal pressure on Sunday, and on Monday morning at Woodstock.

At Brantford, Mr. Howell of the Dominion Gas Company said "only an extended spell of mild weather, coupled with complete co-operation of all gas consumers, will restore the situation to a degree of normality."

The shortage is attributed to cold weather and heavy snowfall.

Loaded Truck Blows Up; Damage Heavy

LUTON, England, Jan. 9.—(CP).—Three persons were killed and 17 injured yesterday in a blast that devastated the countryside near here when a United States Army truck laden with 20 high explosive bombs collided with a civilian truck.

There was a five-minute interval between the collision and the explosion. The trucks hardly more than grazed each other at a sharp turn 30 miles west of London, but the impact was enough to set the delicate bomb mechanisms to operating.

In the interval, Cpl. Riggins Earle, a six-foot Negro driver of the army truck, ran a quarter of a mile down the rural road alarming the countryside with the cry: "Bombs, bombs, take cover."

All the casualties were passengers on the Luton-Hitchin bus, which had stopped near the scene. Thirteen of the injured, some American soldiers, were taken to hospital. One of the dead also was an American.

Earle stopped first at the house of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Sutton and they fled before the explosion flattened their home.

Another home he warned was the scene of a children's party. All escaped safetly.

Property damage was widespread. Windows were broken a mile away and the blast was felt in Luton, four miles rom the scene.

A British Army gasoline truck, stopped near the traffic-jammed scene, caught fire. Buildings on some farms were set ablaze. A number of cottages were flattened or damaged. Live stock was killed in fields.

The blast made a huge crater in the road, forcing traffic to detour. The dead were unidentified at a late hour and the list of injured was not yet disclosed.

Accident Victim Dies In Hospital

Following an accident Thursday morning, Ellsworth Stoddard, 9 Moneghan Road, died in Nicholls Hospital Monday morning, at the age of 79. He has lived in Peterborough for four years, coming here from Victoria Harbor, near Midland, Ontario.

Mr. Stoddard, who was an employee of the Peterborough Lumber Company, was born in Munro, Michigan, the son of the late Walter Stoddard and Jane Baumwert. A member of the Presbyterian church, he was an elder at St. Paul's Presbyterian church in Victoria Harbor. He was educated at Saginaw, Michigan.

Mr. Stoddard leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife, Maude Wilson, Earl W. Stoddard, of Toronto, and Captain C. W. Stoddard, who is serving with the Royal Canadian Artillery, overseas; also surviving are a brother, Maurice, and two sisters, Alice, and Mayme, all of Saginaw, Michigan.

The body rested at the J. J. Duffus Funeral Home overnight, but left this morning for Victoria Harbor, where the funeral service will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, at St. Paul's Presbyterian church. Interment will be in Victoria Harbor cemetery.

MONTREAL, Jan. 9 — (CP). — Ross Munro, on furlough in Canada after six months with the Allied invasion forces in Europe, was named president of the newly-formed Canadian Press War Correspondents' Association at a week-end meeting of eight news-writers who have served overseas.

The asociation will facilitate the exchange of ideas between war correspondents in the field and the former correspondents who handle their cabled dispatches. Doug How, on leave from Italy, and Bill Stewart, assigned to the Pacific, attended.

Mr. Clemons added he expected to visit England this spring at Mr. Hudson's invitation to discuss the plan with Britain cattlemen.

Eire Minister Sets Forth 3-Point Plan

By J. H. MURDOCH
Canadian Press Correspondent

DUBLIN, Jan. 9.—(CP). — Sean Lemass, generally considered Eire's most energetic and business-like cabinet minister, has advanced this three-point prescription for increasing prosperity and raising the standard of living:

1. Harder work by all;
2. Increased efficiency and lower production costs in industry;
3. Increased methods of agricultural production.

The 45 year old minster of supplies and industry, speaking before an unusually large number of diplomats including J. D. Kearney, Canadian High Commissioner, emphasized that Eire will have to make a tremendous effort if she is to maintain her present position in the important British market.

"We must not shirk the facts," he said. "During the war we have lost much of our precarious hold on the British market for our agricultural produce, which was the main basis of our external trade in the past.

"We will not regain our position easily, if at all, even if there are no political differences."

If the standard of living were to be raised, one prime requisite would be increased agricultural exports and only a "very big improvement" in production methods would give Eire a fighting chance against war-time developments of British and Dominion agriculture.

Inflation.

A sidelight of Eire's tendency toward inflation is given in the latest figures on the volume of money in the country.

In December, 1939, the notes and coin in circulation amounted to £19,293,611—about $86,821,250. In June, 1944, the total was £35,148,-661—an increase of £15,355,050.

Post office savings increased from December, 1939, to December, 1943, from £10,651,000 to £23,024,000 and other accounts in the banks grew from December, 1939, to June this year from £119,288,569 to £178,136,-265.

Thus the total increase under the three heading is £87,075,746—a tremendous sum for a population of less than 3,000,000 in five years.

The immediate effect on this wealth is that all kinds of stocks in the country are low and prices are high. Mr. Lemass mentioned this point in his recent speech.

British Troops Return From Burma Theatre

LONDON, Jan. 9 —(CP)— The first contingent of British troops from the Burma front arrived in London during the week-end on brief furloughs and sections of the press indignantly demanded this morning why they had not been given a proper welcome.

Only about 200 persons were on on hand to greet the troops when they arrived at the station, and there were no band and no flags flying.

Some relatives were frankly disappointed at the lack of fanfare, but the troops themselves seemingly shared the War Office view that they did not want any of the precious 28 days at home cut short by an official reception. Most were granted home leaves of 28 days on pleas they wanted to start raising families.

COUNCIL'S THANKS

One of the resolutions adopted by the council Monday was an expression of appreciation and thanks to the Rev. W. A. It was moved by Alderman Glover and seconded by Alderman Dodds.

The fourth call was received by the department at 12:04, from 414 McDonnel street, the home of J. Higgins.

BRIEF BAGS

A main street wag remarked Monday that there must be a lot of legal business centering around the vendor's shop on George street as suggested by the number of barristers carry their brief bags in and out; and further that these calls seem to coincide with receipts of best import such as Dewar's 'ne plus ultra" and Johnny Walker's "black label"; and furthermore that the professional grapevine seems to pass the word when the $6.65 stuff is likely to be on the shelves.

REPAIR

The snow loader stripped a gear in its work on Reid near Park street, Monday, and will be out of use for several days until a substitute part arrives. Board of Works men were doing the shovelling today along Park street in the vicinity of the C.G.E.

INVALIDED HOME

CHILD HIT BY TRUCK

Four-year-old Leonard Tobin escaped unhurt when he was struck and knocked down by a truck while crossing George street, south of Hunter street Monday. The truck owned by E. G. Braund was being driven south on George street when the child ran out in the street and was hit. The little fellow was taken into Greatrix's drug store and it was discovered that he had not been injured.

HEADS SOUTH

It may not have been the probabilities Monday of a new onset of cold weather that actuated Harry Zacks to shake the snow from his boots and belatedly follow the swallows, but during the day he bought himself some yards of ticket for Florida and left on the late afternoon train for Toronto to join a friend on their way to the south for the next six or eight weeks.

GOES TO ORILLIA

Ross Payne, 265 Aberdeen avenue, a special investigator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board in Peteborough, will leave next week for Orillia, where he will be in charge of the sub-region W.P.T.B. office there. A former member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and one-time owner of Payne's Grill, this man has made splendid progress since joining the staff here, and superiors speak highly of his ability.

Council Ready For Ice Business

Unanimously the council Monday night took another first step, quite decisively agreeing that Peterborough shall have an adequate supply of ice next summer.

Too many families are yet dependent on house to house sale and delivery. Few refrigerators will come to the market from manufacturing plants this year.

Ice is an imperative need for the safeguarding of domestic milk storage, and that means for the small children of the city.

So, if other expedients fail, the council on Alderman Dutton's motion, seconded by Alderman Swanston, authorized City Engineer Parsons "to take the necessary steps" to remove the snow from the Curtis pond as a facility in nature's making of ice.

Alderman Glover said an arrangement might be made with Canada Packers for a supply of artificially produced ice next summer, but if its water was drawn directly from the lake, the council preferred to get the Curtis ice.

Alderman Dutton remarked that the ice-cutting operations would engage all the Board of Works men for a week.

City Engineer Parsons—"Or ten days at the least."

Council's opinion was that the need of ice would be just as pressing as last summer. "If there is any difference," said Alderman Glover, "it will be worse."

People Come First

The attitude of the council was simply that even if the city did lose some money in the ice business, the municipality itself was not going to take a chance on leaving Peterborough mothers and their babies without ice during the heat of five or six months this year.

Alderman Bradburn enquired about the deficit last year. Alderman Glover estimated it at about $1,200 "but we learned a lot about a business we did not know when we went into it."

The need of ice is regarded at the city hall as a wartime emergency which should be faced by the municipality and not leave to chance a matter involving health, especially the health of Peterborough children.

WINS PROMOTION—Mr. and Mrs. T. Wallace, 527 Sherbrooke street, have received word that their son, T. S. Wallace, who has been stationed in Sandhurst, England, for a year, has been promoted to Lieutenant. Lieut. Stanley Mitchell, was recently invalided home from overseas.

Hospital Ship Carries 500 Men

HALIFAX, Jan. 9—(CP).—Her wards laden with hundreds of Canadian service personnel, the British hospital ship Llandovery Castle arrived here today at the end of her first Transatlantic trip of the war with invalided Canadians. The ship was expected to dock this afternoon.

More than 400 army men alone were on board—12 officers and 403 other ranks—and the vessel also carried men of the other services. They were to disembark today and start immediately for their homes, most of them going aboard special hospital trains at the dockside.

Arrival of the big ship will mark the first time a general reception for soldiers has been held here. Army authorities have made arrangements for men from military district No. 6—Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island—to be met by relatives at the district depot here. Brig. D. A. White, district officer commanding, issued invitations to relatives and friends to attend a welcoming ceremony for the returned fighting men.

It will be the Llandovery Castle's first trip here with Canadian casualties. The bulk of Canada's invalided servicemen have been returned home aboard the Canadian hospital ships Lady Nelson and the Letitia and the British hospital ship Ada.

C.G.E. Donations Now Make Total Of $8,389

It was only natural that at Christmastide, one's thoughts would particularly be directed towards the special gift that was being raised at that time through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, this being the chiefest concern of the moment, to which the employees at the Canadian General Electric Co., Ltd., and Genelco, Ltd., had a share in to the extent of $1,016.59.

What perhaps was lost sight of at that time, was that in so doing they thereby were raising their total for the whole period that the fund had been in operation, by quite a considerable margin.

Another gift from one of the groups within these industrial plants brings this to the forefront, and makes it possible to now give them an overall credit of $8,389.54, which is over 83 per cent. of the suggestion made on a number of occasions that they might yet attain a credit ultimately of $10,000 in this one phase of local activity on behalf of the war effort.

This latest gift credited in today's receipts, comes from the Instrument Laboratory, where R. M. Hanscom is the supervisor, and it should not be difficult to visualize that if all 42 different department or groups would take a hand on the same per capita basis as this one, the suggested objective which needs another $1,610.46 to complete, might very well be realized.

The penny box at the Canadian Bank of Commerce had one of its periodical collections on Monday, and this realized another $6.60 to its credit, following many others of varying amounts within the same vicinity.

Then the proceeds of a draw for which tickets were sold by Annie Blackburn for a corner bracket made and donated by E. Lush are also credited in an amount of $2.05 today. These had been sold at 5 cents each, and when the draw was made by Miss Eileen Schoales of the Examiner staff, the prize went to Mr. Ketcheson of 378 Queen street.

$500 In Prizes At Lions' Bingo

Comfortable benches with backs on them are being built by members of the Lions Club who are working every night this week preparing for the second mammoth bingo which is to be held at the Brock Street Summer Gardens next Monday evening.

Realizing the importance of providing comfortable seats the Lions have gone to considerable expense to secure seats that will meet the approval of the women bingo players in particular.

At the regular meeting of the club on Monday night, final plans were made, and it was announced that the major prize would be a six-piece living room suite which includes a beautiful chesterfield, chairs and the other usual essentials to furnish the modern living room. Other unusual prizes among the 26 include a cedar chest, telephone set (chair and table), a pair of genuine Hudson Bay blankets, and a Cogswell style chair. Prizes cost $500.

At the first mammoth bingo held a few weeks ago, more than 1000 people attended and accommodation is being provided for 1,800 patrons next Monday.

ARRIVES IN CANADA—A Marmora boy, Sgmn. W. Revoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Revoy, has returned from overseas. He is shown here with his little daughter, Marie, who is waiting with her mother in England, to make the trip to Canada. Sgmn. Revoy was sent home because of a lowered category.

PTE. GARNET THOMPSON

Legion On Hand To Welcome War Casualty

NORWOOD, Jan. 9.—(ENS). — Pte. Garnet Thompson was met at the station by members of the Canadian Legion and the liasion officer of the Red Cross and members of the Women's Institute following his return on the hospital ship Letitia from overseas. At Ottawa the boys were met by the mayor and a brass band and many civilians.

Pte. Thompson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Thompson, Belmont road, and spent 1½ years in the Canadian Infantry Corps in Canada. Four days after D-Day he went to France, joining the Nova Scotia Highlanders. He was in the battle of Caen as a dispatch rider, and since it was his first battle, he said he was pretty shaky. In Caen a lot of the German people dressed as civilians to get behind their lines and mostly to keep from being taken prisoner, and the French people would point them out, he declared.

Pte. Thompson was first wounded at the village of Buron, a few miles from Caen, on July 8. The regiment left Laizon, crossing a wheat field to Buron, and as they crossed an anti-tank ditch the Huns were throwing mortars and heavy artillery shells. A machine-gunner from a second-story window put a bullet through his arm above his elbow. He spent an hour and a half in a slit trench before the shelling was over enough to walk 200 yards, and the padre from the Highland Light Infantry took him in a jeep to a first aid post. The same day he was taken on a tank landing barge to England. The care was excellent and the men were in the best of spirits, the nurses doing their best to make their stay in hospital pleasant. He saw Princess Elizabeth in Edinburgh.

He returned to action September 9, going to Boulogne, where there were few casualties. From here they went to Belgium, stopping in the city of Ghent where they had a good time for four days. Three of the days he visited Martha Vervaet and her family. People have greenhouses at the back of their homes starting flowers for the front yard, and the houses are much like our Canadian homes, he declared.

Under cover of darkness he went to Schelde estuary in Holland. The people wear wooden shoes in the homes and shoes like Canadians wear for dancing. Here he met a man from Simcoe whose family had moved back to Holland in 1937. His family had a tobacco farm here.

Pte. Thompson was again wounded on October 18 while driving a universal carrier. All morning they saw no Germans, but after dinner as they were singing along the road they hit a bomb mine and the driver, 1½ feet in front of him, was killed. Pte. Thompson was knocked unconscious, and woke up six hours later in a hospital in Antwerp. The next day he was flown to England where the head wounds were taken care of.

He left about the 30th of November for a transit depot where he waited until he was brought home on the Letitia. Home on a 30-day leave, he will report to Ottawa for further orders.

Flying Priests

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Jan. 9. —(CP).—The airplane is about to take a permanent place as a carrier of the gospel in Canada's Arctic. Most Rev. Marc Lacroix, 38-year-old bearded oblate bishop of Hudson Bay, has taken the first step in a plan under which missionary priests will learn to fly and will take an intensive course leading to a degree in aeronautical engineering.

Vern Tarkington Stretcher Case

The youngest of 40 stretcher cases to arrive at Chorley Park Military Hospital, Toronto, over the weekend, 19-year-old Pte. Vern Tarkington is expected to remain in hospital for several months, his parents Mr. and Mrs. H. Tarkington, 222 Wolfe street, said today.

"He's in the best of spirits and is so glad to be back in Canada. I have been terribly worried about him, but after seeing him in Toronto and the wonderful care he is getting, we all feel he is in good hands," his mother declared.

Pte. Tarkington, who was only in action two months before he became a casualty, is paralyzed from the hips down as a result of a bullet wound in the hip. His arm wound is healing nicely and, although he was hit by shrapnel in the mouth, work done in a Canadian plastics hospital overseas, has obliterated any traces of that injury.

The young soldier was serving as a reinforcement to the Black Watch Regiment after it suffered severe casualties in July, and in October he became seriously ill as a result of wounds he had received. Prior to enlisting, Pte. Tarkington worked in the Induction Motors at the C.G.E.

Week Of Prayer Services Begin In City

In ordinary life and speech, we need to pray for a deeper sense of reverence, declared Rev. Dr. James Semple, of George Street United Church, who preached Monday evening at the opening service of the Week Of Prayer, held in Murray Street Baptist Church. Dr. Semple's theme was, "Hallowed Be Thy Name".

He said that in the religious world, there is an irreverent familiarity with God. "Think of the way some religious people talk about God . . . you would think that He was their half-brother, and that they knew everything about him."

Dr. Semple said he had heard these people talk about Him as if He were a particular pal of theirs, and that He passed on to them His special revelations. "Such people have a 'Little God'".

"If only such people could see God in the Transcendent Light of His Holiness, they would be so filled with awe they would cry out like Peter, 'Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord'".

Why all this irreverence? Dr. Semple outlined that too great familiarity with the sordid and unclean contributes, conceit, which has not sense of God, and therefore no reverence, intellectual conceit, and practical Atheism.

"How shall we hallow God's name? By cherishing worthy ideas of God; let us have the mind and spirit of our Lord when we think of God! We shall hallow God's name by the trustfulness of our life, and by our obedience. Obey God in the home, society, political life."

Dr. Semple warned against the careless way the Lord's Prayer is used. "Milton, Bunyon, and Fox warned against the peril of printed prayers. The Independants in England even rejected the Lord's Prayer . . . there is a danger of becoming too common by constant repetition. If the Lord's Prayer is not a form, it is a norm", he said.

Pointing out the importance of names to the Hebrews, Dr. Semple said in the ancient Hebrew usage, the name of God signified the Revealed Character of God. In their prayers, the Jews were wont to couple the Hallowing of God's name and the coming of His Kingdom. So, the meaning of this petition would be evident to all who Jesus taught. Dr. Semple stressed two things: The Lord's Prayer was the religion Jesus lived and taugh, and the Lord's Prayer could be called the Creed of God. "Observe that the glory of God, not human need, it put first, "Hallowed Be Thy Name".

"It is a prayer that God may be rightly worshipped, and its utterance is in itself an act of worship", he said.

Rev. W. A. Filer of All Saints Church offered prayer and Rev. H. J. Sutcliffe, who presided at the service, sang a solo, "I Know Of A Name".

Council Hears Book Appeal

Welcomed by Mayor Hamilton "as our first visitor this year," Mrs. A. W. Turner appealed to the council Monday night for assistance to the I.O.D.E. in their undertaking to supply books for the men on active service overseas and in the camps at home.

Mrs. Turner said she represented the seven Chapters of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire in Peterborough. Their national organization is planning to raise this month $300,000 for the purchase of suitable books for the men of the army, navy and air force. The I.O.D.E. has already distributed books to the value of $2,000,000 since the beginning of the war. The Peterborough objective is $5,000. The local Chapters are planning a big bingo toward the end of the month from which they expect to obtain at least $1,000, and they are also hoping for $1,500 from citizens comprising a list of special names.

Mrs. Turner did not ask for any specific amount from the council, and Mayor Hamilton promised "the consideration your request deserves." The request was not discussed Monday night, but the council is meeting again next Monday night.

Corporal Roper, accompanying Mrs. Turner, said that a great many of the books which are received as contributions from the public are unattractive to the men and have an effect of turning men from the camp libraries instead of drawing their interest.

At the same time the men in the services in Canada and overseas "were hungry for books."

SERVING OVERSEAS — Pte. Kenneth J. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Anderson, 94 Gladstone avenue, is stationed overseas. He enlisted in March, 1944, and prior to that had been an employee in the Wire Department at the CGE. The young soldier is 20 years old.

John B. Nelson To Inspect Credit Unions

Appointment of John B. Nelson, secretary of the Ontario Milk Control Board, as inspector and supervisor of Credit Unions for Ontario, is announced today by Agriculture Minister Kennedy. A statement said that the position is a new one made necessary by the rapid expansion of the Credit Union movement in Ontario in the last two or three years.

Mr. Nelson graduated from the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph in 1924 and spent 10 years as agricultural representative in the counties of Huron, Gray and Peterborough where he was particularly interested in cooperative organization work. Then he joined the dairy branch of the Department of Agriculture and became first secretary of the Milk Control Board.

SPR. H. KEITH STEWART

Injured Sapper Getting Better

Spr. H. Keith Stewart who has been serving overseas with the Royal Canadian Engineers, is in hospital in England due to a back injury which he received some time ago. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Stewart, Port Hope Highway.

The young soldier was first taken to a hospital in Belgium in October, then two weeks later, he was removed by plane to a Canadian hospital in England, where he spent the next two weeks on a fracture board. Spr. Stewart is improving slowly and is now able to be up a short time each day. Before enlisting, he worked in the refrigerator department of the C.G.E.

Coal Dealers Report Few Unfilled Orders

There has been no large accumulation of unfilled orders a small survey of Peterborough coal dealers disclosed today. In Toronto coal dealers have 30,000 unfilled orders and Monday evening appealed to outside trucks and help.

In Peterborough, coal dealers questioned said the best thing to do to sped delivery even more, is to be sure lanes and pathways are free of snow. In some cases, dealers had a few unfilled orders, but this was described as general during cold weather.

In Toronto, unless outside help is obtained. It will take the rest of the winter just to handle accumulated orders, it was claimed.

Right Setting

Council Gets Bill For $1,375.91

What to do with a letter from North Monaghan respecting, presumably, counter-accounts in the matter of the recently effective annexation, gave the council "some pause" Monday night.

At its previous meeting the council decided to pay the account of John R. Corkery for $560.40 for service rendered the city in the expansion of Peterborough's limits, and closely on the heels of that disposal came a letter from Bruce Johnston of North Monaghan advising that the township had received an annexation bill from its solicitor, F. D. Kerr, K.C., in the amount of $1,375.91.

After the council had become accustomed to the simple idea of a bill in the four figures, Mayor Hamilton enquired what the members wished to do about it.

Alderman Sands—"Do they (Monaghan) suggest we had any liability for this bill?"

Mayor Hamilton—"Maybe not in exact words, but when anybody sends you a bill there is the implication of liability, especially in this matter with Monaghan."

Alderman Cotton—Tell them it's not our responsibility.

Alderman Mark, blandly and something that was either innocence or guile, either greatly amusing the members of the council—"Tell them we are at a loss to know why this letter was sent to us."

That phrasing seemed to appeal to Mayor Hamilton. "You can put it that way if you wish."

Alderman Ovens—"Mr. Shaver (City Treasurer) says we'll pay 80 per cent of that bill anyway; they'll take it as a liability in the settlement that has to be made. I suppose against any assets we may have down there."

Oppose Payment

Alderman Bradburn—"What about accounts incurred by them before they came to the stage of annexation. They started the action in the first place, and there were probably various costs from time to time; we shouldn't assume any part of them."

Alderman Dutton—"I like that suggestion of Alderman Mark."

Alderman Glover—"Why do anything about it. I'd say nothing and do nothing."

Finally and with some concern for amenity it was decided to send back the F. D. Kerr bill, leaving City Clerk Outram to compose something smoothly evasive, and to say that the council was at a loss to understand the circumstances of receiving the bill and so, generally to the effect that the council was opposed to paying any more annexation accounts.

Taxi Driver Is Fined $100

Possession of two bottles of liquor when he was arrested by the local police early Sunday morning proved costly for Arnold Cameron, Toronto taxi driver.

In police court Monday Cameron had pleaded guilty to illegal possession of the liquor, and at the suggestion of Magistrate Langley, was remanded until today in order to give the police a chance to communicate with Toronto authorities.

"I was not impressed with his story of how he obtained the liquor," Magistrate Langley explained this morning, "and I thought possibly the Toronto police might want him in connection with liquor charges."

Chief Thompson stated that the local police had been in communication with Toronto, and that the authorities there had no liquor charges against him.

Magistrate Langley imposed a fine of $100 and $2.50 costs with the alternative of a month in jail. The fine was paid.

Former Peterboro Boy Decorated In Italy

Technical Sgt. Francis J. Dunlay of Grosse Pointe, Mich., formerly of Peterborough, has been presented with the Bronze Star for meritorious service in support of combat operations on the 5th Army front in Italy. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Dunlay, formerly of Hastings.

"Dunlay, a member of a staff section of a field artillery group, assisted in the direction of artillery air observation posts. He was instrumental in speeding the processing of fire direction information along to lower units. His work was of inestimable value to the staff during combat."

C.N.R. Officials Confer With Council

A. A. Gardiner of Montreal, head of the passenger service of the Canadian National Railways, who was guest speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon, discussed with several members of the council in the afternoon the prospects of improving the railway connections out of Peterborough.

For the present there are none—that is prospects. Canada's railways have become bound by their wartime business and extremely national contribution in the transportation of all kinds of supplies and troops. No additional equipment is available for the development of any better arrangements for Peterborough at the present time.

Mayor Hamilton has been trying to conceive some way of improving traffic outlets and also inlets from Peterborough, both east and west, and especially to Ottawa and Montreal by way of Port Hope.

Mr. Gardiner and his C.N.R. associates chatted with members of the council at the Peterborough Club Monday afternoon and then made several calls on the management of some of the industries.

Mr. Gardiner, general passenger traffic manager for the entire C.N.R. system, was accompanied by A. M. Kirk, Toronto passenger traffic manager (Central region); C. W. Wells, Toronto, general freight agent (Central region); G. E. Smith, Toronto, divisional freight agent (Central region).

Meeting the C.N.R. delegation were Mayor Hamilton, and the past and present chairmen of the manufacturers committee, Aldermen Bradburn and Swanston; City Clerk Outram; D. E. Bell, C.N.R. agent in Peterborough; and Ed Ryan, uptown ticket agent. The discussion included some references to Peterborough's industrial prospects, and Mr. Gardiner was generally informed of the outlook for local development.

Combines Beat Campbellford 5-4

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 9—(CP).—In the second game here of the O.H.A. Junior B series Norwood-Hastings Combines defeated Campbellford 5-4 here last night. Pettigrew of Norwood scored four of the winners' goals.

Rambling Reporter

HE WAS GYPPED

He was a visitor in Peterborough today, and he was telling of how he purchased for the sum of $25, one of the famous Chihuahua hairless dogs while on a visit to Mexico some time ago. When full grown, the dogs are so small they can almost fit into a teacup. When he attempted to bring the critter into the United States, a scrutinizing border official looked hard at the dog, was torn by doubt, and finally declared it to be a 10-day-old fox terrier, with all its hair clipped off.

Few Indications Of Resistance Inside Germany

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

BERN, Jan. 9.—(AP).—New and possibly significant signs of anti-Nazi resistance appear to be springing up in Germany.

Due allowance must be made for the possibility that reports on conditions inside Germany are colored by enemy propaganda, but usually trustworthy private channels and German newspapers themselves give this picture:

The communists are the best organized and the most persistent element working for the overthrow of the Hitler regime. The need for food causes another large group to commit regular subversive acts against the Nazis. Fully pro-Allied organizations are almost non-existent.

The position of the industrialists who accepted and liked Hitler in the beginning is admitted to be obscure, but some sources say these business men now feel Hitler and the Nazis must go in the interests of shrewd manoeuvring that might bring a peace which would save German industrial production.

Imported slave labor forms the nearest thing to an underground as seen in other European countries. There are rumors that around 5,000 foreign workers are hiding in one forest district south of Frankfurt Am Main, and that they constantly raid village stores and rob farmers. Food rather than politics is apparently the main objective of these bands.

The communists, although well organized, are few in number. There are saiad to be not more than 200 in Berlin. They operate in twos and threes, never telephoning or writing and meeting only occasionally.

Unverified reports came across the border throughout December of disturbances in the Krupp factories by what was called a communist anti-Nazi ring. A number of workers, including some engineers, were said to have been arrested and six executed.

The lack of food and the difficulties of keeping a constant supply of coal running over bomb-shattered transport systems also are expected to cut down production by German war factories.

Bombing has not seriously affected the coal mines, writes the Berlin correspondent of the Bern newspaper Der Bund, but it is destroying "enormous mountains" of coal awaiting transport.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK —By J. R. Scott

Librarian Stresses Difficulty Of Procuring New Volumes

Great difficulty experienced in obtaining books for the Public Library after orders are placed was stressed in the annual report by F. M. DelaFosse, Librarian, covering progress made during the past year at the Library.

It has been almost impossible to get books from England, he said, and the rate of exchange prevents the Library from getting as many volumes by good authors from the United States, as it would like.

Much delay in receiving the books from the publishers after being ordered, was pointed out. This delay was attributed to transportation difficulties.

The report said that with the abnormal conditions which have confronted every business during the past five years, it is satisfactory to note that considerable interest is still being taken in reading in the community by adults and children. It is not only in the matter of borrowing books from the Library, but in the questions asked of the staff, and in the larger use of the suggestion book that a gratifying interest has been noticeable, it continued.

The report said:—

"We have been told that the Library should get more copies of well-known books. In answer to this it can only be said that we have limited funds at our command and the large patronage extended to the Library makes it impossible to do better than we are doing if the interests of the public are to be properly served. Every reader has his own taste in reading and we try to cater to as many as possible. It would be hardly fair therefore to devote a great deal of money on a few books at the expense of depriving the general public of a chance of seeing a wider range of authors to choose from."

"It has to be borne in mind also that the great bulk of books in Canada is carried by agents of well-known publishers and not by the publishers themselves, nine tenths of whom are situated in the U.S. and the balance in the British Isles. If people will only take all the facts into consideration they will realise that we are fortunate in getting as many volumes as we do. Our books are ordered every month and care is always taken to see that several of the best books of each month are listed."

Here are other interesting items as reported by Mr. DelaFosse:

Circulation of Books

Although there has been a falling off in the reading of History, Philosophy, Religion and Sociology, the decrease has been very slight, and there has been an upward tendency noticeable in subjects that have not seemed to find as much demand as they deserve.

Reading Rooms

The reading rooms have been patronized as well as ever, according to the report, although there have been occasional complaints about the lack of proper lighting, especially in the stack room, the Ladies' Reading Room, and over the centre table.

Repair of Books

During 1944, a total of 1,760 books were repaired in the Library, which is a very satisfactory showing, when all the help that could be obtained was made use of during the holiday season.

Registration

The three-year term of registration closed in 1944, for the adult department, and in that period, the total number of borrowers was 3,-878. A total of 878 men and women were registered in 1944. In the Juvenile Department, 945 boys and girls registered last year.

Here is a list of the adult books in their various classes, and the summary of their circulation during 1944. Circulation of the previous year is given for purposes of comparison.

The last two items in the 1944 column were not counted in former years.

Included in the report submitted by Mr. DelaFosse, was an excerpt of the chief features in Miss Lilian Wesley's report, dealing with the Juvenile Department, during 1944.

It stated that in the past year, 945 new members were added to the roll, and that circulation increased by 1,290 over the former year. At the end of 1944, there were 6,493 books in the Juvenile Department.

During the year, 60 books were sent to Mrs. Thompson for the Dixon Community Centre library and 30 books were sent to Miss Munro, at Queen Elizabeth School, to supplement her school library.

Much was accomplished in washing and repairing picture books and primers during the year. An increasing number of teachers and Normal School students made use of the Library's pictures, finding them very useful. A total of 183 new pictures were added in 1944. The number of books cancelled was 409, including those sent to Miss Munro and Mrs. Thompson.

Here is the circulation summary for Juvenile Books:

In addition to the books already mentioned as being distributed for educational purposes in the city, a carton of 50 books, discards from the Library shelves, was sent on request to the Guelph Reformatory, for the service of the inmates.

Over 100 registrations were reported at the Dixon Community Centre, which clearly indicates the interest taken in books by residents of the Community section. Mrs. Thompson, the report continued, has labored most assiduously in helping the Library to provide library facilities for the tenents of the Centre. Mrs. Thompson sent in a report covering the work accomplished during the past year.

Notwithstanding the constant changes in tenents in the various houses, there has not been any diminution of interest in the matter of getting books, the report verified.

During the year, 46 open days were held, and in that time, a total circulation of 3,874 was recorded. The average circulation during the school year was 96, but this dropped to 57 during the summer months.

Mr. DelaFosse said, in concluding his report, "The entire staff of the Library suffered the loss of a great friend of the Library in the recent death of Dr. H. R. H. Kenner. He had been a member of the Board since its inception in 1910, and had always proved most assiduous in every movement that tended to the betterment of conditions for the personell engaged in the work of serving the public, and in the work itself."

"On their behalf, and on my own, I wish to place on record at this time an expression of our great sympathy with the members of his family, and of our regret at the loss the whole city has sustained in his passing."

Weed Inspection Left For City Engineer

The community detail of weed inspection was brushed off by the council Monday night by formally and officially naming City Engineer Parsons for that responsibility, and leaving him to deputize whomever he wished. There may have been many but at least there were quite a number of plots of weeds which flourished all summer and yielded a big crop of seeds. The evasions were not exactly neglected. The city apparently has not men enough to get around to the weed nuisance; just as in the country farmers have been looking at more lush and luxuriant crops of roadside weeds these last few wartime summers and for many years, but the municipalities are short of help, and the weeds are flourishing in their immunity.

Liquor Offences

duty calls from local factories.

Twenty-three fire alarms were responded to by the Police Department, several false alarms, and some of the culprits were arrested and dealt with in court.

"Thirty-one houses were looked after by the members of the Police Department during the summer when the owners were away on vacation, and all were reported to be correct when the owners returned to the city.

"Three hundred and nine accidents were reported and investigated, of which two were fatal.

One death was reported and investigated by the Police Department in the city.

Eighty-seven persons were injured in automobile accidents.

Twenty-two persons were injured by other than automobiles.

Nine hundred and twenty-eight dog tags were sold and $2,034 collected for these dog tags.

Six hundred and ninety-seven persons were given shelter at the Police Station during the year.

Three New Men

"Owing to the large portion of North Monaghan Township being annexed into the city on January 1, 1945, I wish to recommend to you gentlemen that three men be added to the present police force. I also recommend that an age limit be set of not over 30 years for any man who is taken on the police force.

"I also wish to draw your attention to the fact we have four men on the force who are temporary men. I wish to recommend that these four men be taken on as permanent members of the police force namely: Ernest Beatty, Andre Dalton, Reginald McMillan, and Allan Edmison. They are all very fine and efficient officers, and recomment them all very highly.

"I also recommend that a sum be set aside for the purpose of sending one constable to the spring course and one constable to the fall course at the Toronto Municipal Police School at Toronto, Ontario."

speaker said. In closing he stated that the churches represented the true feeling of the people toward their communities and stressed individual responsibility by quoting that "It isn't the town, it's you."

Dr. Watson moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WATCH ALL THE EXITS

SOMETIMES a bridge defender should be like a movie fan in the old-fashioned fire-trap theaters of years ago, who watched all the exits. He must be prepared to avoid being thrown into the lead at the dangerous time, and so must toss off entry cards with which the declarer could victimize him. So doing, he takes a chance of finding his partner with the next higher cards of certain suits, but if that is his only chance to set the contract he must take it.

After West restrained himself from bidding and then led the club 4 to the 9 and J, he realized he had end-played himself to the extent of one trick on the opening lead, and determined to avoid doing it any more if possible. South made West take the second diamond trick, and then West led the heart Q, hoping South would not have the 10 there and so gain another trick from the lead.

That was taken with the K, then two diamonds were scored, West getting rid of his heart J and 6 to increase the chance of East winning whatever the side won there. The declarer next finessed the spade J, and West won with the Q, whereupon the 9 was a safe exit card, the A winning. South was licked now. He couldn't help losing two clubs and a heart trick.

South could not have fixed West if he had, after the heart return, taken a second heart and then tried to throw West in with a third heart. West would have put his J on an honor, so East could have won the third heart and come back through the club K. But after West discarded two hearts on diamonds, South could have taken two top spades and thrown West in with the J to the Q. The latter then would have had to give South his ninth trick with a club lead to the K. But if West had thrown one club and his heart J, holding a heart, even this could not have worked. The small heart could have put East in after West won the spade Q.

Mother Of 31 Faces Murder Charge

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 9 (CP)—Police said a charge of murder has been laid against Mrs. Margaret Jean Campbell, 31, in the death of her four-month-old son, James Frederick Charles Campbell, found strangled to death Sunday night in his mother's home. The woman was to be arraigned in police court today.

The baby's body was found last night by Dr. A. J. Grace, who had been treating the mother for a heart condition. He was called to the home by Mrs. Campbell's father, D. Macdonald, whose home is two blocks from the Campbell residence.

Dr. A. R. Routledge, coroner, said Mrs. Campbell was separated from her husband, James Campbell, who was serving overseas with the Canadian Army when the baby was born.

"Mrs. Campbell took some capsules of—what composition we don't know—before going to bed Saturday night," said Dr. Routledge. "She took the baby out of a crib in the bedroom and placed it in bed with herself. She was awakened sometime during the night by the baby crying...."She told me that 'something seemed to tell me to choke the baby to death. She then apparently placed the baby's body in the crib and went back to bed again. She did not awaken until nine o'clock Saturday night. She told me she went to the crib and kissed the baby. When he found it stiff and cold, she realized that it was dead. She then went to her father's home."

GERMANY GETS TASTE OF WAR ON HER HOME FRONT—Our eyes have ached from looking at scenes like this in war-torn countries over which the Germans have rode roughshod. But this one is different. This is Germany. Scene is the city of Saarlautern in Germany's Saar area. American infantrymen are patrolling a street—or what is left of one.

Greeks Fleeing Before British

ATHENS, Jan. 9—(AP)—British troops, having cleared Athens of E.L.A.S. forces after a month of civil strife within the city, drove the retreating leftwing militia deeper into the hills west and northeast of the caital Monday.

While cannon-firing R.A.F. planes shot up retreating E.L.A.S. columns, British armored units clashed yesterday with one leftwing rearguard in the Elevsis area, 15 miles west of Athens. Sixty-three of the group were killed and 44 captured.

The British Commander, Lt.-Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, announced that truce terms had been withdrawn and that the British would insist that any future negotiations must be predicated upon fair treatment for British prisoners held by the E.L.A.S.

During the week-end, Premier Gen. Nicholas Plastiras added two members to his new government, designating John Macropoulos as Minister of Agriculture and Prof. C. Amandos as Minister of Education. Neither are members of E.A.M. (National Liberation Front) Party with which the E.L.A.S. is affiliated.

*PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 9—(AP).—A church here decided to let the neighborhood enjoy its choir. So it acquired a microphone and rigged up loudspeakers outside the church. # Bulldozer Reaches Snowbound Hamlet

HAMILTON, Jan. 9 — (CP). — A huge Highways Department bulldozer making its way to snowbound Blackheath, 18 miles south-east of here, Sunday night looked like a "million dollars" to Carl Goldy, whose father operates a general store at Blackheath.

The 150-family-strong locality, snow-blitzed for 25 days, for the last week had been completely cut off from supplies.

"Boy, a million dolars coming right at you couldn't look any better,' said Goldy.

"We had just eaten the last bit of meat. It was cold lunch and we were down to that for Sunday supper. We've had no mail or bread for a week. No bus has been over the road from Hamilton for the same time."

In the Binbrook area, three miles nearer Hamilton, 330 families were said to have been liberated by the bulldozer as it pushed through to Blackheath. The bulldozer was the first motor vehicle on the road for more than a week.

Dr. John A. Dobbie Dies In Ottawa

OTTAWA, Jan. 9 — (CP) — Dr. John A. Dobbie, former superintendent of Ottawa Civic Hospital and Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of the Masonic Order in Ontario, collapsed and died on Saturday night on the street outside his home.

Dr. Dobbie, a private physician in Ottawa for many years, became assistant superintendent of the hospital in 1927, and was appointed superintendent in 1939, holding the post until 1942, when he resigned because of ill-health.

Survivors include two sisters, Miss Isobel Dobbie of Victoria and Miss J. Grace Dobbie of Ottawa. Funeral services wil be held here Tuesday, with burial at Guelph, Ontario.

Resent Use Of Flag

Tie-up Looms On West Coast

VANCOUVER, Jan. 9 — (CP). — A possible complete tie-up of the lower British Columbia mainland transportation yesterday hinged on acceptance by the National War Labor Board and the 2,700 workers involved of a compromise proposal offered the workers Sunday night by the British Columbia Electric company. The stalemate in a labor dispute has left Vancouver Island without bus transportation for its third day.

Charles M. Stewart, representing the Street Railwaymen's Union (A.F.L.), said that should the board reject the compromise solution, the strike goes into effect even should the workers, voting yesterday, favor the proposal.

"Only a National Board acceptance and a favorable vote by the street railway men combined can avert a strike," he said. Results of the voting—here, at Victoria and New Westminster— were expected to be available last night, and the board's reply was expected sometime yesterday.

It was learned that the company offered the workers a 4½-cent overall wage increase and several minor wage adjustments in various categories of workers and to withdraw its cross appeal from the National War Labor Board provided the union would agree to settlement of the dispute based on a regional War Labor Board ruling of several months ago.

Held For Slaying British Diplomat

ATTLEBRIDGE, England, Jan. 9—(CP)—Maj. Brockus, trial judge advocate, told a United States army court to-day that the late Sir Eric Teichman, British diplomat, was killed by an army carbine owned by Pte. George E. Smith, Jr., of Pittsburg, and that Smith had said, "I should have shot him again."

Smith, 28, pleaded innocent of the slaying of the 60 year old former counsellor of the British embassy in Chungking. Sir Eric was found dead in a clump of bushes on his estate early Dec. 4.

Maj. Brockus said if Smith is found guilty the only possible penalties would be death or life imprisonment.

In his opening statement Brockus said the evidence would show that Smith and Pte. Leonard Wojtacha of Detroit, who is charged with being an accessory, had gone on a private hunting expedition Sunday, Dec. 3 and were firing at a squirrel in a tree on Sir Eric's estate.

He asserted Smith fired one shot at an elderly gentleman who approached them and that Wojtacha saw the man fall.

"Drunk With Power"

Expects Robots In America Within 60 Days

AN EAST COAST U.S PORT, Jan. 9 (AP)—Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, commander-in-chief of the United States Atlantic Fleet said enemy robot bomb action against New York and other Atlantic coast points "is possible and probable within the next 30 or 60 days, but effective steps to meet this threat have been taken."

"If such an attempt is made," Admiral Ingram told a press conference, "it would probably be limited to 10 or 12 bombs. These would not be of the 'block-buster' type. They might strike a building and destroy it, but the casualties would be nothing like those which the people of London are suffering under."

Ingram continued: "The Nazis have been threatening to launch robot bombs along our east coast. Since war was declared, the Germans have been attempting to cut the flow of supplies from the United States to Africa and Europe.

"They have failed. They will fail again. For no matter what weapon the enemy may use we will hound him until he has been driven completely from the Atlantic."

Asked if his visit to the east coast port was due to the possibility of a robot bomb attack, the admiral replied: "I can say 'yes.'"

Ingram said he could not divulge the steps which have been taken to thwart a buzz-bombing of New York and said his statement regarding a possible attack was based on his own experience with the enemy.

Discussing the campaign against submarines, Ingram said that Nazi U-boats no longer were much of a menace.

"I cannot divulge the nature of the weapons we used or when and where or how many submarines have been sunk, but I can say that submarines now have little chance for effective operation," he said.

Princess Alice Visits Galt Wrens

GALT, Jan. 9 — (CP) — Princess Alice, honorary commandant of the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service, Sunday visited H.M.C.S. Conestoga, Wren training ship here, and attended a "rating-up" ceremony when 150 probationary Wrens became full fledged members of the service.

Accompanied by Cmdr. Adelaide Sinclair, director of the Wrens, she took the salute from the quarterdeck after five divisions of Wrens had marched before the commanding officer, Cmdr. Isabel Macneill of Halifax, and had been formally granted advancement.

During "commodore's rounds"—inspection of the ship—Princess Alice showed keen interest in every phase of the establishment from beauty parlor, where Leading Wren Lily Sage of North Bay, Ont., was presented to her, to the stokehold and boiler room.

British Columns Nearing Mandalay

KANDY, Ceylon, Jan. 9 — (CP-Reuters). — Two columns of Lt.-Gen. Sir William Slim's British 14th Army were today closing in Shwebo, next big town on their way to Mandalay, capital of northern Burma. The leading column was four miles northeast of the town, putting it 54 miles from the capital itself. The other drive was nine miles northwest of Shwebo.

Other Allied troops driving on Mandalay along the Yeu Spur-Line were poised to capture Budalin, 35 miles southwest of Yeu. The railhead town of Yeu was raided by 20 Japanese aircraft but no damage was reported.

Stiffer Japanese resistance met the British troops in Arakan after their captured of Akyab. The Japanese were probably struggling to keep open the only escape route left open to them in the Kaladan area.

The Japanese also put up a stiff battle against Lt.-Gen. Daniel Sultan's Chinese units in the northern combat area nine miles south of Tonkwa.

Mustard helps relieve SINUS SUFFERER

"From my girlhood I suffered a lot with sinus trouble," Mrs. B. Adams of Regina, Saskatchewan, stated, "The pain was so bad I could scarcely bear it. Then I discovered a weak, mustard poultice on my forehead helped me secure immediate relief. I use ¼ teaspoon of mustard and 2 teaspoons of flour. Now, at the first sign of pain I rush for the can of mustard. It helps provide relief in a very short time!" Special care should always be taken to make sure a mustard poultice used to relieve sinus pain, does not come in contact with the eyes.

Mrs. Adams is only one of hundreds of thousands of Canadians, who have learned first hand, how effective mustard in bath or poultice form proves in alleviating any pain where heat treatment is indicated for comfort. All across the Dominion, sufferers of pain from rheumatism, arthritis, neuralgia, and neuritis have found out that mustard poultices or mustard baths help bring quick, lasting relief from agonizing pain.

Mustard Aids in Treating Colds, Too

Whenever a cold threatens to set in, the quick, reliable help is the mustard treatment. Mustard may be safely used to help treat chest congestion, chills, bronchitis, and many similar types of winter complaints and infections. Mustard baths and foot baths speed up circulation, and help ward off chills and infections. And mustard poultices act as effective stop-signals to help halt many progressing illnesses. Never leave on a mustard poultice more than twenty minutes.

When symptoms are serious, be sure to call your doctor.

1ST ARMY WINS GREAT TANK BATTLE

Allies Drive Inland On Luzon Nab Bridgehead 15 Miles Long

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ADVANCED COMMAND, Jan. 10 — (AP). — Tens of thousands of American troops, landing with Gen. MacArthur yesterday in Lingayen Gulf on western Luzon Island, drove tank-led columns south across flatlands toward Manila today in the showdown fight for the Philippines.

Manila was less than 120 miles away through low, dry country excellently suited for the enormous quantities of mechanized equipment with the veteran fighting men from an 800-ship convoy which stretched out for 70 miles.

Twenty-four hours after the initial landings, made against light opposition at 9.30 a.m., 6th Army troops still were pouring ashore over the same crescent of sand dunes Japanese invaders used three years ago.

Landing losses were officially reported light.

MacArthur, wading ashore with an assault wave, established headquarters on the island where his outnumbered men fought valiantly in defeat at Bataan and Corregidor.

With the support of a blistering dawn naval and air barrage of shells, bombs and rockets, Lt.-Gen. Walter Krueger's 6th Army veterans landed along 15 miles of Lingayen Gulf, found the beaches virtually cleared of defenders and quickly pushed inland.

The beachhead extended from near Lingayen City on the southern shore eastward to San Fabian. Japanese defences ashore were woefully inadequate. Some trenches were only a foot deep.

There was no bloody battle on the beaches. At one point only 11 snipers could be found in an hour's search.

MacArthur announced the landing had severed Japan's lines of reinforcement and supply, forcing the enemy to fight with such resources as he has on the island.

Back Door Closed

"His back door is closed," MacArthur said in today's communique. "The decisive battle for the liberation of the Philippines and control of the southwest Pacific is at hand."

The General said the Japanese evidently did not expect the invasion at the Lingayen sector, and attributed the light American losses to "this strategic surprise."

Fully 3,000 small amphibious craft, loaded with troops, nestled near the transports until the curtain of naval gunfire and rockets lifted.

Before the landing, the huge invasion armada weathered the most deadly air attack the Japanese could mount dating from Jan. 5.

American interceptor pilots and anti-aircraft guns knocked down at least 79 planes. MacArthur's communique acknowledged some loss and damage, but a high U.S. 7th Fleet officer said it did not impair the efficiency of the striking force.

A Japanese midget submarine sent two torpedoes toward a group of cruisers, one carrying MacArthur. They slithered harmlessly through the formation. The 60-foot sub was forced to the surface by depth charges, rammed by a destroyer and sent to the bottom.

Sunday night the Japanese tried to slip a destroyer into the convoy, but it was detected and sunk. A second Japanese destroyer was sunk elsewhere.

Associated Press War Correspondent Spencer Davis, aboard the 7th Fleet Flagship of Admiral Thomas Kinkaid, wrote that "vast numbers of troops and enormous quantities

Canadians In Senio Sector Continue To Score Gains

By WILLIAM BOSS—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC, Jan. 10—(CP Cable).—With their right flank anchored securely on Lake Comacchio, an inland lagoon 10 miles north of Ravenna, the river-hopping men of the 1st Canadian Corps have reached another stage in the British 8th Army drive to force back the German defensive lines in the Adriatic sector.

The Canadians reached the lake after a little more than a month of fighting which started with the capture of Ravenna December 4 by the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards of Ottawa.

After the heavy fighting in the drive for the lake, aggressive patrolling and stepped-up artillery and mortar activity were the main actions in the 24 hours ending Monday night.

In the area northeast of the Ravenna-Ferrara highway and south of the Reno River, which flows toward the Adriatic south of Lake Comacchio, enemy shelling has been heavier while along the Senio nightly patrol clashes flared.

French - speaking Canadians mounted a small attack Sunday night to recapture ground lost to an enemy flame-thrower attack northeast of Cotignola, about three miles southwest of Bagnacavallo.

The Germans cross the Senio nightly to occupy slit trenches they dug months ago on the east bank as part of their defences and hurl grenades at the Canadians.

Both sides have honeycombed the

ELAS Delegates Will Talk Peace

ATHENS, Jan. 10 (AP) — Two more E.L.A.S. representatives arrived today at Lt.-Gen. Ronald M. Scobie's headquarters to discuss new armistice terms with the British commander.

They are Jean Zevgos, former Minister of Agriculture, and a Major Athinades. Dimitri Partsalides, general secretary of the E.A.M.'s central committee, was understood to be one of the two E.L.A.S. representatives who saw Scobie yesterday.

Scobie's original terms for evacuation of Attica and surrender of arms inside Athens were annulled Sunday, and it was believed the four E.L.A.S. men wished to know the new terms, and possibly also to discuss the hostage question and disbandment of the E.L.A.S. throughout Greece.

Premier Nicholas Plastiras' cabinet announced a three-man judicial committee would be sent to investigate cases of E.L.A.S. prisoners evacuated to camps in Egypt.

Filipinos Greet Americans
Claim Japs Fled When Guns Started

By C. YATES McDANIEL
Associated Press War Correspondent

ON LINGAYEN BEACHHEAD, LUZON, Jan. 10.—(AP).—As far as I could learn, not a single man of the division I am with was hurt on the beach and only a few were wounded as they pushed through the coconut palm plantations. Instead of armed, vicious Japanese soldiers, smiling Filipino civilians met American soldiers on the beach this morning. They came after the dense pall of prelanding bombardment smoke lifted and dust settled sufficiently to permit identification.

A grinning Filipino lad explained why there were no troops to fight. He said: "Last night the Japs heard Americans coming." This morning they all run away."

Americans pushing cautiously but rapidly inland soon found out that the Filipino lad had the answer.

This division is taking the fullest advantage of the enemy's failure to resist on or near the beach.

No sooner were the assault waves on the shore than L.S.T.S. began unloading heavy equipment. Already graders and bull-dozers are clearing away rubble and smoothing sand roads for jeeps, trucks and tractors which are carrying food and ammunition ashore.

Many Filipinos are lending willing hands to the work.

Air Speed Record

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP). — A double-decked transport version of the B-29 Superfortress, known as the army's C-97, apparently set a cross-continent speed record of approximately six hours yesterday. The time on this flight from Seattle to Washington compares with the record of six hours 31 minutes and 30 seconds set by a Mustang fighter flying from Los Angeles last spring.

Allied Warships Aid Forces In South France

ROME, Jan. 10 — (AP). — British 8th Army troops have driven a 30-man Nazi combat patrol back from the south bank of the Reno River, along which the Germans have dug in for a stand at the extreme eastern end of the Italian battlefront, Allied headquarters said today.

(This dispatch did not make clear whether the 8th Army troops were members of Lt.-Gen. Foulkes' Canadian Corps which previously was reported in action on the Reno front.)

Severe winter weather kept activity on the entire ground front restricted to patrol sorties, a communique said.

Allied warships off the south coast of France continued to give gunfire support to ground forces near the French-Italian frontier.

Medium and fighter-bombers of the tactical air force hit rail and road bridges in the central and western Po Valley.

The M.A.A.F. flew approximately 975 sorties yesterday, from which three planes are missing.

Soviet Army Holds Half Of Budapest

Fighting Increases In Fury
Hun Relief Menaced

MOSCOW, Jan. 10 (AP) — Red Army assaults within Budapest were reported increasing in fury today while German relief columns, now menaced by a vast outflanking drive north of the Danube bend, had failed in attempts to break through to the besieged garrison.

In the 13th day of street fighting, the Russians claimed control of more than half the once-beautiful Hungarian capital.

Northwest beyond the Danube Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's armor and infantry were making rapid strides toward Komarom, north bank communications hub which was one of the springboards for the German rescue offensive.

In advances of three miles or more, his troops yesterday captured the river bank town of Izsa, little more than 3½ miles east of Komaron, and half a dozen other communities to the northeast in a wheeling movement that could carry around the big German base and on toward Bratislava, the Austrian border and eventually to Vienna, 87 miles away.

The Russian communique said the Germans were throwing in strong reinforcements to stem this westward Soviet tide, but it declared the Red Army still was advancing.

Fresh troops also were brought up by the Germans west and northwest of Budapest to fill holes in the battered ranks of their relief columns. New German tank and in-

Mercury Drops To 27 Below During Night

Mercury hit the toboggan across Eastern Ontario last evening and didn't pull out of the dive until it had reached 27 below according to the Government thermometers at the Filtration plant in the north end of the city.

Bingo, theatre and wrestling patrons hustling home last night after ten o'clock were unanimous that the weather felt more like 50 below and late busses were crowded with very few attempting the homeward trek on foot. A cold raw wind from the south-east cut through warm clothing and made it feel much colder than it actually was.

The dip is general across Ontario but there is some hope of the relief in the statement from the Dominion Meteorological office at Toronto that the weather will moderate on Thursday, although a mild spell is far distant.

Yesterday the temperature did not go above zero in the city, the lowest overnight was 27 below and at nine o'clock this morning it was still 21 below.

Omemee reports 34 below, and way up at Maynooth 15 miles north of Bancroft the mercury curled almost to the bulb showing 42 below. At Bancroft it was 37. Madoc reports 38 and Deloro people stoked up in fine fashion to counteract a temperature reading of 39 below.

Trent River chalked up 26 on the wrong side of the zero sign, Bonarlaw was 30, Stirling 30 and Marmora 30, all below zero. Moving nearer to Peteborough, Havelock reported 20 below, Norwood 25 at 7:30 this morning and down at Hastings the reading was 32 below at 9 o'clock.

Lakefield was comparatively warm showing only 24 below while Millbrook down in the valley was 25 below.

In Peterborough all day Tuesday the temperature failed to go above zero. It was 8 below at 9 in the morning, 8 below at noon and kept on dropping as evening moved in.

Toronto 2 Below

TORONTO, Jan. 10 (CP)—A continued cold-wave pointed Ontario temperatures to sub-zero levels today, with readings ranging from 46 below at Earlton, south of Timmins—coldest recorded area of the province—to 15 below in the Toronto district where thermometers dropped to their lowest morning level of the winter.

100,000 Germans Holding Pockets Along French Coast

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Paris, Jan. 10 — (AP). — Negotiations of a truce for evacuation of more French civilians from the St. Nazaire area indicates the Germans have no intention of surrendering the pockets they hold along the French Atlantic coast — and that the Allies have little hope of their speedy annihilation.

Abou 100,000 Germans hold these pockets. They are remnants of regiments shattered in Normandy, of the garrisons of Brest, Bordeaux and other places, and of flak battalions augmented by U-boat crews and other odd-lots.

The northernmost pocket is that at Lorient, extending some 30 miles along the southern coast of the Brest Peninsula and reaching inland from seven to 12 miles. Its garrison of 25,000 is beseiged by an Allied force along a static line.

The biggest pocket is that at St. Nazaire astride the mouth of the Loire River. Its garrison numbers 35,000 and its perimeter extends over 60 miles. Its front is less static and the Germans have made raids from it in tanks and armored cars in order to round up cattle. Eleven-thousand civilians already have passed through its lines to the Allies with the consent of the Germans, who are only too glad to be rid of the problem of feeding them.

Farther south the La Rochelle pocket has a 30-mile perimeter ending at the mouth of the Charente River. It is almost continuous with pockets at the mouth of the Gironde River which block the important port of Bordeaux. There are 40,000 in these southern pockets.

It is known that U-boats and planes from Germany visit the pockets, and there is surface craft between the pockets. The flak defences of the pockets are as heavy as any in Germany.

The pockets are not strong enough to offer any grave peril of thrusts from them into the Allied rear. But they are tying up an Allied force which might otherwise be fighting on the main front, and depriving the Allies of the use of at least five ports.

In addition to the Brittany ports, the Germans also still hold historic Dunkerque on the Channel, where Czech and British units of the 1st Canadian Army have been reported containing the enemy garrison. Gen. Crerar's men by-passed the port from which the British Expeditionary force escaped from France in 1940 when they swept along the coast and into the lowlands late last summer.

Mammoth Battle Likely Soon On Luzon
Wily Yamashita Has Pulled Armies Away From Beaches To Reduce Losses

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The word for which the United States and her Allies have been waiting since the fall of Bataan—MacArthur has landed on Luzon and the pivotal battle of the war of the Pacific has been joined.

With consummate audacity the American commander has flung an army ashore on Lingayen gulf near the same spot employed by the victorious Japanese when they invaded the Philippines three years ago. He hit straight for the strategically logical point of entrance, as Nippon's own General Homma, conqueror of the Philippines, predicted that the Americans would have to do.

Tokyo says 60,000 troops have landed from the 70-mile-long convoy of 800 ships which crawled across the open waters like a huge sea-serpent to challenge what might have been a desperate defence on the beaches. The fleet entered the gulf under the protection of a terrific air and naval barrage, and contrary to expectations, encountered small resistance. As a result the Americans quickly established a 15-mile beachhead and pushed rapidly inland to give the position the depth necessary for security.

Thus the MacArthur-Nimitz team has made a fine beginning of this crucial operation. It likely is far better than they had bared hope for, since they must have expected to encounter greater enemy resistance.

Will Be Bloody

However, we shouldn't make the mistake of assuming that because the initial landing was easy, this is the gauge of the fight to come. This closing phase of the battle of the Philippines bids fair to be long and sanguinary. For the first time in the Pacific conflict we have two big armies facing each other in territory which is sufficiently open so that there can be a full scale war of movement.

The Japanese are powerfully set for the clash, and may be expected to make a last-ditch stand for this island, which is one of the keystones of their war structure. Their light resistance against the Allied landing may have been due in part to doubt as to just where McArthur expected to put his main force ashore. However it's not unlikely that Gen. Yamashita, the enemy commander, decided he would serve his interests better if he didn't try to defend the beaches under what he knew would be an absolutely annihilating barrage of bombs and shells.

We may be sure that Yamashita has his plans for counter-attack. And he's a soldier of great capabilities, as witness his sensational conquest of the Malay Peninsula and Singapore. MacArthur is up against a foe who is worthy of his steel and who is bound to battle to a finish for this vital base.

British 2nd Takes 5 Towns Corridor Cut To 9 Miles Americans Capture Samree

Threat To Strasbourg Grows Daily
French Army Thrown Back
Germans Gain Four Miles Overnight

By JAMES M. LONG—Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Jan. 10—(AP).—The U.S. 1st Army won the biggest tank battle of the Belgian bulge campaign today, capturing the secondary road centre of Samree after 30 hours of violent fighting in deep snow which included an all-night artillery barrage. British troops took five towns in the west and moved to within a half-mile of Laroche which seemed doomed by the fall of Samree, three miles to the northeast.

On the south of the salient, now less than nine miles wide at its neck, the American 3rd Army gained up to a mile and a half in an advance along a 20-mile front above Bastogne.

The 101st American Airborne Division moved to within 4½ miles of Houffalize, key road centre near the centre of the bulge.

The Germans were withdrawing from the western tip of the salient, and their peril was increased appreciably by the loss of stoutly defended Samree, whence a spiderwed of secondary roads lead into the salient.

Peril Grows.

Far to the south, the peril to the Alsatian capital of Strasbourg increased with the Germans attacking near Krafft, only 10 miles south of the city atfer advancing four miles overnight.

North of the capital, the Germans clung grimly to Gambsheim and Druzenheim, nine and 15 miles to the northeast. In 24 hours, the Sixth Army Group knocked out 24 tanks. Six were destroyed near Oberheim, 14 miles south of Strasbourg where the French First Army recaptured a lock on the Rhine-Rhone Canal.

The French, however, were pushed from Gerstheim, 13 miles south of Strasbourg and were also fighting near Sand, 14 miles southwest of the city.

All along a 16-mile front on the north side of the bulge the United States 1st Army drove ahead in snow for gains ranging from a half mile to more than a mile. Vanguards were less than three miles from the last German escape route from Houffalize to St. Vith.

Pacific Coast Rail Strike In Second Day

VANCOUVER, Jan. 10.—(CP). — The Pacific coast's "illegal" street railwaymen's strike entered its second day to-day with thousands of citizens of Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster using emergency transportation or else walking to their work.

There was no indication of immediate Federal Government action in the deadlock between the National War Labor Board and the Street Railwaymen's Union (A.F.L.) which seeks wage increases for employees of the British Columbia Electric Company.

Federal Labor Minister Mitchell in a statement at Ottawa declared the strike an illegal one and appealed to bus and street car operators to return to work.

"The appeal will have no effect" on the strikers said Charles Stewart, union spokesman. "The strike will end when an agreement on wage conditions has been negotiated and that agreement has been accepted by the men by vote." Some 2,700 street railwaymen are on strike.

The strike followed refusal of the National War Labor Board to grant increases of from 12½ to 29½ cents

Fire Destroys Six Dwellings

GANANOQUE, Jan. 10 (CP) — Fire of unknown origin today destroyed six houses here, leaving six families homeless as the thermometer registered 24 below zero. The houses were located on Wellington Row, a terrace on Wellington street.

The flames were first noticed by two residents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Hearn.

George Witherow turned in the alarm. It was understood the main gong in the fire station failed to sound because it was frozen, but alarms in individual volunteer firemen's homes sounded. The houses were owned by Rev. Martin Slack of Napanee and the whole Terrace is total loss.

The fire occurred at seven a.m. and the families fled in night clothing. All lost their belongings.

Besides the O'Hearns and their two sons, others homeless are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mirandi; Mrs. Lillian Gray and two Boarders, Misses Phyllis and Ilene Tye; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Harbeson and baby; Mr. and Mr. Walter Newberry and son, Ronald; Mr. and Mrs. George Witherow and baby; Mrs. Richard Hodgson; Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Phillips and two daughters, Hazel and Sheila.

Expect Japanese To Risk Sea Battle

PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 9 (AP)—Japan may risk her remaining first-line warships in another sea action with the Pacific Fleet, now that the United States invasion of Luzon has opened the Pacific war's most critical campaign.

Every time Allied amphibious forces have assaulted objectives of key importances to Japan, her fleet has joined in major sea action—the second battle of the Philippines after the Leyte landing; first battle of the Philippine seas after the Saipan landing in the Marianas; the Solomons surface battles after the Guadalcanal landing.

It is not logical to expect that Japanese navy commanders will be idle while Gen. MacArthur's troops are taking Luzon from Japan's grasp, cutting in two her greater co-prosperity sphere.

Sniper Not Proud Of Record
Canadian Accounted For 125 Germans With Rifle

TORONTO, Jan. 9 (CP)—Twenty-one-year-old Pat Schofield of Toronto who up until six months ago was a sniper with the 48th Highland Regiment, is back at his home today after having lost almost all the right side of his face and accounted for 125 Germans with his sniper's rifle.

"I'm not proud of it," he said referring to his sniping activities. "I'm not trying to brag. The point is if you don't get them, they get you."

Schofield enlisted with the militia—the Irish Regiment—when he was 15. He told them he was 21 and went to camp with them when the war broke out. In 1940 he was overseas with the Queen's Own Rifles.

He went to France with the Royal Canadian Regiment and then into Italy with the 48th. He celebrated his 21st birthday in a slit trench in Italy, but later was injured when he kicked the trip wire on a Teller mine, losing his right eye.

He said the technique of sniping was to paralyse a lone German by shooting him in the hip. The enemy will cry for help and more men will come to help him, giving the sniper additional targets.

The young soldier is married and is awaiting the arrival of his wife and two and a half year old daughter from England.

125 War Brides Claim Trip Was Tiresome

TORONTO, Jan. 10 — Mothers who have made a trip across the city to take baby to visit grandma can doubtless appreciate the horrors bringing baby 3,121 miles across an ocean and half a continent.

Some 125 British war brides arrived in Toronto in the early hours yesterday morning and many of them bore faint shadows under weary eyes, acquired after days of coping with 70 babies whose ages range from a helpless 2 months to a mischievous 3 years.

Few mothers complained about the boat trip — they had provided for that, they said — but the unkindest cut of all was the dynamo failure on the train that brought them from Montreal. Result: no lights, no hot water.

In Complete Darkness

"It was pitch black, like the blackout," mourned Winnifred Losee, who had to cope with daughter Verla, 3½ years, and son Norman, 2 months. "We dressed the babies and ourselves in complete darkness. I really don't know how we managed."

Mrs. Losee, who married Pte. James Losee overseas, was met by her husband's delighted parents. The latter promptly declared that today would be Christmas, despite the calendar, so the two youngsters saw their first decorated tree this morning at 663 Carlaw Ave.

Marjorie Atkinson climbed off the train carrying her wailing 3-months-old son in a laundry basket.

"It's no wonder the poor darling cries," she said defensively. "He hasn't eaten since 6 o'clock last night—there wasn't a drop of hot water on that train."

Former member of the WAAF, Marjorie married Airgunner WO. Richard Atkinson overseas, will live at 20 Burnfield Ave.

As a matter of fact, the babies enjoyed a much better crossing than the adults, most of whom were seasick the first day out.

Redheaded Jean Clute was met by her Normandy-veteran husband, Sgt. Douglas Clute. Mrs. Clute, who will live in Agincourt, says she's never forget the difficulties of diaper-washing on board ship. "It was pretty awful — we washed when and where we could, and dried wherever we found room. On top of that, the baby cut a tooth on the way over."

Almost twice the number of men used in the first invasion wave at Leyte, to start the invasion of the Philippines last Oct. 20, were thrown into yesterday's landings.

Weakened By Shelling

A week of warship shellings by Admiral William F. Halsey's 3rd Fleet and air raids on Japan's entire inner defence perimeter, cutting deeply into the enemy's aircraft, preceded the invasion. These took in the Kuriles, Japan, the Ryukyu, Bonin and Volcano Islands, Formosa and Luzon.

Third Fleet carrier planes intensively pounded Luzon Saturday and Sunday and Formosa, Japan's big supply base for the Philippines Tuesday, Philippines time. They also hit Okanawa in the Ryukyu chain to the north. In all, 262 Japanese planes were destroyed or damaged and 73 ships sunk or crippled.

China - based Superfortresses bombed Formosa Tuesday and found no fighter opposition or anti-aircraft, testifying to the effectiveness of the carrier plane raids.

Air cover over the beaches was provided by the Far Eastern Air Force.

MacArthur, wearing his famed campaign hat and five stars on his collar, sat atop the motor box of his invasion craft smoking a corn-cob pipe as he headed toward shore with his men about two hours after the initial wave.

The general waded ashore and soon he was talking with privates and generals alike, highly pleased with the progress of the operation.

On other islands of the Philippines American mop-up troops killed 402 more Japanese and captured 27 on Leyte in two days and pursued the enemy in coastal sectors of Mindoro.

Prize Pure-Bred Bull Is Given Penicillin

HARDWICK, Mass., Jan. 10 — (AP). — Caumsett Spitfire, 800 pounds of bovine prize misery, is getting the most modern treatment for his ills. The War Production Board approved an allotment of penicillin for the pure-bred Guernsey bull's case of pneumonia. In addition Spitfire has been placed by his attending veterinarian under an oxygen tent on the farm of his owner, Chester Goodfield.

Medical authorities explained that some quantities of penicillin recently had been released to commercial firms for experimental purposes. The released penicillin was considered of low grade and inadequate for treatment of humans.

Canadians In Senio

Senio's diked bank with digging and sometimes parties burrow into each other's tunnels, with resultant brisk encounters.

Inch Forward.

The Germans were forced over the Senio in one sector by an attack December 19 by men of the division commanded by Maj.-Gen. B. M. Hoffmeister of Victoria, B.C., another division (presumably the veteran 1st Canadian Division under Maj.-Gen. Harry Wickshire Foster of Winnipeg and Picton, Ont.), attacked in its sector, pushing to the Senio and also taking Bagnacavallo.

This unit reached the Senio between Christmas and New Year's. The only enemy holding on the east bank then was on the Canadians' left where their sector adjoined that of the British 56th Division, northeast of Faenza, which had been captured by the New Zealanders, and south of Cotignola.

The Canadians' right flank, meanwhile, inched steadily along the Senio toward Alfonsine, a town on the Ravenna-Ferrara highway nine miles northwest of Ravenna, and thrust toward Lake Comacchio.

The eastern force reached the town of Mandriole, on the Reno River three miles east of Sant' Alberto. One column struck northeast toward a ferry over the Reno giving access to an escape route up the spit of land between the lagoon and the Adriatic. The other headed east to Casal Borsetti on the coast.

Meanwhile the other division (presumably the 1st) on the night of January 3 tackled the German bulge on the east side of the Senio and in a two-day battle knocked it out, overrunning the town of Granarolo, about four miles south of Bagnacavallo.

Plaintiffs Win One Cent In Libel Suit

TORONTO Jan. 10 — Two plaintiffs won damages of one cent each in the libel suit against M. A. Sanderson, Reliable Exterminators Ltd., the Globe Printing Co. and George McCullaugh, in a verdict brought in at 1.30 this morning by a special jury. The defendants were found not guilty of libel against 14 other plaintiffs.

The jury found libel against G. M. A. Grube and Mrs. Eva Sanderson. All 16 plaintiffs were C.C.F. candidates in the 1944 civic elections in Toronto.

No disposition was made as to costs.

Yesterday morning the jury addresses of both defense and plaintiffs' counsel were concluded by J. L. McLennan, counsel for the Globe Printing Co. By 5.15 p.m. Mr. Justice Kellar Mackay had concluded his charge to the jury, and it left to consider its verdict.

The libel suit arose out of an election advertisement placed by Mr. Sanderson in The Globe and Mail on Jan. 1, 1944. In it some of the plaintiffs were described as "Communist - controlled rubber stamps."

J. R. Cartwright and F. A. Brewin were counsel for the plaintiffs, while C. Frank Moore was counsel for Mr. Sanderson and Reliable Exterminators. Mr. Cartwright and Mr. Moore made their addresses to the jury on Monday.

Freedom of Speech

Mr. McLennan, in his jury speech, contended that the libel suit was brought by the C.C.F. for party prestige, and not by the individual plaintiffs. He thought that, if a verdict of libel were brought in, vigorous freedom of speech during political campaigns would be impaired.

The plaintiffs, said Mr. McLennan, belonged to the C.C.F. and in the Sanderson advertisement had been grouped with Communists. They, therefore, claimed to have been accused of a criminal offense, since the Communist Party was declared illegal under Defense of Canada Regulations.

"My submission is that it is not defamatory to call a person a Communist, because the ban on the Communist Party has, in fact, been lifted," he said. "Mr. Dennison and Prof. Grube (two of the plaintiffs) admit that what was once the Communist Party is now the Labor-Progressive Party. That is used in the first sentence of the advertisement."

He then read the first sentence, starting, "Even the Communists, now the Labor-Progressive Party . . ." and then continued: "There is nothing in the Defense of Canada Regulations about the Labor Progressive Party." He contended there were other statutes which were not enforced because of the feeling of public opinion.

fantry attacks failed, the official announcement said.

The German counter-attack which began Jan. 2—four days after the start of the Russian annihilation offensive against the Budapest garrison—still was being maintained with desperate vigor, front advices said.

More than 500 tanks now have been lost by the German command in beating against Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's flank, based on Bicske, 18 miles west of Budapest, and Dorog, approximately the same distance on the northwest.

Dispatches said there were signs that the core of the enemy resistance within Budapest was cracking. The Russians now have captured more than 2,300 of the city's 4,500 blocks.

and then advance south of the stone ruins across the St. Vith-Laroche highway. All that road now was in American control to Vielsalm, nine miles west of St. Vith.

Vielsalm itself was entered and St. Vith, major German base in the bulge, was within artillery range.

Field Marshal Von Rundstedt had pulled the bulk of the defending troops from the strategic town, leaving Volksgrenadiers to their doom.

Capture of Samree increased the possibility that a respectable bag of Germans might be trapped in the western half of the contracting bulge.

A front report said 1st Canadian Army infantry hit a German positions eight miles southeast of Nijmegen in the Netherlands, gaining a mile over snow-covered ground on tank carriers as they advanced under a withering artillery barrage.

Deep snow and bitter cold hampered operations against the bulge, but Allied forces "continued to make progress," Gen. Eisenhower's communique said.

Grave Threat

Troops and tanks of the U.S 1st Army posed a grave threat within three miles of the last good road within the salient, the St. Vith-Houffalize highway.

The British 2nd Army captured Forrieres, Hodister and rewon Bure at the western end of the bulge where a staff officer of Field Marshal Montgomery declared:

"The Germans are pulling back quite a bit from the tip of the salient in what appears to be the start of a measured, step-by-step withdrawal. It is too early, however, to say that the enemy is pulling out of the whole salient."

It was notable that the Berlin radio had started preparing its home front for such a retreat. British advances ranged up to a mile in snow drifts four or five feet deep.

The 82nd Airborne Division fought into Vielsalm, nine miles west of St. Vith, major German base in the bulge. Other infantry fought down the last 1,300 yards toward Laroche, also a highway centre.

The biggest tank battle of the whole campaign within the Ardennes flared into its second day at the crossroads village of Samree, three miles northeast of Laroche. The outcome was not yet apparent.

On the tough south side of the salient, Lt.-Gen. Patton's 3rd Army advanced along a 20-mile front from north of Bastogne to east of the Luxembourg town of Wiltz, with the famous 101st Airborne Division reaching a point only 4½ miles south of Houffalize. That road junction, almost in the centre of the bulge, was under shellfire from south and north.

Patton's advances ranged from a few yards to 1½ miles. Berle, three miles west of Wiltz and seven southeast of Bastogne was captured.

Snow still was falling intermittently in the bulge. This again denied tactical air support and increased chances of a successful German withdrawal if that was Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's aim. The cold wave was so severe that wounded men froze unless they were picked up immediately. Where tanks could move, they slithered through icefields. It was the infantry which did most of the work. Haze hung over the battlefield, cutting visibility.

Third Army gains on the south generally were half a mile forward in the area west of the three-sided pocket southeast of Bastogne, between Wardin and Wiltz. East of the salient, gains in Luxembourg ranged to 1½ miles. High ground on the south bank of the Wiltz River was taken.

German counter-attacks against Patton decreased, substantiating reports yesterday that Von Rundstedt had shifted armor to the north to parry the threat of the Houffalize-St. Vith Road. Two Nazi counter-attacks before dawn at Longchamps, three miles northeast of Bastogne, were pulverized with heavy losses. Patton resumed his advance after reversals yesterday in which the villages of Flamierge, Orreux and Tilleg were lost. Americans surrounded in Flammerge fought their way back to main forces west of Bastogne.

Out of Contact

Except at Samree, the night was comparatively quiet on the northern flank and, in spots, the 1st Army and elements of the 9th Army found themselves out of contact with the foe.

Northwest of Laroche, the British mopped up the villages of Warisy and Handeuwel.

Lt.-Gen. Patch's U.S. 7th Army was holding the Germans to a standstill on both sides of Bitche. The strongest of these was north of the Haguenau Forest, where the Nazis were stopped dead with 11 tanks destroyed.

The French 1st Army was pushed out of Boofsheim, 17 miles south of Strasbourg, and was fighting in sand, 14 miles from the city. These enemy gains were small and achieved by four battalions of infantry (about 3,200 men) and 20 tanks.

The Germans screened their withdrawal from the western tip of the Belgian bulge with extensive minefields, covered by snowfall.

A British staff officer said Von Rundstedt had moved an armored division from near Bastogne to the Laroche sector, adding:

"The Germans are shifting from sector to sector as Field Marshal Von Kluge did in the days of Normandy when the Allies were hitting him a series of body blows at point after point."

Mild Weather Needed To Lift Crisis

The threatened shut-off of natural gas service to 24,000 consumers in the London area became acute to-day following the drop in temperature during the night. Only hope of relieving the situation came from the Dominion Meteorological Bureau which predicted a slightly higher temperature.

Adding to the shortage of gas for domestic consumers was the re-opening of the Ford Motor Company plants at Windsor, which have been shut down for two days due to the shortage. Re-opening of the Ford plant curtailed the supply of gas from the Union Gas Company to the Dominion Gas Company which supplies the London area.

Two of the Chrysler Corporation plants which closed down yesterday were also re-opened following an order from Ottawa approving restoration of gas supply to the plants. About 20,000 workers had been affected by the enforced shut-down.

The situation was also said to be grave in the Brantford area, 50 miles east of London, while at Woodstock, about 26 miles east of London, gas pressure was reported improved. At St. Thomas, 18 miles south of London, the situation was said serious.

The Union Company was still supplying gas to Dominion Company consumers, made possible by several Western Ontario industries making a temporary change-over to oil.

A Hamilton report last night said that Ottawa authorities would make an effort to obtain a release of propane gas from the United States for industrial use. The decision was taken as a result of a visit there last week by Denis Stares, Federal Deputy Power Controller. The gas shortage has forced shut-down of many departments in the Hamilton munitions plant.

Meanwhile county roads in Middlesex were still blocked by snows that have fallen in the past month, Highways Department officials said last night. Lack of adequate equipment and breakdown of available equipment was responsible for the inability of the Department to keep the highways clear.

In base metals, Waite-Amulet had a gain of 15, Labrador added 5 and Nickel gained ⅜. Steep Rock lost 2 cents.

Airplane Is Missing With 21 Passengers

NEW YORK—Twenty-one passengers, all members of the armed forces, and a crew of three died today in the crash of an American Airlines plane near Burbank, Calif., the company officials here announced.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10—(AP).—An American Airlines passenger plane, with 21 passengers and three crew members, was reported by airline officials as missing somewhere in the San Fernando Valley early today after being prevented by fog from landing at Lockheed air terminal at Burbank.

A spokesman for the airline said the plane was due at the air terminal at 3.49 a.m., PDT (6.49 a.m., EDT), and arrived on time but was unable to come down. The plane then headed for a desert airport at Palmdale, Calif., but was not reported there.

The plane had fuel to last only until 6.45 a.m., PDT, the airlines spokesman said.

"We have no objection to Allied observers attending the election to make sure that the will of the people is genuinely expressed," the statement added.

Plastiras, who took over as premier in a compromise move to end the Greek civil war, said he could give categorical assurance on behalf of his government that there would be no general proscription of E.L.A.S. forces who had borne arms.

Nursing Staff Sufficient For Overseas

OTTAWA, Jan. 10 — (CP). — Canada's servicemen, at home and abroad, are receiving the finest nursing care and there is no shortage of nurses in the Canadian forces.

The statement, clear and unequivocal, was made yesterday by Matron-in-Chief D. I. MacRae in reference to statements that the United States Nursing Corps is seriously short in personnel.

Col. MacRae said the Canadian service has never recruited and has never had a shortage. Moreover it has a reserve of between 200 and 300 in civilian employment awaiting the call if more are needed. By "Canada at War" figures, more than 3,782 women are serving as nursing sisters or doctors in the Armed Forces.

Broken down, the statistics show 282 in the RCN nursing service, 3,041 in the RCAMC, of whom 2,069 are serving overseas, and 401 in the RCAF. There are 58 women doctors in the services, seven in the Navy, 40 in the Army of whom 6 are overseas, and 11 in the Air Force.

Shortage in United States.

A New York press commentator pointed out that the United States Nursing Corps is so short in personnel that the Army had had twice to lower its standard in nursing care, from 120 nurses and 500 enlisted men in each general military hospital of 1,000 beds to 83 nurses and 450 enlisted men. He said that instead of one nurse to eight beds, the Army has had to come right down to asking (though it is not getting) one nurse to 12 beds.

President Roosevelt in his message to Congress Saturday spoke of the need for the drafting of nurses to bring into service 27,000. He remarked that 20,000 were needed immediately. The draft proposal, however, is meeting with considerable opposition, one section of opinion contending that the situation may be coped with to better advantage by a voluntary system.

Col. MacRae said that United States estimates of the number of nurses required are higher than RCAMC estimates, but pointed out that the Nursing Corps used personnel in X-ray and other duties which were performed in the Canadian service by technicians.

Canadian Effort Praised

Canadian sisters are employed solely in bedside nursing, field surgical and casualty clearing units and operating rooms. The plan calls for one nurse to each 10 patients and Col. McRae said that figure was being averaged.

"I don't think there is anything finer than the care that is given to Canadian patients overseas and in France and in Italy. The sisters have given unselfish and devoted service and have given it cheerfully at all times and under all conditions."

She would not hazard a suggestion why the United States Nurses' Corps was undermanned. She did know that Canadian nurses joined the service from patriotism. She did know the fact that in working in the army they were working with the most up-to-date medical and surgical men and were thereby keeping abreast of the newest things in medicine and surgery, was an incentive. She acknowledged that the spirit of adventure was a further factor.

DISCRETION, prudence and keen diligence may divert certain dangers and threats indicated by adverse positions of actuating planets. While swift and shrewd action, based upon sudden ideas, insight or even audacity, may win out against treachery or curious basic influences, yet sound consideration, well laid plans and acceptable principles are essentiall for lasting rewards or recognition. Not only wise counsel and assistance from high places, but personal integrity and recognition of responsibility and duty are urged, as there are tricky situations in both private and business relations.

Those whose birthday it is may wrest a successful, triumphant and happy year against subtle, intriguing or subtle factors, deep rooted and disconcerting, affecting both business and personal affairs. With prudence, integrity, high principles and adherence to obligations, those in high places may be won to cooperation and unexpected support. But study plans and sound policies, even in so called "flashes of genius" or inspiration, before taking any radical steps, as enmity, jealousy and strife might be precipitated from unexpected sources.

A child born on this day will possess much ingenuity, skill, vision and creative ideas, which should be developed by sound logic and accepted principles.

John Alyea Elected President Of Apple Growers Association

COBOURG, Jan. 10 —(ENS) — In spite of bad roads, more than 100 attended the annual meeting here Tuesday of the Northumberland and Durham Apple Growers' Association, a better crowd than in previous years when travelling conditions were better. There was only one resolution passed but it reflected the feeling of many growers in the district and it was the outcome of discussion on cold storage plants.

It was pointed out that the district needed cold storage facilities but one grower declared that when he and nine others sought government assistance in the form of a loan as provided under the Co-operative Marketing Loan Act, they were turned down because they were not a co-operaive group but individuals. Out of the discussion came a resolution that the members of the Northumberland and Durham Apple Growers' Association make representation through the proper channels of the Federal and Provincial Departments of Agriculture that the privileges given under the Federal and Provincial Cold Storage Act be made available to individuals in the construction of cold storage plants where the Department considered them necessary.

The following officers for 1945 were elected:

Past president —Harold Gibson, Newcastle; president, John Alyea, Trenton; vice-president, Irwin Colwill, Newcastle and E. A. Summer, secretary-treasurer, Bowmanville Directors—Northumberland County, H. Sirett, J. Wilson, H. Crews, S. Tinson, G. Flynn and W. Knight; Durham County —W. F. Rickard, Howard Gibson, F. R. Currelley, W. Carruthers, Dawson Beebe and Clare Aller.

Speakers at the morning session were Professor R. W. Thompson, Provincial Enomologist, spoke on spraying problems. Orchard practices and a talk on the new Horticultural Station at Smithfield were outlined by Don Blair, Assistant Pomologist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. The morning session concluded with a discussion on the report of the Apple Advisory Committee by Harry Sirett of Brighton.

At the luncheon the speaker was Rev. Dr. P. J. Kelly of Cobourg who delivered an address liberally interspersed with anecdotes.

At the afternoon session, George Wilson, director of the Ontario Fruit Branch, Toronto, spoke on cold storage and R. L. Wheeler, Dominion Fruit and Vegetable Department, Ottawa, spoke on marketing problems. This was followed by an open discussion led by Morley Webster, District Fieldman for the Ontario Fruit Branch, Brighton.

Mr. Wilson told his listeners that there was a definite need for a cold storage plant for the Newcastle and Bowmanville area and also one for the Brighton area. Cold storage was equally important with distribution and marketing, he declared. The development of cold storage was fairly general and existing ones were being enlarged. All apples cannot reach the consumer at once and must be stored, he said, and now was a good time to consider the matter of cold storage construction. Building costs were high but it was a matter of doubt as to when they would be lower, he said. Mr. Wilson quoted figures showing that in the 1941 census, Ontario trees from one to 15 years were 51 per cent McIntosh, 11 per cent Spies, 9 per cent Delicious and 4 per cent Snows. In Durham County, the percentages were, in the same order 33 per cent, 23 per cent, 7.4 per cent and 5 per cent. Many had found that common storage would not keep the Macs for the winter months and cold storage was the answer. Under the Dominion Cold Storage Act the government could subsidize up to 30 per cent of construction costs and under the Ontario Co-Operative Market Loan Act, construction had been encouraged by loans up to 50 per cent.

Fair System.

At this juncture, a number of growers declared that they had had found it impossible to get government assistance because they were not co-operatives. Another complaint was that some growers disliked "co-ops" because the man with a small investment had the same voting power as the man with a heavy interest, but Mr. Wilson pointed out in reply that an agreement could be made that the big grower would have storage space in proportion to his investment.

In discussing marketing problems, Mr. Wheeler said that the figures showed that there was no over-all marketing problem in Canada. In 1944 for instance, one half of the holding was in common storage on the first of the year. One grower asked him why Ontario was not assisted by the government like Nova Scotia and Mr. Wheeler replied that the war cut off the United Kingdom export business for Nova Scotia, which amounted to 75 per cent of its crop where as Ontario's loss was only 10 per cent. Another grower asked why the government did not help Ontario, pointing out that there were Ontario apples left unsold and Mr. Wheeler replied that it was hard to reconcile that statement with the fact that British Columbia growers were selling to Ontario consumers.

"One trouble is that some of the growers think that the ceiling price is the selling price. That is not correct. You must keep your apples up to grades," Mr. Wheeler declared.

Morley Webster, during the general discussion, spoke of efforts made to rid orchards of rabbits which were gnawing trees and a poisoned hay mixture had proven effective. However some farmers had lost dogs which they blamed on the animals eating rabbits which had been poisoned. It was decided to look into the question of liability before proceeding further.

Bewdley Shows Promise But Loses 6-4 To Cobourg

COBOURG, Jan. 10 — (ENS). — In one of the best games scheduled in the local rink in some time, Cobourg "Ewarts" defeated Bewdley-Peterborough Combines by the score of 6-4 in a fast intermediate hockey fixture played here on Monday evening. Cobourg came from behind in the second period to overcome a 3-0 score and by the end of the period were on the top end of a 4-3 score. Playing fast, hard hockey in the final, Cobourg chalked the count up to 6-4. The sudden spurt of the locals cheered the Cobourg fans who had become downhearted when the visitors took command from the start of the first period.

Bewdley's goalie, injured during the game when the puck struck him in the mouth, came out on the ice again but as it was impossible to stop the blood flowing, had to leave the game for the balance of the game. Tony Mitchell, Cobourg wing player, was also hurt and retired with a wrenched knee.

Scorers for Bewdley in the first period were J. Mortimer with two and McDowell with one tally. Johns on a pass, Mitchell and Haynes, scored the opening tally for Cobourg in the second period. Three counters from Henderson, Johns and Haynes, brought the score up to 4-3. In the last period, McDowell scored for Bewdley. Bradbury and Smoke registered Cobourg's two goals in the final period. Following was the line-up:

Bewdley-Peterborough: — Goal, Burley; Defence, D. Sidey and P. Sidey; centre, D. Mortimer; wings, J. Mortimer and E. Bellamy; subs, M. Sidey, C. Morton, T. McDowell, Behem, Henry and Wilson (sub goalie).

Cobourg:— Goal, McCoubrey; Defence, Johns and Markle; centre, Henderson; Wings, E. Haynes and L. Mitchell; subs, Ball, Smoke, Bradbury, Thorold and Burrison.

Very few of us indeed entirely escape the depredation of that arch-enemy of the Home Front—the so-called "Common Cold." It is also doubtful if we at any time feel quite so miserable as when affected with a bad case of the "Sniffles" with its attendant aches and pains. Infection from others is of course, the largest contributing factor to the spread of this obnoxious malady and it indeed behooves us all to take every precautionary measure. May we also remind you to visit your nearest Tamblyn Store at the first sign of a cold, where of course, all the necessary remedies for prevention and relief are readily obtainable. As a further aid to your selection, a number of standard and "time-proven" cold remedies have been included in this list of

The Military Situation

Slowly and painfully, Allied forces are driving the German salient in Belgium back upon itself. The position of the Germans is still far from desperate, and it is not impossible that they may escape our bounds and surge forward again. The importance of the salient lies chiefly in the great Allied strength which has been gathered to meet it, and which is consequently not available for operations elsewhere; it has not had any serious effect on Allied communications. Precisely what the Germans expected to gain by their offensive on December 16 is still not known, but they do not appear to have improved their position, although they have created a costly nuisance for us.

When the Germans attacked, Lieutenant-General Omar Bradley was left with his headquarters on the southern side of the German wedge, doubtless near the American Third Army front; this meant that communication with his First and Ninth Armies was long and difficult. It looked as though Bradley might be cut off for hours at a time from an important part of his command. The logical thing was to put Field Marshal Montgomery in charge of the U.S. 9th Army, and most of the 1st Army, as well as the British 2nd and the Canadian 1st, and this was done on December 20; it is a pity that this news was not made public earlier.

Failure to let this news out gave rise to some silly rumours. One was that General Eisenhower had proved unequal to his job, and that Montgomery had been put in as his second-in-command to strengthen him; another was that General Bradley had made a mess of things and that Montgomery had been given a large body of troops in the hope that he might save the situation; another was that Montgomery was being pushed ahead because of British jealousy, and was being given command of American troops, while British troops made trouble in Greece, and the Americans bore the brunt of the war. Ignorant and mischievous as these rumours are, they are just what one might expect under the circumstances. When there is no genuine news, people make up news of their own. The Allied Headquarters would have been far better advised to tell the simple, undramatic and sensible truth at once.

There has been some alarm in the American press that U.S. soldiers will object to fighting under a British commander. This, we think, is nonsense. Soldiers have more sense in these matters than jingo civilians. If Montgomery can lead American troops victoriously, they will admire and follow him just as the Canadians and the Australians have done, without caring about his nationality; men engaged in the serious business of fighting a war have little time for picking holes in the racial background of a great commander.

Commercial Broadcasting On Sunday

In common with a great many other radio listeners we were sorry when the regular Sunday evening broadcast from St. Stephen's Church in Toronto was discontinued, after 17 years of excellent work. The Rev. Canon Ward had an unusual gift for broadcasting and his radio audience was a large one.

We have no doubt that the reason for the change was a commercial one. Obviously the Kate Smith program is able to pay more for radio than St. Stephen's, and as the radio station concerned is not in business for altruistic reasons that change was made. There is no cause for dismay on the part of the public; it is too bad that Canon Ward will no longer be heard on the air, but it is not just to imply, as some people have done, that a serious blow has been aimed at religion by commercial interests. The most important place for services of worship is in the church; radio broadcasting is subsidiary and, in some ways, unsatisfactory.

If a sufficient number of people feel that a Sunday religious broadcast is desirable they should make their opinion known to the CBC, which could arrange regional services. In some ways this might be better than a broadcast of a church service. There are very few programs of any kind which are able to command the attention of a listening audience for a full hour, and few churches are successful in this respect. A well-arranged half-hour program of choral singing, prayers, readings and a brief address might be much more effective. The congregation in a church, which can watch the service and participate in it, finds a service of an hour or longer comparatively short; those who can hear only are apt to find it very long. A Sunday program like the weekly 'Epilogue' which was such a popular feature of BBC broadcasting might solve many problems; the Epilogue said all it had to say, superlatively well, in fifteen minutes.

There is nothing heinous about the action of the radio station which substituted Kate Smith for a church broadcast; St. Stephen's is still open to all who want to go there. It is easy for people whose home circumstances are fortunate to forget that there are thousands of people living in boarding-houses to whom Sunday is a day of unutterable boredom, and who wait for the popular evening broadcasts as a break in the gloom. If they do not hear them on a Canadian station it is easy for them to tune in to an American one. The Sabbath, we are told, was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath. Those who wish to go to public worship are free to do so, and if they cannot bestir themselves they should not be angry when church services are not brought to them on the radio. That St. Stephen's should give way to Kate Smith is unfortunate in many ways, but as the airways are almost wholly taken up with religious services on Sunday mornings the situation is far from alarming.

Weary Of 'G. I. Joe'

A group of American soldiers who have returned from overseas have announced, through a spokesman chosen from their number, that they are sick of being called 'G. I. Joe'. We confess that we are a little sick of that name, too.

Fighting men usually pick up generic names, and usually they are proud of them. The average British soldier rather likes being called a 'Tommy' and the U.S. Marine is strangely proud of being a 'Dogface'. But 'G. I. Joe' has worn thin, and people are wondering why the soldiers are tired of it.

In our opinion, the name 'G. I. Joe' has been done to death by unwise writers of advertising copy. They have informed the readers of all the important American magazines and papers that G. I. Joe is fighting for Somebody's Biscuits, or Somebody Else's Breakfast Food, or Mustn't Mentionem's Soft Drink. G. I. Joe has been foisted on the public in a hundred different poses, urging the public to buy bonds, or to save fats, or to make sure that he has a prefabricated henhouse when he gets back from slapping the Jap. The gush of vain, silly, vulgar pseudo-patriotic nonsense that has exploited the figure of G. I. Joe commercially has killed any significance that the name once had.

The American soldier seems to be a serious fellow, and proud of his job and his country. He does not like to be used as a lever to pry money out of the pockets of the people at home; he does not like to be associated with some of the more tasteless and meretricious elements in the way of life which he is defending. 'G. I. Joe' has become, to him, an ad man's dummy, and he has too much respect for himself to want to keep the name.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The founder of Mother's Day has been found in Philadelphia—old, and penniless. Send him a dozen roses and a box of candy right away, Ma.

Dr. Fred Conboy is out of the Toronto Mayoral chair, but it has been pointed out by the Ottawa Citizen that he still has his dental chair and lots of pull.

"Another development brought on by this war is jet propulsion" writes an engineer. We always thought the motorbike worked on that principle.

In 1944 the Toronto police force poured $50,000 worth of bootleg liquor down the sewer. How does it compare with the commercial cleaners?

A Forgotten Thunderer

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

DOES anybody read Thomas Carlyle nowadays? I ask the question for information, and not as an indirect way of saying that nobody does. I do not read him myself, of course, but then I am an abandoned wretch who reads solely for pleasure, and I resent Carlyle's attempts to edify me. My question is prompted by two things: first, it is 150 years ago since Carlyle was born; and second, because, Mr. H. G. Wells has recently delivered himself of a number of high-sounding prophecies, and I am curious to discover whether our modern prophets outlast their generation. If Carlyle is still recognized as an authentic prophet, there is hope for Wells; if Carlyle is forgotten, Wells will be remembered as the author of "Mr. Polly," and not as the Jeremiah of the twentieth century.

CARLYLE has been thoroughly debunked, as have so many great Victorians; indeed, the job has been a little overdone. The debunkers appear to believe that when they have shown that a great man was no more than human, and had a few ugly streaks and nasty tricks in his character, they have disposed of his greatness, and have somehow whittled him down to their own inconsiderable size. In this they are pitiably deluded. Debunking is sometimes necessary, and it is always good fun, but it never has any lasting effect on a sturdy literary reputation. If Carlyle has faded in popularity, it must be because he was not made of lasting stuff; the debunkers have little to do with it.

I DO not know a single admiring reader of Carlyle; that means little, for my acquaintance is limited. But I rarely see him quoted, and so far as I am able to detect, I never see him echoed by modern writers. Now and then unhappy schoolchildren are coursed through 'Sartor Resartus," which they do not understand, by school-teachers who are equally in the dark. "The French Revolution" is read by everybody who seriously tackles a study of that upheaval. But does anybody read "Cromwell"? And does anybody wade through the thirteen volumes of 'Frederick The Great"? This was the book which Emerson called "the wittiest ever written," and Sir Leslie Stephen speaks of its "unsurpassable humorous portraiture." It may be so. Avid as I am for wit and humour, I have yet to tackle "Frederick" and I have never known anyone who did so.

AS a man, Carlyle, is an easy subject for the caricaturist. His oddities of character, his cantankerousness, his martyrdom to his stomach, his dour and coarse neglect of his wife, his ceaseless and eloquent complaining coupled with his admiration for the "strong, silent man," and the fustiness and discomfort of his daily life all make it simple to turn him into a figure of fun. Carlyle devouring his milk puddings in the loneliness of his soundproof study; Carlyle frightening the maids until they hid in terror in broom closets; Carlyle wrangling with Mrs. Carlyle: it it easy to see these scenes as farce, or at least as comedy. But Carlyle was no comedian; he was, in Whitman's description "rugged, mountainous, volcanic." Is the volcano extinct?

A PROPHET must have a creed, or at least a point of view, which he opposes to the popular notions of his time. Without such a creed he is no prophet, but merely a groaner and a prohibitionist. What was Carlyle's creed? It appears to have been an insistence upon moral progress as opposed to material progress; the nineteenth century, like our own, was deeply materialistic in its beliefs and behaviour, but it was always ready to bow solemnly toward anyone who made a parade of morals, so long as he was in no danger of putting his teaching into action. Now as I set out with a question about Carlyle which involved also a question about H. G. Wells, what is Wells' creed? Is he not also a moralist? Does he not urge upon us a morality of his own concoction which, if curious and repugnant to conventional people, is at least coherent and logical, and backed up by Mr. Wells' personal brand of science? But Carlyle's influence seems to have waned almost to nothing; can Wells hope for a better fate?

PERHAPS a worse may be in store for him. Carlyle wrote a most difficult, crabbed perverse and Germanic kind of English, but he could be thunderous and he could be vivid. Mr. Wells is never thunderous, though he often squeaks with rage; he is vivid in his fiction but not in his Prophetic Books, if I may call them so. Nobody will ever read Wells for the clangour of his prose, as they might do with Carlyle. Wells is a scientist before he is a prophet, and science has a desperate effect on English style. The writer who permits science to get into his prose gelds himself, and must sing small for ever after.

WILL Carlyle ever be popular again? He might be, for he had an unstinting admiration for heroes, authority and great men, and it looks as though we were entering upon a period in the history of mankind in which those commodities will be born—or fabricated—in considerable numbers. If the Nazis had been a little more astute they might have found ample material in Carlyle which, removed from its context, would have ornamented their ideology most elegantly. But it is unlikely that the awe which was once accorded to his writings will ever surround them again, for reasons which he himself would have understood thoroughly. Materialism is more rampant and shameless now than it ever was in his day, and will not be put down, whereas the concept of moral progress has altered. Perhaps, despite the great hopes reposed in him by his admirers, Carlyle was not for all time, but of an age.

MORE STREAMLINERS

Although railways are cautious about devulging their post-war plans, the fact that Great Northern Railways contemplates five new streamliners, at a cost of $7,000,000, for Chicago-Seattle-Portland service, denotes the determination of the rail lines to fight for business against all forms of competition. Into the picture enters, also, the situation about the Pullman Company. With the latter ordered to divest itself of its car lines, many railroads apprehend that the former facility with which they could "borrow" more cars for use in peak periods will be restricted. Thus, by ordering their own trains, they will be protected by having equipment on hand to meet any needs.—Christian Science Monitor.

THE BLUE DANUBE WALTZ

The Rebel of Yonkers

(By BRUCE HUTCHISON)

THE case of Mr. Frank Pancelli, 51 Warburton Avenue, Yorkers, N.Y., must give us pause. Let us go into it rather deeply.

Mr. Pancelli is a barber. The other day Charles Acker, a retired fireman, walked into Mr. Pancelli's shop and asked for a shave. Now it was quite a day for Mr. Acker because he had never been shaved by a barber before. He was, in fact, shooting the works. In such a mood Mr. Acker expected the barber to enter into the spirit of carnival.

To his surprise, Mr. Pancelli went about his business without a word. This, thought Mr. Acker, was peculiar, for he had always understood barbers to be talkative, gossipy fellows. However, Mr. Acker persevered. He suggested to Mr. Pancelli that it was a lovely day. Pancelli, according to the New York Times, remained glum and silent and scraped his razor sharply across Mr. Acker's chin. When Mr. Acker observed that blood was spurting from his chin he, in a nice way, said that he didn't like being carved up. Just to avoid unpleasantness, he repeated that it was a lovely day.

This statement enraged Mr. Pancelli. He grasped his razor more firmly and drew blood again. By the time Mr. Acker had got through talking about the weather his face was a bleeding wreck, the Times understands. So he dashed out of the shop, half shaved, and reported Mr. Pancelli to the police.

I DO not suppose the courts will understand Mr. Pancelli's attitude, or that he is the victim of a myth, like all the rest of us. For years and years now barbers have been supposed, by this myth, to be noisy gossips. Every customer going into a barber shop expects the barber to talk to him, listen to his jokes and all his family troubles and flatter him with lotions, hair tonic and perfume. All this entertainment is supposed to be thrown in with the price of the shave. Mr. Pancelli, however, was an individualist, a rebel, made of the stuff which produced the American Revolution and the Bill of Rights. He refused to conform to the myth.

But how few Pancellis there are in the world, how few men who dare to break with the myth! Nearly all of us are helpless victims of a superstitious age. By the jungle lore of our primitive civilization it is commonly supposed, for example, that rich men are clever, ruthless, arrogant and happy; whereas everyone who has had anything to do with them knows that most rich men are stupid, kindly, modest and miserably unhappy.

According to another myth, we believe that politicians are slippery, sly and unscrupulous fellows; whereas they turn out, on inspection, to be much more honest on the average than the business or professional man because they have to be, operating in public while the private citizen operates in secret.

Again, newspapermen are represented in our mythology, and especially in that shrine of all myths the movies, as tough, ignorant and drunk; and if you do not recognize one of them instantly by these characteristics, you can tell his identity by his unpressed clothes and the fact that his overcoat collar is only turned up, winter and summer.

I could never quite discover why turning up your collar made you a journalist but, according to Hollywood, no journalist would do anything else. That is why I am such an admirer of the climate of Winnipeg. Here one must always turn up one's collar to prevent death by a deep-freezing process, and it makes you feel like a newpaperman.

As usual, the weather of Winnipeg has distracted me, as it distracts most people who have to face it; what I wished to observe was that newspapermen are not always ignorant, they are very seldom tough, and occasionally they may be discovered cold sober with their collars turned down. I have even known newspapermen who had wives whom they never beat more often than necessary and children who were fed regularly.

BUT barbers, rich men, poor men, politicians, newspapermen, doctors, lawyers, Indian chiefs, everybody is surrounded by a myth, cannot escape his legend, and is "typed" as if he were a Hollywood actor. This is not an isolated phenomenon, however. Mr. Acker, who expected Mr. Pancelli to talk about the weather, was merely following the usual thought processes of our age. It is an age which seeks to simplify everything, to reduce it to formulae, blueprints and pigeonholes because it is unwilling to face the indescribable chaos of modern life. It wants ideas in capsules and men in styles like hats and overcoats, rather than face the laborious process of thought and the terrifying fact that no theory is sound, no system will work exactly, no economy will function perfectly, no society will ever be better than the people in it and, in short, that we are human beings and not adding machines.

Mr. Acker has stumbled on a great truth in the Yonkers barber shop, but I suppose he did not realize it as he ran, bleeding and lathered, to the police. What has happened to Mr. Pancelli I do not know, but I doubt that the courts will excuse him because he was fighting, in his own way, with his own weapons, a razor, against slavery and for the rights of the individual man.

Hardy Old English Words In Peril

(LETTER IN TORONTO GLOBE AND MAIL)

I NOTICE in a letter to The Globe and Mail that Mr. H. H. Loosemore suggests a nicer name be found for garbage men. To quote, in part: "Just as the undertaker and the real estate agent have disappeared, so let the garbage man vanish, and let him reappear with a new name."

I thought some things were safe from this euphemistic blight that is rapidly overtaking all our good, hardy English words, but it appears not. The constant searching for genteelisms, which reaches its greatest proficiency in the United States, shows a prudish state of national mind that will surely strangle all worthwhile artistic or literary effort.

The inroads of euphemism can be seen in the way the following substitutions have, like the cuckoo, ousted the legitimate holders of the grammatical nest. Protectionists call themselves tariff-reformers; people with toothpowder to sell insist on referring to it as a dentifrice; servants, for no earthly reason, are turned into domestics; professional corner-stone layers almost always refer to the building that is to arise as an edifice, and a noble one at that; a good try, except in the game of cricket, becomes a fine or noble endeavour, and people always endeavour to meet you, but never try to; exclusive has replaced select, except on wine lists; people expectorate and don't spit; perspire (most of them prespire, if my hearing is correct) and don't sweat—if they do they wipe their brow with a serviette, which, to my untutored eye, looks strangely like a napkin; they are shocked if they find out you have a belly, whereas they have a stomach, which the further vulgarise by referring to as a tummy.

People no longer room or board, they are paying guests in a guest home, and probably refer to the landlady as a social hostess; a man can't take a drink and get drunk, instead he indulges and gets tipsy or under the influence (I exonerate words such as potted, swacked, boiled, plastered, ossified, etc., as their object is obviously to be facetious); the undertaker, who is much commended by Charles Lamb on his title, is to Mr. Loosemore's delight turned into a funeral director, and runs (genteelism: operates) a place of business (genteelism: establishment) variously known as a funeral home, chapel or parlor, and in the United States as a buryeteria, which is obviously some self-service arrangement.

The euphemisms and genteelisms current in this country are to be strongly damned, as they invariably tend to weaken and water the language. As an example, when one refers to a dog some sweet young thing always asks if you mean male or female. A bull will soon be known as the cow's husband. Thus they muddle up the English language by calling a spade an implement for digging, and, aided by the motion pictures and the radio, emasculate our native tongue till its natural vigour will soon desert it, and cause it to sink into a palsied old age, good for nothing but soap commercials, which is probably what they want.

Oh, by the way, I just thought of some awfully nice names for the garbage man. What about offal officer, which has a nice office sound; or second-hand food dealer, which would sort of put him in with the tradesmen; or we might make him an object of romance to the children by calling him the refuse raider, or rubble ranger. Think he'll like them? I don't.

Toronto.

A Bible Message

For, behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble: and the day that cometh shall burn them up, said the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch. But unto you that fear my name shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings....

Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord. (Mal. 4: 1, 2, 5.)

And there appeared a great wonder in heaven; a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars: and she being with child cried, travailing in birth, and pained to be delivered.... And she brought forth a man child, who was to rule all nations with a rod of iron: and her child was caught up unto God, and to his throne. (Rev. 12: 1, 2, 5.)

THE HARSH TRUTH

We know the harsh truth now that in the world a major war sooner or later involves the United States. We believe that the power and prestige of the United States actively co-operating in a system of world security can maintain the peace and deter would-be aggressors. That is our best hope and we cannot give it up no matter if the immediate prospect is darkening. We cannot give way to cynicism or despair but must fight all the harder and more resolutely for genuine collaboration as we think of the good American boys who are being killed and who asked only that after this time the world be blessed with peace. The memory of these terrible days of ordeal on the Western Front and in the Pacific must be the weapon to sustain our spirit in what will be a continuing struggle to make peace the most real thing in the world.—Providence Journal.

FOR BETTER EATING

Plans are under way in this country for a more prosperous national economy, a more equitable distribution of the nation's wealth, and the maintenance of maximum employment. Plans are under way for a national physical fitness program. In it the nation's nourishment takes a large place. Plans are under way too, for an extensive system of technical education.

Would it be too much to expect that the proper cooking, preparing and serving of food be a part of these programs?

It is, perhaps, too much to ask that Canada become a nation of kitchen artists, but it is reasonable to hope that some measures be taken in the way of technical education to ensure that the ability to provide nourishing and tasty food shall be present in every public eating place and that community authorities shall make certain the ability is used and that cleanliness shall prevail.—Regina Leader-Post.

A New Worry For Thieves

It seems that science has invented a new risk for the thief and the housebreaker—a fluorescent powder which is invisible in daylight or under ordinary lighting but shows up clearly under violet rays, is being used by British police.

The powder was used as a trap which caught a cigarette thief in Edinburgh and sent him to jail. Cigarettes were the bait, and the bait was covered with this powder, which was found on his clothing and his conviction followed although there was no other evidence against him.

A police official explained that except in fairly substantial quantities the powder is invisible to the naked eye. "But," he added, "under the violet ray a person whose suit is sprinkled with it will have the appearance almost of a baker."

What with fingerprints, invisible light rays that set off alarms, blood tests and all the modern paraphernalia of the crime detector, and now this new invisible powder to trap the wary thief into his undoing, truly the way of the transgressor is hard. The honest burglar would be better off to get a living by hard work.—Ottawa Journal.

DOROTHY DIX

HOUSEWIFE NEEDS HELP

Husbands Should Assist At Home Where Work Never Ceases

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a young married woman with three small children. My husband feels that because he works eight hours a day doing difficult work in a defense plant that he should do no work about the home. I think that he should help me with the children and with the heavier housework on his day off, inasmuch as I work twelve hours a day, with no day off and no holidays, and am expected to have a sweet disposition. What about it?

MABEL.

No Union Hours

ANSWER — Wife labor is about the only scab labor that is left in civilized countries. There are no union hours for wives, no days off. And holidays and Sundays, which are rest for other workers, only add hours of extra toil for them because they are expected to get up an especially good dinner, rise an hour earlier to beat up a cake, fix a lunch for those who are going picnicking and get the children scrubbed and dressed in their best to go to church.

And there seems no help for the situation as long as families have to be fed and houses kept clean and tidy. But it makes one tremble to think what would happen if wives should go on a sit-down strike.

Of course, theoretically, there should be a fair division of labor in every marriage. If the husband brings home the bacon, the wife should cook it, and it is easy to see how a man accepts this pleasant arrangement and feels that when he comes home tired of nights, after a hard day's work, he is entitled to flop down and rest his feet.

And he forgets that his wife has been on her feet longer than he has, and that she is still on them when he is taking his ease with his pipe and paper. So I think that every husband who cannot provide his wife with servants should lend her a hand with the housework.

For, when it comes down to brass tacks, there is no other labor in the world so exhausting and nerve-racking as taking care of children, as every man knows who has ever tried looking after the baby when his wife was sick.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a young woman employed by a large concern. My position is such that I must meet many people, both socially and in my job. At the social affairs there is a lot of drinking and as I refuse to imbibe, I have to stand a good bit of ribbing about it when well-meaning people insist that I drink with them.

Now I am not a prude. I have no objection to other people drinking. It is just that I do not want to drink myself. What shall I do? Shall I stick to my principles or drink to be considered sociable?

NEW ENGLAND CONSCIENCE.

ANSWER—Stick to your principles. There is not a one of the people who tease you about being puritanical who does not respect you more for having the courage of your convictions. At cocktail parties many women who do not drink alcoholic beverages, yet who do not wish to be conspicuous, take a drink and just carry the glass around in their hands.

DEAR MISS DIX—My girl friend threatens suicide when everything doesn't go her way. In fact, she once almost carried out her threat by swallowing an overdose of sleeping powder, but as she collapsed I called the police and we rushed her to the hospital and saved her. I hoped this experience would cure her of talking about suicide, but she still holds it over my head more than ever before.

What would be our chances of happiness if we married? And have you any advice for her?

BOB.

ANSWER — You wouldn't have any chance of happiness whatever. Because if you took her threats of suicide seriously, you would be an abject slave to her and never dare to even cross her for fear she would kill herself. And if you thought her threat of suicide was just a ruse to get her own way, you would have a contempt for her as a fourflusher.

Either the girl is crazy or she is a mean, selfish, little tyrant. The sooner you break off with her, the better for you.

To Relieve Bad Cough Quickly, Mix This at Home

Does the Work in a Hurry. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home mixture your mother probably used, and, for real results, it is still a most dependable medicine for distressing coughs. Try it once, and you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble at all. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) Anyone can do it.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really splendid cough medicine—more than you could buy for four times the money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time. Children take it without the usual struggle.

This splendid home mixture has a three-fold action. You can feel it take hold at once. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. This explains why it gives such quick relief.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Mrs. E. Mesley President Of Helen Roger Auxiliary

Mrs. E. Mesley was elected president of the Helen Roger Auxiliary of Knox United Church at the annual business meeting of the Auxiliary, held at the home of Mrs. I. F. McRae, 487 Hunter street. A large group of members was welcomed, and the program and the objective for 1945 were presented.

The Auxiliary executive for 1945 is as follows: Honorary president, Miss Annie Crocker; past president, Mrs. Howard Clegg; president, Mrs. Ernest Mesley; first vice-president, Miss Mary Morton; second vice-president, Mrs. John T. Donaldson; third vice-president, Miss Inez Barrer; secretary, Mrs. Harry Williamson; treasurer, Mrs. E. G. Myles; Christian Stewardship and Finance secretary, Mrs. Irwin Oesch; Temperance and Christian Citizenship secretary, Mrs. Geoge Hutchinson; Supply secretary, Mrs. T. Smith; Literature secretary, Mrs. Dawson Gourley; Missionary Monthly secretary, Mrs. A. Pitchford; Community Friendship secretary, Mrs. Howard Clegg; press secretary, Mrs. J. T. Donaldson; pianist, Miss Mary Morton; assistant, Mrs. R. Goodfellow; telephone committee, Mrs. R. Knox, convener, and Mrs. J. R. Moore, Mrs. George Morrison, Mrs. Charles Stewart and Miss B. Garside; nominating committee, Mrs. R. Goodfellow.

The president conducted a brief opening worship service, and the story of the year's activities, written by the secretary, Mrs. H. Williamson, was ready by Mrs. J. R. Moore, giving the highlights of the 1944 meetings. The treasurer's annual report was read by Mrs. I. Oesch, in the absence of Mrs. W. Dale. The report showed that the Auxiliary had not only exceeded the allocation, but also had raised the extra 15 per cent requested for the special fund. The president, commending the members for the excellent work in 1944, urged greater enthusiasm and endeavor, announcing that the theme for 1945 was "Advance".

Mrs. I. Oesch and Mrs. A. Sproats were chosen to be delegates for the annual rally of the Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society, in George Street United Church on Tuesday, January 23. Mrs. Mesley gave an interesting account of the address given by Miss Nell Elliott at a luncheon recently at the Y.W.C.A. Miss Elliott was a Y.W.C.A. worker in Hong Kong, and spent many months in a Japanese internment camp. Mrs. H. Clegg also reported a talk Miss Elliott gave at an evening meeting.

The Christian stewardship secretary, Mrs. I. Oesch, announced that the allocation for the Presbyterial had been raised, and suggested that the Auxiliary voluntarily raise their objective. She also suggested that the members enter a contest for new members, and they were divided into two teams, with the first and second vice-presidents as captains. At the end of three months, the losing team will entertain the winning team at a social evening.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. H. Clegg, with "The Kingdom of God in this Community" as the theme. The Scripture reading was given by Mrs. J. T. Donaldson, and Mrs. Clegg gave a few "Thoughts for Meditation". Mrs. R. Williamson led in prayer.

The reading of the King's message by the president, Mrs. J. H. Rowe opened the Annual meeting of the W. M. S., of George Street United Church in the Board Room, Tuesday afternoon.

She urged the members to leave behind all misgivings, failures, losses dissappointments and fears and to resolve to go forward with a clear purpose and a stronger desire to cultivate a cheerful spirit, making this year better than the last. Mrs. J. Brown led in prayer.

Mrs. John Wood, the guest speaker, used as her subject, "Beautiful Hands", She said, "The Human Hand is a marvellous piece of God's work and to keep them beautiful we must keep them cleansed, they must be strong for the right and strong against wrong, and we must exercise them in loving service for God."

A solo, "He smiled on Me" was sung by Mrs. Mel. Shadgett, accompanied by Mrs. B. Smith.

A review of the year's work was given by the different secretaries and Mrs. J. M. Fanning gave the treasurer's report stating that $1090 has been sent to the Presbyterial treasurer, being $90 over the allocation. Mrs. R. Parnall for the Community Friendship Committee reported 250 calls made on strangers and the Sick and Visiting convener, Mrs. J. W. Hales, said that her committee had made 902 calls during the year.

Mrs. W. H. Morton, Librarian, reported 212 books had been read from the Missionary Library and that Group E. was the banner group, reading 53 books.

Mrs. W. McMillan, the Literature secretary, said there were 27 subscribers for the Missionary Monthly and 30 for World Friends. For the Supply Work, Mrs. F. E. Latimer said a bale valued at $35. had been sent to an Indian Reserve at Oxford House, Manitoba.

Manning, was responsible for one meeting at which Mrs. H. Alton was guest speaker, and the corresponding secretaries reported 30 letters of sympathy sent out during the year.

Mrs. J. Spencer gave a full report on Christian Stewardship and finance, showing that she had prepared and given five papers on these subjects during the year.

Home and School

QUEEN ELIZABETH SCHOOL.

"Health" night was observed by members of the Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association on Tuesday evening at their regular meeting. As the services of the Victorian Order of Nurses have just been made available in that district, two of the V.O. nurses, Miss M. Ross and Miss H. McGeary, were in attendance.

The nurses put on a demonstration of an infant welfare visit, showing the educational part of the V.O.N. program, which proved extremely interesting. Miss McGeary played the mother just returned from the hospital with her baby, and Miss Ross was the nurse. L. Bird showed three moving pictures, "Youth in Crisis," "What We Eat,' and "The Road South."

Mrs. C. C. Doughty, president, was in charge of the business period, and heard reports from committee conveners. She announced a meeting of the home study group to be held at her home on Tuesday evening, and the book for attendance of mothers was awarded to Grade 3. Mrs. G. Simpson moved the vote of thanks to those taking part in the program.

KING GEORGE

Questions from parents, to the teachers of all grades of King George school, provided the basis for an instructive and entertaining evening at the regular meeting of the King George Home and School Association, Tuesday evening. F. E. Kerr, principal, was chairman for the discussions.

The questions included the new method of teaching arithmetic, the work brought home by children, physical training, and the merits of gymnasium versus outdoor playgrounds. Many more questions were submitted, but they were tabled and filed for another meeting, because of lack of time for discussion. Mrs. A. G. Stock, president, was in charge of the business meeting, when reports from the secretary, Mrs. F. Watson, and treasurer, Mrs. M. Gedge, were given.

Members were reminded of the health meeting in charge of Dr. R. A. Kelly, M.O.H., in the Y.M.C.A.

Marmora Clips Belleville In Junior Tilt

MARMORA, Jan. 100.—(ENS).—Stirling-Marmora Combines won a fast and exciting game of hockey with Belleville Juniors on the Stirling rink on Tuesday evening, the score being 5-4 in their favor. It was the second game of the season for both teams, Belleville having defeated Hastings-Norwood Combines by 10-4 and the Stirling-Marmora Combines having lost to Trenton by 5-4. Most of the goals in Tuesday evening's game were scored in the first period. Nelson for the Combines drew first blood, carrying the puck from the blue line to baffle Fitzpatrick.

Tied Score.

The score was soon evened, as Reeves took hold of Barrett's rebound to place it in the net. Combines took the lead again as Cousins netted on an assist from Trumble. Another of Barrett's rebounds was shortly put to account as Holway tied the score again. Before the period closed, Lavender scored the third goal for his team on a pass from Goodchild. The second period had scarcely opened when Moher scored for Belleville on an assist from Holway. In a melee in front of the Belleville goal as the Combines returned to the attack, Goodchild scored on a pass from Cousins, the goalie being upset by the impact. Holway was then awarded the first penalty for which the whistle blew a second before Goodphild had beaten the goalie, the goal in consequence being disallowed. Other penalties handed out in this period were to Bush and Madill.

Both teams strove hard to score as the final period advanced and Green drew a penalty. The game was halted for a few minutes through McInroy being given time to recover from one of Moher's charges. The home goalie made some sensational saves from Barrett before a high shot sent in by Reeves from the corner tallied for the visitors. The Combines played hard to take the lead again and after what was thought to be a goal by Goodchild had been disallowed that player scored the winning goal during a scramble in front of the net.

The teams were as follows:

Belleville—Goal, Fitzpatrick; defence, Green and Holway; centre, Moher; wings, Day and Greatrix; alternates, Barrett, Reeves, Lyall, Bishop, Bush.

Combines— Goal, McInroy; defence, Lavender and Ulman; centre, Cousins; wings, Goodchild and Trumble; alternates, Whitehead, Madill, Bastedo, Stapley, Nelson, Courtney.

Referees—Harry St. Louis, Belleville; Tom Cousins, Deloro.

Parallel System Makes Skiing Easy Contends Fritz Loosli

Skiing for pleasure and fun is easy and can be learned satisfactorily in a few weeks if the Parallel method of instruction is employed, says E. Fritz Loosli, formerly of Peterborough, in his article "Skiing the Natural Way" in the February issue of Esquire. The chief beauty of the Parallel method, which means keeping the skis parallel at all times, turning with Pure Christianias and checking speed when necessary by linking turns from left to right, is that it's unfettered by complicated maneuvers...it's the natural and fundamental way to ski. The Stem and Snowplow methods of instruction have the pupil angle the skis out in a V to turn or slow up. On the mountainside, says Esquire, the difference is impressive. The Parallel pupil faces his skis directly down the slope and takes a turn in full speed. The Stem student approaches the turn with skis in a spread-out position, cutting his forward motion down to the point where he can make a slow turn ski by ski, or even a standing kick-turn, before resuming his run. While he is stamping and kicking around with his skis at an angle, the Parallel skier has made the turn and is off in the new direction.

The lines and strength of a Greek god and months of instruction and experience are not necessary to satisfactory skiing, continues Loosli. A businessman with a middle-age bulge who wants to learn can, in two weeks, have all the speed and skill he needs for unqualified enjoyment.

Given Confidence

Other systems of instruction, based on Stem and Snowplow, are defensive in character. They involve holding back, braking the ski and taking it out of its natural line of running. The Parallel system capitalizes on every forward motion, slow or fast, by giving the pupil aggressiveness and confidence to overcome skiing's biggest bugaboo ...fear. In America especially potentional skiers have labored under the superstition that Parallel turns are for the expert only, too difficult and dangerous for the beginner. Pupils taught parallel know better, and realizing that Parallel is the natural, fundamental way, learn to ski better in a shorter time.

One of the Parallel method's prime virtues is that it's approached with common sense, points out Esquire. Take the Pure Christy. You see it in newsreels or on the slopes ...a master skier coming down a mountainside in a cloud of snow. Beautiful, wonderful, awesome. But the spectacle makes many forget that the beauty of the turn lies in its very simplicity, and that is the secret of control. You can learn it right from the start and increase your speed to suit your taste.

Given the control and confidence of the Christiania, you will feel your skis and enter the highest stage of the sport, a freedom that is unknown to those who are constantly resorting to the old-fashioned Stem system for turns. This, continues Esquire, is nothing sensational. Skiing is just keeping up with the rest of the world by discarding old, entrenched formalities for progress. Many schools have streamlined their instruction along the lines of the Parallel system. One well-known Eastern instructor calls it "The American Way." That's a pretty good name for it, concludes Esquire, for it was American candor and audacity that brought about the birth and growth of Parallel instruction. Skiing made easy? Why, of course! It is easy!

Bing Crosby's Wife Seriously Ill

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 10 —(AP)— Mrs. Bing Crosby, 33-year-old wife of the crooner and mother of his four young sons, was reported in an improved condition early today in hospital where she was taken yesterday after collapsing at her home with a respiratory infection.

At the hospital Bing told reporters last night: "She's going to be all right."

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

The senior game in the Ladies' Basketball League double-header at the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium Friday night will bring together the two old rivals, Transports and St. John's and should be about the liveliest cage battles of the season. So far during the campaign the two teams have clashed twice and have broken even. Each won a game and by the same token the fixtures were fought all the way down the line and furnished plenty of excitement. Now the rivals meet again and the game will decide whether Transports will move further out in front in the league race or if the two teams will find themselves tied at the top of the heap at the end of Friday night's game. A win for Transports would put them two full games in front while on the other hand a St. John's victory would leave the teams on even terms. The senior game will be the opening event on the card this week, starting at 7.45 o'clock. In the 8.45 o'clock fixture the Y Grads who have not lost a game this season will take on Westclox who won their last start in sensational style against Quakers, taking the decision in the final minute of play.

* * * * * *

The hectic race in the Ladies' Five Pin League continues as close as ever. The teams staged their first night's play since the holidays Monday night and when it was all over, if this column's count is correct—and it could be wrong—the Westclox had cut the lead of the first place Outboard Marines to a single point with the Merry Macs still clinging to third slot, a berth they have held consistently throughout the campaign. While there were some good individual scores with Isobel Bullock of the Westclox team heading the parade with 715, the team totals and the general trundling indicated that the majority of the players had not recovered from the layoff for the team crosses were lower than the average for the loop. Westclox took three straight games from the Corvettes, despite the fact that their total pinnage was only 2804 which is not a notable score for last year's champions. While the Big Bens were reeling off three victories in a row the Outboard Marines had to yield one game in three to the third place Merry Macs. The Outboards put together a 1110 score in the second game but blew the third badly with a meagre 763 and that was the game that cost them a point and cut their lead in two. It looks as if the leaders and the Westclockers will battle it all the way down the stretch for neither outfit seems to be able to shake the other off.

Hec Kilrea Wounded

Hockey fans will appreciate the following article written by Bill Westwick of the Ottawa Journal in regard to Sergt. Hec Kilrea who has been reported wounded while fighting with the American army overseas: "Not so long ago Hec Kilrea wrote that he was "glad the old legs are holding up" overseas. He had come from the Italian campaign to take part in the fighting in France and he was kidding about some close calls before moving from the Mediterranean theatre. Now comes word that machine-gun fire has temporarily put one of his legs out of commission and shrapnel has smashed one of his hands. Yet it's good to hear, as Kilrea puts it, that "there's no need to worry." And when you look back the thought occurs that no player of any era was endowed with a finer pair of hockey legs than the good-natured Kilrea, who was among the most self-effacing athletes when he was the speediest wingman in the game. You think back to around the series of 1927-28 when there were arguments about the fastest skater in the N.H.L., and it was finally decided to settle them with a speed competition. Kilrea emerged from that contest as the only N.H.L. player ever to have won official recognition for his speed skating prowess. It recalls that night in the Forum when Kilrea cut loose in his trial and topped all-comers. Previous to that evening Howie Morenz, of Canadiens, and Babe Siebert, then with Maroons, were tied for honors, each making one turn of the Forum ice carrying a stick in 17 second. It looked as if these two speed merchants had the prize in the bag until Kilrea opened up with a lap in 16 2-5 that was never equalled."

* * * * * *

"Up until professional hockey was on its last legs here there was no amount of money could buy Kilrea. From the time he broke into stardom with Senators New York Rangers sought his services without success," the Westwick articles concludes. "Col. John Hammond had a terrific 'crush' on the blond speedster, made offer after offer for him and finally got down to the blank cheque stage. Kilrea was never to head in that direction. When Senators suspended activities for a year in 31-32, Hec played with Detroit and after another season in Ottawa was sold to Toronto. Frank Ahearn, who had irked Rangers' Col. Hammond no end by once returning one of his cheques with a "not for sale" tag on the back of it and no accompanying letter, finally accepted Conny Smythe's offer. And so Hec moved on to the Leafs in return for $12,500 and Bob Gracie. In 1935-36 he went to Detroit, where he was to finish up his N.H.L. career with some great pinch-hitting for the Wings and using his terrific speed as a back-checker. His friends here and around the N.H.L. wheel will be hoping that things are just as Hec says they are....with 'no need to worry.'"

Belleville Lucky

The following article by Ken Colling in the Belleville sport column indicate that the Quinte City is having its share of hockey this season: "Belleville hockey fans are more fortunate than the majority of small towns and cities throughout the Dominion where senior hockey has been frozen for the duration. Luckily for Quinte district fans there is the Quinte R.C.A.F. hockey league, which operates at the Hume Arena and opens with a double-header tonight. All four teams in the group will parade their wares before the fans this evening, but in the future only single games will be played each Monday and Wednesday night. There'll be all the fixin's tonight with the Trenton Air Force band and the commanding officers of all four stations on hand for the gala opening. As for the rosters of the four clubs little has been announced although the defending Bombers will have their prolific goal-getting trio of Lou Boudreau, Frank Abe and Dutch Ducquette along with the perennial Dan Cowley and two newcomers from Camp Borden. From Trenton, Johnny Pianosi lost Johnny McCreedy to the Toronto Maple Leafs, but still has Paul Raymond, Mike Dauira and some more good material to give the fans hockey entertainment."

* * * * * *

The N.H.L. race is beginning to shape up like a five team affair. All along the opinion has been strong that Canadiens, Detroit, Leafs and Bruins were the sure fire four playoff outfits but now the New York Rangers have served notice that it is much too early to read them out of the party. In recent starts the Young Men of Manhattan have been making every game a battle. They tied Detroit last week, played another draw with the Chicago Black Hawks and now they have upset the dope by going into Toronto and knocking off the Leafs 5 to 4 last night in a game that saw the Patrick men come from far behind to take the marbles. Leafs scored three goals in the first period without an answer and at the end of the second session were leading 4 to 1. But the surprising Rangers turned on the heat in the final 20 minutes, fired four counters past Frank McCool and completely spoiled the night for the Toronto fans. Ironically enough it was a former Leaf Hank Goldup who sank the Toronto ship by firing the winning goal.

French Wrestler Extends Whipper Watson

Larry Moquinn, protege of Yvon Robert and a ringer for the famous Montreal grappler in style and technique gave Whipper Billy Watson quite a battle in the main bout of the Tunney wrestling show which opened the 1945 season at the Brock Street Arena Tuesday night.

The Whip won the argument but not before the French mat artist had staged a real struggle for the honors. It was not until the hour time limit had nearly gone that the British Empire champion took the deciding fall and at that Moquinn had a tough break.

He had upset the Whipper with a flying tackle and when he launched another one Watson dropped to his knees and the Montrealer shot through the ropes and landed heavily on the floor of the arena. It looked as if he were going to be counted out before he could climb back into the ring. He managed to get inside before Referee Maxwell tolled the fatal ten but he had injured his leg in the flight through the ropes and Watson took quick advantage of the opening. The champ quickly slapped on a stepover toehold and just as quickly turned the hold into his famous Canadian avalanache to take the fall that won the match.

The Whip had taken the first fall in 25 minutes with a series of flying mares and Moquinn evened the battle in 18 minutes after a lightning exchange of flying tackles and mule kicks that finally saw the champ's shoulders pinned.

A Fast Bout

It was a fast and clever bout. Moquinn, young, big and fast met the Whip on his own ground and the two gave a real exhibition of speedy and clean wrestling. The manner in which the grapplers spun out of holds, and switched from defence to attack delighted the fans. The rivals matched strength with strength and science with science and the result was a lot of action, without the skulduggery that enters into most bouts nowadays.

Honors were even early in the battle. The two tested each other with a number of arm grips and Moquinn had Watson in difficulty for some time with a hammer lock and later with a full nelson. Soon after the champ turned a neck scissors into a double toehold and Moquinn had considerable difficulty in getting out of htat jam. It took a lot out of him and when the Whip started to work on his legs it was the beginning of the end. After softening the Montrealer with toe holds Watson suddenly tore in with a series of flying tackles and Moquinn was downed for the first fall.

The French grappler came back strong and there was not much advantage for some time. Watson nearly fell through the ropes once in dodging a flying tackle but saved himself. Then came a fall for Moquinn in sensational style. The two started exchanging flying tackles, with mule kicks mixed in and half a dozen times each they were bowled over in rapid succession. Then as Watson was about to pounce on the Montrealer after spilling him with a flying tackle Moquinn cut loose with a quick kick that sent the champ down in a heap and before he could move Watson's shoulders were pressed to the canvas.

How Watson took the third and deciding fall has already been described.

Wagner Is Back

The rampaging wild man from Portland, Oregon, Strangler Bob Wagner, one of the most spectacular of the mat villains, was back for last night's card and outside of the fact that he appeared in a new and gorgeous dressing-gown, he looked as ornery as ever. Wagner was matched against excitable Pierre DeGlane and the French-Canadian really took a beating, although he eventually won the bout when the Portlander was disqualified. Wagner in between intervals of arguing with Referee Bert Maxwell and glowering at the fans gave the Montrealer the well-known works. He half-strangled DeGlane, pulled his hair, punched him, used the ropes to get leverage for his favorite holds and in general gave Pierre 13 very unpleasant minutes. DeGlane tried to do something about it and on one occasion punched Wagner around the ring while the crowd cheered enthusiastically. The next moment however the bad man was back with all his back alley stuff again.

It finally cost him the bout for he insisted on trying to choke DeGlane with the ring ropes. Referee Maxwell after repeatedly trying to make the wild man release DeGlane in time to save him from being strangled finally disqualified Wagner and raised the Frenchman's arm in token of victory. The angry Wagner tossed the official nearly out of the ring with a head lock but the decision stood and Oregon outlaw after doing 95 per cent of the attacking was the loser.

Dunlop A Winner

Al Bunny Dunlop won the preliminary from Johnny Gyroffy after 18 minutes of strenuous wrestling in which the Toronto strong man resorted to his whole bag of rough-house tricks and the former R.C.A.F. man retaliated in kind. Dunlop had the edge in the rough going but Gyroffy handed out a lot too and the fans enjoyed seeing Bunny on the catching end. However he proved too tough in the long run and finally took the bout with a series of back-breakers that shook up the whole Gyroffy clan.

Referee Bert Maxwell got by in all three bouts without a great deal of trouble and Fred Scates looked after the timing and introduced the battlers.

Oakwood Beats Lindsay Team

OMEMEE, Jan. 10. — (ENS).— Oakwood defeated Lindsay Commandos in an intermediate 'B' O.H.A. game in Lindsay, Tuesday night, 8-5.

McTaggart was the high scorer for the winners with three goals and one assist. C. Tamblyn scored one goal and had two assists. Workman scored two for Lindsay and Gassien and Western each had two assists. The only penalty in the game went to Heatlie of Oakwood for tripping.

Sports Spice

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP). — After the Army-Duke football game last fall, Freddie Corcoran, the golfing guy, looked out over the vast, empty Polo Grounds and remarked: "This old place must have seen a lot of great sports events." ....That observation started a train of thought—and investigation —about the Field that probably is the oldest existing sports ground in the United States.

History lesson:

The name "Polo Grounds" was taken from a field on upper Fifth Avenue where they once played polo as well as baseball, but the ball park has been in its present location only since 1890....The original Polo Grounds was the home field of both the Metropolitans of the American Association, a club which once "owned" Connie Mack although he never played for it, and the Giants of the National League....It was so big they both could play at once, with a curtain separating the two fields....In 1889 the Giants moved uptown to Manhattan Field and the next year the Players League was organized and built a park right next door..... The "brotherhood" lasted only a year and the Giants then moved in, taking the name of "Polo Grounds" with them.

In 864 Fights Jimmy Wilde Only Lost Four

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 10—(CP)—The little fighter in the county fair boxing booth knocked out 17 challengers before lunch, then complained of fatigue. Refreshed with a cup of tea and a bun, he knocked out six more. For the day's work he received the equivalent of $3.60.

The wee fellow was Jimmy Wilde and that feat came early in his amazing career of 864 fights—with but four losses. Britons still refer to him as the most phenomenal boxer the world ever produced. They call him "The Mighty Atom," "The Welsh Whirlwind," and "The Man With A Hammer In Each Fist."

Those who saw him fight never tire of telling of the frail-looking man with matchstick arms and spider's legs who weighed a mere 94 pounds yet knocked out champions sometimes 30 pounds heavier.

The former flyweight champion is 52 now, a cheery little man with a friendly smile who likes nothing better than to discuss old times with cronies in a pub, yet drinks only milk himself. He weighs a plump 154 and alternates his work as sports organiser at a large war factory with attending all big boxing bouts and writing a ring column for a London Sunday newspaper.

Jimmy came up the hard way. He was working in the Welsh coal pits at the age of 12. He married at 17 and claims that without his wife's help he never would have risen to world domination.

He says his hardest fight was against Pete Herman at London's Albert Hall in 1921. Herman, bantamweight world champion, refused to weigh in and the fight was about to be called off when the then Prince of Wales asked Wilde to go through with it. Jimmy agreed and was beaten in 17 rounds.

His last fight was against Pancho Villa in New York in 1923. He was 31 and had been out of the ring for two years. Jimmy was knocked out in the seventh round. For that, he received $58,500 but lost his title.

Slim Archie Sexton, one-time London boxer who lost to Jock McAvoy in a bout for the British middleweight championship 11 years ago, has been awarded the George Medal for gallantry in rescuing two men and a woman trapped in a London shelter.

Sexton, a war reserve constable, completed the rescue while the shelter slowly flooded and was filled with smoke and debris from blazing buildings above. In 1933 he rescued two children from drowning while training for his title bout.

The British Empire bantamweight championship fight between the holder, Jim Brady of Dundee, and Jackie Paterson of Glasgow, has been postponed from Jan. 12 to Jan. 18 in Glasgow. Paterson, world flyweight champion recently defeated by Danny Webb, Montreal negro, and a British sailor, Ben Duffy, in non-title bouts, seeks to add the bantam crown to his world, British and British Empire flyweight titles.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Jan. 10 — (CP). — Now that the major professional sports—in the United States anyway—are being threatened with extinction, that talk of sports being necessary to maintain the morale of the civilian population is being heard again....The big professional spectacles are all right for that purse, but after all only a limited number of fans can see them. More important from a morale viewpoint are small-town competitive sports—such as flourished several years back before the wave of importations set in and heavied the odds in favor of the larger centres with larger supplies of athlete-bait.....There is nothing like one of those stirring battles between Podunk and Pumpkin Centre to boost the morale of the citizens.

Why Major:

"The man bemoaning the fact that professional hockey isn't as good as it used to be, could do himself a lot of good by going for a brisk walk, taking his family skiing, skating or riding." The quotes are Maj. Ian Eisenhardt's, but we can't quite make up our minds whether the national physical fitness director intended those personal athletic ventures to be supplementary to or alternate to watching the N.H.L. pucksters perform.

Cheese championship?

Charlie Reith of the Winnipeg Tribune isn't any too impressed by the news that the Canadian Golf Association will resume its Canadian championship play next summer. Says the Winnipeg golf expert: "So many potential winners are away on more serious business that it leaves the winner of one of these events with little on which to congratulate himself." Travel limitations are another difficulty he foresees, and he questions whether all eligible contestants will be able to make the trip to the site of the tournament, especially if they have important war jobs to fill.

Incidentally:

Adventuresome skaters on the West Coast have been trying new thrills on the hard-crusted snow on the mountains and foothills. Disdaining the formality of skis, they are sailing down the glittering slopes on skates at satisfying speed ....Jim "Sailor" Herberts, who once cost Toronto Maple Leafs $16,000, and then was resold to Detroit for $12,000, is working at Halifax shipyards now....Overseas drafts have hit hockey squads in Lachine, Que., and Winnipeg. Lachine Flyers lost former Detroit Red Wing Syd Abel, Jimmy Haggarty, Ernie Trigg, and Frankie Boucher's nephew, young Frankie. The 'Peg team lost Alfie Pike, the ex-New York Ranger, Pete Langelle, former Toronto Leaf, Paul Platz of Chicago, and Bob Whitelaw of Detroit Wings.

Great Sportsman Dies In England

PANSHANGER PARK, Hertfordshire, England, Jan. 10 (CP) — Lord Desborough, 89, former president of the Amateur Athletic Association and internationally known sportsman, died yesterday at his home here.

Born William Henry Grenfell, he made a name for himself in athletics at Harrow and Oxford University, where he was a member of the crew and active in other sports. He was president of the Olympic Games in 1908 and organized the first Olympics held in England.

Lord Desborough had fished in Florida and hunted in the Rockies, and twice swam the Niagara pool below the Falls.

"Life is just a game," he once said. "Play the game, and young or old you'll be the winner."

Some Welcome

Gracie Scores Tying Marker

By The Canadian Press

A last-minute goal by Bob Gracie, leading scorer of the American Hockey League, gave Pittsburgh Hornets a 4-4 tie last night with the cellar-dwelling St. Louis Flyers of the League's western division at St. Louis.

Flyers, in a strong bid for victory, took a three-goal lead on scores by Johnny Baby, Vic Lynn and George Blake before Tony Hemmerling drove home Hornets' first goal.

Midway in the final period Bob Walton whittled Flyers lead to one point. A perfect rebound shot by Joe MacIntosh increased Flyers' margin briefly, but Art Roubell came back fast with another tally for Pittsburgh. Then, with 30 seconds to go, Gracie sailed in for the tying goal while the Flyers defencemen were playing out of position.

Rangers Upset Toronto Leafs Win Game 5-4

By The Canadian Press.

One of hockey's finest stickhandlers, centre Ab Demarco, reached a new peak in his National League career when he led New York Rangers to a surprise 5-4 comeback triumph over the Maple Leafs at Toronto.

The 28-year-old North Bay, Ont., native teamed last night with the wings Hank Goldup and Grant Warwick to make one of the standout forward line shows of the campaign. The trio bagged all five New York goals. Demarco tallied twice unassisted and helped in two others, while Warwick also had a pair of goals. The clincher went to Goldup with only two minutes and 30 seconds left in the game.

Victory gave the New Yorkers their longest unbeaten streak in two years—two wins and two draws—and hiked them to within two points of Boston Bruins in the fourth and last playoff spot. The Blueshirts thus left the unhappy Chicago Black Hawks seven points behind.

Another centre, Ted Kennedy, was the big gun for Toronto, firing three fi s-eptrodrglosia thm odwp three first-period goals for the second N.H.L. hat trick in three nights. Ken Mosdell did it for the Canadiens on Saturday.

Demarco counted Rangers' first goal early in the second, but Art Jackson made it 4-1 for Toronto to set the stage for New York's four-goal uprising in the third.

Sweeney Schriner, playing his first game since a leg injury sidelined him on November 18, was still out of condition and of little help to Leafs, although he drew an assist on Jackson's goal.

Another repatriate, forward Johnny McCreedy, was also in bad shape. In his first N.H.L. appearance since he left Leafs for the R.C.A.F. two years ago.

St. Mike's Beat Classy Falcons

By The Canadian Press

St. Catharines Falcons for a time last night looked as if they might hand Toronto St. Michael's their first defeat in O.H.A. Junior A competition this season, but the threat fizzled out. St. Mikes finished the game at St. Catharines victors by a 6-4 count.

The Falcons had a 4-2 lead at the end of the first period, but it was all even going into the third, in which St. Mikes scored another two.

Gravelle paced the winners with three goals, the others coming from McLean, Blute and Turik. Stewart of St. Catharines also scored three times, Delmonte getting the other.

WAR CEMETERIES

Officials Still Accept Futurity Money

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP).—The pounding of hoofbeats over United States race tracks has been stilled but officials still are at work, preparing for the day when the runners and trotters again take their place in the American sports scene.

Although the ban on racing will continue until war conditions permit re-opening of the tracks, many of the racing associations are continuing to accept payments on futurity events with the understanding that the money will be refunded if the races are not run. Conditions of a futurity race call for the horses to be named either as a yearling or before they are born.

Programs at such tracks as Belmont, Arlington and Washington parks and Saratoga still are studded with futurity races. There also are a few at other major tracks including the Preakness and Futurity at Pimlico, California Breeders' Stake at Santa Anita, the Breeders' Futurity at Keeneland, and some 35 trotting stakes, including the rich Hambletonian.

Nominations for the 1947 Belmont Futurity do not close until next Monday but the list to date appears to be up to normal. The next payment for this year's Futurity is not due until July but 1,037 two-year-olds still are eligible.

Decision on Washington and Arlington Parks' six futurity and handicap events will not be made for another week or two.

Matt Daiger, general manager of Pimlico, said payments for Pimlico's Futurity and Preakness will be made as usual for races to be run in 1945, '46 and '47. This year's Futurity has 998 nominations from 134 stables.

Will Gahagan, secretary of the Hambletonian Society, said that 49 three-year-olds still are eligible for this year's Hambletonian trotting stake at Goshen and that 124 were kept eligible as of January 1 for the 1946 renewal. He pointed out, however, that most of the fees were in before War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes' order was issued December 23.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

The baseball world was startled 17 years ago when New York Giants traded Rogers Hornsby, one of the game's greatest hitters, to Boston Braves for catcher Frank Hogan and outfielder Jimmy Welch. Giant officials said the move was "in the best interests of the club." Hornsby became the National League's batting champion for the seventh time that year.

DON GROSSO CHANGES WINGS — A Chicago Black Hawk newcomer, Don Grosso, is pictured here in action. One of three players obtained by the Black Hawks in a trade with the Detroit Red Wings. Grosso, who played centre for the Wings, will play left wing for the Black Hawks. He will make his first appearance in Chicago against the Boston Bruins at the Stadium on January 14.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Cecil (Tiny) Thompson, former N.H.L. goalie who was recently appointed chief scout for the Chicago Black Hawks, said at Winnipeg last night he believes very few former professionals now in the Armed Forces would recover enough of their past form to resume hockey careers after the war. It's an interesting question if they come back soon. Thompson said he thinks they will not be able to compete with the young stars now coming out of amateur ranks.

Race track bettors, struggling with results from Mexico and Cuba now that the ban is in effect in the United States, no doubt will be interested to know that two race tracks are still operating in Puerto Rico, a United States territorial possession. The island program averages 121 racing days in the year, generally Wednesday, Saturday and holidays. The Puerto Ricans are eagerly guessing whether their track will get any North American play. But down there they go for seven-race parleys, which is a good trick if you can do it.

Biggest Program.

The athletic program is being increased in Russia. Basketball returned to Moscow this month and the biggest winter wartime sports program includes ski races, hockey and skating.

Gunner Ted Reeve, former Toronto Telegram sports columnist recently returned from overseas service with the 30th Sportsmen's Battery, was guest of honor last night at a dinner sponsored by the Toronto Baseball Boosters Club.

Bill Thoms of Newmarket, Ont., a member of Chicago Black Hawks for six years, announced his retirement from hockey yesterday after a 12-year playing career. Thoms, gravely ill last season, failed to regain his old form.

Maxie Berger of Montreal outpointed Solomon Stewart of Providence, R.I., in an eight-round boxing bout at the Broadway Arena in Brooklyn last night, thus winning his third feature bout in as many weeks and also his thirteenth straight triumph in the same arena. Berger weighed 146, Stewart 142.

Jack Reynolds, 51, recognized by the N.B.A. as world welterweight wrestling champion until his retirement in 1937, died yesterday at Covington, Kentucky, after an illness of several months.

OttawaRegiment Brilliant In Italy Attack

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN.. CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC, Jan. 10—(CP).— "Brilliant" and "magnificent" were the adjectives used by Allied Force Headquarters here to describe the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards' encircling movement about Ravenna.

The Ottawa regiment entered the town from the northwest while Britain's 27th Lancers were doing the same from the south. The Canadians gave the enemy the choice of withdrawing with all speed or being trapped. They pulled out.

Ravenna's capture culminated a three-day battle which brought the unit into the town hungry and wet, with feet swollen from long marching in soggy boots. The entire advance had made without vehicles—roads were blown and cars couldn't plow through the marshes — and everything had to be man-packed. Ammunition was much more useful than bullybeef.

Soon after squadrons commanded by Maj. Doug Burke, Swift Current, Sask., and Maj. Alex Beckingham, Kingston, Ont., entered the town, pelted with flowers by a tumultous people, they snacked. The little food that remained was brought together by the townfolk who opened a canteen for the boys and satisfied their hunger, at least until military transport could get through.

When the Canadian Corps crossed the Montone on to the Indian bridgehead and advanced in great fan-out movement December 2 the "plugs' kept nearest to the Montone. They had trouble with the enemy's remaining Montone defences, which kept tossing well-directed artillery and mortar fire. Only 2,000 yards were registered that day.

3-Pronged Attack

That night Ottawa Valley's Highland regiment came in and took over the riverside advance while the Guards worked inland toward Godo. Here the gap widened between themselves and the division on their left, working for Russi, while the same was happening between them and the Highlanders on the right. It as all part of three-pronged Canadian scheme—one for the Lamone, one for Route 16 north-west of Ravenna, and the last for Ravenna itself.

After the Guards reached Godo the night was spent beating off counter-attacks. Next morning they headed for Piangipane, halfway across country to route 16, Adriatic coast road which leads from Ravenna to Ferrara and Venice. They had barely started when order were received to change course towards Ravenna, and the two squadrons under Majors Burke and Beckingham started out.

While the Governor-General's Horse Guards swept up the Montone from San Marco, "plug" squadrons worked back from Ravenna, and others worked out from Godo to meet them. More than 300 Germans were flushed in the operation. Ravenna was taken at a cost to the "plugs' of 50 casualties.

Hay Shortage May Bring Drastic Action

OTTAWA, Jan. 10 — (CP) — The Prices Board is prepared if necessary to commandeer hay supplies from available surpluses in view of reports of serious shortages in some areas of Ontario and Quebec and surpluses in others, Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, said Tuesday.

The Board emphasized in a statement the "immediate need" to get more feed into the districts where it is most needed. Mr. Gordon said some applications had been received for hay export permits, but the Board considered the first obligation on domestic supply was to meet domestic requirements.

Board officials said sources of available supplies are known and necessary action will be taken to speed up shipments if supply is not forthcoming.

A Board spokesman said that last fall hay prices in central and eastern Canada advanced to a point which put these prices out of line with the prices of beef cattle and dairy products. To protect the price ceiling and Canada's wartime food production policies, a ceiling price was placed on hay and the granting of permits to export hay to the United States was discontinued Oct. 20 last.

The basic price fixed by the board is $18 per ton for baled hay, f.o.b. the railway shipping point in or nearest to the area of production. This is the maximum price to the country shipper whether he is a farmer or a dealer who purchased the hay from a farmer.

Germans Face Difficulties Using V-Bombs

By JOHN KIMCHE
Reuters Military Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 10 — (CP.-Reuters).—If the Germans carry out their reported intention of launching V-bombs against the United States, this would represent as much an enemy diversion to delay the final offensive on the Reich as was the Ardennes attack.

The German high command calculates that nervousness and public opinion in the United States would compel giving the home front priorities on equipment meant for the fighting front. This would particularly affect anti-aircraft guns and fighter aircraft.

The high command could use either the Focke-Wul Kurier four-engined long-range bombers or U-boats for the bombing. The Focke-Wulf planes have been out of action since the height of the battle of the Atlantic and since have been refitted for various new purposes. One is believed to be the carrying of flying bombs. Also, about four months ago all pilots with long-distance flying experience were combed out of the Luftwaffe and given special training.

But attacks of this kind would give the United States coastal defence adequate warning for even at extreme range these Kuriers would have to fire their bomb something like 250 to 300 miles from the coast. That means that the bombs would have to carry more fuel and less explosives than those fired against southern England at present. Weather and other conditions would make this form of attack extremely costly for the Nazis.

It is more likely that mobile carriers on U-boats will be used, possibly fixed on floats and fired away from the actual submarine so as to reduce risk.

Either way the actual military change — or even the loss of civilian life—likely to be caused would be small and could not possibly repay the Germans for the effort.

16,000 Japanese Entrenched On Bouganville

By J. E. HOLDSWORTH
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 10—(CP Cable)—The Australian newspapers splashed under banner headlines Tuesday the disclosure that the Commonwealth's land forces had been in action in three southwest Pacific war zones since November.

The news that released war correspondents' reports and photographs was an Allied communique saying "Australian troops relieved American forces in the Solomons axis, including New Britain and British New Guinea."

The Australians began taking over these areas last Nov. 6 and the communique said continuous actions of attrition had taken place.

Reports said that on New Britain, which lies between the Solomons and New Guinea northwest of Australia, Australians broke new ground by landing at Jacquinot bay, 100 miles from Rabaul, without opposition and that later another amphibious movement carried the Anzacs to within 50 miles of Rabaul.

The New Britain amphibious landings were made under extreme difficulties but the troops were protected by Australian warships and planes.

Advance 30 Miles

Australian troops within a fortnight advanced 30 miles from Jacquinot Bay without opposition. They found wrecked barges, observation posts and camp sites.

In the Solomons, a strong Australian force, including commandos, landed on Bougainville island where the Americans had for a long time maintained a defensive perimeter and within a couple of days the Australians drove the enemy from a couple of key positions.

Supporting the Australians are R.A.A.F. and Royal New Zealand Air Force planes which make almost daily attacks. Japanese air strength was found to be negligible, although anti-aircraft fire was heavy.

About 16,000 Japanese troops are firmly established at strategic points on Bougainville. They control the two principal harbors—Kieta and Tonolei. An occasional submarine or seaplane brings them supplies.

In New Guinea, Australian land forces have replaced Americans who landed there last April to establish an air base.

In the first six weeks Australian casualties were three killed and three wounded.

Meanwhile, Tokyo radio said the Japanese trops cut off in the bases north of Australia are living on crocodiles and lizards, drinking coconut whisky and smoking pawpaw leaves.

Main Street Topics

HOCKEY PRACTICE

Coach G. Harris has called a practice of the Y's Men's juvenile hockey team for tonight at 7 o'clock at the King Edward rink.

ANOTHER CHIMNEY FIRE

Another chimney fire was added to the growing list Tuesday evening, when firemen were called to the residence of Mrs. E. Davis, 382 George street south, at 6.09 o'clock.

BRISK BUSINESS.

Low temperatures of the past few days have resulted in a surge of business for the Peterborough plumbers, mostly dealing with frozen pipes. A noticeable increase in the number of calls received for work to be done was reported.

TICKETS AT PREMIUM

Only a few straggling tickets remain for the Plowmen's dinner at the Kawartha Club Wednesday, January 17. Four were turned back by persons who found that they had to be away that night. They immediately got their money back and the tickets passed in to new hands. Vern Campbell, chairman of the social committee, is in charge of the program, and some word is expected from that quarter one of these days. Alex Huston, president, has ample time these winter days to polish up a chairman's address. Mayor Hamilton was looking for a ticket Tuesday night and Bill Ovens bought his two early.

Albert Delahaye Dies Suddenly Of Heart Attack

Stricken with a heart attack early this morning, Albert Edwin Delahaye, 416 Mark street, died at his home several hours later. Returning from work as usual Tuesday, he had bowled Tuesday night, and to all appearance was in normal health, although for some time there had been light indications of a heart condition.

Mr. Delahaye was born in Peterborough thirty-eight years ago, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Delahaye, and had lived here continuously. He was an employee of the Western Clock Company for the last eighteen years. He is survived by his parents, his wife, the former Dorothy Armstrong, two sisters, Mrs. A. Clarke and Mrs. Ihamaki, and three brothers, Herbert, Harold and Raymond, all of this city.

Mr. Delahaye was a member of the Board of Stewards of Mark Street United Church.

"He was also our envelope steward, and he was on the new parsonage committee," said Rev. E. W. Rowland today. "Mr. Delahaye was a very, very active member of our church, and we have indeed lost one of our most valued men for whom we all had the greatest respect."

Baseball Player

Throughout his youth Mr. Delahaye was deeply interested in sports and especially baseball. He was a catcher on the junior Maple Leaf baseball team and was later with the Crescents in the East Peterborough League when "hardball" flourished some years ago and was the only kind of baseball played by the youth of Peterborough. In his later years he took up bowling, played in the Men's City League and also in the Westclox shop league. The games he played Tuesday night were with his team in the Westclox group.

Employees of the Western Clock Company were wordlessly shocked this morning by the news of Mr. Delahaye's sudden death, and it was reported that even some of the men who had been associated with him in the plant for the last eighteen years were in tears. His was an attractive personality, winning him popularity and esteem at his work, in his church and sports affairs, and generally throughout the community.

For ten years Mr. Delahaye was manager of the Westclox girls' softball team, and was a sustaining influence in the Peterborough Ladies' Softball League of which he was a member of its executive.

The funeral will take place Friday at 3:30 p.m. from the funeral home of A. Comstock & Sons, 305 Water street, to the Little Lake Cemetery, and the service will be conducted by Rev. E. W. Rowland.

Driver Pleads Guilty To Not Turning Out

As the result of an accident on the Hunter street bridge in which two cars were in collision and one of them was considerably damaged, J. G. Marchen pleaded guilty in police court this morning to failing to turn out when meeting another vehicle and was fined $5 and $2.50 costs.

Hugh Davis of Capitol Taxi pleaded not guilty to a charge of failing to stop before entering a through street and the case was adjourned until tomorrow.

Roger A. Trepanier, Toronto, entered a written plea of guilty to a charge of not coming to a full stop before entering a through street and was fined $3 and $2.50 costs.

G. Nicholls who entered a plea of guilty to a drunk charge was fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

Court Hearts Story Of Man AWOL

The story of how a soldier wanted for being absent without leave from his unit was found by the military police hiding in the attic of a Sherbrooke street house, was told in police court this morning when William Dunlop, 503 Sherbrooke street, was charged with harboring his son, Pte. Darcy Dunlop, knowing him to be absent without leave.

Dunlop who was defended by W. J. Arthur Fair, pleaded not guilty. The prosecution was in charge of W. F. Huycke, K.C.

Constable Gordon Trennum of the city police told of accompanying a number of members of the Provost Crops to a house on Sherbrooke street on the early morning of September 16 in search of Pte. Darcy Dunlop, absent without leave from his unit. Constable Thennum said that after the officers rapped on the door and waited for some time William Dunlop had come to the door and stated that Darcy Dunlop was not in the house and that he had not seen him for a month. The officers had a search warrant and searched the house, the officer stated.

Discover Attic

Sgt. Wm. Amos of the Provost Corps, swore that after searching the house he had asked William Dunlop if there was an attic to the place and accused had replied in the negative, stating that that was the big drawback to the house. Later while searching the bathroom, Sgt. Amos noticed a trap door in the ceiling and getting some help with a boost from one of the other Provost opened the trap door and saw a man who turned out to be Pte. Darcy Dunlop, on the joists of the unfinished attic and clad in his underwear. The man was placed under arrest.

Lance Cpl. M. Scott who was a member of the search party, said that he heard Sgt. Amos ask William Dunlop about the attic and that Dunlop had stated that there was no stairway to the attic.

Witness said that he knew Darcy Dunlop and that the latter was the man who had been found in the attic that night.

Max R. Sloan, assistant assessor said that William Dunlop was on the assessment role as tenant of 503 Sherbrooke street. He himself had written in the name because he had been told by Mrs. Dunlop that William Dunlop was the tenant.

At the conclusion of the crown's case Mr. Fair asked for a dismissal but Magistrate Langley called for the defence.

Mrs. Darcy Dunlop, called by Mr. Fair, said that she was a joint tenant of 503 Sherbrooke street, paying half the rent. She testified that she had not seen her husband for a month before the night of September 16. He had come late that night and she was certain that William Dunlop could not have known that his son was there on that occasion for he had gone to bed early. Mrs. Dunlop said that she knew her husband had been absent without leave.

Court adjourned for luncheon at this stage, leaving the argument of counsel until this afternoon.

CHAPLAIN-GENERAL

LONDON — (CP). — A fighting soldier in the First Great War and an 8th Army padre in this one, Rev. Canon F. L. Hughes, C.B.E., M.C., has been appointed chaplain-general to the forces.

POTATOES FROM PERU

The potato was introduced into Europe through Spain by Hieronymus Cardan, a monk who brought it back with him from Peru.

Monthly Reception Planned For Men Back From Overseas

Plans for a civic reception for returned soldiers and their families, once a month, were made at a meeting of the reception and welfare committee of the Peterborough Rehabilitation Council, Tuesday evening. D. G. H. Melton presided.

Discussion, opened by Mayor James Hamilton, centred around the problem of meeting ex-servicemen on their erturn from overseas and what had already been done in this regard. General agreement was reached on plans to provide a civic reception once a month to which returned men and women and their immediate families would be invited. Fire Chief George Gimblett, president of the Canadian Legion, offered the Canadian Legion hall and the services of the Legion membership in providing the entertainment and refreshments for the initial reception at a date to be announced. Further discussion on the questions of decoration of the main streets and railway stations with "welcome" signs and the possibilities of post-war employment for all returning personnel was entered into by all members of the committee and complete co-operation of the city council was assured by Mayor Hamilton.

Mrs. Chill Turner, representing the 57th Chapter I.O.D.E. consented to accept the temporary chairmanship of the committee. The following members were present: Mayor James Hamilton, Mrs. W. R. Morris, Mrs. Chill Turner, Mrs. Frank Merritt, Rev. J. T. Finn, Dr. J. E. Middleton, Fire Chief George Gimblett, Capt. D. A. Loomis, D. G. H. Melton, W. H. L. Mellis and A. B. Burrows who acted as secretary for the committee. Mrs. C. L. Upper and Dr. R. S. Chenoweth had previously expressed regrets at being unable to attend the meeting.

Sniper's Bullet Wounds Cpl. S. Clarke

The Canadian Legion, Red Cross and various auxiliary organizations set up for the benefit of servicemen returning to Canada from overseas are doing marvellous work in the opinion of Cpl. Samuel Clarke, 249 Simcoe street, who has arrived home in Peterborough after taking part in the invasion of France.

One of the originals of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, Cpl. Clarke was wounded in action near Caen last July, and remained in a hospital in England until coming back to Canada.

He landed on the coast of France D-Day, storming ashore in a company of men commanded by Peterborough's Major Neil Gemmell. "Major Gemmell is a great soldier," he said, lauding officers of the regiment. He also praised Major Archie Hamilton, who recently returned home.

Hit By Sniper

One month and two days after going into action in France, Cpl. Clarke was wounded in the ear by a sniper's bullet, just outside Caen, where several other Peterborough soldiers became casualties. He was flown to England in a plane, where he remained until coming home.

Cpl. Clarke said he likes England very much. He admires the English people, he said, because they have faced hardships, and know how to take them. During the time spent in the British Isle he had an opportunity to visit his mother in Belfast, Ireland, on five occasions. He was also born there.

But the S. D. and G. Highlanders themselves rate the highest in this soldier's affections, and he said: "It's a wonderful regiment, and I am exceptionally proud to belong to it. I think everyone who is with the S. D. and G.'s feel the same way."

Thanks was expressed by Cpl. Clarke to the Peterborough branch 52, Canadian Legion, for cigarettes which were much appreciated overseas, and to Peterborough women's auxiliaries whose work was invaluable.

Cpl. Clarke enlisted in the regiment in June, 1940, and went to England in July of 1941. Before enlisting he was employed at the Empress Hotel, and is now home on a 30-day leave.

Cpl. Clarke has a brother, Sgt. Daniel Clarke, who has been a prisoner-of-war in Germany since Dunkirk, and two other brothers, Alex and John, are serving with the navy. Another brother, Jimmy, was killed in an air raid over Northern Ireland at Easter, 1942.

14 Men Join Army During Past Week

During the past week, 14 men from Peterborough and the district have enlisted in Canada's active army, at the recruiting office in the Armouries. They have been sent to Kingston for medical examination, but it is possible that some may be rejected on medical grounds.

Here are the names of the men who enlisted: Donald Eric Loyst, 176 Sherbrooke street; Cecil Edward Johnson, 44 Monaghan road; Napoleon A. Gravelle, 29 New Chamberlain street; Maurice William Newton, R.R. 2 Havelock; Samuel Bunk, R.R. 1 Bowmanville; John Arkley Barber, Fenelon Falls; Robert Murray Robinson, Fenelon Falls; Wesley Altworth Taylor, Curve Lake; Benjamin Taylor, Curve Lake; Edward Walter Coppaway, Curve Lake; Roy Thomas Carleton, 230 Kent street, Lindsay; John Joseph Turner, R.R. 3 Ida; Herbert W. ## Hitler's Speech

WITH THE U.S. 7TH ARMY, Jan. 10—(AP). — Recent German prisoners have been found carrying copies of a mythical speech to be delivered by Hitler in 1950 in which he announces annexation of the United States as a German colony. The prisoners refused to say where they obtained their mimeographed copies of the document, heavy with Teutonic humor and irony, but presumably it could be the word of a disillusioned German veteran.

War—4 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press

Jan. 10, 1941—Enemy sea and air forces attacked important British convoy in Sicilian Channel, damaging aircraft carrier Illustrious and cruiser Southampton, which subsequently sank. Greeks captured Klusura, Albania. Roosevelt introduced lease-lend British aid bill to Congress.

Winter's Rigors Harass Farm Industry

Deep snow in the woods is making bush work almost impossible according to the weekly review of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, based on the reports of its county representatives.

Farmers are handicapped by "the worst road conditions in many years." They are finding it difficult simply to get out and sell their produce. In Ontario county very little cream has been collected. In Prince Edward several days ago one poultryman had more than 100 cases of eggs on hand.

This is what Victoria says: "Snow blocked roads have made it difficult to deliver hogs, cattle, milk, cream and eggs to market and have aggravated the water supply problem."

Leeds farmers are thinking wishfully. They are looking forward to a good January thaw. Shipping of hogs has been at a standstill in Lennox-Addington.

Can't Get Feed

Haldimand reports "Farmers are experiencing one of the most difficult seasons in many years. Road conditions are extremely bad, and it has been difficult to get agricultural products to market, and equally difficult to get feed and supplies home. And in Middlesex here is another worry—"With the accumulation of snow, fruit growers are having to give careful attention to their trees to prevent rabbit and mouse injury."

Farmers on the back roads of Welland have been unable to deliver milk supplies.

The winter landscape extends all across the province with only a few of the counties escaping its rigors.

Valuable Team Lost

LINDSAY, Jan. 10.—W. R. Curry of Haliburton lost a team of horses and a load of wood on a sleigh while attempting to drive across Long Lake Monday. Mr. Curry jumped to safety before the sleigh went through the ice. Heavy snow has impeded lumbering operations during the past two weeks.

Capt. F. Atkinson Back From England

Less than a year overseas on loan to the 3rd Monmouthshire Regiment of the British Army, Captain F. S. Atkinson, 358 Brock street, arrived home Tuesday night with a group of Peterborough men, casualties of the progress of the war in Europe.

For nearly three years Captain Atkinson was on the officers' staff of the local Training Centre, and previously had lived in Toronto.

"I met a few of the chaps in England whom I remembered from our experience at the Peterborough Training Centre," he said, "but they were not many. After I was attached to the Monmouthshires I had less opportunity of meeting anyone I knew. In fact I saw no one in France from around here."

Interviewing returned men generally recalls the frustration of the little boy named Peterkin in the school days poem who was pressing a veteran to tell him "all about the war," and the refrain of reply was the laconic phrase, "It was a famous victory." The boy had found at play "something smooth and round," a bleached skull on the field of the battle of Blenheim, and like the eternal boy he began asking questions of the old man to whose memory the action of that engagement frequently returned.

Elders may recall the opening lines from "After Blenheim," by Southey:

"It was a summer evening,
Old Casper's work was done,
And he before his cottage door
Was sitting in the sun...."

Veterans seem to have been recast in the same mould of reticence. Captain Atkinson did not even mention the "famous victory" of Casper's classic phrase. Of his landing in France, even the date of that historic operation, his injury and all the rest, he evaded enquiry with the comment, "Probably the less said the better."

Aussies Take Over

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(CP).—In addition to taking over from the United States forces in the Solomons, New Britain and New Guinea, Australian forces also have replaced the Americans on Emirau, Green, Munda and Treasury Islands, the Australian News and Information Bureau said last night. Emirau lies northwest of New Ireland, the Green Islands north of Bougainville, the Treasury Islands to the south and Munda north of New Britain.

Entire Fire Department Answers Alarm Find Tub Of Boiling Water, But No Fire

It looked like the real McCoy when the entire fire department rushed to 378 Water street shortly after 11.30 this morning.

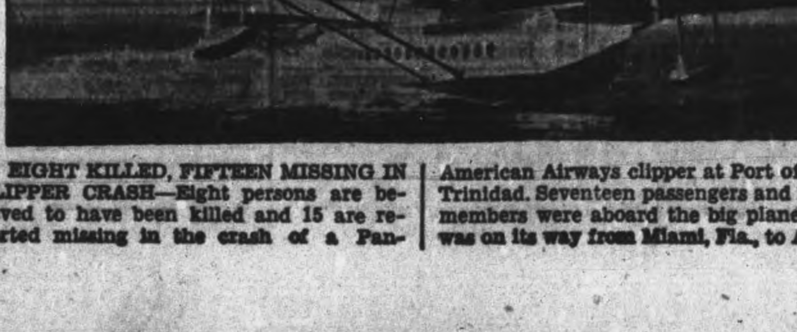
Firemen opened the door of the building, and a haze of grayish "smoke" greeted them. The spectators gathered, and the fun was on! Firemen rushed in; and came out a few moments later.

"Steam," one of them blurted.

"From a big tub of boiling water on the stove," added another.

Fire Chief Gimblett's official explanation of the excitement was that some quick-acting individual who left nothing to fate noticed steam seeping from the place, thought it was smoke, and proceeded to call for firemen immediately. Which is a good thing to do under most circumstances, but the Fire Chief said "Surely to goodness in broad daylight people can tell the difference between steam and smoke, and not have to pull out the whole department on a day like this on a wild goose chase."

A crowd of spectators who gathered were disappointed at being cheated of some late-morning excitement.



EIGHT KILLED, FIFTEEN MISSING IN CLIPPER CRASH—Eight persons are believed to have been killed and 15 are reported missing in the crash of a Pan-American Airways clipper at Port of Spain, Trinidad. Seventeen passengers and 15 crew members were aboard the big plane which was on its way from Miami, Fla., to Africa.

Food Industry Planning Stamp Drive

The food industry in Peterborough is taking on another enterprise of selling War Savings Stamps in February, hoping to exceed their total of $30,000 a year ago.

This effort is being made by the retail merchants, the bread, meat, milk and all the other staples of food reaching out to just about everything including the soft drink branch.

Feature events are being prepared for February, and local food establishments are being asked to contribute prizes for all events.

Ernest Braund is the general chairman of this February campaign which is bringing back into the limelight the need and the opportunity of investing something extra in War Savings Stamps.

The personal background of sectional chairmen follows:

Milk division—J. E. Weir; Bread—Alex Johns; Special events—Thomas Pritchard, Harley Weir and Paige Rowell.

Publicity—Roy Taylor; Wholesale division—Robert Ross and S. C. Williams.

Restaurants—Roy Hum; Rural division—Frank Lynch.

Grocery division, north, Joe Jebson; Grocery division, south—Gordon Hill.

Tobacco—Jack Steinkrauss.

This is the milk industry's first announcement to the public, and continuing information will all be directed to stimulating the interest of the people of Peterborough in ar Savings Stamps and what they mean to the financing of the war.

4 Peterboro Men Invalided Home

KINGSTON, Jan. 10 (Special) — Nine officers and 10 other ranks, one of whom was Lt.-Col. M. Isbester, M.C., Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster General of Military District No. 3, who was awarded the O.B.E. in the New Year's Honor list, arrived here late Monday night from overseas. Col. Isbester had been in the United Kingdom on a tour of duty.

Two of the group, Pte. K. E. Watkins, of R.R. No. 5, Picton, and Cpl. H. F. Shaw, 607 Young street, Peterborough, were returned to Canada for duty near their relatives under the Triwound scheme. Soldiers eligible for such leave either have been wounded three times or have long service and two wounds.

Cpl. Shaw, a member of the famous Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, was first wounded in Sicily in 1943 by shrapnel in the knee and leg, and again in the left foot and leg during action last year seven miles from Ortona.

A former professional hockey player with Philadelphia and New York Americans, Sgt. S. Grossett, who spent over four years overseas was wounded in the right arm during enemy action near the Seine river.

Lt. T. K. Robertson, of 67 King street E., Brockville, was injured in England just before D-Day when an eight-hundred-weight truck in which he was riding rolled over in an accident. He suffered two broken vertebrae.

Lt. Francis Thomas Marlay, of Kingston, was met at the station by his father, Capt. T. Marlay, officer in charge of records at Fort Frontenac. Lieut. Marlay was overseas five years, and saw action in Normandy.

Those armitted to Kingston Military Hospital were Capt. Francis Smith Atkinson, 358 Brock street, Peterborough; Lt. John Clark Stephenson, 105½ Station street, Belleville; Lt. Claire Allison Rose, 116 Sydney street, Cornwall; Lt. George Donald Jodoin, 20 Marlborough street, Cornwall; Gnr. P. W. Hart, 109 Adelaide street, Lindsay; Pte. E. J. Graham, Norwood, Ont., and Cpl. S. Clarke, 249 Simcoe street, Peterborough.

Others in the group who returned were Major J. W. A. Russell, Colborne, Ont.; Lt. J. W. Burns, 122 Sydney street, Cornwall; Gnr. J. L. Blair, Brockville; Pte. J. W. Downer, 466 Bolivar street, Peterborough; Sgt. S. Mason, 11 Beverly street, Kingston, and Sgt. H. G. Rushworth, 28 Ponton street, Belleville.

New Belgian Army

BRUSSELS, Jan. 10—(CP). — A major step toward organizing a new Belgian army was taken yesterday by the Minister of National Defence, Fernand Demets, with the appointment of Maj.-Gen. Joseph Beernaert as "high commander of troops." Beernaert will reorganize the army.

COMPLETES TOUR — Flying Officer Vaughan Glover, whose wife lives at 44 Frank street, has finished his tour of operational flying overseas. He was serving as a navigator on a bomber. The young flier went overseas in November, 1943, and had formerly operated a store on Chamberlain street.

Brinton Gifts Total $1,080 To Bomb Victims

More than four years ago, a member of the office staff at the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. Ltd. caught a vision of the potential for good that the employees of that plant might have as a whole, and gave leadership in a move to assist the bomb victims in Britain, through the local and district fund that had just at that time commenced operations on their behalf.

The foundation at that time must have been well and truly laid, for few can point to a more steady continuity of service in this respect, best amplified by stating as a matter of fact, that they have since that time contributed on no less than seventy-seven different occasions, which in itself is a record that few in either or a collective manner are able to equal.

During the period that has elapsed since they first began this work on behalf of this particular war assist, the oversight of it has passed through various hands, to again land back with Reg. Kingdon who was responsible for its inception.

Today another $25 comes from this group, which makes up a total of $1,080 that they have now given to assist the objects for which the fund has continued its appeal for more than four years past.

One personal gift is also listed today for the fund, to make the total on hand towards the next donation stand at $1,092.00, which is only some $28.00 short of reaching the half-way mark to complete the amount required to fully realize the next objective.

In view of the fact that bombings of Britain still continue, the fund still has a duty to perform in assisting those who have been stricken in this manner, and for that reason would welcome the continued interest and support of the citizens, until the need no longer exists.

The Wrong House

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Jan. 10—(AP).—A Walla Walla family thought it was nice of their landlord to do all that unsolicited repair work on their house. The owner thought so, too. The bill was paid by another landlord. His contractor had repaired the wrong house.

Oldest Resident In Omemee Dies Suddenly

OMEMEE, Jan. 10 — (ENS). — Joseph Sherwood, Omemee's oldest resident, who was noted for his eccentricities and hermit-like life, was found dead in his home Tuesday evening by a delivery man.

Earlier in the afternoon the 85-year-old man had ordered some groceries and when Orval Toole came to deliver them at 5:30 p.m. he stepped inside the door and found Mr Sherwood dead.

Born in Omemee, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Sherwood, pioneers of the district, Mr. Sherwood had worked and lived in the village all his life. He was a familiar figure to villagers, pacing up and down the street before his house in all kinds of weather. Mr. Sherwood was particularly noted for his habit of wearing his winter clothes in the summer time, expressing vigorously his idea that what kept out the cold would also keep out the heat. With the temperature in the 90's, he could be seen walking along the street in a heavy overcoat and cap with ear flaps pulled down over his ears.

The last surviving member of a family of six brothers and three sisters, Mr. Sherwood in his younger days had been employed by the C.N.R. as a telegraph operator. Later he was librarian of the Omemee Public Library until he retired some years ago. The late Mr. Sherwood was a member of Christ Anglican Church.

The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from Christ Church. Rev. F. Pooley will officiate and interment will be in Emily Cemetery.

Dummer Council Holds Inaugural

WARSAW, Jan. 10 — (ENS). — The inaugural meeting of the 1945 Dummer township council was held in the town hall on Monday. Rev. G. Snelgrove was present and opened the proceedings with a short devotional period. Members took their oaths of office William Darling, reeve; Percy Ball, Wesley Chamberlain, Allen Oliver and Walter Sloan, councillors.

Reeve Darling in his inaugural address asked the council for their support and co-operation and said he trusted the council would work together in unity and in the best interests of the municipality. Councillor Bell, the only member of the 1944 council to be returned, thanked the reeve for his address and said he felt that there would be a spirit of co-operation in the council throughout the year. He referred to past councils as all doing their best for the municipality.

Bylaws were passed authorizing the payments of accounts by orders upon the treasurer and appointing of a local Board of Health.

On motion of Oliver and Sloan road expenditures to the amount of $182. were order paid and on motion of Chamberlain and Bell the general accounts, relief and charity and election costs were order paid as follows general accounts totalling $111.25, election costs $100.93 and relief and charity $77.50. Council adjourned to meet February 1.

Rambling Reporter

IT COULDN'T BE

An Examiner employee, who tried to convince his co-workers that mosquitos have a penchant for weather 27 degrees below zero, was regarded sceptically this morning. However to prove his claim that mosquitos were around, he produced the "body" which he claimed to have killed this morning. It was a sure-enough 'skeeter," but must have been kept alive in a bottle since last July.

Establishment Of Kingdom Of God Is First Purpose Of Prayer

The second of the series of Week-of-Prayer services was held in St. James United Church on Tuesday evening. Rev. Fred Craik was in charge of the service, assisted by Rev. H. J. Mahoney who read the scripture lesson and led in prayer. Rev. E. J. Whan addressed the congregation chosing as his subject, "Thy Kingdom Come, Thy Will Be Done."

"Christ would never have given this prayer," Mr. Whan said, "unless it could be fulfilled when we meet the terms. We can be assured that some day according to divine plan it will be fulfilled and that the kingdoms of this world will become the kingdom of our Lord. Let us think of this prayer as the gospel of the kingdom. Here is a kingdom to be secured by the goodwill of those who belong to it. The word 'Blessed" is the key to the gospel of the kingdom. Christ uses this word primarily in his sermon on the Mount. The average man has never learned to accept or understand the sermon on the Mount or the Lord's Prayer. What a different world this would be if the teachings of Jesus were accepted by the world. The world has been unwilling to accept its doctrine. Running through all the beatitudes is the blessedness of the Christian life, Christian fellowship and love. We must make the Lord's Prayer a reality in our own life.

"This conception of the kingdom," the speaker declared, "was entirely new to the children of Israel. Racial distinction had no place in the kingdom. Our first purpose in prayer is not to seek for our own ends but to establish the kingdom of God in the world. How far is the world from such a noble conception of the kingdom?" Mr. Whan asked. "Jesus taught that the kingdom is peace and joy in the Holy Ghost. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so on earth does not ask for a kingdom in the sky but here in the world. It is not a prayer of resignation but a pledge of consecration, a reign of righteousness in the human heart. "In the depths of sorrow let us not say God does not care but rather let us pray that God's will be done, as in heaven, so on earth. There is no resignation, submission or dark forebodings, no sickness, no sorrow in heaven, so let us pray thy will be done.

"What is the will of God for me? It is the will of God first in national life in our homes, our social life, in international affairs. We must not be discouraged by world conditions but expectantly yearn that God's will be done on earth. If we are to see this prayer answered we must give the gospel to all men. There will be no colour line in the kingdom of God."

Tonight's meeting will be held in All Saints Anglican Church with the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe as the guest speaker.

Mrs. B. F. McNeely presented an appeal for books for children from four to 10 years of age for the wartime housing community. Books can be left in a special box at Neill's shoe store, she said.

The drive to enlarge the membership of the Association will be continued. It was emphasized that parental interest must be aroused in the Home and School ideas, before new members were likely to join. The radio questionnaire also was discussed, and it was decided, through the cooperation of the teachers, to have the pupils bring home a copy of the questions.

F. E. Kerr gave an interesting talk on current events, and referred to the situation in Greece. He read some of the 50 wartime changes and restrictions regarding clothing and rations which had been introduced in Great Britain, and mentioned the benefits of the air training school plan across Canada, for British airmen, helping to cooperate in Allied strategy. Mr. Kerr explained that German efforts to save the industrial section, by drives between the Allied armies, were the cause of the recent break-throughs. He also told of Turkey breaking diplomatic relations with Japan, and concluded with a summary of the advances made by the Allies since this time last year.

J. Telford led in community singing, with Mrs. A. E. DeNure at the piano. Miss C. Dobbin's class was awarded the book for largest attendance of parents.

The vote of thanks to the teachers was moved by Mrs. G. Lathangue, and following the adjourning of the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. C. Batchelor and her committee.

Curling News

By HERB MARTIN

Ever since the schedule began on Tuesday, December 26, we have had at least one extra-end game and sometimes two. Tuesday night was no exception. It was left to B. Chesler and I. Hamley to keep up the record, and they did, with Benny getting the odd shot in the overtime period.

It was another big night. There were a few delays and we believe that this could be overcome, especially on the seven o'clock draw, if the skips themselves would just do a little missionary work. Often a phone call would help a lot.

To-night our bonspiel is set for 7.30 o'clock. Be out and be on time.

At a meeting of the ladies' club, held yesterday afternoon, Mrs. O. DeGraw and Mrs. G. Wood were elected Tankard skips. This contest is to be played in Bobcaygeon early in February.

How about a little practice for our Tankard and District Cup rinks?

Third Division Perfected D-Day Technique

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN HOLLAND, Jan. 10 (CP-Cable)—History may show that one of Canada's greatest contributions to victory in this war was the development by the 3rd Canadian Division of the tactics and technique required for success in the assault landings on the Beaches of Normandy last June.

Almost a year before the invasion, Gen. Crerar, 1st Canadian Army commander, who then was a Lieutenant-General and commander of the 1st Canadian Corps, began at the request of the high command to evolve an assault landing combined serve battle drill.

With the 3rd Division as a testing board, the present army commander shaped the plan from close study of the Canadian-led Dieppe operation. He analyzed the weaknesses of the 1942 reconnaissance in force and rectified errors emerging with the drill, which the 3rd Division—one of the D-Day units—put to a successful test in an exercise in S— ern England.

That drill was accepted as a blueprint for last summer's landings and Gen. Crerar's promotion two months ago to the rank of full general was essentially in recognition of his services to the Allied Armies in evolving with the staff of the 3rd Division the means of getting an assault force ashore in Western Europe.

Dieppe's outstanding lesson was that overwhelming fire support was necessary to get assaulting troops onto beaches and through the first defences. There could be no expectation of strategic surprise and little hope of tactical surprise.

In conjunction with high-ranking R.A.F. and Royal Navy officers, Gen. Crerar worked out a scheme to provide the necessary fire, including close support. The 3rd Division, then commanded by Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller of Kelowna, B.C., gave its initial demonstration in the exercise known as "pirate" at Studland Bay, south of Bournemouth, in October, 1943. Rockets, sea-borne artillery and many other secret invasion weapons were used in this exercise, a full-blown test of fire power progressively provided by four flights of craft approaching the beaches in line abreast.

The support was designed to do what wasn't done at Dieppe—neutralize the enemy beach defences, open gaps through mine fields and wire, engage the land defences to some depth and carry assault forces to a beachhead with a minimum of casualties. Air and naval bombardment were in addition to this support-craft fire.

"Pirate" was reported at the time as just another pre-invasion exercise. Correspondents could only describe a fraction of what they saw for although they may not have known it then they were watching a dress-rehearsal of the invasion.

Judge Demands Soldier Be Produced

MONTREAL, Jan. 10 — (CP). — Mr. Justice Louis Cousineau in a judgment believed to be the first of its kind in Canada since the war started Tuesday authorized a writ of habeas corpus to be issued for the appearance in superior court of Marcel Boissy, a conscripted soldier, to determine whether he is legally detained as a soldier in the armed forces.

Mr. Justice Cousineau ruled that Boissy be produced in court within three days after Lt.-Col. Samuet Schenberg, officer commanding M.D. No. 4 (Montreal) depot, is served with today's judgment.

Army counsel objected to the ruling, saying that on entry into the army a soldier is only subject to military courts in military matters. Mr. Justice Cousineau based his judgment upon precedents set during the First Great War.

In his petition for the writ of habeas corpus, Boissy claimed his physical condition was such that under rules and regulations and the army induction physical fitness standards he should have been rejected by army physicians at the time he underwent his army medical examination.

Boissy added in his petition that army physicians had "wrongfully" classified him as physically fit.

Elusive Hotel

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 10—(AP). —Charles J. Haney got off a bus from Los Angeles, managed to get a hotel room a few blocks away, left his suitcase and went out to eat. He's spent the last five days trying to find the hotel.

His Bad Night

CHICAGO, Jan. 10—(AP). — The three gunmen who accosted Gus Ballas near his home expressed disgust at finding only $5 in his pockets so Ballas started to explain. The robbers refused to listen and one slugged him. Ballas told police he wanted to tell the trio that a few minutes earlier two bandits held him up and took from him an eight-pound bag of sugar—which also contained $400, the day's receipts from his grocery store.

Four Divorces To Be Heard Involve Peers

LONDON, Jan. 9 (CP)—Four uncontested divorce suits involving four peers and as many peeresses will be heard in London's bomb-battered law courts during the term beginning Jan. 11.

In the undefended list is a petition by Countess Beatty, the former Mrs. Dorothy Power Sands of Virginnia, against Earl Beatty son of the First Great War admiral and himself a navy commander and holder of the Distinguished Service Cross for gallantry and skill in the 1942 Dieppe raid.

Likewise undefended is a suit by the Countess of Listowel, the former Miss Judith de Marffy-Mantuano, against Lord Listowel, the fifth holder of the title and former whip of the Labor Party in the House of Lords. Lord Listowel now is Parliamentary Undersecretary of State for the India Office. They were married in Budapest in 1933.

Baroness Bruntisfield has filed an undefended suit against Lord Bruntisfield, Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty since 1932.

Lord Swinfen has petitioned for a divorce from Lady Swinfen. Lord Swinfen, 40, has held the title since the death in 1919 of his father, who was a Lord Justice of Appeal.

The former Tilly Losch, a one-time Viennese dancer, now countess of Carnarvon, has decided to defend the divorce suit brought against her by the Earl of Carnarvon, twice married and sixth holder of the title.

Cross petitions by the Duke and Duchess of Leinster also appeared on the defended list. The duke married Mrs. Rafaelle Van Neck of New York in 1932.

Another case on the defended list is a petition by Lady Grimthorpe against Lord Grimthorpe, banker and chairman of the Board of the Northeastern Airways.

Claim English Will Adopt Extreme Clothes

By FRANK LOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 10.—(CP).— It just won't be the same London. That's all.

Imagine it if you can, but rumor has it that in the years of peace that are coming English business men will report to their solid offices on Treadneedle street wearing tweed jackets and colored sport slacks.... The saleman along Regent street will be sporting mauve waistcoats.... That government employees will chase the shadows in the Parliament Buildings with screaming yellow neckties.... That —but before everyone says "impossible" let's look at how this will come about.

Firstly, the creators of these empire-shaking statements are men who daily gather in their offices along Bond street and plot the wardrobe of the nation. And maybe they can't be blamed for this sudden burst of imagination because for five years now they have had little to take up their minds but how to make one yard of cloth do the work of two.

And they say the accent in men's clothes will be on vivid colors, comfort and style—which means a clothing revolution for Englishmen.

These clothing czars are convinced that after five years of mending and making do the average Englishman, who generally regarded clothes as something to keep out the fog and chill, will be ready for startling innovations in the clothing line. In fact, they say he will welcome it.

The war, they say, has freed the Englishman of a lot of taboos—has conditioned him to desire the comfort and durability of the battledress but sickened him so thoroughly of khaki that he will go to the other extreme and demand brightness in his clothes.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

THE NEED MOTHERS IDEAS

EXPLAINING the rabbit which he said he saw climb a tree, a little colored boy is supposed to have said: "This rabbit had to." That same reasoning produces unusual results at the bridge table. One kind of example comes in a duplicate game when you are on the defense against a contract which you can set, but which you think is one trick lower than most players will reach.

North: ♠ 9 4 3 ♥ Q J 10 3 ♦ A K Q 10 2 ♣ 4
West: ♠ A K 6 ♥ A 4 ♦ 3 ♣ A K J 8 5 3 2
East: ♠ 10 7 5 2 ♥ 9 2 ♦ J 9 8 4 ♣ Q 9 7
South: ♠ Q J 8 ♥ K 8 7 6 5 ♦ 7 6 5 ♣ 10 6

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♦ | Pass | 1 ♥ | Pass |
| 3 ♥ | Pass | Pass | Dbl |

After laying down the spade K and seeing that dummy, West decided that most players in the North-South position in that duplicate tournament would be in 4-Hearts doubled, and would probably be set a trick. To avoid a terrible comparative score, he would have to set the lower contract a trick by taking one more than most of the other defenders probably would.

So he switched on the second trick to his diamond singleton. Dummy won, and the heart Q was led. West came in with his A and had the nerve to underlead his club honors, hoping East had the Q. He did; he won the trick, and he properly returned a diamond. West ruffed that for his side's fourth trick and then scored the spade A for the fifth, which set the contract and gave his side a fair score compared to the others who played against 4-Hearts doubled.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ K Q 10 5 ♥ A J 4 2 ♦ 10 8 6 5 3 ♣ None
West: ♠ 6 ♥ K 10 8 ♦ Q J 2 ♣ A K 10 7 4 3
East: ♠ A 7 3 ♥ 9 7 5 ♦ K 9 4 ♣ Q J 9 2
South: ♠ J 9 8 4 2 ♥ Q 6 3 ♦ A 7 ♣ 8 6 5

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

What is the best way for South to use his trumps in a 4-Heart contract doubled by West if at every opportunity the defenders lead clubs?

V-Bomb Attacks Continue To Hit England

LONDON, Jan. 10 — (CP). — London newspapers displayed under front-page headlines on Tuesday Admiral Jonas H. Ingram's assertion yesterday that a German robot bomb attack on the east coast of the United States is probable within 30 to 60 days.

The news caused more visible stir than a Berlin broadcast which darkly prophesied intensified bombardment of London with V-2 rockets.

The broadcast claimed the "terror" to be visited on Britain would make Allied bombing raids on Germany "much more bearable, since we know how much the enemy is to suffer."

British censorship, meanwhile, is allowing the press to publish considerable detail on the results of V-weapon attacks on Southern England, while exercising care that none of the information released is such as to help the Nazis correct the range of fire.

Typical of the sort of stories being published in London newspapers is this:

"Working among debris at a V-bombed site in Southern England recently, a Mr. Edwards, rescue worker, helped recover a body only to recognize it as his 16-year-old daughter. A schoolboy, 12, also was killed and other people injured were treated in a hospital."

Or this:

"Hundreds of mothers, ignoring cuts on their faces and arms caused by flying glass, raced from bomb-shattered homes in Southern England recently. Their one thought was the school around the corner in the area of a V-bomb blast.

"When they reached it a teacher was fastening a blackboard to the railing. On it was chalked a message: 'No children injured.' The school windows were blown out and the doors torn off hinges. Later the headmaster added to the message on the blackboard: 'This school will re-open to-morrow.'"

Labor Turns Against C.C.F.

TORONTO, Jan. 10 — (CP). — The national executive committee of the Labor-Progressive party Tuesday issued a statement announcing it has decided to release local party organizations in federal ridings represented by C.C.F. members from a former decision not to nominate Labor-Progressive candidates in those constituencies.

"The decision of the C.C.F. to contest Grey North and thus create the danger that a Tory might defeat the minister in charge of our military effort, Gen. McNaughton, is the latest of a series of statements and actions with attest to the determination of the C.C.F. to continue is recklessness partisan tactics," said the statement.

The nation was faced with the alternative of a right-wing "Liberal-Tory" coalition or a government based on a coalition of the Labor movement and Liberals, the statement said, and "this boils down to whether Labor should have the aim of defeating the Liberal government, or whether the defeat of the Tories is the main job."

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, "has repeatedly made it plain that his party is out for the defeat of the Liberals at all costs, even if this results in a coalition of right-wing Liberals with the Tories." It was in the interests of Labor "that an anti-Tory coalition of Labor and Progressive Liberals who favor reforms should form the foundation of Canada's next government."

The statement said the executive proposed to its party associations in federal ridings represented by C.C.F. members "to consider at once the nomination of Labor-Progressive party candidates."

Sgt. W. Mackey Returns From Holland

OMEMEE, Jan. 10—(ENS)—Another Omemee airman has returned to his home in the village after serving with the Royal Canadian Air Force in England, France, Belgium and Holland. Sgt. W. J. Mackey is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Mackey, Omemee.

Enlisting in Toronto on July 7, 1942, in the Radar division of the R.C.A.F., Sgt. Jamie Mackey received his training at Manning Depot, University of Toronto, and Clinton. In April, 1943, he was posted overseas, arriving is England in May of the same year. An interesting coincidence is that LAC. Arthur Weir, another Omemee boy, travelled overseas on the same boat.

Sgt. Mackey remustered to enter Educational work in December, 1943, and for several months was employed at R.C.A.F. headquarters in England. At his request he was then assigned to Second Tactical Air Force, and with this unit went to France in July, 1944.

In an interview, Sgt. Mackey explained that the T.A.F. cooperates closely with the Army, moving behind the lines to give constant air support. It is a completely mobile unit and is capable of moving on two hours' notice. The personnel live under canvas at all times, regardless of weather conditions.

Sgt. Mackey's unit entered Belgium early in September, 1944, and were in the capital city four days after the Allied Armies first arrived there. He describes Brussels as being comparable to a carnival as enthusiastic crowds welcomed the Allied forces. A great respect was evidenced for Canadians, who are well remembered by the Belgian people from the last war.

Holland was reached on September 19, and while the Dutch people welcomed them warmly, Sgt. Mackey says he found quite a contrast in the two countries. Holland, he thought, seemed more grim and the people not so well off nor so gay as the Belgians. In both countries, he said, was evidence that the people were badly in need of food, and especially was this true in Southern Holland.

In December, 1944, he was posted back to Canada, and he reached Lachine early in January.

Following his month's leave, Sgt. Mackey expects to be discharged to work for the Canadian Civil Service on Rehabilitation. Before enlisting he was on the teaching staff of Willowdale Collegiate.

WARSAW, Jan. 10—(ENS)—Because of the stormy weather, the regular January meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church was cancelled. Instead an executive meeting was held, a review made of the past year and plans for 1945.

The year's allocation was exceeded by $10, thanks to the efforts of the retiring president, Mrs. George Taylor. During the year five quilts were quilted and one quilt was made and donated to the Fred Victor Home for Girls in Toronto. A bale valued at $30 was sent to northern Ontario and in answer to a request a box was sent to a needy family in Burleigh, which was valued at $5.

As a reward for faithful services Miss Clara Payne was made a life member of the Society. Groups were chosen for the coming year, and the meeting closed with prayer.

Murder Trial Starts In Cairo

CAIRO, Jan. 10—(CP-Reuters)—A detachment of British Army sappers, equipped with the latest type of mine detectors, today searched thoroughly—but found nothing suspicious—in the Egyptian high court of appeal and adjoining rooms of the eve of the trial of the two men charged with assassinating the late Lord Moyne, British resident minister in the Middle East. Lord Moyne was assassinated Nov. 6.

The two men charged under martial law, still in force in Egypt, are Eliahourben Souri and Aliahour Hakim. They will be defended by four Egyptian advocates and the trial is expected to last about three days.

Thousands of applications have been made for admission to the trial but the courtroom will hold only 200 or 300.

W.I. To Continue Cemetery Work

HAVELOCK, Jan. 10—(ENS)—discussion took place at the January meeting of the Havelock Women's Institute as to whether it was advisable to carry on the work of financing the care of the plots in Maple Grove Cemetery owing to the amount of work entailed in canvassing local plot owners and the mailing of notices to those who reside out of town.

It was decided to carry on the work for 1945 with Miss E. Wright appointed to send out the notices, the remittances to be sent to the treasurer, Mrs. J. Hoffman.

The following canvassers were appointed to collect the fees in the village:

East—Mrs. H. Hoard; Centre—Mrs. W. Woodbeck; West—Mrs. H. Pollock and Mrs. W. Rice.

It was decided to hold a euchre party in the council chamber on Friday evening, January 19, the proceeds to go to the general fund. Mrs. T. W. Quinn, Mrs. A. McMullen and Mrs. R. J. McCutcheon were appointed a committee to make the arrangements, the first two named to purchase the prizes.

Plan Supper.

A 'pot luck' supper will be held at the March meeting which is the close of the fiscal year. The treasurer reported a bank balance of $46.92, and the following accounts were authorized paid: E. Chiles, $7.39; R. Sayers, $1.25.

Mrs. H. Pollock was program convener, and Mrs. F. McKenzie read a paper on "Publicity," prepared by Mr. McKenzie, editor of the Havelock Standard, who was unable to be present. It dealt with the results achieved through publicity in many ways among them being the effect it has in an election campaign, enabling the one who gets his platform across in the best possible way to come out on top; how the success of a new product depends on the amount of publicity it is given and in organizations when an entertainment is planned a publicity committee is the first one formed. Two vocal duets, "By the River of Roses" and "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen," were sung by Beverley and Shirley Bennett, accompanied by Mrs. Bennett.

Mrs. Charles Taylor was the winner of a bird contest. Lunch was served at the close of the meeting, Mrs. T. W. Quinn being lunch convener.

U.S. Armies 100 Miles From Manila

Capture 20 Towns Drive Inland Averages 4 Miles

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ADVANCED COMMAND, Jan. 11 — (AP)—Manila-bound American infantrymen stretched their beachhead over 22 miles of Lingayen Gulf and drove inland from four key towns today toward impending major battles with Japanese reinforcements struggling north over bomb-out roads.

Only damaging opposition came at sea where night-attacking Japanese planes and torpedo boats hit several ships in a convoy bringing up 14th Corps reinforcements.

On land, the invaders seized 20 towns and villages, captured Lingayen airfield and pushed their advance columns to a little more than 100 miles north of Manila. Nowhere was serious resistance reported.

Thursday's communique announced the Americans overran the towns of San Fabian, Lingayen, Mangaldan and Dagupan in the first 24 hours and pressed inland for an average advance of four miles. Patrols were well ahead of this average penetration.

A field dispatch disclosed units of the 14th Army Corps, pushing west along the coast from Lingayen, were within two miles of Port Sual. This broadened the base of the American drive to cover 22 miles of the southern Lingayen coastline.

The 14th Corps had overrun about 20 towns and villages, including Lingayen, capital of Pangasinan province. Port Sual is a fair ship anchorage. Reconstruction of bridges to facilitate the drive toward Manila already is under way. The enemy appears to have pulled well back to inland bases.

While scores of thousands of U.S. 6th Army troops and hundreds of thousands of deadweight tons of equipment continued to land, Lt.-Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita essayed an about face of his warriors defending Manila. At some point on the central Luzon Plains between

Enemy U-Boats Renew Action Along Atlantic

By The Canadian Press.

The grim, unsung battle of the Atlantic is on again and coupled with reports of renewed U-boat operations on the Allied supply lanes are warnings from high quarters that the enemy may deliver robot bomb attacks on cities of North America's Atlantic seaboard.

Choosing a season of frequent storms and poor visibility in the North Atlantic, enemy submarines showed "renewed activity" during December and Allied losses of merchant shipping increased, said a joint statement from Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt released on Tuesday in London and Washington.

The statement meant the task of convoying Allied merchantmen between North America and ports in Britain and Western Europe — always one calling for constant vigilance—would be more arduous. Canadian destroyers and corvettes shouldered a major portion of this convoy task during earlier phases of the battle of the Atlantic. A few of those engagements have been made public for security reasons.

It is understood the Germans have developed a new torpedo designed to hit its target regardless of evasive action. It is fired in the direction of a ship and has a "homing" device which keeps it on the target despite changes of course by the ship. The Allied Navies have taken defensive measures against

Nazi Prisoner Denies Assault

EDMONTON, Jan. 11 — (CP). — Pte. Reinhold Bauer, 23, German prisoner of war, testified in police court yesterday he did not indecently assault Mrs. Victor "Naja" Hut, 22, at her farm home in the Northville district Oct. 27.

Bauer said he and L. Cpl. Kurt Wolfanger, both members of the Afrika Korps, were given "a standing invitation" to visit the Hut farm, approximately one-half mile from the Northville German work camp. Wolfanger is charged with indecently assaulting Mrs. Hut's sister who lived at the Hut farm.

Bauer testified through his interpreter, Lieut. A. Lendi, of the Canadian Army intelligence branch, Lethbridge, that he and Wolfanger met the women "many times" in the pasture and carried their milk pails to the farm house.

He admitted running away from the Hut farm house Oct. 27 after Mr. Hut struck him on the head with a flashlight. He said he had been sitting on a couch with "Naja" shortly before her husband entered the house, struck him on the head and "started fumbling in his pocket."

J. S. Mavor, K.C., of Calgary, appointed through the Swiss government to defend all German prisoners of war in Alberta, is defence counsel. The trial is continuing.

Australia Feeds U.S. Pacific Forces

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 — (AP). — Australia is providing more than 90 per cent of the food used by United States forces in the southwest Pacific, Percy Spender, a member of the Australian Advisory War Council said today.

Mr. Spender, who formerly was Australian Army Minister, said in an address prepared for a commerce and industry association meeting that in addition to this agricultural output, Australia has expanded her industry rapidly.

Now turning out aircraft and planning to continue such manufacture after the war, Mr. Spender said, Australian industry also expects to make automobiles after the war, previously, Australia has made only bodies and some parts, he added

Mr. Spender reported that up to mid-1944, Australia had supplied the U.S. Army under reverse lend-lease goods and services worth $550,494,750, and that for 1945 an additional $357,500,000 was budgeted for this purpose.

Battle For Hungary Nears Climax

Hungarian Troops Deserting In Great Numbers

MOSCOW, Jan. 11—(AP)—The battle for Hungary entered what appeared to be the final stage today, with the Germans making an all-out effort to reach the collapsing Nazi garrison in Budapest before being outflanked by the westward Russian advance north of the Danube.

From inside the devastated capital, three-fourths of which is now in Russian hands. A Red Star correspondent report Hungarian soldiers have bolted and surrendered in such great numbers that the Germans have broken all Hunagrian units and attached them in company numbers to German regiments.

Repeated German counter-attacks northwest of Budapest have been smashed and Soviet forces threatening to cut the Nazi left flank have driven to within 1¼ miles of Komarom, the Soviet communique disclosed.

Other frontline reports said rail traffic out of Komaron, a communications hub on the Danube 40 miles northwest of Budapest, had been blocked by Red Army artillery.

The eight-day Nazi drive to break the Soviet arc around Budapest and reach the capital garrison has cost the Germans 625 tanks and more than 14,700 men, the Russians said.

Russian forces captured 1,000 more blocks of buildings in the city yesterday and now control 3,300 of the approximately 4,500 blocks in the Danube-straddling capital.

The Russians also took more than 3,000 prisoners yesterday, the largest day's haul since street-by-street fighting began two weeks ago.

The newspaper Red Star announced that "all the main suburbs of the capital are now in Red Army hands." These include the factory district of Csepel, an island in the Danube stretching south from the city, where large munitions works are located, as well as O'Buda and its shipyards on the west bank of the river.

The rapid strides of the Russians inside the capital were credited to veterans of Stalingrad. Units of picked, toughened storm troops are leading the assault through Pest and all of that eastern part of the capital appears likely to be occupied by the end of the week.

Soviet Organ Claims Nazis Sent To East

MOSCOW, Jan. 11 —(AP)— The Soviet Army organ Red Star characterized today as false an article in the American Army and Navy Journal which, it said, asserted German troops had been shifted from the Russian front to launch Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's Belgian offensive.

On the contrary, Red Star declared, German forces have been transferred from Holland to reinforce German lines in Hungary.

The Red Star article, signed by Prof. Arkady Yerusalimsky, accused the Army and Navy journal of "attempting to create misconfidence with the Red Army in the camp of the Allies through dictions and lies."

"The whole world is well aware," Red Star said, "that the Germans are not sparing forces and means for recapturing Hungary, and that they have shifted troops there particularly from Holland."

Canadian Attack

LONDON, Jan. 11. — (CP).—The German radio said to-day that Canadian troops had launched an attack against German positions south of Nijmegen in Holland.

The report said "all attacks broke down under concentrated German defensive fire."

A front report yesterday told of the Canadians gaining a mile in an attack eight miles southeast of Nijmegen near the Netherlands-German border. In three waves, Gen. Crerar's troops rode ahead on tank carriers beneath heavy artillery fire.

Girl To Marry Italian Prisoner-Of-War

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., Jan. 11—(AP)).—Nineteen-year-old Eva Caprari, displaying a diamond ring, says she is engaged to marry an Italian prisoner of war now interned at Chambersburg, Pa., but army authorities indicate the marriage might constitute a violation of the Geneva convention and edicts of the Provost Marshal-General.

Officers at nearby Fort Slocum said a prisoner of war is supposed to be returned to his own country in the same status as when captured. Conceding that the problem was new to them, they added that matters of wartime propriety and immigration also were involved.

The prisoner is Cpl. Delfino Rosatti, 24, who was captured in Tunis. Miss Caprari said she met him at the Chambersburg camp and had visited him several times, while Rosatti came to White Plains once on a pass.

She has a brother in the army air force and another was killed in an accident while in service. Her father fought for the United States in the First Great War.

Miss Caprari said her romance began several months ago when Rosatti's uncle, a friend of her family, suggested she write to the prisoner.

She said the correspondence grew and later they met.

The girl's mother said she thought Rosatti was a "fine young man" and that the intended marriage would be a good one. Her father concurred.

Miss Caprari said present plans were for them to be married after the war. If necessary, she said, she would go to Italy for the ceremony. Miss Caprari said her fiance wanted to settle in the United States eventually.

Tram Strike Closes B.C. Schools

Union Leaders Reject Ottawa Proposals

VANCOUVER, Jan. 11 — (CP). —Increasing disruption of services in three coast cities became apparent to-day as 15 of Vancouver's 60 Public Schools closed down on the third day of a strike of 2,700 members of the Street Railwaymen's Union (A.F.L.) in Vancouver, in Victoria and in nearby New Westminster, B.C. The strike, caused by failure to obtain wage increases and better working conditions, began on Tuesday.

Teachers in the schools were unable to find transportation as their gasoline reserves became exhausted.

(At Toronto, Dominion Transit Controller George S. Gray said last night school teaching will probably be classified as a necessary public service to relieve the situation in Vancouver.)

Employees of the British Columbia Electric Company's transportation service maintained their pickets at the main car barns in the three cities.

War industries were functioning almost normally under emergency transportation arrangements made by each plant and attendance at downtown offices was almost complete.

Downtown stores reported sparse crowds and low sales.

Labor Minister Mitchell has declared the strike of British Columbia Electric Railway Company members of the Street Railwaymen's Union (A.F.L.) in Vancouver, New Westminster and Victoria "illegal."

In a telegram to Mayor J. W. Cornett, of Vancouver, Mr. Mitchell urged citizens to "request workers to recede from their illegal position and return to work at once."

Mr. Mitchell said such a step would "give the Labor Department an opportunity to canvass possibilities for an amicable settlement through the Regional War Labor Board."

The union earlier rejected an appeal from Mr. Mitchell that they return to their jobs as the first step toward settlement.

W. J. Robinson, a union spokesman, announced if the company signs an agreement giving the employees their original wage demands of hourly increases from 12½ to 29½ cents, the men will return to work immediately, or if the company makes an offer below these figures, the union will submit the proposals to its members.

There was no immediate comment from company officials on this proposal.

Jap Bastion In Upper Burma Falls

KANDY, Ceylon, Jan. 11 (CP)—Shwebo, the last large Japanese bastion in upper Burma north of Mandalay, has been completely occupied by Allied troops and British 14th Army units have advanced south of the town, an Allied communique announced today.

Shwebo is 46 miles north of Mandalay. It was entered Sunday by Indian troops, and later the Shwebo airfield was overrun.

Allied troops are investing Budalin on the branch railway to Ye-u, 19 miles north of Monywa, the communique said, against an enemy resisting from bunkers concealed in thick undergrowth.

Troops of the 15th Indian Corps in the Kaladan valley have entered Ponnaygun, a steamer station on the west bank of the Kaladan River 14 miles northeast of the captured island port of Akyab.

Chinese 1st Army troops recaptured yesterday the big airfield four miles from Loi Wing in the Shweli valley on the Burma-China border.

The Chinese met no opposition at the airfield which, when ready for use, will provide a valuable air base for troops in the Namhkam area.

Huns Speed Orderly Retreat Allies Repulse Alsace Push

By JAMES M. LONG—Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Jan. 11 — (AP). — British patrols stabbed 10 miles into the collapsing western end of the Ardennes salient today and reached the vicinity of Champlon, on the north-south road between Laroche and St. Hubert. The Germans quickened their skillful, orderly withdrawal in the deep snow as the American 1st and 3rd Armies drove in from north and south and the British 2nd Army pursued through profuse mine-fields from the west.

The main British force was four miles behind the patrols which penetrated the Champlon area, almost through the difficult Freyr Forest. The town is 13 miles west of Houffalize, which the Germans may attempt to make the centre of a new defensive front shielding the eastern half of the bulge.

British troops captured the strategic road centre of Laroche on the north side of the salient at 9.05 a.m. Patrols entered the town, 14 miles northwest of Bastogne, yesterday and found it lightly held.

The cruelest enemy for both sides was the continuing blizzard, with temperatures nine above zero Fahrenheit.

Signs today were that the Nazi commander hoped to establish a new line 15 miles or so west of German border between Vielsalm, already entered by the U.S. 1st Army, Touffalize and the Bastogne sector.

No Stampede

A dozen or more towns fell.

By latest reports, Von Rundstedt has pulled out of the toe of the Ardennes sock with all possible speed. But there was no sign of a stampede such as that in which Field Marshal Von Kluge's German 7th Army was partly destroyed by British and Canadian troops in the Falaise massacre in Normandy. Snow and mist gave the Nazis cover.

(The German communique announced a withdrawal from the area west of the steep-banked Ourthe River, which flows through by-passed Laroche, "in order to secure the deep flanks of the front in the Ardennes." The enemy claimed to have "liberted" several towns in Alsace-Lorraine, including Rimling. The communique said encirled troops had been annihilated south of Erstein, 10 miles south of Strasbourg, and that 300 were captured.

Gen. Eisenhower's communique said "German attacks were repulsed in the Alsace plain between Strasbourg and Colmar," where reinforced enemy columns have struck to within 10 miles of the Rhine city. U.S. 7th Army troops stormed into Geting, a suburb of Forbach, and only five miles southwest of the wasted Saarland capital of Saarbrucken.

British 2nd Army troops captured half a dozen towns in the western tip of the Belgian bulge in advances of more than two miles around a 25-mile arc from by-passed Laroche to Bure. These were Roy, Harsin, Chareux, Massogne, Masbourg and Halleux. The westernmost still was 37 miles inside Belgium.

U.S. 1st Army troops on the north side of the salient fought on the outskirts of Laroche and inside Vielsalm, nine miles west of St. Vith. They captured Bihain and moved 1,000 yards southward through stiff opposition to points within three miles of the Houffalize-St. Vith highway, last major German road in the bulge.

The U.S. 3rd Army on the south won commanding ground outside St. Hubert, 14 miles west of Bastogne. The Germans said they had evacuated St. Hubert, their southwest anchor. Third Army troops also captured Harlange, six miles south-

Regulations In Cobourg Thwarting Cupid Couples Can't Get Marriage Licenses

COBOURG, Jan. 11 — (ENS). —Cupid is having a tough time of it in Cobourg at the present time. It involves a matter of red tape. Cupid is successful enough with the preliminaries, but when the young couple apply for a marriage licence they can't get one. The deputy town clerk, appointed after the death of A. W. Young, is E. A. Hircock, but the technicality which is causing the trouble is the fact that Mr. Hircock is deputy to C.S.M. Jack Ewart, the latter serving in Italy.

Mr. Ewart was appointed town clerk last year, but will not assume his duties until he returns after the war.

The situation boils down to the fact that Mr. Hircock is deputy to a man who is not yet carrying out his duties of office, and until the authorities figure it out, nobody has been authorized to issue licences.

Of course, the aspirants for wedlock could go to Port Hope, but it happens that they are out of marriage licences up there.

Red Army Is Setting Stage For Its Last Big Offensive

By DUNCAN HOOPER—Reuters Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Jan. 11—(CP-Reuters).—Observers here believe the Red Army is engaged in the last stages of its mightiest offensive preparation of the war. From the east Prussian frontier regions to the Carpathian foothills the stage is being set for what it is believed will be the final march to Berlin.

This is the explanation of what the Russians frankly call the "lull" on the major section of the eastern front, but no Russian would give it to you without pointing proudly to the Red Army's impressive successes in the Balkan theatre during the last few months.

Ever since the battle of Warsaw came to a standstill last summer the Soviet press has reflected mounting eagerness to end the war quickly.

Great Supply Problems.

But enormous supply problems, such as retracking many hundreds of miles of permanent way with Russian broad gauge lines and the restoration of scores of cunningly blown tunnels and bridges confronted Red Army engineers when they were set the task of preparing a smooth-running base for the Red

Eastern Cheese Leads Province

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 11—(CP).—D. M. Beattie, associate chief the dairy products, grading and inspecting services of the Agricultural Department, said to-day that production of cheese scoring 94 points in Quebec and Ontario in the 1944 grading year "more than offset" the decline in the total of first grade cheese produced in these two provinces during the year.

In an address prepared for delivery before the 78th annual convention of the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario, Mr. Beattie said New Brunswick was the only province to show an increase in the percentage of first grade cheese over 1943.

In Quebec and Ontario, the main cheese-producing provinces, output of first grade cheese declined 1.34 per cent and 0.29 per cent, respectively. However, output of 94 score cheese had increased 4.71 per cent in Quebec and 0.70 per cent in Ontario.

U.S. Army Casualties Now Total 564,351

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP). —War Secretary Stimson disclosed to-day that United States army casualties have reached 564,351, inclusive of losses suffered in the German counter-offensive launched Dec. 16 on the western front.

The army's total coupled with the latest navy figure of 82,029 pushed over-all casualties to 646,380 since the United States entered the war, an increase of 8,241 since last week's report.

The army's latest report shows: Killed, 106,952; wounded, 333,849; missing, 64,283; prisoners of war, 59,267.

Superforts Hit Singapore Base

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—Superfortresses thundered across the Bay of Bengal today to hammer Japanese military installations on the Malay Peninsula.

The India-nested B29s of the 20th bomber command struck by daylight. Size of the attacking force and its specific targets were not announced in a terse 20th Air Force communique.

Singapore, wrested from Britain in 1942 and reported converted into Japan's major naval stronghold in the Malay-Dutch East Indies area, probably was the target.

Some 60 Superfortresses lashed Singapore's dry dock and repair basin last Nov. 5, flying what the 20th Air Force described as the longest daylight mission ever recorded for military planes. A Japanese ship, the largest dry dock and other vital points were hit.

German Losses High During Withdrawal

Rundstedt's Army May Be Decimated Before Siegfried Reached

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The battle of the Belgian bulge continues to go so well for the Allies that we may say Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's counter-offensive not only may profit his masters little but may prove to be a nasty boomerang.

Rundstedt is falling back from the western tip of that long, narrow bulge which is contracting about him. The way things look he will continue to withdraw until ultimately he again reaches his frontier defences. Now this doesn't mean he is running away. He's fighting a fierce rearguard action and dispatches from the front indicate that he may try to make a determined stand at Houffalize, key position in the heart of the salient. We must expect interludes of German counter-attacks, and there may be temporary Allied upsets.

However, the great point is that Rundstedt is losing heavily in men and material, for the struggle in the bulge is a battle of annihilation. By the time he reaches his Siegfried defences his army will need a blood-transfusion.

Delays Allies.

The enemy leader's chief achievement is in delaying the Allied winter offensive perhaps three months or so. Whether this will represent any real gain remains to be seen, for he may arrive back at the Rhine so badly shot to pieces that his further powers of resistance will be weak.

Should this eventuate, the time spent in the battle of the bulge wouldn't have lengthened the war but would in fact have shortened it. Rundstedt had to be smashed some time, and it's perhaps just as well to do it in the bulge as on the Cologne plain where Gen. Eisenhower had planned to force a showdown.

How soon will the Allies be able to conclude the battle of the bulge and mount an all-out offensive to end all offensives?

It strikes me that we shall be over-optimistic if we look for preliminaries of the big show short of the good weather of April, if indeed they can come that soon.

Murderers In Secret Gang

Admit Connection With Terrorist Group

CAIRO, Jan. 11 —(AP)—Eliahou Bet Suri told an Egyptian court today that he and another young Palestinian Nationalist, Eliahou Hakim, had acted on instructions from "the secret organization to which we belong" in assassinating Lord Moyne, British resident minister, in the Middle East.

Police have identified both as members of the Stern gang of terrorists in Palestine.

Both pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of premeditated murder and asked permission to state their reasons before the court. When Suri started today a long explanation of the motives the presiding judge ruled that his statements were not privileged and should not be published.

Correspondents were forbidden to make notes in court.

Both have admitted taking part in the slaying and asked the court for permission to state their reasons.

Lord Moyne and his chauffeur, L.Cpl. Fuller, were shot last Nov. 6 while they were approaching the minister's residence here. Suri said Hakim killed Moyne, while he himself shot the driver.

Suri at one point described himself as "absolutely cold-blooded."

U.S. Units Deal Vital Blows

MacDonald Warns Bickering Dangerous

TORONTO, Jan. 11 (CP) — Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, British High Commissioner to Canada, said today that the "really vital blows" being struck against Germany on the western front were those by the United States armies at the regions of the Saar and the Ruhr.

Delivering a prepared address before the Empire Club here, Mr. MacDonald said Germany's power to resist, to continue fighting, was largely contained in the coal mines, the power-houses and the munitions factories of those productive areas.

The Germans were trying to "rattle" the Allies, throw them into a state of depression and self-questioning in which they would begin to criticise each other.

These "disputing" might "seriously prejudice" that co-operation between the United Nations which was essential to the establishment of peace, security and progress for the human race after the war.

Referring to the Greek situation, Mr. MacDonald said there no doubt was room for honest differences of opinion but no room for "wild misrepresentations, especially when they undermine confidence between nations who are being good comrades in war and those continuing good comradeship will be of paramount importance in peace."

The British were in Greece, he said, at the invitation of the Greek government and because American and Russian authorities had agreed that they should go there.

CCF Candidate Attacks Discharge Plan

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Jan. 11. — (CP).—Air Vice-Marshal A. E. Godfrey, C.C.F. candidate in the Grey North by-election Feb. 5, opened his campaign here last night, while Progressive Conservative candidate, W. Garfield Chase, former mayor of Owen Sound, spoke at meetings in Holland Centre, Arnott and Barkley. Third candidate in the race, Defence Minister McNaughton, Liberal, spent the day on an inspection tour at Camp Borden, where he gave an interview to members of the press.

The C.C.F. candidate key-noted his speech with the Liberal government's recruiting policy which he said gave no guarantee that men sent into action would be the best trained men available. Nor was there guarantee that all trained men would be available as reinforcements, he said.

The Government's method was "neither a voluntary one nor conscription, but an utter confusion of both," the retired RCAF air officer stated. The C.C.F. believed Government policy must remove all distinction between general service personnel and drafted men.

Government "mishandling" of RCAF discharges was also attacked by Air Vice-Marshal Godfrey. He said he favored keeping discharged airmen together in "a unit or regiment that would give them some recognition of their previous enlistment."

W. Garfield Case issued a challenge to Defence Minister McNaughton to tell people of Canada why he (McNaughton) returned to Canada and to clarify the "mystery" of his relations with the British military authorities.

The Progressive Conservative candidate reiterated at all three meetings that the Grey North riding was "not for sale." "We are not responsible in any sense of the word for this by-election," he said. "The responsibility rests solely on the shoulders of the prime minister and of a few local people who sought to dominate the situation."

"We are doing our best to help the war effort by writing into the record our determination to see that reinforcements are ample, that our troops are provided with the necessary equipment — in other words, total and full-out war effort.

"You can never win battles by half-hearted or piecemeal methods, and our troops will suffer if we fail to indicate in unmistakable language to the government at Ottawa that nothing short of total war will satisfy the Canadian people."

Speaking over a CBC station in Toronto, E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C.C.F. Leader said his party had nominated a candidate for the by-election so that the electors could get "all sides of the story and take their choice."

He said there were some who feared the result of the by-election, and added that if they have faith in democracy "let them stop worrying" and let the voters of the riding decide. Election of Air Vice-Marshal Godfrey would "prove the determination of our people to achieve a better war effort and a better Canada when the war is won."

In his press interview at Camp Borden, Gen. McNaughton said the supply situation now was more critical than the manpower situation. It was harder to re-open factories and get them back to peak production than to find reinforcements for overseas troops, the defence minister said.

He promised a complete analysis of the reinforcement situation for November, December and January as soon as security permitted and said that 1,000 "long-service" men would return to Canada this month. In December 1,160 "long-service" men returned though the quota was only 450.

The general will open his campaign in Owen Sound and Meaford tonight.

Army's full-scale invasion of the Reich.

In some places whole towns which are of vital importance as war bases have had to be "improvised."

The whole of the vast area from Pskov to East Prussia, from Vitebsk to the eastern suburbs of Warsaw, and from points west of Kiev to the Sandomierz which covers the sweep of the Red Army's main offensive or the direct approaches towards Germany last year, had to be prepared to take the heaviest loads of men and supplies that it has ever seen, and all this has been only the preparation for the actual job of moving millions of troops, scores of thousands of guns and thousands of tanks up to the chosen battlelines.

To those abroad who are asking when the Russians are going to get moving on the main road to Berlin, the answer can be no more than "very soon."

Von Rundstedt

east of Bastogne, cutting another mile into the tough Harlange pocket where the Germans were fighting back with tanks and cannon.

Not In Difficulty

At no point in the bulge did Von Rundstedt appear to be in difficulty. Unless Field Marshal Montgomery on the north and Lt.-Gen. Bradley on the south are able to turn the Germans' guarded withdrawal into an outright retreat and slash more rapidly into the eastern sides of the bulge the wily German commander may yet win the second round of his campaign.

(A Stockholm dispatch quoted the Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper, Aftonbladet, as writing that Von Rundstedt's salient had been narrowed to seven or eight miles in width under pressure from 34 Allied armored and infantry divisions and that the time was near when the Germans must withdraw "behind the protecting bunkers of the Siegfried Line.")

Today's communique did not mention any land action in the Netherlands where the 1st Canadian Army and part of the British 2nd Army is engaged.

It did not seem assured that the Allied commanders would be able to turn the withdrawal into a rout. Weather and terrain conspired against them. The Germans were pulling out behind a cover of fields of wooden and plastic mines, used because they were more difficult to detect than metal ones. The mines, covered by snow, considerably retarded pursuit.

Fog Aids Enemy

The snow, now melting in spots, has further impeded the Allied use of armor which otherwise might have pressed hard on German heels.

Fog which hung in grey clouds over the Ardennes ridges and lay like a stagnant sea in the valleys again kept the tactical air force from its usual role of ruin.

With his armor bunched in a shortened arc from Houffalize back to the German border, Von Rundstedt would be able to fight an even stiffer defensive action, perhaps letting the Volkssturm and Volksgrenadier infantry take over the fight along the rising ridge lines.

Von Rundstedt's tank divisions have been thoroughly mauled during their four weeks in the bulge. They have been whittled to only a fraction of their strength at the outset, when two powerful Panzer armies made the Ardennes breakthrough in a side-by-side onslaught.

But enough is left for the core of a new mobile reserve to back up the line, still bulged well west of the Rhine.

Clearly for the next phase of the fight—whether it is another period of grim defence or another high-risk crack at Eisenhower's line—Von Rundstedt must have such a reserve. It seemed obvious that only the lack of a mobile reserve punching power had kept him so long from exploiting his dents into the 6th Army Group's menaced positions around Strasbourg in the Alsace Plain.

Eastern Cheese

He said it was "encouraging" to note those increases because "this is the very best quality of Canadian cheese, and it is this type, which is going to enable the industry to hold its premium on export trade in competition with the best efforts of other cheese-exporting countries."

However, the record of 93 score cheese produced during 1944 was not as favorable, Ontario recording a decline of one per cent compared with 1943 and Quebec a decline of 8.19 per cent, the effect being that the percentage of "premium" cheese (93 and 94 score or higher) was reduced for the whole of Canada.

In Ontario, 56 per cent of cheese output is graded from the eastern section of the province, 22 per cent from Central Ontario, 19 per cent from Western Ontario, and one per cent from Northern Ontario. Central, Western and Northern Ontario show a decrease in first-grade quality as compared with the 1943 grading season.

Blame Milk.

"We may conclude from this that the factories in Central and Western Ontario have received, on the average, a little poorer quality of milk or have had to contend with unskilled labor in the plants a little more generally, while many factories in the Eastern section have received their usual high quality of milk and may not have had the same labor problems as factories in the other two districts.

Mr. Beattie said the most serious problem confronting the industry in the season just ended was that of obtaining a satisfactory supply of cheese boxes, but it was hoped that normal supplies of boxes and scale boards would be available for the next production season.

"Far too many" cases have been encountered of incorrect branding of cheese by misrepresentation or falsification of vast numbers, either deliberately or through carelessness, and that practice, if not stopped, could have "serious repercussions throughout the industry." Departmental officials will make every effort to stop the practice

Norway Units Sent To Italy

ROME, Jan. 11 — (AP). — German troops shifted from Norway have been thrown into battle in Italy with orders from Hitler to hold the Reno River line in the Adriatic sector "at all costs," according to German prisoners captured yesterday.

The 1st Canadian Corps, attached to the British 8th Army, last was reported in action two days ago on the Reno front, to which they had driven the Germans in a steady advance of several days.

Ten prisoners — all from the 710th Division formerly assigned to a coastal defence role in Norway—were taken when 8th Army units counter-attacked an enemy patrol on the south bank of the Reno.

Enemy resistance has already stiffened considerably along this east-west waterway and the strip of land between the Comacchio Lagoon and the Adriatic, where the escape lifeline is still open after the German flight from Canadian-captured Sant' Alberto.

Another patrol clash near the Senio gave further evidence of the critical German manpower problem. A patrol from the 278th Division fled after being shot up by British units. The prisoners and dead who were left behind were found to be Italian members of the Todt Organization, a semi-military labor corps.

The prisoners claimed to have been driven ahead of the enemy patrol against their own will as a protective screen for German troops.

Meanwhile, drifted snow and icy roads continued to confine action all along the 5th and 8th Army fronts to patrol operations.

The Germans hurled sporadic harassing artillery fire at American positions south of Bologna and German snipers were active in the forward areas.

Fighters and fighter-bombers were out in strength yesterday making widespread attacks on enemy communications in northern Italy.

Bastogne Stand Saved Antwerp

LONDON, Jan. 11 (CP) — The London Daily Express published today under the headline "Thanks, Yanks" a dispatch from one of its western front correspondents declaring the Germans might have captured Antwerp and caught the British 2nd Army in a fatal trap if American troops had not held Bastogne.

The dispatch, cabled by Allen Moorhead said:

"Everything at one moment depended upon the Americans holding Bastogne. Had they lost it, there was a reasonable chance of the Germans sweeping on to the coast and taking Antwerp, which would have meant the encirclement of the British Armies.

"There would have been no escape route by sea this time. But Gen. Bradley and his Americans hung on somehow.

"Now that full reports are coming in they are saying in British headquarters that Bastogne compares in importance with El Alamein in its effect upon the war.

"It is a bigger battle than we know about—perhaps one of the greatest American efforts of the war."

Prepares For Battle

Yamashita obviously was decoyed into massing his strength between Manila and Batangas by invasions of Mindoro and Marinduque Islands.

"He is now feverishly bringing up troops from his prepared positions in the south," Gen. MacArthur said.

Overwhelming American air power lashed out in continuous night and day attacks. In contrast, headquarters said "enemy air activity over Luzon has now been reduced to a negligible scale."

There was no official word of any move by Japan's navy against the battleships, cruisers and destroyers which escorted troop-laden transports in a hazardous voyage from Leyte or more than 800 miles.

Immediately northeast of the Lingayen beachhead, 7th Fleet carrier planes pounded San Fernando, Bagio and Rosario. They blew up ammunition and supply dumps, attacked barracks and destroyed six enemy planes.

The central plains area over which the Japanese reinforcements must move from Manila to Lingayen was hit hard.

Near Calumpit, 25 miles northwest of Manila, medium bombers, attack planes and fighters wrecked three big highway bridges, tore up railroad tracks and littered the road with dead Japanese and smashed trucks. These attacks threatened to create a bottleneck for the enemy in a swampy area.

At Clark Field, 75 miles northwest of Manila, 34 enemy planes were wrecked on the ground.

At Lingayen Gulf, where warship bombardment and aerial cover made it possible to land Tuesday with light losses, "supplies and equipment are pouring ashore for the development of a great base of operations," headquarters said today.

A few bomb-carrying Japanese swam or drifted among American vessels under cover of darkness in futile human-torpedo attacks on the crowded ships.

Unloading operations went ahead without interruption and 50,000 tons of guns, tanks, munitions, engineering and aviation equipment was unloaded the first day, with four times that amount scheduled to be laid down by tonight.

American artillery-spotting planes began using the 7,000-foot-long Lingayen air field yesterday.

Only the prompt withdrawal of the Japanese garrison from Lingayen Gulf saved it from early destruction, for in no place on the invasion sector did Yamashita have sufficient power to withstand the blow struck by sea, air land Jan. 9.

this weapon.

There has been further improvement in submarines, too, to give them increased speed under water, perhaps as great as the speed of corvette escorts on the surface.

The latest statement by Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt said the increased activity by German submarines was another indication that "the European War is far from over." It pointed to the recent landing of enemy agents from a U-boat on the Maine coast as "yet another indication that the menace of Germany's undersea fleet is real and continuing."

In a press conference at a United States East Coast port on Monday, Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, Commander-in-Chief of the United States Atlantic Fleet, estimated that Germany had some 300 submarines and said the Battle of the Atlantic isn't over.

But he added defiantly: "Let 'em throw us 250 of them some day. We'll take care of them."

Admiral Ingram said an attack on New York or Washington by robot bombs within 30 to 60 days was not only "possible but probable." He said the Navy was ready for such attacks "which could not seriously affect the progress of the war."

Greeks Laud British Armies Claim Communists Ousted

ATHENS, Jan. 11—(AP).—Lt.-Gen. Ronald M. Scobie's headquarters announced today that after nine hours of discussion British authorities and Left-Wing ELAS leaders have reached "a large measure of agreement over terms for a cease-fire order." The conferences were opened here yesterday while sporadic fighting continued some miles outside Athens, where British armored columns were driving retreating ELAS forces deeper into the hills.

Four ELAS leaders are participating in the armistice conferences, which are taking place in British headquarters.

Yesterday a delegation claiming to represent 15 Greek trades unions called upon Reginald Leeper, British Ambassador to Greece, to thank British authorities for "saving Greece from Communism."

As Mr. Leeper received the delegation British headquarters disclosed that British armored forces, pursuing Left-Wing ELAS militia retreating from Athens, had driven northward to within 10 miles of Lamia, about 90 miles from the capital.

Other British forces were reported within five miles of Corinth, 45 miles west of Athens.

The trade union delegation asserted that 114 union officials had been killed by E.L.A.S. forces since the Germans left Athens last October.

Members of the delegation said they would like to send representatives to London to talk with officials of the British Trades Union Congress—which has been critical of the British Government's role in Greece—or have a T.U.C. delegation visit Athens.

Meanwhile the British Embassy announced it had received a memorandum from S.K.E. (Socialist) party leaders denouncing the E.L.A.S. "rebellion" and severing all ties with the E.A.M. (National Liberation Front). The E.L.A.S. forces are the armed militia of the E.A.M.

Similar action previously had been taken by the Popular Democrats. Thus of the three major sections of the five-party E.A.M. structure, only the Communists remain.

Superforts Hit

This former bulwark of British sea power on the tip of the Malay Peninsula is likewise a transit point for Nipponese reinforcements to the oil-rich Indies. Sumatra with its big, rambling refineries lies directly across the Straits of Malacca.

The B29s possibly were gunning for Singapore-based units of the Japanese Grand Fleet which could be dispatched to harass American Luzon forces. Lt.-Gen. Masararu Homma, former Japanese commander in the Philippines, has suggested the possibility that the Luzon invasion will force the elusive Japanese navy to come out and fight.

Another Superfortress raid on Tokyo meantime was announced by the Japanese radio. The Japanese claimed without American confirmation that three B29s from Saipan unloaded incendiaries yesterday. Likewise unsubstantiated was the Tokyo claim that 29 of 60 of the big planes were shot down or damaged during the Tuesday blow against Central Honshu.

Explosion Kills 31 Soldiers

SOMEWHERE IN KENT, England, Jan. 11 (CP-Reuters)—Thirty-one soldiers—most of them members of a British regiment—were killed and about 60 injured in an explosion yesterday at a camp somewhere in Kent, it was announced today.

A mine exploded in an Army hut during a lecture-demonstration.

Ambulances and Army vehicles removed casualties to the local hospital. Surgical teams came from Canterbury and other districts.

Damage was confined to the area of the camp and residents of a village nearby heard very little of the explosion.

The camp is run for recovering wounded to undergo training course, before returning to their units overseas.

Rare Blood Ailment Takes Child's Life

AURORA, Ill., Jan. 11—(AP)—Little Patricia Attaway, 7, lost her fight against a rare blood disease, lymphatic leukemia Tuesday night when she died in hospital.

Patricia was taken to hospital last November 9, a victim of what her physician, Dr. E. M. Thomas, said was an incurable disease

The girl attracted wide attention when it was feared she would not live until Christmas, and later when the American Red Cross located her father, Chief Petty Officer M. F. Attaway, 8,000 miles away in the Pacific and brought him home to be with his dying daughter.

Soviet Lashes Out At Swiss Neutrality

MOSCOW, Jan. 11—(AP)—Continued Soviet irritation over Switzerland's official neutrality got to the stage today where a writer in Izvestia, government newspaper, said the Swiss position "is hardly to be tolerated much longer."

"The whole world knows Switzerland is becoming more and more a centre of Hitler's activity," said the writer.

The article said that Switzerland was aiding Hitler by becoming a sanctuary for German capital, and quoted a Swedish source as saying Switzerland was now the only country continuing to supply

Cannot Fail

LONDON, Jan. 11 — (CP) — John Leonard, Reuters News Agency war correspondent covering the landing on Luzon Wednesday cabled this observation from United States Headquarters on Lingayen Gulf:

"The vast military move I am witnessing is the culmination of weeks, months and years of Gen. MacArthur's most careful planning to drive the Japanese from the Philippines.

"There is absolutely no possibility of failure."

Are You a Sufferer From Rheumatic Pains?

These pains come from an inflammation in the muscles and are generally caused by a deposit of poison in the blood called uric acid which produces the irritating and painful effect that causes many days and nights heavy with pain.

During the past 60 years Canadian people have found that by purifying the blood stream, Burdock Blood Bitters aids these to enjoy freer body movement with less rheumatic pain, as B. B. B. helps to tone up the system and clear up the uric acid in the blood, and probably help fortify the system against future attacks.

Weed Conditions In Rice Lake Irk Members Of Fish Association

COBOURG, Jan. 11 — (ENS). — Northumberland Fish and Game Protective Association at its meeting on Tuesday night passed the bylaws of the organization and transacted other business. After the business session, a brief talk was given by Game Warden Alf Minaker. Chairman was J. G. Hayden.

Report of the treasurer, Winston Fisher, showed a membership of 90 and a balance on hand of $66 with more membership dues to come in. Dr. L. E. Jordan read the bylaws, which were formally approved by the meeting. The bylaws set forth the aims and objects of the association; established the fee at $1 a year; authorized the Board of Directors to expel, upon a two-thirds vote any member who violated the regulations of the association; repeals and amendments to any by-law to be made by vote of the association; established a publicity and education committee, membership committee, survey and advisory committee and any special committees which the directors may feel necessary, the membership to be not less than two or more than four, plus the chairman, except in the membership committee; president to be chairman of the directors, or in his absence the vice-president and total of five can be a quorum; honorary memberships to be created by unanimous vote; directors to fill all vacancies in the directorate; complaints and information re violation of the Game and Fisheries Act shall be made in writing to the Board of Directors; Directors to appoint auditor.

Later the committee chairmen were named as follows:

Publicity and Education—Murray Smith; Membership—W. S. Edwards; Survey and Advisory—Major E. L. MacNachtan.

Winston Fisher informed the meeting that in order to raise funds, it had been suggested that the association raffle off an outboard boat, tickets to be 25 cents each or five for a dollar. The boat would be finished by April 1. Later Mr. Fisher was appointed chairman of the committee to look after the boat raffle.

Federal Job

Alf Minaker pointed out that there had been considerable agitation for weed control in Rice Lake on the grounds that fish were dropping off. Annually the Department put 150,000 muskies and about one million pickerel in the lake, so that there must be fish there, he said. The matter of weed control was a federal matter. He thought it might be a good idea to ask the Department of Game and Fisheries of Ontario, to send down an expert to look into the situation. Mr. Minaker said that he had learned that thousands of pickerel were sucked down to the intake pipes of power generating stations and smashed against the metal gratings. He suggested some kind of grating up where the stream was slower to stop the fish.

Jack Skitch asked Mr. Minaker who was responsible for the raising and lowering of the water level at Rice Lake and Mr. Minaker replied that letting down logs at dams was likely the reason for it. Harry Lucas questioned his opinion on that point, on the grounds that the high levels were due to a bottle-neck along the system.

The speaker said that the lowering of water suddenly, often left spawn high and dry. Weeds were choking Rice out and the fact that when weeds were dragged out and allowed to float down the lake, the result was to propagate the weeds. The whole matter was a federal affair and should be tackled with that fact realized, he said in conclusion.

Percy Nelles Becomes Admiral Retires From Canadian Navy

OTTAWA, Jan. 11—(CP)—Vice-Admiral Percy W. Nelles, 53, who started a naval career 36 years ago as a lowly, binnacle-polishing middy, retired Wednesday as a full gold-braided admiral after the most unusual career in Canadian naval history. Navy Minister Macdonald, announcing the admiral's retirement from his post as chief of the Naval Mission in Britain, said the promotion was in recognition of his service to the navy.

Capt. Frank L. Houghton, 43, the admiral's deputy overseas, has been appointed to head the mission.

Mr. Macdonald said the responsibilities of the mission in Britain "are of continuing importance, although its activities have been reduced by the successful completion of the navy's share in invasion operations."

Admiral Nelles went into the navy with its first class of cadets as it was getting into full organization in 1908. He was only 16. Today he became the first Canadian-trained officer to attain full admiral's rank.

Native of Brantford.

Percy Walker Nelles — born in Brantford, Ont., January 7, 1892—was the second of the first seven Canadian naval cadets to enroll in the Royal Canadian Navy when full organization started in 1908, and his career has been closely linked with the development of the Navy since those early days.

He assumed the office of Chief-of-Staff in 1934, and with the outbreak of war in 1939 saw the Navy separated from the Defence Department and made a department with its own Minister.

During the war the service has grown from 22,000 men and a dozen ships to 90,000 men and more than 500 ships. The Navy, defensively designed at the start of the war to ensure the delivery of goods to the fighting fronts, has gradually become an offensive force, and Admiral Nelles, from his post in Britain, played a major role in the direction of Canadian naval action during the invasion period.

Strangely enough, Admiral Nelles was the son of a soldier, the late Brig.-Gen. Charles M. Nelles, who served in the North-west Rebellion in 1885, the South African War, and who commanded the Royal Canadian Dragoons in the First Great War. Admiral Nelles' grandfather was the late Rev. S. S. Nelles, who became Chancellor of Victoria University at the age of 27.

The admiral was educated at Lakefield Preparatory School, Peterborough, and at Trinity College School, Port Hope.

Was Flag Officer

After six years' training with the Canadian Navy, he served as a Royal Navy lieutenant from 1914 to 1917. Then he returned to Canada as flag lieutenant to Admiral Kingsmill.

He has held appointments as senior naval officer at Halifax and Esquimalt, and was the first Canadian trained officer to command a cruiser in the Royal Navy. He was promoted rear-admiral Aug. 4, 1938, and vice-admiral Nov. 5, 1941.

In 1915 he married Helen Schuyler Allen, daughter of the then United States Consul at Bermuda. They have two sons—Charles Macklin and William Allen, at home.

Capt. Houghton is a native of Cornwall, Eng., who was educated in Victoria and Halifax. His 16 years at sea have included service in battleships, cruisers, destroyers, submarines and minesweepers.

He was secretary to the Canadian delegation at the London Naval Conference in 1936, and later commanded the Canadian destroyer Saguenay.

He received his promotion to captain's rank in 1941, when he was director of naval plans division at Ottawa, and was appointed chief-of-staff to the Newfoundland force flad officer two years later. He went to London last May.

Week Of Prayer Service Held In All Saints'

The week of meditation and prayer services, under the auspices of the Ministerial Association of this city, continued on Wednesday evening; the congregations met in All Saints' Anglican church.

The meeting was in charge of the Rector, Rev. W. A. Filer, who warmly welcomed the members of other communions. Rev. H. J. Mahoney read the scripture lesson, 1 Corinthians, chapter three. The Rector led in prayer for a needy world and all joined heartily in these supplications that God might help. After the singing of the fine hymn "What a Friend we have in Jesus," Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe delivered the message.

The speaker took for his text, "Give Us This Day Our Daily Bread." At the beginning of his remarks Mr. Sutcliffe stressed the fact that while man does not live by bread alone—he does live by bread. Jesus was an idealist. He held that it was useless to try to feed the soul if the body was hungry. His mission was to minister to the whole man. Jesus never separated the bread for the body and the bread for the soul, furthermore, the Master taught that God was the eternal and abiding source of sustenance, therefore the giver of the bread can never fail—Jesus Christ the same yesterday, today and forever.

The speaker forcefully stated that if men are to have the bread that feeds the whole life they must cooperate with God. Their task is to dedicate themselves that they might know our Father's will and plan to feed the bodies and souls of all men everywhere—with passion Mr. Sutcliffe said "How many men are in the world who are hungry—hungry physically—hungry spiritually and mentally. Let us resolve that by the Grace of God we shall address ourselves to the task of helping God to satisfy the longing of men's bodies and souls.

The choir closed this very inspiring service with the beautiful Anthem "Arise Shine for thy Light is Come". This evening the service will be held in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Rev. E. W. Young preaching the sermon.

Military Tires Will Come First

TORONTO, Jan. 11— (CP).—In a statement issued yesterday by the Rubber Association of Canada, J. A. Martin, deputy rubber controller of the Department of Munitions and Supplies, warned increased production of military tires must take precedence "over all other considerations."

At a meeting held Tuesday at the Association's offices here, Mr. Martin told executives of Canadian tire companies he hoped it would be possible to produce additional military tires without cutting down production of tires for essential transportation needs in Canada.

However, in view of General Eisenhower's warning that a military tire shortage might prolong the war in Europe, Mr. Martin said it was necessary to meet the call for military supplies without delay.

He said steps to provide material and equipment necessary for stepped-up production already had been taken.

C. Wilson Re-elected Utilities Chairman

COBOURG, Jan. 11—(ENS)). — Cecil Wilson, chairman of Cobourg Public Utilities Commission last year, was re-elected chairman at the inaugural of the 1945 commission this week. Accounts passed in the electric department totalled $8,158.21 and in the water department $2,860.86. Some discussion centred on better lighting of the streets of the town, Commissioner Jack Delanty stating that Cobourg was the poorest lit town between here and Toronto. Manager Arthur MacIntosh pointed out, however, that material was more difficult to obtain now than ever before. The commission decided to look into a plan of better lighting with the view of putting it into effect at a later date.

Dutch Magazine Has Cobourg Boat Picture

COBOURG, Jan. 11—(ENS).—When Captain Robert Lucas picked up a magazine in Holland last month, he was astonished to see a picture on the cover of car ferry Ontario No. 2 of Cobourg. The picture showed the ferry steaming into the harbor with the ice-covered east pier in the left foreground. He lost no time in getting it translated and found the caption to be "Winter In Canada" and cut-lines which pointed out that the ship shown above was the Cobourg, Ont., Canada, car ferry as it came into the harbor. Captain Lucas sent the magazine home to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lucas.

Walker's wife died Sept. 15, 1943 in Welland County General Hospital. Walker claimed the doctors had been negligent in administration of a spinal anaesthetic.

How It Is Done In Australia

We have received from a Peterborough man who is now travelling in Australia a booklet describing the Town Hall and Municipal Offices which were built in the city of Heidelberg, in Victoria, in 1937. As his interest in this matter was aroused by Peterborough's intention to build a new city hall, we are glad to pass on some of the particulars to our readers.

Heidelberg is a city, but it is also a part of the city of Melbourne. The capital of the State of Victoria is made up of several cities, each of which has a mayor and corporation, and Melbourne itself has a Lord Mayor, who takes precedence over them all. Heidelberg had a population of 28,324 in 1937, so that it was slightly smaller at that time than Peterborough is today. How did this Australian city attack the problem which is before us now?

The plan of the Town Hall and Municipal Offices at Hiedelberg provides complete accommodation for all parts of the municipal government except the police department. There is a handsome lobby which gives into a large general office, and the private offices of the Town Clerk, the engineers, typists and municipal officials are grouped around it. Upstairs there is a large and handsome foyer, giving access to the mayor's office—a large chamber which is useful for civic hospitality as well as for the discharge of business. The Council Chamber is on this floor also, and the photographs show it as an imposing room of modern design, with the seats for the Council arranged in a semicircle; at the flat side of the semicircle is the raised dais for the mayor, which has a handsome canopy over it and a reproduction of the City Crest. The Chamber has a rich blue carpet, and a comfortable gallery, slightly raised, for spectators and the press. Here, obviously, is a Council Chamber which has both dignity and efficiency. We mention in passing that the seats for the Councillors are upholstered in hide, and look very comfortable.

Attached to the Municipal Offices, but with a separate entrance from the street, is the Town Hall. It has a spacious foyer, good accommodation in the way of cloakrooms and washrooms, and plenty of windows. The auditorium itself seats 1,000 people, but it has a raised lounge on either side of it, communicating with the auditorium by arches, which would accommodate another 500 people. There is also a gallery. The auditorium has a parquetry floor, suitable for dancing, removable seats, and a commodious stage, equipped with four large dressing rooms. Again we stress the fact that there are many windows, so that the auditorium gets plenty of daylight, and the side lounges provide space for hanging exhibitions of pictures, or showing exhibits of other kinds. Under this auditorium there is a reception hall, suitable for conventions and gatherings, civic or otherwise.

What is suitable architecturally for Australia would not do for Canada, but the civic needs of an Australian city are exactly like our own. If we can learn anything from what Heidelberg has done, let us do so by all means. Particularly let us bear in mind the fine Council Chamber and the splendid auditorium. Peterborough needs both, the first for the dignity of our civic government, and the second because this city has no large public hall, and needs one badly.

New Archbishop Of Canterbury

There was little surprise when His Majesty announced that he had nominat Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, the Bishop of London, to succeed Dr. William Temple as Archbishop of Canterbury. Dr. Fisher has been well known to the people of Great Britain for many years as a churchman of advanced ideas and great administrative ability; it may be that he, like his predecessor, would rather be known as a great administrator than a great saint; he will make that plain in due course. But although the appointment was not surprising, it was decidedly popular.

Dr. Fisher has the scholarly background which has long been demanded in the men who succeed to the chair of Augustine. He was an educator and headmaster of a famous public school for many years, and left that work only when he became Bishop of Chester. It was in 1939 that he became Bishop of London. The heavy duties which the war brought to him only served to throw his powers as an administrator and his indefatigability as a worker into relief. He is chairman of the churches' committee of the Government War Damage Commission, a body which must deal with the big problem of re-building and restoring churches which have been damaged by the blitz. He is also engaged in the difficult work of replanning parish boundaries in areas where this has become necessary. He is chairman of the Executive Committee of the British Council of Churches, and he is known not only for his cooperation with Protestant denominations other than his own, but also as a tireless worker for greater unity between the Church of England and the Church of Rome.

The sudden death of Archbiship Temple was a serious deprivation to the Church of England and the Christian church everywhere; it is fortunate that a successor of Dr. Fisher's quality was at hand.

A Democratic Fallacy

The Gallup Poll has been investigating the condition of Canadian opinion about world peace and the peace conference after the war. The Poll discovered that 90 per cent. of Canadians are in favour of having Canada join in some sort of world organization to keep the peace. And of those who hold this opinion it appears that 51 per cent. think that the delegates to the peace conference should be elected by a popular vote.

This is a demonstration of a growing democratic fallacy; people nowadays think that they should vote on everything, whether they actually forward the government and prestige of the country by doing so, or not. Anyone who thinks clearly for two minutes about this matter must see that the delegates to the peace conference must be appointed by the government of the day. In the first place, only sovereign powers can make agreements with other sovereign powers, and popularly elected delegates would not be representatives of the sovereign government of Canada; unless the government saw fit to invest the popularly elected delegates with this power, they would not even be allowed into the cloakroom and entrance halls of the conference chamber.

In the second place, the government of the day is better able to judge a man's ability to represent Canada successfully at a peace conference than the average voter. Canada must send men to that conference who know the ropes: some of them will be politicians, known to the public, but others will be civil servants and academic men who are quite unknown to the masses, and could not be elected as pound keepers. The best men, and not the most popular men, must speak for us at the peace table, and an election is to some extent a popularity contest.

In the third place, the delegates to the peace conference must have access to all the information—even the most secret and obscure—contained in the External Affairs department at Ottawa. No government would be likely to make that available, without reserve, to people who had no governmental standing, and who actually formed a rival faction to the Dominion government. Canada will only fare well at the peace conference if she leaves the choice of delegates in the hands of expert and duly elected parliamentarians.

The Man In The Tea Cup

(By BRUCE HUTCHISON)

MR. H. G. WELLS is the latest prophet to sound off on the current crisis of man. He has announced that Mr. Churchill must go before he smashes up Britain and the world. This is not a new prophecy, of course, since Mr. Clarence Gillis, the C.C.F. member of parliament, announced two years ago that Mr. Churchill must go. Also Mr. Laski, another high priest of the Left, announced that Britain had lost the battle of North Africa because it had refused to accept socialism. Despite the failures of these earlier prophecies, Mr. Wells does not hesitate to declare that Mr. Churchill, a "would-be Fuehrer" who carries in his head a "pitiful jumble of incoherent nonsense" and is less equipped "than the average Boy Scout, has served his purpose and it is high time he retired upon his laurels before we forget the debt we owe him."

Since others less eminent also have been saying things almost as bitter, we can assume that Mr. Churchill is not as popular at home as he is here. This is not surprising, since all British statesmen appear to be paragons to us ignorant North Americans, who used to worship Baldwin and Chamberlain. All travellers returning from Britain bring the same story of distrust in the British government, of a general feeling in Britain that this government, while useful in war, will be totally inadequate in peace, but the complaint comes strangely from Mr. Wells.

AS the New York Times recalls, it was Mr. Wells, in September, 1940, who declared that Britain's military difficulties then were primarily due to the incapacity of her ruling classes: "The personnel of the War Office and the higher military command is drawn from the duller individuals of a mentally under-stimulated class." Mr. Wells also said that if the ruling class surrendered to Germany, then even their great charm and prestige could not save them from the people's fury. Mr. Churchill was then prime minister and, strangely enough, this mentally under-stimulated gentleman did not surrender.

Mr. Wells has thus blundered his way into a curious piece of logic, as the Times points out. For if Mr. Churchill and his government were unregenerate Tories in 1940, it is obviously not true that such a class cannot win a war. On the other hand, if this class reformed itself and became democratic in 1940, on the demand of Mr. Wells and his friends, then obviously they are not would-be Fuehrers now. Mr. Wells was wrong about losing the war then, but this does not prevent him rushing forth into the market place again to assure us that Mr. Churchill and his government are losing the peace.

However, a few mistakes of this sort need never worry the professional prophet. If all the absurd prophecies uttered by eminent gentlemen during the last five years were laid end to end they would stretch around the world several times, and if all the prophets were laid end to end they would be a small loss to our civilization.

This disease of prophecy has infected everyone. Not only Mr. Wells but countless obscure men in all parts of the world, including Winnipeg, have insisted for five years on predicting the date of the war's end and often back their predictions with large wagers. A growing tribe of journalists has made a living assuring us that all was lost, with definite dates for the great collapse, and a tribe equally numerous has been paid to tell us how the war was to be won in 1942, 1943, 1944 and 1945, with detailed maps and secret strategy to prove it.

IT has been the greatest season for prophecies since the Old Testament. We have seen the most remarkable series of visions since the Book of Revelation. And while I may have missed some of them, I am not aware that any of these prophecies, from those of Field Marshal Montgomery and Admiral Montgomery and Admiral Halsey down to the man on the street corner, has ever been right. But the prophets still keep prophecying and the public still listens. We would not go back to a tailor who made us a suit which didn't fit. We go back again and again to the prophets who have invariably deceived us.

The reason, I suppose, is that we yearn for some certainly in the whistling chaos of our time. We insist on knowing where we are going. We are like the dowager visiting the teacup reader to hear of a dark, handsome man who is coming into her life. We cannot face the most obvious fact of our time, namely, that nobody knows where we are going or what is going to happen or what kind of a world we are going to live in after the war. We can stand any hardship, sacrifice and bereavement, but we cannot stand the supreme uncertainty of our era. We would rather have a bogus prophecy than none at all, We would rather believe in a lie about the future than in nothing.

And when all the prophecies about the future, good and bad, have turned out false, when nothing happens as expected anywhere, we shall still be paying prophets like Mr. Wells to tell us what is going to happen. There is only one sure thing about the future that you can absolutely count on—that it will be unlike anything we have ever imagined, will defy all the rules and all the logic, and is entirely outside our control. But this is the one sure thing we refuse to believe in. We are all looking in the teacup for a dark, handsome man who isn't there.

Mr. Churchill Stumped

It is a notable if minor achievement to have stumped Mr. Churchill, perhaps the greatest living master of the language, with a good two-syllable English word. This happened, however, in the British House of Commons on December 5.

Emanuel Shinwell, Labor member for Durham-Seaham, had sent to the prime minister a notice of a question regarding the nature of the agreement between the United States and Britain for the payment of goods and raw materials "outwith" the lend-lease agreement.

When Mr. Churchill came to reply, he said: "I must thank the member for making me acquainted with the word "outwith," with which I had not previously had the pleasure of making acquaintance. For the benefit of English members I may say that it is translated "outside the scope of." I thought it was a misprint at first.

But Mr. Churchill speedily profited by this enlargement of his vocabulary. A moment or two later he dampened Mr. Shinwell's abounding curiosity by the remark: "I think my friend is going a little outwith the question which he put."—Winnipeg Free Press.

HITTING HOME!

Himmler's Last Call-up

(By H. G. GRETTON)

WITH British and American armies fighting their way into the industrial heart of the Reich, the Germans have taken a step apparently similar to that taken by Britain in June, 1940—they have called upon the German people to prepare for a levee en masse.

The similarity is only apparent. The difference is summed up and symbolized by the fact that the appeal has been made not by an elected and honoured leader of the nation, but by the head of the Secret Police. It was Britain's Foreign Secretary, Mr. Eden, who called upon Britain's citizens to enrol in the Local Defence Volunteer Corps—afterwards called the Home Guard. Previously Mr. Churchill had made his world-famous speech of defiance to the Germans, expressing for the British nation its determination to fight the invader wherever he was found on British soil. Neither Churchill nor Eden—nor anybody else—thought it necessary to waste any words on arousing the fighting spirit of the people of Britain. That was taken for granted in 1940 and ever since then it has remained the most important moral factor in the world war.

Himmler, who spoke to the Germans, is in no sense their leader. He has never been chosen by them, but has worked—for years in secret—as perhaps the most sinister and diabolical figure in the whole Nazi organization, to build up a hideous machine of terror for the coercion of Germany and Europe. It is significant that he should have come forward into the open to appeal for a fight to the last ditch. Hitler's voice is heard no more in Germany. Quite apart from the evil Nazi Germany has wrought in Europe, Hitler has already brought on the Germans themselves more terrible disaster than they have ever suffered.

Owing to the criminal stupidity of the Germans and the efficiency of Himmler's terror organization, Hitler, with the support of the German military leaders, was given absolute control over the Reich. He has always complained that democracy was inefficient, that Germany had failed previously owing to the lack of decision and authority inherent in a form of government which paid any attention to the wishes of the people governed. Having enjoyed centralized autocratic control for eleven years, he has now stepped into the background, apparently leaving the conduct of affairs in the hands of the butcher who maintained authority for him.

THE net result of Hitler's reign is the reduction of a big and powerful country to the brink of chaos. The most powerful and highly equipped armies ever mustered stand on the German frontier, preparing to strike the death-blow. The last desperate remnants of the German Army have temporarily stabilized a line of defence along the Rhine, but they have no hope of holding back the tide of invasion and behind them is a shattered country. Even if they could win a respite of months, there remains in Germany no further source of military power to be tapped. That is in fact the meaning of Himmler's appeal to the German people. The men who have scored democracy and chosen to work by coercion have not suddenly been converted. If there remained any possibility of organizing another army, they would seize it. Failing that, they are merely attempting to induce the Germans to sacrifice their lives in guerilla warfare in order to postpone the day of reckoning—for Germany, but above all for the Nazi leaders.

It must be a bitter reflection for these men of blood and iron that they have been defeated by the very forces of the human spirit which they have scorned. They will not forget, as they call for the formation of a German "Home Guard", that their pattern is the very different Home Guard which foiled them in 1940. The two million citizens of Britain who took up arms as fast as they could be enrolled—some of them had presented themselves before Mr. Eden's speech was finished—never went into action against the German Army. Many of them have been in action against the German Luftwaffe, but the great function which the Home Guard performed was to release regular armies for service overseas. They enabled Mr. Churchill to send out the only fully equipped armoured division in Britain to Egypt even while the Germans were massing for invasion. And out of that strategy of offensive grew the whole design for United Nations victory.

THAT division eventually became the victorious Eighth Army. The running sore which it opened up in the German flank became the first open wound in Nazi Europe, and finally destroyed the myth of the Fortress of Europe. Today the Eighth Army is one of many powerful armies converging on the Reich. It is interesting to reflect that a big percentage of Britain's Home Guard of 1940 was, in due course drafted into the regular armies and there is no doubt that hundreds of thousands of them are now taking part in the invasion of Germany.

This is a bitter reflection for the German leaders who did not believe in democracy. Yet the success of Britain's mobilization has been due to this very quality of democracy. Because the people of Britain in 1940 spontaneously did what was demanded of them, it was possible to form an effective volunteer defence force. Had it been necessary to have political police in the Home Guard to make sure that men would use their rifles against the enemy, there could have been no Home Guard.

This aspect will not have escaped the mind of Himmler, and, for all his defiant phrases, he cannot have solved the problem inherent in issuing arms to a people which has needed the machine guns of the S.S. to maintain its morale, for this problem is insoluble. It is the dilemma of the police state. Reflecting on the parallel—and the contrast—with Britain, even the Nazi leaders may well be wondering whether they did wisely to reject democracy.

Is The Canada Medal Shelved?

Noticeably absent from the list of New Year's honours conferred upon Canadians by the King was any award of the Canada Medal. Decision to strike and confer this decoration, the first distinctively Canadian recognition of merit ever to be created, was announced well over a year ago. But two New Year's honour lists have been announced since then, and other awards have periodically been made for gallantry and distinguished service, without any award of the medal.

When the projected issue of the medal was announced by Prime Minister King on October 18, 1943, it was revealed that decision to strike it had been reached a year previously and that a list of first recipients was already under consideration for publication "in the near future." When the King's honours list of January 1, 1944, was made public, the Prime Minister let it be known that the decorations and medals then conferred upon civilians would be the last to go to civilians until the war was over, or "until the whole question of awards to civilians had been considered."

Reminder of this statement was the only explanation vouchsafed to recent inquiries in official circles as to why the Canada Medal had not yet been awarded. But this overlooks the fact that when the medal was originally announced, it was specially stated that it was to be awarded to both military and civilian persons, whether Canadians or not, for "meritorious service above and beyond the faithful performance of duties."

Suspension of civilian awards does not seem a real obstacle to military awards, any more than it was for the King's honours conferred on New Year's Day. The announced basis on which the medal was to be awarded gave every reason for expecting it would be a distinctive decoration which honoured Canadians generally could regard as a real mark of national gratitude. But the protracted delay in making the first awards, and the apparent indifference to the matter at Ottawa, threaten to detract from its status and foster public apathy.—Montreal Gazette.

Wedding in Spain

In the sixth year of war they can still stage in a neutral country a wedding with 3,000 invited guests, fantastic splendour and pageantry, "water-falls" of jewels, opulent receptions.

Charles Foley, Express Foreign Editor, brought pictures to London from Spain. Taken at Seville, where, in the great cathedral, Prince Pedro of Orleans-Braganza—grandson of the first Emperor of Brazil—and Princess Esperanza de Bourbon-Orleans were married by Cardinal Segura.

The bridegroom, wearing the Order of the Golden Fleece, and the bride, "afoam with Orleans lace," are pictured above.

Describing the wedding, Foley said there were "princes enough to pack a London bus, marquises and counts to fill a train." There are 16 trunks of trousseau to be sent to the bride's new home at Petropolis, near Rio de Janeiro. The wedding presents filled several rooms, and included jewels valued at thousands of pounds.—London Express.

A Bible Message

Give ear to my words, O Lord, consider my meditation. Hearken unto the voice of my cry, my King, and my God: for unto thee will I pray. My voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up. (Ps. 5: 1-3.)

And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are: for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward.

But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly.

But when ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do: for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking. Be not ye therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask him. (Matt. 6:.5-8.)

PROPHETIC?

The Vancouver Sun, which is always protesting the beauties of its coastal [illegible] denouncing ours, has lately confessed its own doubts. We observe that its cartoonist now draws a human figure representing Vancouver which has webbed feet, like a duck, you know. We are not able to say whether this conception is drawn from life, from a photograph or from imagination. But it confirms some private fears we long have harbored about Vancouver. People very likely will grow webbed feet if they continue to live there. The Sun's cartoons are probably intended to be funny. Perhaps they are prophetic.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Letter To The Editor

ICE MAN IS FROZEN OUT

Sir,—The City Fathers are more deeply interested than some of us ratepayers give them credit for in seeing to it that the mothers and babies have ice. They even extend their generosity to the mothers of babies and others, to Belleville and outside points. We all read of their export business in the "Examiner" and we have also read of their losses, our losses as ratepayers. Why the pat on the back if they have the mother and babies' interest at heart to the extent they would have us think? Why not show us in a more tangible way by investing some of their own money, particularly now that they have had the experience. All they need is the guts. How many of them have as much as built a house? Many of them did not even buy one until it was absolutely necessary to give them a roof over their head.

In conclusion I will say watch your step and remember the wood business for if ever there is watered stock it is ice. I and my family for over sixty years have built and given time and money to any and everything in the interest of Peterborough. Give me a chance to fight, but I can't buck public money and I will be grateful for the privilege.

REG. H. TURNER.

Manhunting

Guam, we learned last Aug. 9, was "secured" by American fighting men who had buried 10,971 Japanese and driven the rest into the hills. What that means in the language of war in the South Pacific is strikingly illustrated by the fact that marine patrols are still hunting down Japanese hiding in the island's jungles. Some 500 more were captured after Aug. 9, but in the first three months after 6,267 more were killed.

One method of the hunt involves the use of landing craft, which nose into shore while loudspeakers urge the hiding enemy to come and give up. Now and then a Japanese does so, urged on perhaps by the promise of good food, clean beds, plenty of bathing and the chance for honourable surender. But many do not and must be picked off with guns or dynamited out of their caves.—Minneapolis Star Journal.

Railroad Cut By Parachutists

LONDON, Jan. 11 — (CP) — Norwegian parachutists dropped into Norway have 'cut the main railway between Trondheim and Oslo, over which Germans were being evacuated to Germany, a Norwegian Government official disclosed Wednesday.

He said two German divisions recently in Norway now are fighting with Field-Marshal Von Rundstedt on Western Front, and that the Germans are trying to get eight other divisons out of Norway.

No detals on the parachutists were available immediately.

PEACE CONFERENCE IN ATHENS—Here is a view of the conference room in Athens where representatives of the Greek warring factions sat down to talk it over, after listening to a warning by Prime Minister Churchill. Apparently there was no heat nor light available. For the conferees wear their overcoats, and hurricane lamps on the table are the only means of illumination. At the right of the table may be identified British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden, Prime Minister Churchill, Bishop Damaskinos (now regent) and Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean theatre of operations.

Millionaires In Government Aroused Much Antagonism

By CHESTER A. BLOOM

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President F. D. Roosevelt's list of assistant secretaries to Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., his new, rich and personable appointee as secretary of state to succeed Hon. Cordell Hull, has aroused more antagonism in the senate than any previous appointments since the New Deal took office.

The objections have been threefold:

First, that the state department is about to become a rich man's club, staffed by millionaires.

Second, that men with reactionary diplomatic records like James C. Dunn, accused of over-friendliness to Franco, will remain on the job.

Third, that a poet of Communist sympathies, Archibald MacLeish, former librarian of congress, author of conceded merit, has been put in the department, seemingly, so the New Dealers think, to alleviate the millionaire curse.

Under the United States constitution, while the president makes the state department appointments, they must be confirmed by the senate.

The case of Mr. MacLeish has already been dealt with. Examining some of the complaints against the other appointments seems to boil down to very little of factual moment.

William L. Clayton, named one assistant to Mr. Stettinius, provoked some of the bitterest criticisms. Mr. Clayton, who won his millions as a cotton broker has already served admirably as surplus government property administrator, but has incurred the anger of big cotton growers by advocating cessation of parity payments (subsidies to cotton growers). Mr. Clayton argued that cotton growers have priced themselves out of the international market by boosting domestic prices. He favors gradual reduction of subsidies, "reconversion" of submarginal cotton lands to growing of other commodities, by temporary government aid if needed, and mechanization of the industry to revive the dying export market. He opposed export subsidies for cotton and "dumping" on foreign markets.

On the other hand, Mr. Clayton advocated increased exports of capital goods to expand production in foreign countries and aid U.S. employment. If the U.S. did not provide these facilities, other countries would. But he would extend such capital goods exports only to countries whose industries could survive in a freely competitive world market. That kind of trade doctrine doesn't ring many bells with the congenital protectionists who infest congress.

Then there's the case of James C. Dunn, a tight shoe on the left foot. Mr. Dunn, long known in the state department for his ultra-conservative diplomatic views, has been openly accused of suppressing reports from Claude G. Bowers, former ambassador to Madrid, which allegedly painted a picture favorable to the Spanish republicans whom Franco was suppressing with Mussolini's and Hitler's help. The liberal, not to mention the communist press, has been after Mr. Dunn's scalp for a long time.

Even James C. Grew, popular former U.S. ambassador to Japan, a veteran dipolmat now named as under-secretary of state, has been accused of being "inhospitable to change." Shipments of scrap iron and other material to Japan for several years before Pearl Harbor. Mr. Grew defended as "common sense." The nation, he said, "was not then prepared for war and our people did not want war." An embargo would have been tantamount to sanctions, "like shaking a pistol in a country's face and ending up by shaking a finger." Mr. Grew denied he had advocated negotiating with Emperor Hirohito after the war, and said that decision must wait until we have occupied Tokyo.

There was a terrific uproar, too, when it was disclosed that Col. Edward H. Heller, one of the President's two nominees for the War Surplus Property Board which will sell some hundred billion dollars of surplus war goods, had a financial connection with a company operated by Henry Kaiser, the wizard ship builder. One suspects that Mr. Kaiser's activity in the recent election of President Roosevelt had some connection with Republican senatorial outcries. Mr. Heller didn't help his case by frankly admitting the connection and saying if any matter came before the board involving the company in which he was interested, he would ask some other member to pass on it.

The complaint against Robert Hurley, former governor of Connecticut, the second presidential nominee to the War Surplus Property Board, was that he was vice-president of a company which got into difficulties with the navy because it failed to make a single acceptable locker for navy offices. Mr. Hurley said that was because the company couldn't get the material to come up to the strict specifications of the navy.

So far, the only outcry against Nelson Rockfeller, named as another of the assistant secretaries, is that he has a lot of money inherited from the family fortune. It is generally admitted that Mr. Rockfeller has done good work in promoting friendly relations with the South American countries (always excepting Argentina). But the fact that he was a multi-millionaire, even though he couldn't help it, put two strikes on him to start with.

Move To West End

LONDON, Jan. 11—(CP-Reuters)—Ten thousand bombed-out people from London's blasted, congested East End are to be offered homes in the fashionable West End, Reconstruction Minister Lord Wooltop announced Tuesday. Houses suitable for quick adaptation as apartments had been listed in the City of Westminster, and in the boroughs of Marylebone, Chelsea and Paddington to carry out his rehousing scheme, the Minister said.

BACK IN ACTION—Word has been received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson, Erskine avenue, that their son, Pte. Walter H. Anderson of the Canadian Scottish, is back in action after a brief stay in a hospital in Belgium. He was one of the first to land on the Normandy beaches and he fought at Caen, Rouen, Calais, Nez and the crossing of the Leopold Canal. His wife and young son from British Columbia, are holidaying with his parents. Prior to enlisting he was employed by the J. A. Marchen Firm.

Boucher Scoffs At Remarks About Richard

TORONTO, Jan. 11 (CP)—Encouraged by recent successes, New York Rangers now see a chance of beating out Boston Bruins for fourth place in the Stanley Cup playoffs, Coach Frank Boucher said in an interview here yesterday.

The fifth-place Rangers defeated Maple Leafs 5-4 here Tuesday to stretch their unbeaten streak to four games. Boucher said the club had reverted to old-style hockey a week ago Sunday to start the string with a 3-2 triumph over Boston Bruins.

"We decided on a man-for-man checking system," he said, "and it worked. But I'll admit it wasn't the kind of hockey the customers fancied. We continued this same style against Detroit a few nights later and got a tie. We mixed old and ultra-modern hockey to get a scoreless tie with Hawks.

Asked what system he used in Tuesday's upset, the Ranger coach replied "a little bit of everything. Chiefly we kept trying."

Calling Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal Canadiens another Howie Morenz was "ridiculous," said Boucher. "Morenz was one of the greatest puck carriers the game has ever produced regardless of rules. Richard can't stickhandle past the end of his nose. He is fast and a puck-catching opportunist, but I can name dozens of hockey players better than Richard."

SPORTS - Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Tomorrow night's senior game between Transports and St. John's in the Ladies' Basketball League double-header at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium will have a lot to say about the ultimate leadership of the loop. Upon the result depends whether the Transports who won the league last season are to open up a wider lead or if they and the Saints are going to find themselves on even terms. The teams have broken even in two hectic clashes this season and there is every reason to expect that tomorrow night's battle will be of the same calibre. Transports with Beryl Dobbin, Fran Bestard, Jean Castle and company have plenty of scoring power while the St. John's outfit with Eva Clarke, Marg Hawthorne, Teresa Heslip and other good players in the lineup have always been noted as a close checking and fighting team who make it tough for the opposition to run up big scores. The rivals meet in the 7.45 o'clock fixture. Y Grads, one of the best junior teams in years, meet Westclox in the second game on the double-bill. The Big Bens showed good form in their last appearance when they nosed out Quakers and they will do their best to stop the win parade of the unbeaten leaders. That fixture is billed for 8.45 o'clock.

The schedule committee for the Y.M.C.A. City Basketball League met Tuesday and drew up the schedule to run for the next six weeks after which a playoff series will complete the season's activities for this group. A double-header has been arranged for this week for the opener and these games will be played at the Collegiate on Friday night, P.C.V.S. and C.G.E. teams meet in the first game at 8 o'clock and the Outboard Marines and Cougars at 9 o'clock. The balance of the games will be played on Saturday nights at 7.30 and 8.30 alternating between the Y.M.C.A. and Collegiate gyms.

A Loss To Sport

The sudden death of "Ab" Delahaye, softball manager, bowler and former baseball player has shocked Peterborough's sporting circles. His passing leaves a gap in the sport setup that will be difficult indeed to fill. For a decade he had been the manager of the Westclox girls' softball team, perennial champions of the Ladies' Softball League and under his expert direction the team achieved a remarkable record, both in the local league and in provincial competition, although it was always one of "Ab's" regrets that his Westclockers had not succeeded in taking the Ontario title although it had reached the final stage on several occasions. A keen judge of material and an inspiring leader who had the knack of getting the most out of his players the Big Bens' manager always had his team moving along smoothly in the local loop. He was the friend of every member of his squad and they were always eager to play their best for him on all occasions. "Ab" Delahaye will be missed in many circles but by nobody more than by the girls who played for his Westclox teams during the past ten years.

* * * * * *

In addition to his fine work as manager of the Big Bens the Westclox pilot had always taken a keen and helpful interest in girls' softball generally and his advice and counsel were always appreciated in connection with the operation of the Ladies' City Softball League, in the success of which over the years he played a considerable part. In his younger days "Ab" Delahaye was a smart little baseball catcher, the backstop of a battery that was famous in juvenile circles, with "Chuck" Bradley, a clever left-handed pitcher doing the firing and Delahaye on the receiving end. He was a peppery catcher and a good hitter and after graduating from the 'teen age ranks, gave a good account of himself in East Peterborough League activities. More recently he had been an enthusiastic five-pin bowler, rolling for the Westclox team in the City League and also participating in the Westclox shop league. A genial, friendly personality and the ability to make and hold friends made "Ab" Delahaye an outstanding figure in local sport circles and his going leaves a wide void. This column remembers many gestures of co-operation on the part of the Westclox manager who was always ready to help out whenever called upon. Peterborough is the loser by his passing.

Lakefield Comes In

The local juvenile hockey league has broadened out into a four-club loop with the addition of a team from Lakefield. The youngsters in the northern suburb asked for admission into the local league and the officers of the latter, after consulting with the Lakefield outfit have decided to accept the entry so Lakefield will battle it out with the Y's Men's Cubs, the P.C.V.S. team and the Hawks for the local juvenile title. It has been decided to stage some of the games in the Lakefield rink so that the whole schedule will not be fought out on open-air cushions as was originally planned. Probably in view of the brand of weather we have been having the youngsters will welcome the occasional opportunity of playing some of their hockey under cover. Lakefield is said to have a team of fast kids and they may make the three local teams hustle all the way. The loop promises to round out into a very successful league and plenty of keen competition and good games are predicted. The schedule will get under way in a few days.

* * * * * *

Publication of the official averages of the City Five Pin League, covering the first half of the schedule indicate that the veteran players in the loop still continue to display their supremacy for the well-seasoned John Playford, long an alley star, looms up at the top of the column with an average of 250, compiled in 45 games. Playford, a consistent bowler who rarely has a bad string and topples over the pins with almost monotonous regularity has always been a leadership threat. Bob Dyer, one of the younger school and Joe Denault a steady bowler who consistently scores highly are tied for second place, four behind Playford and the next two in line are a pair of veterans "Bud" Weese with 248 and Freddy Martin with 240. The latter two are teammates of Playford's on Chris Graham's Empress team. It is interesting to note that 21 trundlers in the loop have an average of 225 or better for the first half of the schedule.

Sporting Chili Con Carne:. Frankie Boucher laughs at the idea that Maurice Richard of the Canadiens is as great a hockey player as Howie Morens. .Morens, the Rangers' coach says, was one of the greatest puck carriers in the history of the game while Richard, according to Boucher "can't stickhandle past the end of his nose."....Leafs play Canadiens in Montreal tonight and the law of averages says that the Flying Frenchmen should hand them a defeat....From the tone of the Toronto sports columns we are beginning to believe that Queen City fans hold their noses now when the name of the Leafs is mentioned....That defeat at the hands of the Rangers hurt....As a matter of fact the crowd was largely rooting for Rangers before the sad affair was over....Honey Tompkins and Ned Vitarelli played for Toronto Peoples against Mahers in Toronto last night....Incidentally their old opponent Doc Dafoe played for Mahers and fired the winning goal....The Peterborough pair did not make the score sheet....Omemee Black Hawks play Lindsay in Omemee tomorrow night....Young Rangers defeat of the second-place St. Catharines Falcons in a 4 to 3 game in Toronto last night was one of the season's upsets....If you are interested the N.H.L. regular schedule is half over....Oshawa took over sole possession of third place in the Junior A group plast night by beating Marlboros 5 to 3.

People Favor Recreational Centres As Memorials

OTTAWA, Jan. 11.—(CP).— Approximately 90 per cent of the peoplet in Canada favor the building of recreational centres, gymnasiums, arenas and libraries as memorials to those who fought and died during this war, an official of the physical fitness division of the Health Department said yesterday.

A survey showed that Canadians were almost unanimously opposed to the monument type of memorials erected after the First Great War, he said.

Already many communities had drawn up plans for "useful" memorials which would be paid for by public subscription and taxes. Other communities had plans ready for sports centres which later might be dedicated as memorials.

Cost of the memorials would run into several millions and their construction would provide thousands of jobs in the immediate post-war years. No accurate estimate could yet be made of the total cost, but the survey disclosed that 15 Canadian communities planned to spend more than $8,500,000.

Hockey Paradox Blamed On Team Styles

By BOB NIELSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An old athletic maxim, algebraically stated—if "A" can beat "B" and "B" can beat "C" it doesn't necessarily follow that "A' can beat "C"—has never been better illustarted than in the current National Hockey League campaign.

Assigning known values to the symbols, "A" becomes the leading Montreal Canadiens, tied with Detroit in points but staking a stronger claim to first place because they have two games in hand; "B" the Red Wings and "C" Toronto Maple Leafs, tenants of third.

Habitants can beat Wings — they've done it three times in four games with one tie; the Detroiters are undisputed masters of Toronto, with a six-game record of five wins and a draw; and the proposition is triumphantly proved in that the Montrealers almost never prevail against Leafs. They claim only one victory and a tie in six starts against Hap Day's men.

The paradox is not easily explained. Many analysts attribute the consistent discrepancy between what should happen and what actually takes place—the phenomenon of one club regularly defeating another of comparable or even greater strength—to the effect of interplay of varying styles. This explanation applies equally to sports other than hockey.

The style theory perhaps accounts for the Indian signs held by Detroit over Toronto and Montreal over Detroit. Wings' bruising tactics always slow up the Leafs, who apparently aren't fast enough to evade the hefty Detroit checks, and the high scoring punch of the Detroiters does the rest.

When Red Wings play Montreal, they are up against the league's fastest club as well as its leading exponent of scientific hockey, and Jack Adams' men aren't speedy enough to best use their weight and vitality.

The style hypothesis throws no light at all on the Canadiens-Leafs mystery, for no one, even the Leafs themselves, doubts seriously the technical superiority of the Montrealers. The Frenchmen are stronger from top to bottom.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Professional hockey's most durable partnership was broken up 12 years ago today when it was announced Howie Morenz and Aurel Joliat would no longer team up on Montreal Canadiens' front line. They had been the principal marksmen and mainstays of the Habitants for more than a decade. Morenz now is dead but Joliat still lives in Montreal

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Jan. 11 — (CP). — Ski enthusiasts down Quebec way are looking to the future and laying plans for broadening interest in the sport after the war. Prime mover in the long-range planning is Fred Urquhart, energetic chairman of the Laurentian Zone.

In an interview in the Canadian Sport Monthly, Urquhart outlined his plan for holding national championships every year, with Banff probably the ideal location from all points of view, including good snow conditions late into the spring. Another plank of his platform calls for some large industrial concern to act as commercial sponsor for the championships. Sizeable cash prizes in sports like golf draw the top ranking international stars, and thus in turn draw large gates to keep the sport rolling.

Urquhart's idea is to apply the sponsor's money to expenses for zone representatives, who would help raise money in their individual zones to finance travelling expenses and build up the bank rolls.

With a few more enthusiastic fans like Urquhart, skiing might be built into a prominent national attraction when peace returns.

Careful, now:

In Chicago, wrestlers now are being glorified by the somewhat effeminate title "matricians." And comments Doug (Windsor Star) Vaughan, that's nothing to what some toe twisters have been caleld. some toe twisters have been called.

This and that:

After the war, some of those military drill halls and whatnots around the country might be dismantled and shipped to various smaller centres where they would make good sports halls, suggests Al (Brantford Expositor) Rose.... Carl (Vancouver News-Herald) Robertson says he hates to think what will happen if the bookies transfer their full affections to baseball, basketball, and football games as they flee before the U. S. Government's fire. Says he: "The sight of large chunks of that folding stuff could easily make some players 'a little too tired' to give their best in a game."

Young Rangers Defeat St. Catharines

By The Canadian Press

For the second successive night, St. Catharines suffered defeat in the O.H.A. Junior "A" series when they bowed to Young Rangers 4-3 in the scheduled double-header at Toronto last night in the other half of the bill, Oshawa Generals gained a clear hold on third place in the standing by disposing of Marlboros 5-2. St. Kitts continued in second position two points behind the leading St. Mike's, with Oshawa in third spot with 12 points, a full game ahead of Galt Red Wings with whom the Generals had been deadlocked.

Providence Ties Buffalo Bisons

By The Canadian Press

Providence Reds made a determined attempt last night to end Buffalo Bisons' home record of 13 games with a loss, but the Eastern division leaders rallied and wound up with a 3-3 tie. In the only other A.H.L. game, Cleveland Barons tied Hershey Bears 4-4 at Hershey.

The Reds scored all their goals in the first period. Jacques Lavoie and George Patterson scored in the first five minutes and Paul Courteau, top scorer of the league, got the third Providence goal while his team was short-handed near the end of the period.

Bisons' George Pargeter put Buffalo in the scoring column before the end of the period, and goals in the second and third periods by Wimpy Jones and Oscar Aubuchon brought the team on even terms with Providence.

Cleveland also overcame a three-goal deficit at Hershey. Hal Cooper scored first on a power play and before the end of the first period Bears had added two more by Doug Maher and Hec Pozzo. Lou Trudel pushed the puck into the Bear net for Cleveland's first goal, a minute before the end of the period.

Cleveland didn't start clicking until after a second goal by Maher at the start of the second period. Trudel scored two more while the other goal went to Earl Bartholome,

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 — (AP). — Baseball clubs are holding back on mailing contracts until the last minute this year, waiting to see what will happen about manpower ......A Baltimore newspaper estimates that the city will lose about $75,000 this year if the bookies shut down because of the racing ban. That's about what it collected in fines each year.

The inside track:

The pyramid Bowl football game between the Base Hospital Rebels and the Weather Squadron Hurricanes, scheduled for New Year's Day at Cairo, had to be postponed when it rained for about 30 hours before game time and flooded the field....Since rain is a rarity there the Hospital boys now are claiming that the Weather Squadron tried to stave off a defeat by finagling that radical change in the weather.

Shorts and shells:

Chicago White Sox made only one home run in Boston all last season and the Red Sox didn't get any in Chicago....In eight consecutive Christmas hockey games, Eddie Shamlock of the Portland, Ore., Eagles never has failed to suffer facial cuts requiring from three to 17 stitches......Charley (Cabey) Lewis who fights Phil Terranova to-morrow, and his eight brothers—all nicknamed "Casey"—have their own softball team. They recruit an older sister as the 10th player.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Apparently unwilling to draw up definite plans for the 1945 season because of the U.S. national work draft and the absorption of 4-F men into war services, the National Football League yesterday adjourned its winter meeting at Chicago on the second day of a four-day session. All clubs except the Washington Redskins agreed to meet again in April when the circuit will consider franchise applications, rule changes and the renewal of Comsioner Elmer Layden's $25,000 contract which expires in March, 1946.

After their winter racing tour of the United States had been cancelled, Gunder Haegg and Haakon Lidman, Swedish Athletic stars, yesterday announced through Secretary Charles Jansson of the Swedish Sports Association at Stockholm they might fly to England and travel by British ship in time for the A.A.U. National Indoor championships Feb. 24 in New York.

Unless they can obtain a transfer of their war plant jobs from Detroit to St. Louis, Goaltender Jimmy Franks and Forward Winky Smith of the St. Louis Flyers in the American Hockey League said yesterday they would drop out of hockey for the duration. The former Detroit Red Wing players were facing expiration of their 30-day leave from a Detroit factory.

Stan West, who pitched 19 victories for Baltimore Orioles in the International League last season, has been inducted into the U.S. Navy, it was announced by Manager Tommy Thomas at Baltimore yesterday.

A first-year man in pro hockey, Ludger Tremblay yesterday was purchased by Cleveland Barons from Providence Reds in the American Hockey League. He is a forward.

Midget Hockey News

With the release of the practice and playing times by Alderman Floyd Curtis, chairman of the Parks Committee, coaches and players are advised that these times must be strictly adhered to.

The P.C.V.S. rinks is rapidly being readied for playing and the first game in the midget league will in all probability be Tuesday night.

All games will be played at the P.C.V.S. rink on Tuesday and Thursdays commencing at 8:00 o'clock. Referees will be chosen from players of the Peterborough Hockey Club.

The four clubs have all had workouts and Eddie Starr had the East City Lions out last night, while Bun Kingdon worked out the West End Kinsmen.

Players, managers, coaches and executive members of all leagues should clip out the time schedule for the various rinks appearing on the sport page today.

U.S. Army Needs 900,000 Soldiers In '45

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson told Congress that inductions for the United States armed forces for the first six months of 1945 will total 900,000 men, as a minimum.

On this basis, the induction rate would be 150,000 men monthly — about twice the rate previously indicated for the early months of this year. The war department recently indicated the army and navy were taking about 60,000 a month in late 1944 and that this would be jumped to around 80,000 this month.

Urging quick enactment of national service legislation, Mr. Patterson advised the house military committee that only through some form of national service could the manpower needs for the war effort be met during the next six months.

These needs, he declared, include 900,000 men for the armed services and 700,000 others for war production and war-supporting activities.

BRITISH TANKS MOVE UP ON ARDENNES FRONT—British-manned Sherman tanks move up through snow and slush to help support British infantry in their attack on the Nazis' Ardennes salient.

Havelock Deputation Asks Council To Build Open Rink

HAVELOCK, Jan. 11—(ENS)—The Havelock Council held its inaugural meeting on Monday evening. A deputation from the local Home and School Association composed of Mrs. W. Woodbeck, Mrs. D. J. Holdcroft, Mrs. F. McKay, and Mrs. W. Nobes, addressed the Council regarding a skating rink for the children and requesting the Council to make arrangements to procure the lot belonging to the Squire estate west of Havelock Creamery as a site for the rink. The Council agreed to pay the rental for the lot and the electricity for flooding, but owing to labor shortage that was all they could do. Earlier in the season Council planned for a rink directly back of the town park, but was forced to give it up, not being able to procure the necessary labor and difficulties with the installation of lights.

Mrs. W. Woodbeck, on behalf of the Havelock Women's Institute requested the use of the Council Chamber on Friday evening, January 19, to hold a euchre party. The request was granted.

James Hoard presented a petition to Council requesting the road to the town dump be opened in order that the weekly garbage collection may be resumed. On motion by Councillors Sanderson and Martin the Reeve was authorized to take up the matter with the Board of Health in regard to using the gravel pit for a dump during the time the roads are blocked. In the event permission is denied, the Council plan to open the road to the dump once, as it would entail too much expense to keep it open should the stormy weather continue.

Receive Tax Roll.

On motion by Councillors Sanderson and Martin the tax roll was received and the treasurer was given authority to take legal proceedings necessary to collect the arrears.

Reeve Seeney was authorized to communicate with Mr. Patterson of Norwood in regard to ploughing the village streets.

Constable W. J. Atkins was reappointed constable at a salary of $85 per month, which includes the offices of weed inspector, sanitary inspector, caretaker of the Town Hall, and assessor. Mrs. Dorothy McMillan was appointed town clerk and treasurer, with Mrs. B. Puffer as deputy, subject to the approval of the Selective Service Commission.

A by-law was passed authorizing the borrowing of $5,000 to carry on the town's work until the current tax receipts commence to come in.

Named to Park Board.

R. Sayers and F. McKenzie were re-elected to the Park Board. The clerk was authorized to order six copies of the Municipal World and 75 dog tags. The following accounts were authorized paid:

W. Akins, telephone account, $2.50; Local Ration Board November expenses, $25.18; Direct relief, $8.00; Foley Estate, $3.00; Mrs. Puffer, tax collector's salary, $150; Division Court costs, four sittings, $10.40; Ontario Municipal Association, $5.00; Mrs. Puffer, telephone account, $4.20; E. Fennell, preparing deeds, $8.84; John Gibb, snow removal, $25.40; G. A. Melville, snow removal, $14.80; G. # Horticulturists Decide Not To Disband

MILLBROOK, Jan. 11—(ENS)—The annual meeting of the Horticultural Society was held in the clerk's office on Monday evening, the president H. E. Kerr being in the chair and pointing out that little had been accomplished in 1944 owing to labor shortage. The secretary, Mrs. G. F. Harrington, read a letter from J. A. Carroll stating that the society could remain inactive for a year, providing local circumstances were such that he was convinced they could not carry on.

However, since there had been 37 members in 1943 and 68 in 1944, after full discussion it was decided to try again in the current year, and see what could be done to at least keep up the municipal flower beds already established. New work suggested was improving the local waiting room, where practically all church societies, as well as lodges, hold teas and sales, by having a window or shaft that will add ventilating facilities where the stoves are located.

The secretary-treasurer's report showed three meetings held, and the annual distribution of plants and seeds; balance January, 1944, $68.48; municipal grant, $14.56; fees, $68; sale of plants and shrubs $69.04; bank interest, 79 cents; total $220.87; expenditures, $141.28; balance on hand, $77.59. Fees for 1945 were received, and Mr. Kerr and Mrs. Harrington were appointed delegates to the annual convention at Toronto on March 1 and 2, with others to go if motoring is possible. A carload went last year, with Mrs. J. W. Hilton as official delegate, her report being received before the meeting closed.

Officers for 1944 were re-elected for the current year: President, H. A. Kerr; vice-presidents, Mrs. Charles Thorndyke and Mrs. Percy Stinson; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. G. F. Harrington; directors re-elected for a two-year term, Mrs. Howard Fair, Mrs. Hilton, Mrs. H. R. Edmunds, and T. W. McCamus. Report was made that Mrs. Howard Fair had attended the district flower show at Bobcaygeon last summer, winning a number of prizes. Miss Anna Fair accompanied her.

Auditors are P. Stinson and T. W. McCamus, and the committee on premiums, Mrs. Stinson, Mrs Thorndyke, Mrs. Edmunds, Miss J. Sutton, and Messrs. Kerr and McCamus. The affiliation fee was ordered paid and the matter of making a contribution toward the Seeds for Britain Fund was left over until further information is received.

Gnr. Wellie Freeburn Moved To England

YOUNG'S POINT, Jan. 11—(ENS).—Mrs. Robert Freeburn received a letter from her son, Gnr. Wellie Freeburn, who had been wounded early in September in Italy, that he had arrived back in England December 23.

Gnr. Freeman stated that the hospital in England was decorated beautifully for Christmas, even to a Christmas tree in the ward, but that all the decorations were nome-made. He also remarked that the crossing from Italy to England was as calm and quiet as a sail would be on Deer Bay.

Wolf Loses Life

CHAPLEAU, Jan. 11—(CP).—When Veteran Trapper Louis Marchioni found a timber wolf had slaughtered three deer after depriving him of nearly $200 worth of fur from his traps, he decided it was time for action. He posted himself by the carcasses of the recently-killed deer, waited for the wolf to return and when it did, disposed of it with a few well-aimed axe blows.

BANK CLEARINGS

Bank clearings for the past week ending today totalled $956,220, which is one of the smallest weeks in recent months.

THEY LIKE IT COLD

Although the temperatuure at Buckhorn, Wednesday, registered at 30 degrees below zero, Mrs. W. Finnie reported that she saw a robin in the village during the morning.

MAKING A CHECK-UP.

C.N.R. Officer Ray Morden of Lindsay, has been making a check of trespassers on the C.N.R. right-of-way and it is probable that a number of offenders will be summoned. The officer has been checking on persons walking on the tracks on the Lindsay and Lakefield lines.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS

New officers of the Kiwanis Club in Peterborough for 1945 will be installed by Lieutenant-Governor Ford Moynes, at the Friday afternoon meeting of the Kiwanis in the Empress Hotel. It is expected that the Lindsay Kiwanis Club will send a fair-sized delegation to sit in on the important occasion.

CARS ARE DAMAGED

Considerable damage was done to two automobiles in a collision at Dalhousie and George streets, Tuesday. W. A. Davidson, 598 Sherbrooke street, was making a left turn from Dalhousie street to go north on George street when his car came into contact with another vehicle being driven north on George Street by Edward Card, 76 Robinson street. Damage to the latter vehicle was estimated at $89 and Davidson's car was damaged to the extent of $36.

ALL CLEARED UP.

The sugar situation in Peterborough has improved, after a temporary shortage during the past few days, it was reported by wholesalers to-day. They said transportation difficulties prevented shipments from arriving on time, and York Trading declared one of their cars containing sugar was "more than three weeks late." However, the staff has arrived, and those who were beginning to use brown sugar in their tea can now revert to the white brand.

NOT ANY BETTER

Although the temperature hit 20 degrees below zero in Peterborough at 9 o'clock this morning, Lakefield residents shivered along with their city neighbours, the mercury registering 22 degrees below zero at 6 a.m.

Memorial Gift Brings Aid To Bomb Victims

Memories of the past are the most worthwhile when they serve as an inspiration for the present or future, and when that inspiration in its practical way continues some good for other people, it can be said to be of double value, which could go on ad infinitum to the benefit of a world that becomes all the richer by it.

In this way, a number of people have seen fit to extend a helping hand to the bomb victims in Britain, through the local and district fund which operates to alleviate their distress, by giving of their means, to serve as a memorial to friends and relatives who have passed this way, and entered their eternal home.

When one considers just how much good this can do in a humanitarian sense, there would see no finer way in which a tribute could be paid to those whose memory is thus honored. It might truly be added, that the inspiration of their lives on earth is speaking in such a manner as to demonstrate they still work for good, even though having passed beyond a physical act on their own behalf.

A gift is given today "In Memory of Dad, A. and V.B." to bring these sentiments to the forefront, which have been expressed in a similar manner through this fund, on former occasions.

There is nothing just as comparable as a personal participation in a movement to benefit mankind as this fund represents. It speaks of a personal interest and individual wish to be associated with it in a manner that no other form of participation can just equal.

A nice gift of $10 is listed today from Harry Tinney of Cavan, who has assisted in this personal way on more than one occasion in the past.

An echo of the Christmas season is to be found in another credit that comes from the sale of Kaleidescopes, made and donated by the G. Roy Powell family, who have assisted at every Yuletide season, since the fund first went into operation.

The $2 credited to this represents the sales that have occurred since last reporting, there now being but one of them left, but should a further supply of them be required, it might be possible to procure them from the same source.

Pte. N. G. Field Awarded Military Medal

Pte. Norman George Victor Field, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Field, 276 Lansdowne street, has been awarded the Military Medal for his work at Dunkirk following the invasion, it was announced by National Defence Headquarters today.

The young soldier, who has been wounded twice since D-Day, is serving with the Calgary Highlanders, and is now back in action in Holland. He suffered multiple wounds September 16 when struck by bomb fragments in his left thigh, left shoulder and lip. Pte. Field was wounded again later when he returned to action.

Born in Peterborough in 1925, Pte. Field worked at the De Laval for a time and prior to enlistment was employed by his father. No citation accompanied the announcement of the award, and in a letter received by his parents, Pte. Field simply said the Military Medal had been given for work at Dunkirk.

E. L. Sackville Observes 20th Anniversary

Twenty years in the insurance business, years crowded with service to his church, and community, while he gained outstanding laurels in his chosen profession were completed today by E. L. Sackville. Two decades ago, this popular businessman came to Peterborough to assume the managership of the Central Ontario Branch of the Manufacturer's Life Insurance Company, and he carried out the duties of this position until 1941 when for health reasons he reverted to personal production, a status he still retains.

Few business men can match the record of diversified service held by "Sack" as he is known to a host of friends. A past president of the Rotary Club, he is currently chairman of the new committee charged with keeping "The Rotarian" official club publication before the members of the local club. He is a member of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Association and secretary of District No. 14 of the provincial body. He is an elder of George Street United Church, and chairman of the pastoral relations committee. He is also president of the Lay Association of the Peterborough Presbytery of the United Church.

A booster and active participant in all city drives, he has taken part in the appeals for funds for Community Chest, Memorial Health Centre, and all Victory Loans as a member of Special Names Committee.

In the realm of underwriting he is looked on as the dean of insurance men locally, being honored recently with the chairmanship of an Educational Congress attended by more than 100 insurance men in Central Ontario. He is past president of the local Life Underwriters Association, and from 1936 to 1938 was a director of the parent body.

Mr. Sackville is a member of the Manufacturer's Life "Million Dollar Circle," an honor bestowed on top producers. In 1944 he repeated previous records to qualify again in the upper brackets of the Senior Production Club. He obtained his C.L.U. years ago, and with amazing regularity his name has appeared on the monthly honor roll for paid-up-production of new business. Besides this he holds a special contract with the Continentual Casualty Co., for health and accident insurance to round out this program.

In Masonic circles he is a member of the Royal Arthur Lodge, the Corinthian Chapter, the Moore Preceptory of Knights Templars, the Ancient Scottish Rite and a Shriner.

A dynamic, aggressive, yet friendly personality, "Sack" is popular with his colleagues and the general public, and the impact of his energy and organising ability has left its mark for good in the community.

Peterborough Boy At Memorial Finds Brother-in-Law's Name

Time in its onward course seemed to him to have rolled back through a long stretch of its years as Sapper J. J. Edwards recently stood beside Canada's War Memorial on Vimy Ridge and read the chiselled inscription of the name of his brother-in-law, Private Thomas W. Hardman, who died April 8, 1917, of wounds suffered in that historic engagement of the other war against the Germans.

Sapper Edwards is the son of Mrs. Florence Edwards, 526 Lock street. His father, who was lockmaster at the Peterborough lock, died last June. Their youngest son went overseas in 1941 with the Royal Canadian Engineers. He was only a baby when his eldest sister's husband was fatally injured in the capture of Vimy Ridge.

In that other war Private Hardman enlisted here and went overseas with the 93rd Battalion. Twenty-seven years later the baby boy in the Edwards family had followed in the footsteps of his brother-in-law, through England, and into France up the slope of Vimy to the memorial commemorating the sacrifice and the deeds of the Canadians who fell in that sector of the long fighting front in 1917.

Sapper Edwards had a snapshot taken of himself standing at the base of the Vimy Memorial pointing to the name of T. W. Hardman, which appeared legibly but too lightly in the photograph for newspaper reproduction. It was located in the "H" group of the alphabetical order of inscriptions in the huge blocks of stone, one name of the many who died in those far off days of 1917. There it was, and is, while stone endures, T. W. Hardman, a name among associates in cherished memory—Hardman, Hardy, Henderson, Hewitt, Holmes, and so on.

The widow of Private Hardman lives in Hamilton.

First Woman Given Office In Federation Of Agriculture

Election of Mrs. Clarence Mann as second vice-president of the Federation of Agriculture Wednesday night signified the entry of Peterborough county women actively into the affairs of the local branch of this national rural organization.

The Federation has sought the cooperation of its women folk, and throughout Ontario during the past year their participation has been gradually extending. It has been felt that some of the projects and ideals of the Federation needed particularly the support of the women of Ontario's farms. One of them is the gradually expanding interest in rural health, and more recently and definitely the health program outlined by the Ontario Department of Health.

John Kitney was re-elected president of the Federation and Lorne Reynolds was unopposed for the post of first vice-president, moving up to the office formerly held by Gordon Hancock.

Reg. Hunter was retained as secretary-treasurer. It was reported that seven of the townships of Peterborough county have accepted the one-fifth of a mill tax levy for the financing of the Federation. This is a voluntary method of contribution. It is in effect in the townships of North Monaghan, Smith, Otonabee, Harvey, Douro, Asphodel and Belmont.

Approximately 800 farmers in these townships have declared their willingness to accept the one-fifth of a mill in their taxes (80 cents on a farm assessment of $4,000), and it has been hoped that rural sentiment in Peterborough and also rural self-interest would extend approval of this financing plan until exceptions were exceedingly few.

Henry Batten and V. L. Stanley-Jones were appointed auditors.

Suggest Rail Grading

Wolsley Northey of Harvey attended the Ontario beef producers' meeting in Toronto, Wednesday, and arrived back home in time to report to the Federation. He said the association in their Toronto sessions recommended rail grading of beef cattle, and also that all cattle should be disposed of in Toronto through the cattle marketing agency and should not be forwarded directly to packing plants.

Reports on the Federation convention were given by Mrs. Roland Scott and Braden Mann.

Mr. Kitney said the Ontario Federation was temporarily transferring its work among farm young people to the Ontario Department of Agriculture on assurance that the Department in addition to its projects among junior farmers will keep the ideals of the Federation uppermost. It was also suggested that each county should have a small committee to interview the members of the Legislature and Parliament in order that farm interests could be outlined to the representatives, and

Court Reserves Judgment In Work Case

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court Wednesday afternoon reserved judgment in a charge against Archie Kemp of having ceased his employment with Canadian Raybestos Limited without the necessary permission from Selective Service.

Kemp was defended by W. J. Arthur Fair and pleaded not guilty. W. F. Huycke, K.C., prosecuted the case for Selective Service.

J. S. Munro, engineer and assistant superintendent of the Raybestos plant said that from the company's time cards he could say that Kemp had not performed his duties on October 30 and 31 and November 1, 2, 3 and 4. The Raybestos plant was a designated establishment within the meaning of the Selective Service regulations, the witness stated.

To Mr. Fair Munro stated that Kemp was still on the payroll of the Raybestos Company and working at that plant.

"Is it just this matter of six days that is being complained of?" asked Magistrate Langley.

Louis A. Grant, Selective Service officer, said that Kemp had not received official permission from Selective Service to cease his duties at the Raybestos plant. The Canadian Raybestos company had a labor priority, the witness said, but he was not sure whether it was an "A" or "B" priority. The plant was a designated establishment, under the Selective Service regulations.

Mr. Huycke argued that cessation of duties for six days without the necessary permission violated the regulations. Mr. Fair, in his argument, contended that Kemp had not ceased his employment. He was still employed at the Canadian Raybestos plant. All that could be said that he was absent for a few days.

Magistrate Langley announced that he would reserve judgment in the case.

Minor Fine Given For Failure To Halt Taxi

Capitol Taxi, through Hugh Davis, owner, was fined $5 without costs in police court this morning on a charge of not bringing a motor vehicle to a full stop before entering a through street.

"I have 22 drivers and it is impossible for me to be behind them all" said Davis, who pleaded not guilty to the charge. The taxi operator said that he had asked the police to notify him immediately on any reports of traffic regulations on the part of his employees so that he could make a checkup on the offending driver.

"That seems a reasonable request" said Magistrate Langley" and I am sure the chief constable who is a most reasonable individual will cooperate with you in that respect."

Failed to Stop

Officer W. A. Clarke testified that on the afternoon of January 3 he was checking another car at Charlotte and Water streets when he noticed a car that he knew had been operating as a Capitol taxi travelling north on Water street. The car, he said, crossed the Charlotte street intersection without stopping.

Cross-examined by the accused Officer Clarke said that he had not checked the ownership of the taxi. He knew, he said, that up to that date the car had been operated by Capitol Taxi.

Davis did not call any evidence but showed the court an ownership license that showed that the car was in his name and not in that of Capitol Taxi.

In registering a conviction Magistrate Langley said the fact that the taxi was registered in the name of Davis and not under the trade name did not help the accused in the least. Capitol Taxi, he said, was Hugh Davis.

Flt.-Sgt. Gynane Reported Missing

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Gynane, 118 Aylmer street, have received word that their son, Flt. Sgt. John Gynane R.C.A.F., is missing following air operations overseas.

Flt. Sgt. Gynane arrived overseas in March 1944 and the last letter his family received indicated that he had completed nine operational flights. The young flier, who was an air gunner, had been employed by the Peterborough Lock Company prior to enlisting in the Air Force.

The Gynane family is well represented in the Canadian forces. There are three brothers and a sister serving. They are: Ronald Gynane in the Navy; Kenneth in the Merchant Marine; Wilfred with the R.C.A.F. at Ottawa, and Sgt. Florence Gynane, C.W.A.C., stationed at Kingston.

HOME ON LEAVE—LAC Austin Elliott, whose wife and family are living at Warsaw, has been spending a leave at his home. He is taking a wireless course and is now stationed at Paulson, Man. A former employee of the Weston's Bread Company in Peterborough, LAC Elliott is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Elliott of Inglewood, formerly of Peterborough.

Dismiss Charge Of Hiding Soldier AWOL

Declaring that proof that the accused had knowledge that his son was absent without leave was essential to a conviction under the section Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court Wednesday afternoon dismissed a charge against William Dunlop, 503 Sherbrooke street of concealing Pte. Darcy Dunlop or assisting the latter to conceal himself.

Evidence in the case was heard at the morning session of the court.

In the afternoon W. J. Arthur Fair, defence counsel, argued that the evidence had shown Mrs. Dunlop, wife of Pte. Darcy Dunlop had been a joint tenant of the house and that therefore William Dunlop

This infantryman crawling under barbed wire was between German gun positions and the main body of U.S. forces—about five miles from Bastogne.

In Compliance With Fraser Request Bale Shipped By Red Cross

HAVELOCK, Jan. 11 (ENS)—In compliance with a request from Mrs. J. C. Fraser, chairman of the Ontario Division of Women's War Work committee of the Canadian Red Cross Society, that all finished articles on hand be forwarded at once to the provincial warehouse in Toronto, a bale was packed on Tuesday at the meeting of the local branch which contained the following articles: 10 pairs of grey socks, 1 pair of khaki socks, 1 pair Air Force gloves, 8 blouses, size 16 years, 7 pairs of bloomers, size 8 years, 4 pairs of boys pants, size 3 years and 3 women's skirts, size 44.

A copy of a radio address delivered by Mrs. Clara F. McEachern, chairman of the National Women's War Work Committee, after her return from Great Britain, where she made a first hand survey of existing needs, was read by the secretary, which called upon the women of Canada in Red Cross to bend to the task as never before to help the people in Europe.

Mrs. W. Drew was asked to interview T. P. Lancaster, requesting him to preside at the annual meeting of the society, January 23, if the date was suitable and if not to set another date and report same to the meeting, January 16. A nominating committee was appointed, consisting of Mrs. G. W. Chiles, as convener, assisted by Mrs. C. Spencer, Mrs. A. McKay, Mrs. W. Copp and Mrs. R. J. McCutcheon, the committee to meet at the home of Mrs. Chiles on Saturday evening, January 13.

A donation of $5 was received from Mrs. E. J. Leeson toward the blood donor work.

Owing to the absence of the president, Mrs. C. Anderson, third vice-president, presided.

Helps Check Colds Quickly

You can often check a cold quickly if you follow these instructions.

Just as soon as you feel the cold coming on and experience headache, pains in the back or limbs, soreness through the body, take a Paradol tablet, a good big drink of hot lemonade or ginger tea and go to bed.

The Paradol affords almost immediate relief from the pains and aches and helps you to get off to sleep. The dose may be repeated, if necessary, according to the directions. If there is soreness of the throat, gargle with two Paradol tablets dissolved in water. Just try Paradol the next time you have a cold and we believe that you will be well pleased. Paradol does not disappoint.

Belgian Town Of 5,000 Wiped Out In Tragic Error

LONDON, Jan. 11—(CP)—Malmedy, a Belgian town of 5,000 on the northern flank of the German break-through, was nearly destroyed by two Allied air attacks just before Christmas in one of the war's tragic errors, delayed front dispatches disclosed Wednesday.

American troops still were holding the town and never lost it, although the enemy approached within a kilometre (five-eighths of a mile), said Associated Press War Correspondent Hal Boyle in a dispatch dated Dec. 31.

American medium bombers dropped eight bombs on the town Dec. 23, he said. The next day a larger force of Allied aircraft appeared. Boyle did not specify their nationality.

"Numbers of civilians and soldiers were killed," he reported.

The London News Chronicle said "There is slight consolation in the fact" that the Germans also bombed their own troops in a town just south of Malmedy about the same time.

The paper's field correspondent called the Malmedy attack "one of those grievous incidents of air war indicative of the dangers and difficulties that attend close support bombing by strategic air forces," and remarked: "Similar accidents occurred at St. Lo and Caen in Normandy."

General Injured

(Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. (Rod) Keller of Kelowna, B.C., who led the 3rd Canadian Division into Normandy on D-Day, last June 6, was injured by shrapnel from bombs dropped by U.S. planes flying in close support of a Canadian advance south of Caen last August. He returned to Canada in October.)

There were several reports prior to the bombing, all apparently unofficial, that the Germans had captured Malmedy.

Allied Supreme Headquarters, in a communique issued the day of the first air attack, said Malmedy remained in Allied hands. The town was not mentioned officially the next two days, Dec. 24 and Dec. 25, but Dec. 26 the communique repeated that it still was all Allied-held.

"Although shelled by the Germans, 98 American combat engineers stubbornly stuck to the road blocks they had built east of Malmedy," wrote Boyle. "They saved the village for the Allies until strong reinforcements ended their peril.

"During the confused battles of Dec. 23 a force of American medium bombers dropped eight bombs on Malmedy. Fires which were started in the city square burned for four days. Then on the afternoon of Dec. 24—the day before Christmas — a larger formation of bombers came over."

Water mains were broken and American engineers had to blow up buildings in a ring around the burning area to check the fires.

Army trucks evacuated at least 1,000 of the town's residents, Boyle said.

Saskatchewan To Collect Seven Million Dollars Cash

REGINA, Jan. 11—(CP)—Acting Premier C. M. Fines Wednesday made public a letter to Federal Finance Minister Ilsley stating Saskatchewan is prepared to undertake the collection from farmers and the payment to the Dominion of $7,000,000 in respect of seed grain advances made necessary in 1938 following a crop disaster in the previous year.

The Province and Dominion guaranteed the advances, but when the loans came due on October 31, 1944, the Province said it could not pay, and on December 11 the Dominion paid the banks $16,468,852, representing principal and interest. The Province offered Treasury bills for the full amount until a settlement was made.

Mr. Ilsley said he did not agree with the C.C.F. Government's claim that part of the amount could not be paid in cash. Although the Dominion made the payment to the banks, the Federal Minister presented a program under which the Province would pay a "reasonable" part of the total of $16,468,852 in cash and provide Treasury bils for the remainder.

Mr. Ilsley's program was not accepted by the Provincial Government, but on January 2 Mr. Ilsley said that Mr Fines, who is Provincial Treasurer, might visit Ottawa to discuss a settlement on the basis of Diminion proposals.

Main Points.

1. The Provincial Government was prepared to give Treasury bills for the full amount paid the banks by the Dominion, the Treasury bills to be those contemplated when the agreement on 1938 seed advances was entered into and when a Liberal Government was in power in Saskatchewan.

2. The Provincial Government would undertake collect from farmers 50 per cent of the principal and pay it over to the Dominion Government as collected. The Province would undertake that these payments would equal at least $2,000,000 a year until $7,000,000 was paid.

3. Mr. Ilsley's proposals for the settlement as outlined previously still were unacceptable. Acceptance of the Federal plan would have meant payment out of current revenue of $2,000,000 each for five years. This money would have to come from expenditures which should be made for health, education and similar services and rehabilitation.

"The standard of living of every citizen of Saskatchewan would suffer," Mr. Fines wrote.

He would ocnfer with Mr. Ilsley in company with Premier T. C. Douglas.

On the basis of the latest proposal, the Province would absorb about $10,000,000 of the advances and interest charges, which totalled more than $17,000,000. Provincial spokesman said it was proposed to reimburse farmers who have paid off seed grain advances in full as the C.C.F. Government has agreed to collect only 50 per cent of the principal from farmers.

DOROTHY DIX

WOMEN ARE POOR SPORTS

Feminine Sex Spend Their Lives Howling Over Hardships

TAKING them by and large, for, of course, there are many exceptions to the rule, women are poor sports. They lack the ability to take a knockout blow and come up smiling and asking for more. When bad luck gives them even a tap on the chin, they take the count and spend the balance of their lives howling over it.

The feminine sex is the complaining sex, though, goodness knows, women have no more hardships to bear than men have. Life dishes out its troubles with an even hand and both get a plateful, but while men gulp down what is set before them and ask no questions, women wail over every mouthful of theirs.

It is women who "never get over" things and harp on a grieveance for a lifetime. The party they were not invited to, the criticism someone made of their new hats, how sister swiped the silver spoons when mother died—they can still run a temperature over these pinpricks after forty years.

Men Carry On

But a man seldom tells you his troubles. He forgets them, or he thinks you have worries enough of your own and don't want to be bothered with his, or he desires to be thought successful instead of being pitied. So he doesn't beat on his breast and publicly ballyhoo everything that goes wrong with him, and this makes his wife think that he leads the life of Riley and that he doesn't sympathize with the sufferings of a poor woman who has to keep house and look after the babies.

From the fact that wives are nearly always the petitioners in divorce suits, it would seem that the world is filled with husbands who are brutes and wives who are angels, but such is not the case. There are just as many mean, selfish, no account, disagreeable wives as there are husbands. There are just as many bitterly disillusioned and unhappy husbands as there are wives. But there are more men who are sports about marriage than there are women. More men stick to the bargain they have made than women.

Men even deny themselves the consolation prize that the disgruntled wives have in complaining about their husbands to anyone who will lend them an ear. It is seldom that you hear a man criticize his wife to others, but women make their husbands' faults and shortcomings the chief topic of conversation when they hold their talkfests.

And so it goes through life. Even God didn't make a world that satisfies women and left them nothing to complain about. If they are married, they complain about how much trouble it is to pick up after a husband, about his scattering cigar butts on the rug, about his wanting to step out of evenings or because he is a fireside sitter and won't budge out of his chair. If they are not married, they complain about being lonely and wanting somebody to love them.

If they have good jobs, they complain about how hard they have to work and how their feet hurt them. And if they have nothing to do and are rich they complain about being bored, or, if they are poor, about not being able to dress like Miss Millionbucks.

All of which would be very sad if we didn't stop to remember that women get a kick out of complaining and that there is nothing they enjoy so much as telling their troubles.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

DEAR MARY MOORE—I am not an experienced bread maker, but I can make this recipe I am sending you work every time. It is made with some mashed potatoes and is kept like refrigerator dough. I had never made bread before this, but I can make fresh rolls every night for dinner now if I care to.

Potato Bread or Rolls

(Contributed by Vicki Bates)

Scald 1 cup milk with ½ cup mashed potato, then push it through the sieve. When lukewarm (test it on your wrist) add 1 yeast cake dissolved in 2 tablespoons lukewarm water with 1 teaspoon sugar. Then add 1 cup flour (I use enriched flour) and beat it very well, then cover and let rise in warm place until it is very light. Then add 1 beaten egg, 3 tablespoons soft shortening (lard that has stood near stove will do), ½ cup corn syrup (or just 2 tablespoons sugar if you don't like it too sweet), and 1½ teaspoons salt. Mix very well, and add about 2 cups flour or enough to prevent sticking. Knead on lightly floured board, and then put back in floured bowl, cover with damp cloth and let rise until double in bulk; stir down, cover tightly and keep in refrigerator or in very cold place, but not where it will freeze, until required. If kept in refrigerator it will keep 4 days. Shape into rolls or loaf when ready, let rise to double in bulk and bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for rolls, for 15 minutes, then 350. Bread takes 30 to 40 minutes longer.

Thanks, Mrs. Bates, we are having rolls made from this recipe for our dinner tonight.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, January 12

AN UNUSUALLY active, lively and probably pleasant state of affairs is the presage based on propitious aspects of major planets. A rather unexpected or exceptional opportunity may arise, promising success, happiness and enhanced prestige and popularity both in business and private affiliations. There might be some public, group or fraternal recognition. While a brilliant idea or intuitive lead might stimulate the energies and ambitions, yet it would be wise to give serious thought or deep study to such an urge, lest haste or erratic impulses prove unprofitable or cause surprising complications. Personal influence may prove of value, even charm or social prestige.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for an out-of-the-ordinary opportunity for demonstrating the talents, skill or inventive genius or originality and while these promise dramatic denouement or spectacular success and approbation from those in authority or public office, yet such intuition, illumination or vision should be subjected to sound analysis and sustained reflection for best results and future complications. There may be unusual pleasure in such achievement with happy reactions on the romantic, social and affectional relations.

A child born on this day may be endowed with exceptional talents along advanced, creative or scientific lines, winning success, public acclaim and joy in its social, domestic and romantic affiliations.

Circle Studying Work In Far East

Mrs. Sherman Rowe, London street, was in charge of the program for the monthly meeting of the Twilight Mission Circle of George Street United Church, at her home, Tuesday evening. Miss Ethel Robson read the Scripture, and Mrs. W. Young led in prayer, for the devotional period.

Mrs. D. J. Worboy gave a short reading on "Christian Stewardship" and Mrs. R. Kitchen sang a solo, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. R. Moore. Mrs. A. Beasley gave an interesting reading on the Philippines, and Miss Olive Day gave a talk from the study book, also concerning the Philippines. After a short business period, refreshments were served by members of Miss Nellie Douglas' group.

Reno Divorces At High Record

RENO, Nev., Jan. 11 (CP)—Today's upswing of divorce is due to too much money, in the opinion of E. H. Beemer, Washoe county clerk since 1917, who has recorded nearly 50,000 divorces since Reno's six weeks' residence law was adopted in 1931.

"That's it, too much money," he said, looking up from his county record book where he carefully listed another on-the-rocks marriage.

"It's not like so many people think," he went on, "that wives are divorcing their soldier husbands. There's some of that, of course, but it seems to me that it's just because today couples who have figured on divorce for a long time can go ahead."

Reno's all-time divorce high—5,910 cases in 1943 — was topped in 1944 with an estimated figure of 6,890.

Nevada's bonanza year of 1943, which saw 11,399 suits bring more than $500,000 in fees to 17 county courts throughout the state, topped the previous high of 8,614 cases in 1942. Washoe county court, alone, took $200,000 from its 5,910 suits.

"Probably another reason that's tied up indirectly with the war," Beemer added, "is that now so many women and girls are working. They make acquaintanceships they otherwise wouldn't. Maybe a man works in the same war plant with a pretty, young girl. So he loses his head and decides to divorce his wife and marry the young girl."

"Extreme mental cruelty" still leads as the chief cause listed on the Reno records. Ten per cent of Washoe's divorces are re-married within a week, records show.

Mrs. J. H. Rowe Addresses WMS

In spite of the weather, a good attendance of members was welcomed to the January meeting of Group F. of the Women's Missionary Society of George Street United Church, at the home of Mrs. F. Barrett, Park Hill Road. Mrs. J. H. Rowe, president of the W.M.S., was guest speaker, and gave a New Year's message.

Mrs. R. Boulter, leader of the group, presided. The devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. J. W. Hales and Mrs. D. H. Boorman, and Mrs. Roy Powell gave a splendid address on Christian Stewardship. Two musical numbers, given by Mesdames H. Girven, J. Spencer, D. H. Boorman and H. S. Powers, were enjoyed, with Mrs. Gordon Marshall accompanying on the piano. After the meeting, refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

During this month there will be many people entertaining, who will be looking for new suggestions for lunches. Sandwiches of different types are often served, but a fancy bread is taking first place now. That is what my recipes are going to deal with today. Serve any of the following breads, cut very thin, either buttered or made with a fancy spread.

Honey Sandwich Bread.

½ cup bran, 1 cup graham flour, 1 cup white flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 egg, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 1-3 cup honey, ½ cup chopped walnuts. Mix and sift the dry ingredients together Add the nuts, mix and add milk honey and beaten egg. Beat thoroughly. Pour into a greased oblong breadpan and bake one hour at 400 degrees.

New England Corn-Cake.

1 cup corn meal, 1 cup white flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons syrup, 1 egg, 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons melted shortening. Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Beat the egg light, add the milk, shortening and syrup. Stir into the dry mixture and beat well. Pour into a well-greased shallow pan and bake at 400 degrees F, 25 to 30 minutes.

Quick Nut Bread.

Two cups bread flour, ⅓ cup sugar, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 5 tablespoons shortening, 1 whole egg and yolk of one egg, 1 cup milk, ½ cup finely chopped nut meats. Mix and sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Work in shortening as for biscuits, then add egg and egg yolk well beaten, milk and chopped nut meats. Beat thoroughly and turn into a buttered bread pan. Let stand 20 minutes, then bake at 400 degrees F 40 to 50 minutes. This is a delicious bread for making sandwiches.

"My Nerves Were Very Bad, I Felt Tired and Rundown"

"Had No Energy From the Time I Got Up in the Morning," Says This Woman. Digestion bad; Got Sick Headaches; Couldn't Sleep. Tells How Syntona Helped Her.

MISS GLADYS FOREMAN

At this time of the year many people begin to feel tired out, easily fatigued and nervous; appetites are lost and they have no energy to do anything. They suffer from indigestion, dizziness, headaches, and rheumatic aches and pains, and the bowels become constipated. Now is the time to take Syntona for effective aid like that experienced by Miss Gladys Foreman, 128 Young Street, Hamilton, Ont.

"My entire system seemed badly rundown and I felt worn out and fatigued all the time," said Miss Foreman. "My nerves were very bad The least noise or excitement startled and irritated me. I wasn't sleeping at all well at night, so I felt tired and not rested from the time I got up in the morning. Then, too, I suffered a lot with gas, indigestion, and heartburn After my meals I would have sour, acid risings and a full, heavy distressed feeling. I used to get very bad headaches.

"I had been that way a long time and it was getting worse, so when I read about Syntona I decided I would try it. It wasn't long before my food began digesting without all that gas, sourness and heartburn. I could eat regular meals and enjoy them As I kept on taking it my nerves calmed down and I began to feel better Now I am like a different person. The headaches do not trouble me any more. I am getting sound, restful sleep at night, and I have gained new strength and energy. I am very happy to recommend Syntona to others."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. They will gladly tell you all about this grand Herbal Medicine that has helped so many local men and women.—(Advt.)

Navy Auxiliary Hears Yearly Reports

Various conveners' reports were presented to conclude the year's activities, in preparation for the annual meeting at the Navy Auxiliary's regular meeting Wednesday evening in the Y.W.C.A.

One hundred and three replies, since the December meeting, were reported by Mrs. George Moore, corresponding secretary, in connection with letters of thanks from boys and girls who had received ditty bags. She read the names of the recipients of the boxes who had already written. Members decided to send a letter of congratultion to Lieut. Commander Otto Laderach, and to Mrs. Laderach, commending him for the honor he had brought to Peterborough.

The question of providing accommodation for navy boys on leave in Peterborough to enable them to enjoy some time together was discusseed, and it was felt that the Salvation Army canteen would be the logical place for the boys to meet. Mrs. George Groombridge and Mrs. F. White were asked to make inquries about the possibility of having the Salvation Army Centre on Charlotte street, open throughout the day, instead of opening at four o'clock.

Mrs. E. Ainslie presented her treasurer's report, showing a balance of $1,037.27 in the bank, as of December 31, when she closed her books for the auditors. Mrs. George Groombridge read the secretary's report, and Mrs. A. Chartren reported for the sick and visiting committee. Mrs. F. White, in the absence of Mrs. R. Pilling, the wool convener, said that Mrs. Pilling had received 42 articles during the month, and had given out 38, and that there was a considerable amount of wool on hand. It was decided that each month, a number of pairs of sox would be put away, so that each ditty bag at Christmas, 1945, would contain a pair.

Mrs. Frank Merrett, who presided, announced the annual meeting of the Local Council of Women, to be held January 18 at the Y.W.C.A. She urged everyone who could, to attend. The meeting approved a short report from Mrs. Groombridge, on the year's activities, to be read at the council's annual meeting.

Mrs. A. Leach, Mrs. G. J. Fallen and Mrs. P. Hooper was named as a nominating committee, to bring in a slate of officers for 1945 at the February and annual meeting. Mrs. F. Craig, ditty bag convener, was authorized to send parcels to boys whose names had been turned in to her, and members discussed the advisability of assisting Navy boys, who through mishap were without funds. They decided, that after a satisfactory investigation, Navy boys whose money had been stolen or lost, or needed help in other ways, would be assisted by the Auxiliary. The sum of $10 was voted to assist one sailor now on leave in Peterborough, who had his money stolen.

A donation of $100 was voted for the library campaign sponsored by the I.O.D.E., to assist in obtaining Peterborough's objective of $5,000. A special collection, for the Save the Children Fund, was taken, and more than $6 was received.

AIRFORCE NUPTIALS. — WO2 Leonard Gordon Smith, RCAF, and his bride, the former AW1 June Louise Perry, RCAF (WD), are pictured after their wedding in the canteen of the RCAF station at Sydney, where both were stationed. WO Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Byers Smith, 228 Perry street, Peterborough, and the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Perry, of Lethbridge, Alta.

IODE Planning Giant Bingo

At the January meeting of the Jeanette Scott Chapter, I.O.D.E., plans were discussed for the bingo, to be sponsored by the Peterborough I.O.D.E. in aid of the camp libraries campaign. The bingo will be held on January 26 in the Armouries, and tickets are available from all I.O.D.E. members.

During the past month, visits had been made to the Training Centre hospital, and members were hostesses at a dance for the soldiers. Mrs. E. Westbye was appointed to represent the chapter on the committee to look after the reception of British war brides arriving in Peterborough. Mrs. George Rishor reported for the Christmas parcels sent to the adopted ship, and said that one large parcel and 17 individual parcels, one for each member of the crew, had been packed and mailed. Members decided to renew the magazine subscriptions being sent to the ship.

Mrs. P. Amys, knitting convener, said that a good supply of articles had been handed in and forwarded to headquarters. Donations were voted to the Coronation Bursary and the Lucy Morrison Memorial Fund. A nominating committee, to bring in a slate of officers at the February meeting, was named. Miss Isobel Weddell, the regent, who presided, was hostess for the meeting.

An invitation was accepted from the Living Link Mission Circle, to be their guests at the February meeting. Short prayers were given by Mrs. F. Leslie and Misses E. Preston and H. Moore, followed by a talk given by Miss Alice Brown, from the study book. Miss Greta Giles sang a solo, "Midwinter," and refreshments were served, and a social hour enjoyed.

Auxiliary President Has Fine Family Army Record

The newly elected president, Mrs. B. D. Hall, presided at the first afternoon meeting of the Active Army Auxiliary, on Wednesday, in the Armouries. She asked members to attend the meetings in 1945 as regularly as possible, so that plans could be carried through successfully.

Members were told of the proud military record of their president's family, which should act as an incentive to new members to attend meetings, and become acquainted with other Army wives, mothers and sisters. Major J. Douglas (Pat) Hall went overseas in 1940, and is stationed now with the R.C.A. in Italy. Capt. Louise Hall, C.W.A.C., is second in command of Argyle Barracks in Ottawa.

Capt. James S. M. Hall went overseas in 1941 with the Fort Garry Horse Tank Corps, and attacked with the Canadian Forces in the invasion of France on D-Day. He was killed in action, June 9. Cpl. Mary Hall Craig was the 16th girl in the Army in Ottawa in Signals Headquarters. She joined in 1941, and was married the next year. Her husband, Lieut. Lawrence A. Craig of Ottawa went overseas in 1942, and is stationed now in Italy with the Lord Strathcona Horse Armored Division.

Many letters from soldiers expressed appreciation to the Auxilitry for the excellent Christmas boxes which have been received. Two were returned as incorrectly addressed, one for L.-Cpl. Robert J. Dean, and the other for Gnr. L. Bowers, and anyone knowing the correct address of either was asked to contact the Auxiliary.

In connection with the I.O.D.E. drive to raise funds to enlarge libraries for the Armed Forces, in hospitals, camps, and on ships, the meeting decided to send a donation of $25. Members unanimously passed this motion, since Army men would directly benefit.

Letters of appreciation will be sent to E. Humpage thanking him for auditing the Auxiliary's books, and to Mrs. Whalon for the benefits the Auxiliary received from the salvage drives which she organized. Mrs. F. H. Cox, reporting for the visiting committee, said that eight calls had been made on families of recent casualties.

It was decided to make the afternoon meetings more informal, and to leave the evening meetings for reports and business. The next meeting will be held on January 25 at 8 o'clock in the Y.W.C.A. At the close of the meeting the social committee, with Mrs G. McMeekin in charge, served refreshments.

Six Appointed To Help Canvass

Mrs. Jack Skitch, Albertus avenue, was hostess for the regular meeting of the Major Bennett Chapter I.O.D.E., Wednesday evening, when members gave a unanimous vote in favor of the establishing of a municipal chapter in Peterborough.

Mrs. A. S. McRae, the regent, explained to the members the features of the drive to raise money for the camp libraries campaign. Six members of the Chapter were chosen to canvass a special names list, and each member was urged to assist the committee in every possible way to put the drive over. It was announced that the main feature of the drive would be a mammoth bingo in the Armouries on January 26.

A letter of thanks was read from the crew of H.M.C.S. Ambler, thanking the Chapter for their gift of a phonograph and records for the ship. The Chapter will sponsor a soldiers' dance at the Y.W.C.A. on January 15.

Baby Band Plans Valentine Party

Members of the Trinity Baby Band will invite the Park Hill Baby Band to a Valentine party at their February meeting, it was decided at the meeting at the home of Mrs. N. Elliott, Boswell avenue. The Valentine meeting will be held in the Church parlors.

Miss R. Young, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, was guest speaker, and gave an interesting outline of the work she and her assistants are doing. She also gave several instances of trips made to homes even in zero weather. Letters of appreciation were read by the president, Mrs. A. Malby, for three layettes donated to the Otonabee Chapter of the I.O.D.E., and the donation to the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre. A letter of thanks was also read from the W.M.S. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served.

Mirror Given To Mrs. G. Webb

Following the election of officers for the 5th Troop, Scout and Cub Mothers' Auxiliary, Mrs. G. Webb, retiring president, was presented with a framed mirror, in recognition of her service. Mrs. R. Miller and Mrs. A. Halliday made the presentation on behalf of the members.

Mrs. O. Kidd, 569 Patterson street, was hostess for the meeting, and O. Kidd presided for the election of officers, which resulted as follows: Honorary president, Mrs. R. J. Kearns; past president, Mrs. G. Webb; president, Mrs. L. S. Hollingsworth; vice-president, Mrs. A. Beardsmore; treasurer, Mrs. A. Watkins; secretary, Mrs. C. L. Fowler; secretary of supply, Mrs. R. Graham; social convener, Mrs. A. Halliday; telephone committee, Mrs. O. Kidd, Mrs. H. Panter and Mrs. B. Goodson; pianist, Mrs. W. A. Wight; wool convener, Mrs. J. Martin.

Mrs. R. J. Kearns was guest speaker, taking as her topic, "I Took a Vow," and stressing the Scout laws. Miss Joy Edgar was guest soloist, and sang "Christopher Robin," and "Sleep, Baby, Sleep." Mrs. Webb presided for the business meeting, and the hostess served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

Bride-Elect Given Party

HAVELOCK, Jan. 11 — (ENS). — Miss Margaret Voyer was hostess for a delightful party when the employees of the Canada Needle and Fishing Tackle Company met to honor Miss Marjorie Cross, whose marriage takes place this week to Murray Meiklejohn of Campbellford.

During the evening the guest of honor was presented with an end-table and wall mirror, the address being read by Miss Maude Sexsmith, with Miss Lois King making the presentation.

Following an enjoyable time spent in games and dancing, a dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

Auxiliary Hears Review of Work

Excellent reports were presented by conveners at the January meeting of the St. John's Women's Auxiliary, afternoon branch, Tuesday, to Mrs. G. S. Cameron, who presided. Mrs. Cameron also conducted the devotional exercises, in the absence of Canon W. P. Robertson.

An interesting summary of the annual meeting was given by the recording secretary, and the treasurer presented a favorable financial statement. The Dorcas convener read a letter of appreciation from Rev. H. Ashmore and Mrs. Ashmore of Loon Lake, Sask., thanking the Auxiliary for the bale sent to them. Mrs. J. Cridland took the study book period. The book for this year deals mainly with the people of the islands of the Pacific, which figure largely in the news. Tea hostesses were Mrs. H. Bradburn and Mrs. H. Welsh, assisted by members of the refreshment committee.

RE-OPEN AIRWAYS

LONDON — (CP). — It was learned here that South African Airways will shortly resume carriage of public passengers in the Union, suspended since the war began.

● Authorities say the difference between husky children and those who are poor eaters, underweight and nervous is often simply a matter of proper nourishment, especially an adequate supply of vitamins.

But vitamins alone are not enough: For authorities now agree that vitamins do not work alone. They work as a team with certain other food elements.

For this reason, thousands are switching to Ovaltine. Unlike mere "vitamin carriers," Ovaltine food beverage contains not only extra vitamins but nearly all the precious food elements needed for health and top vitality. These include Vitamins A, $B_1$ and D, the important minerals calcium, phosphorus and iron, high quality proteins and quick energy fuel-food—a combination of food elements authorities agree are needed for best results.

So, if your child is thin, nervous and not developing properly, why not turn to Ovaltine as thousands are doing. Three normal meals plus two glasses of Ovaltine a day give your child all the extra amounts of vitamins and minerals needed for health and top vitality. 145

Bakable Vegetable Dishes Popular At This Season

By MARY MOORE

Last May I efficiently "did down" (in tin cans) 52 16-oz. tins asparagus tips and cuttings.

Two weeks later I did 32 16-oz. tins of crushed pineapple.

Two weeks later Peter, fresh out of school, decided to clean up the basement (Mother's little helper!).

Now I'm taking the blame for only labelling the cartons the cans were in, for I was extra busy getting the children's clothes ready for Camp July 1.

Well—Peter dusted off all the tins and stacked them ever so neatly on the fruit cellar shelves, and efficiently piled the empty cartons in our kindling box.

Now with my hair a couple of shades grayer, picture me squinting at the postal scales while I weigh each nondescript perfectly blank tin, for the pineapple often turns out to be a fraction of an ounce heavier. But I've had to make several asparagus salads, when what I'd planned on was a nice pineapple betty or fruit cup.

So I'm still depending on carrots, cabbage, squash, onions, canned peas, corn and tomatoes, and with rare luck, the occasional can of asparagus.

With the tendency in these bleak months to have oven meals oftener I've specialized on vegetables that can be baked. I want you to note all the precautions for retaining the vitamins and minerals.

Our imports of lettuce and cabbage have been so limited we must conserve what nutrients we have, if we would make up for our usual imports, and lack of fresh raw food. Give this tangible thought every meal.

Baked Beets (two methods)

1. Wash beets very well after trimming off tops, and place on pan and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. until soft. Skins will peel off. Chop and season with salt and peper.

2. Casserole. Wash and peel raw beets and shred into casserole. Add ½ cup boiling water, 1 tablespoon butter, generous shakes of salt and pepper. Cover. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour.

Baked Onions

Slice peeled Bermuda onions in ¼-inch slices and dip in flour, shaking off excess flour. Lay in buttered or greased casserole sprinkling each layer with a little salt and pepper and a few dots of butter or drippings. Dot top layer a little more generously with fat, and pour down side about ¾ cup boiling water. Cover and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. until tender. This has a French fried flavor and is delicious with steak (as if steak needed anything to make it delicious).

Glazed Carrots

Please remember that this is an exceptionally good, vegetable dish, and economical when you are planning on serving an expensive roast to guests.

About 10 medium sized carrots, 1 tablespoon fat, ½ to 2-3 cup brown sugar, 1 cup cold water, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1-3 lemon sliced thinly. Scrape carrots and cut in ¾-inch slices. Lay in baking dish, add remaining ingredients, cover and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 1 hour. After 30 minutes uncover. The syrup should be thick and the carrots browned.

Scalloped Potatoes and Corn

In alternate layers in baking dish place hot riced potatoes, kernel corn, and grated cheese, making 6 layers in all. When layered pour in 1 cup milk, and sprinkle over top ¼ cup buttered salted crumbs. Bake about 40 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. Delicious.

EXAMPLE WILL TELL

LEEDS, England — (CP). — "It is by force of example that Britain can retain her prestige and increase it," Emmanuel Shinwell, M.P., said here with reference to vast post-war agricultural and industrial expansion which will be necessary in Britain's colonies.

IT'S NAVY AGAIN—Navy blue basks in the sartorial spotlight again and it appears in many of the most important early Spring collections. The famed Mainbocher uses navy for a supremely smart evening frock. The fabric is taffeta and the model accents the lowered waistline that is a characteristic of this collection. Pale pink roses nestle in the loops of the large bow that breaks the svelte line.

THE ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: You referred last year to a Harvard Pudding that called for Applesauce made from dried apples. At the time I was not interested, but this fall we dried some apples and I want some new methods of using them up besides in pie. I liked the gingerbread with crushed pineapple. Keep up the good work.—Esther 3rd.

Harvard Pudding.

ANSWER: One-third cup butter (half and half lard and butter are good), ½ cup sugar, 2½ cups flour, 3½ teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 1 cup milk. Mix and sift dry ingredients and work in butter with tips of fingers; beat egg, add milk, and combine mixtures; turn into buttered mould, or into buttered individual moulds, cover and steam 2 hours; serve with warm applesauce and hard sauce.

Apple Sauce: Pick over and wash dried apples, soak overnight in cold water to cover; cook until soft in soaking water. Sweeten to taste and flavor with a little lemon juice or grated rind.

QUESTION: I've discovered what I consider a real find by thumbing through my cook book. It is called Mock Sweetbreads and since I've never seen you refer to it, and hope you will not think I am presumptuous in sending it in. Some day I am going to send you my method for preparing pork shanks and sauerkraut.—Kathy Kidd.

Mock Sweetbreads.

Finely chop 1 lb. lean raw veal, add 2 ounces finely chopped fat salt pork (this is essential to the success of the dish), and work using the hands until well blended; then add 2-3 cup soft bread crumbs, 2 eggs, slightly beaten, 1-3 cup flour, ½ cup rich or top milk, ½ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper. Form into balls or cylinders, put in baking dish, dot with butter or drippings, and pour over 1½ cups thin white sauce. Sprinkle top with a few crumbs. Cover and bake 1 hour, uncovering last 10 minutes.

QUESTION: We love fish but as you realize it is easy to get in a rut when using it once, often twice a week. I want a new way to prepare finnan haddie, since it is less expensive than many other fish, and we use it often. Should you sear roast beef before you put the lid on? Thanking you.—Margaret Browne.

Special Finnan Haddie.

ANSWER: Two lbs. finnan haddie, ½ tablespoon finely chopped shallot or green onion, ½ tablespoon green pepper chopped. ½ tablespoon finely chopped red pepper or pimiento, 3 tablespoons butter or cooking oil, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon paprika, shake of cayenne, 4 tablespoons flour, 1 cup each milk and cream. Soak haddie in milk

Pte. W. A. Boate Dies Of Wounds

Serving with an infantry unit in Belgium, Pte. William Arthur Boate, 756 New Romaine street, is reported to have died of wounds received in action, according to word reaching his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Boate. The young soldier would have been 26 years of age Wednesday.

A former employee of the Westclox and Genelco, Pte. Boate enlisted with a tank regiment in April, 1943. After training in Brampton, Kingston and Camp Borden, he went overseas in November of the same year. He served with a tank outfit for a year in England, before transferring to the infantry. He went to Belgian war theatre about a month before he was wounded.

Pte. Boate was born in Emily township, and has lived here for about four years. He attended All Saints' Anglican church.

In a letter received by Mr. and Mrs. Boate not many days before his reported death, he told of meeting Capt. R. T. F. Brain, M.C., and many Peterborough boys in Europe.

Pte. Boate leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing parents, two younger brothers, Jackson, 15, and Clayton, 13; and three sisters, Margaret, Blanche, and Mrs. Dennis Acreman, all of Peterborough.

Camera Club Studies Contact Printing

The first meeting of 1945 was held by the Peterborough Camera Club, on Tuesday night at the Y.M.C.A.

Due to cold weather the attendance was small, as a demonstration by Bob Halliday was the order of the evening. The entire evening was devoted to contact printing which was narrated and performed by Mr. Halliday in the club's darkroom.

Mr. Halliday explained the various steps in printing to members, such as the kind of negatives one may get in taking pictures and what grade of paper to use to get the best results, which proved interesting to the members who had never did contact printing before.

The next meeting of Camera Club will be on Jan. 16 at 8 o'clock at the Y.M.C.A.

also farm wishes and views of affairs.

Another report conveyed the willingness of Packers to divert for agricultural purposes the fund of $90,000 which has been accumulated by the levy of $1 a head penalty on cattle with horns.

Want Secretary

One of the deferred local projects is the appointment of a county educational secretary, a wish that has been mooted for several years but without an actual advance. It has been felt that conditions in this county tend to encourage the hope of this appointment.

Seven directors of the Federation appointed previously to Wednesday night's meeting are:—Milton Clark, Elmer Milburn, Allan B. Mann, Alex Huston, Willard Waterman and Mrs. Clarence Mann. Each commodity group in the county is also authorized to name a representative director.

Dismiss Charge

could not be held responsible in regard to his son's actions.

W. F. Huycke, K.C., who prosecuted the case submitted that from the long delay in answering the police at the door that night and from other circumstances the court could draw the inference that William Dunlop knew that his son had been absent without leave.

In his judgment Magistrate Langley said that knowledge on the part of the accused was essential to a successful prosecution of the case and that the crown had produced no direct evidence that Dunlop knew that the son was A.W.O.L. His Worship also declared that on the circumstances mentioned by Mr. Huycke no such inference could be drawn. The prosecution, he said, had failed to show knowledge on the accused's part and in his opinion had also failed to show that Dunlop had concealed his son or assisted him to conceal himself and therefore the charge would have to be dismissed.

Police Dog Bites 2 Small Children

Two East City children were bitten by a large police dog Wednesday afternoon and several other youngsters were attacked by the same animal, a police report states.

Joye Brown, 5½ years old, 9 Charles street, was bitten on the upper part of the left arm and James Chalmers, also 5½ years old was also bitten on the left arm. The children were on their way home from school.

Constable Ernest Beatty, who investigated the affair, was informed that several other youngsters had had a narrow escape from injury as a result of being attacked by the dog. One eye-witness said that the animal was frothing at the mouth.

The officer ordered the owner of the dog to tie it up and Dr. Kelly, Medical Officer of Health, was notified.

Alleged Beggar To Be Examined

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., was to have given judgment this morning in a joint charge against Spiros Zakos, William Ward and Donald Conway of having operated a common gaming house at Plaza Billiards, Charlotte street.

However today His Worship stated that he had been unable to find the time to study the cases quoted and the evidence in the case and accordingly he had decided to postpone his judgment for another week.

John Jasper, arrested in East City Wednesday by Constable Allan Edmison on a charge of begging was remanded for a week this morning. Magistrate Langley suggested that the man should be examined by the Mental Clinic doctor who is visiting the city today.

Jasper admitted that he had been an inmate of mental hospitals on both sides of the border.

Cold Weather Brings Increase In Fires

Two minor blazes received the attention of the fire department this morning, while three other small fires were attended to Wednesday afternoon and evening.

Backfire from a carburetor caused some trouble in a Ford truck owned by W. J. Nelson after eight o'clock this morning, while it was parked near 71 Ware street. Later, at 9.24, firemen were called to treat a plugged chimney at 342-344 Water street, the Canadian Tire Corporation.

When alcohol boiled over on the motor of an auto owned by F. Robinson, while it was parked near 148 Rubidge street at 7.26 o'clock Wednesday evening, firemen were called to extinguish a minor blaze. At 5.15 o'clock in the afternoon, a fire in the chimney and pipes brought firemen to the residence of H. Frederick, 577 Bolivar street. Earlier, at 12.29 in the afternoon, a chimney fire was put out at the residence of Cpl. Samuel Clarke, 249 Simcoe street. Cpl. Clarke had just arrived home from overseas the day before.

Lakefield Deliveries Of Coal Delayed

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 11—(ENS). — Lakefield residents who ordered coal last Monday are receiving it to-day, and coal ordered to-day will probably be delivered next Monday, it has been reported.

Large numbers of unfilled orders on the coal dealer's books are reported to be the chief reasons for the difficulty in delivering the fuel immediately. This problem has been enhanced in other centres by transportation difficulties as a result of weather conditions.

Job Of Management To Educate Workers In Accident Prevention

That plant management must accept a special responsibility for the prevention of accidents was a salient point in an address by R. B. Morley, General Manager of the Industrial Accidents Prevention Association, before representatives of Peterborough industries in the Genelco cafeteria Wednesday evening.

Sixty-one managers, assistant managers, and superintendents, representing 26 industries attended the meeting.

Mr. Morley said that effective accident prevention work offers an opportunity to industry, and opportunity means responsibility. If plant management would instruct supervisors and foremen to set aside 15 minutes each day, for accident prevention work, there would be fewer accidents in plants.

He pointed out that accident prevention is a problem for management, if for no better reason than the effect accidents have on operating costs.

"There were 123,820 accidents reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board in 1944. That means over 10,000 each month on the average. There were 367 fatalities; one fatality each day for the 366 days of 1944, and one over. The awards last year averaged more than $1,000,000 a month. Accidents in Ontario are causing industry too much money, he said, and plant management must recognize that fact and do something about it inside their own plants and not only at meetings." Again Mr. Morley emphasized the only relief which industries have from rising compensation costs is effective accident prevention.

Act Promptly

He said that possibly it is true that "tragedy first" is the motto of some industrialists, that it takes a serious accident to shock some plant managers into action in the matter of safety guards, safety rules, or safety instructions.

"It is well-known that unguarded punch-presses, unguarded saws, unguarded belting and other failures to provide guards have resulted in serious injuries and fatalities. There is a responsibility for the provision of guards and that is a managerial responsibility; keeping guards in place and in proper condition is a supervisory responsibility; and use of the guards is a workers' responsibility. The responsibility is divided, but not in any way permitting any one group to shirk it or to transfer it to another group", he said.

"What causes accidental injuries? mainly unsafe conditions and unsafe acts. Unsafe acts may be broken into two again, that is, someone was doing something he did not know was wrong, or doing something which he knew was wrong. Do you know the hazards of your plant? They are not here! We can talk about them but you must do something about them in your own plant", Mr. Morley told the industrial representatives. "Hazards can be spotted. If necessary, you can develop a small card for each machine or each type of machine, and record the accidents on those machines."

Safety Educati

Mr. Morley stated that he agrees safety education is needed now if that safety education produces the result looked for. He added there are certain prime requisites on the matter of accident prevention. The first great necessity, he said, is executive interest, followed by (2) the protection of known hazards and use of safeguards; (3) effective supervision of all ranks; (4) training in safe methods of work; (5) good housekeeping; and (6) prompt first aid with effective follow-up of all injuries.

"You can set up a safety committee and have it go all through the motions, or you can get up a safety committee and have it do a job of work," he declared.

"You can have foremen interview and instruct workers and have two results, dependent on subsequent action: you can get a good product and a good accident experience if there is adequate follow-through, or you can get the original effort blown out the window by bad examples and lax supervision."

Mr. Morley said that he has appreciated the time and effort which many of the industrialists in the Central Ontario Division have given to Divisional work, but added that he has wondered lately whether some of the interest has been lost or whether "your vigorous and hard-working chairman has been willing to do things which the committee ought to have done." The great strength of the I.A.P.A., he said, lies in the voluntary committee work, and no committee man should shirk his responsibility no matter how much work the chairman, or secretary, or any other individual is willing to take on.

He said, "There is a royal road to safety. You cannot get it through divisional meetings alone, or through posting bulletins and distributing safety rule books alone. You cannot get it through plant meetings alone, nor only through self inspections ,and inspections by the staff of the I.A.P.A. alone. But all of these things together, and co-ordinated by plant management as one phase of production will produce a good plant record."

"If the general rules and standards of the I.A.P.A. were carried out in full detail by industries throughout Ontario, there would be fewer accidents, there would be less suffering, the costs of compensations would be lower....and production would be higher," he said.

The speaker was introduced by H. A. Cranfield, chairman of the Central Ontario Division, and was thanked by F. J. Overend, chairman of the Woodworkers' Safety Association. Thomas Taylor, the chairman of the meeting, passed on the vote of thanks. Mr. Taylor is also vice-chairman of the Central Ontario Division.

Group Set-up.

Mr. Cranfield outlined to the industrial representatives present of how three years ago the executive of the Central Ontario Division realized that something must be done in an endeavor to reduce the number of accidents. It was finally decided to organize group meetings.

"At the present time we have six groups operating, and the Textile Group still to be organized," he said. "We have woodworkers, metal machine workers, punch press operators, transportation group, food group, and electrical maintenance group. The groups are all made up of practical men who can discuss their problems with complete understanding."

J. H. Vernor stressed the importance of management's interest in safety work in industrial plants, and illustrated a spirit of co-operation in accident prevention work among plants by telling of how a group of C.G.E. employees' constructive criticism led to a superior guard being attached to a particular press at the Westclox. Mr. Vernor is a past-president of the I.A.P.A.

This was the first meeting of its kind to be held in Peterborough. Among those sitting at the head table were Mr. Cranfield, Mr. Taylor, Mr Morley, Fred Overend, L. Ingram, chairman of the Millers and Feed Association; Herb. Cranford, chairman of the Metal Trades Safety Association, Ian McRae, past chairman of the Central Ontario Division, and Fred Brooks, secretary of the Central Ontario Division.

15 M.P.'s Die In Battle Since War Began

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 11 — (CP). — A television theatre under the Thames where 1,000 persons at a time could see and hear parliamentary debates is one of the suggestions put before the joint committee of the Lords and Commons which is considering the rebuilding of the Houses of Parliament.

The idea was advanced by Cmdr. Stephen King-Hall, Independent member of the Commons for Ormskirk, the committee said in an interim report. He also advocated building a 200-room office block "which might cost £1,000,000" for use of M.P.'s — over the Westminster underground station and connected with the House by express escalators.

The committee hearings brought out plenty of criticism of the existing parliament buildings, including comment from witnesses that messengers' rooms were "like kennels." The personal messengers of the lord chancellor, said Sir Henry Badeley, clerk of the parliaments, live in "a bit of a passage."

He agreed, too, with Lord Schuster that the rooms formerly occupied by the law lords, smashed in the 1941 blitz, were "not fit to be inhabited by anyone."

Sir Herbert Williams, unionist member for Croydon South, testified that since becoming a fire-watcher he had found the parliament buildings "a most extraordinary rabbit warren," deplorably run because "there is no one to run it." Too many people were sleeping there and too much space is used to store old documents and parchments.

Fifteen members of parliament have been killed in the fighting services since the war began. The oldest of them was Sir Arnold Wilson, 55-year-old Conservative for Hitchin,, Hertfordshire. He spoke in the House one day in 1940, hurried away to join his plane as an air-gunner and never returned.

The youngest was Capt. George Grey, 25, Liberal M.P. for Berwick-on-Tweed who was killed in action in Normandy.

Lt.-Col. E. O. Kellett, Conservative for Aston division in Birmingham, won the D.S.O. in the Middle East three months before he was killed.

An effort is to be made to unite the Labor parties in north and south Wales into one Welsh Labor movement. The party executives of the two regions have agreed on federation in principle and the trade unions are giving it their support.

Maj. T. H. Trevor, six feet six inches tall and a commando officer, has been selected as prospective Conservative candidate for Melton Mowbray in the next general election. He is 33.

Lord Meston, a Liberal peer, has said it seems likely there will be 600 Liberal candidates at the election. The Liberals now hold 19 of the 615 seats in the House.

Sir William Jenkins, Labor member for Neath, Glamorganshire, since 1922, has died at the age of 73. He began work as a miner when he was 12, and before he was 20 was secretary of the colliery. He was knighted in 1931 after taking part in several international miners' conferences.

George E. Christ, the Daily Telegraph's press gallery correspondent, has left his newspaper job to become chief publicity officer for the Conservative party.

HANDLE LIKE DYNAMITE

SOME TRUMP suits must be employed with extreme delicacy, making each card serve a very specific purpose and using the sort of care that would be shown in handling a package of dynamite. The least little slip along the way may cause an explosion that can blast your contract higher than a kite. Assigning the various tasks to the different trumps must be done as early as possible, or some one or more of them may be squandered.

That was considerable bidding against a preponderance of high cards, but South got away with it, and then some. He made an extra trick.

West's club K lead was ruffed in dummy, and the diamond 3 led to the A, followed by a second diamond, which the K won. The club Q was ruffed in dummy and a third diamond ruffed in the South, setting up two diamonds in dummy. A spade was given up to the A, and the third club lead ruffed by the dummy's last trump.

To reach his own hand now, South had to waste one of the dummy's established diamonds by ruffing it, and the last two trumps in his holding were used for discards of the dummy's heart 2 and 4. Then the heart finesse worked, the heart A was scored and the diamond 10 took the last trick. Only one diamond trick and one spade trick got lost, due mainly to use of each trump for its own most valuable function.

Correspondence consisted of letters from boys overseas conveying thanks for Christmas parcels sent them from the Society. Those writing were Gordon Smith, Roy Hayes, Douglas Smell, Jack Smith, Charles Palmer, and a card from Gordon H. Smith, also a card of thanks from Betty Phillips, and a letter from C. L. Foster thanking the group for contributions sent for work in the Arctic.

Mrs. Hamilton brought in money for sales for 1944, as did Mrs. Mason. Mrs. Foster sent in a shoe bag, for bazaar work and Mrs. C. Reynolds brought a quilt top and two parkas for Dorcas work. Mrs. Palmer paid in fees for 1945, and fees were also paid by Mrs. F. W. Reynolds, Mrs. J. Smith and Mrs. P. Ward. Mrs. Armstrong reported a box had been sent to Betty Phillips during her illness.

It was moved by Mrs. Hamilton and seconded by Mrs. Armstrong that a committee be appointed each year to see that cutlery be put away in good condition after the bazaar. Those appointed for this year were Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Jarvis. Miss Nesbitt seconded a motion by Mrs. Armstrong that a sum of money be placed with the convener of Dorcas work for their immediate use.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Hamilton and the committee for lunch will be Mrs. Price, Miss Nesbitt and Mrs. Perry.

Puppy Hitchhikes 13,000 Miles By Plane To Reach 2-Year-Old Mistress In Jersey

MEMPHIS, Tenn. Jan. 11—(AP). — A little brown puppy who has hatch-hiked 13,000 miles by air was the central figure in a mystery Wednesday.

The mystery is: Who's sending him from far-away Sydney, Australia, to Mrs. Rose Miller Schwarz in Jersey City, N.J., as a delayed Christmas gift for her two-year-old daughter, Marilyn Diana?

At Jersey City Mrs. Schwartz said she didn't know.

Pilot Frank W. Reed of Haverstraw, N.Y., picked up the pooch at the Long Beach, Calif. Air Base, and flew it here. He says:

"Marilyn Diana will get her puppy just as soon as I can push that P-38 to Newark."

A tag on the dog's neck says: "I am just a little pup who can't talk, but I'm trying to get to my mistress. Don't stop me now. A Red Cross worker in Newark will take me to my house."

Mrs. Schwartz says her husband is with the Air Transport Command at Dallas, Tex. Maybe, she figures, some of her husband's friends in the A.T.C. may have sent the pup.

The dog tag does not give the sender's name.

Americans, British Link Up Pinch Seven Miles Off Bulge

FIVE OF MISSIONARY FAMILY DIE IN CLIPPER CRASH — Of the 22 persons lost when the Pan-American Airways clipper plunged into the sea at Port of Spain, Trinidad, five were lost out of this family group. It is the family of Missionary Paul John Whitlock, of Brooklyn, New York. Mr. and Mrs. Whitlock and their children, Robert Allen, Stanley and Richard Thomas (in front row above) are among the missing. In rear are two surviving children, Kenneth and Paul, Jr., who were not on the ill-fated ship. So far only eight bodies have been recovered and only seven persons of the 29 aboard the big plane are listed as survivors.

Reds Launch Final Drive In Budapest

Capture Of Airfield Cuts Off Garrison Supplies

By DUNCAN HOOPER
Reuters Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Jan. 12.—(CP-Reuters).— The Red army in Budapest launched the final assault on the German garrison hemmed in the city centre at dawn to-day when tank-led Soviet storming parties went into action from points on the north, south and east of the German grouping.

German resistance in Pest was breaking up as more and more of the broad central avenues of the eastern section of the city were opening up before the Red army.

A new Soviet midget bomber that can land in a garden if necessary was being used for night bombing of German-held buildings with hand grenades.

(Berlin said to-day that German forces had again taken up new positions in the city centre.)

The German defences were going down so fast that any time now the punch-drunk garrison would be split into a series of isolated pockets held in its own ring.

The Germans' last hope of replenishing their supplies of ammunition, which were short even 10 days ago, was smashed when the Red army captured an emergency airfield on the race course.

Bales Captured.

Nightly attempts to supply the garrison from the air helped little since most of the parachutes' bales dropped by Junkers 52's fell into Russian-held zones.

After dark the sky over the capital looked like a gigantic non-stop fireworks display with thousands of soaring rockets and splashed of fire from bursting ack-ack shells overhung by clusters of flares.

Savage German attacks on the Soviet arc west of the Danube to relieve the desperately struggling garrison failed again. Russian Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin was reported to have strengthened his position and there appeared little likelihood of any German break-through.

In 10 days of fighting to relieve the Hungarian capital the Germans have sacrificed 16,000 men killed, and approximately 650 tanks, on the basis of Russian accounts.

Carrier Planes Intercept Big Jap Convoy

PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 12 (AP)— A great naval-air battle likely is raging today off French Indo-China between Admiral Halsey's U.S. 3rd Fleet and Japanese warships escorting reinforcements seeking to smash Gen. MacArthur's invasion army on Luzon in the Philippines.

Admiral Nimitz called in war correspondents on short notice last night to state:

"Carrier aircraft of the Pacific Fleet are now attacking the enemy off the coast of French Indo-China between Saigon and Camranh Bay."

All the circumstances of location and responsibility of Halsey's powerful fleet—he has been handed the job of keeping the Japanese away from MacArthur's men — suggest that an enemy convoy, escorted by warships, was intercepted en route to Luzon, 1,000 miles from Saigon, although Nimitz did not enlarge on his statement.

Camranh Bay is the closest Asiatic Japanese fleet base from which the enemy could attempt reinforcement of Luzon. It has superb natural harbors and without a doubt has been developed and protected as one of Japan's key naval bases. It is 200 miles northeast of Saigon.

Pacific Fleet carrier forces, engaged a week ago in attacking Formosa and reconnoitering 500 miles off the China coast, dashed across Japan's great sea communications to her conquered empire to strike the blow.

The carrier fleet raided Formosa Monday in the last of a series of heavy attacks to neutralize that big enemy supply funnel for the Philippines. From there, it must have steamed west straight into the China Sea.

Last October Japan's navy lost heavily in an attempt to crush MacArthur's entering wedge in the Philippines at Leyte.

Major Battle Shapes Up Across Luzon

American Troops Gain Steadily Resistance Grows

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ADVANCED COMMAND, Jan. 12—(AP)—Rapidly advancing U.S. 6th Army invaders at Lingayen Gulf have seized more than 10 miles of the Safabian-Manila railroad, overrun 50 miles of road networks commanding the north ends of four main Luzon highways to Manila and turned what could have been the flank of a good Japanese defence line behind the Agno River.

These are developments for the first 48 hours since Tuesday's invasion. Much more remains to be disclosed.

Today's communique, covering action up to Thursday morning, reported advances in strength during the previous 24 hours of seven to nine miles—generally in the direction of Manila a little more than 100 miles south.

Those advances, which added five towns to the more than two score communities captured, were limited more by caution and supply lines than by the Japanese.

Width of the beachhead along the gulf, originally 15 miles, now is 25, with the first real combat contact with the enemy reported on the left flank nine miles southeast of San Fabian.

From Lingayen to Manila, American planes ranged over the central Luzon plains where great tank battles soon may be fought. They cratered airfields in and around Manila, blew up bridges over which enemy reinforcements are are trying to move, wrecked trains and scattered columns of artillery and supply.

"The enemy still is suffering from the effects of surprise caused by our landing in this sector (Lingayen) in his rear," headquarters said today, "and has as yet been unable to displace the mass of his forces forward from the south in sufficient strength to offer serious resistance."

Beyond San Fabian

On the extreme left, the invaders have penetrated nine miles from the coast to seize the road junction of Manoag, southeast of fallen San Fabian. They turned up a road forking northeast toward Pozorrubio and there ran into Japanese forces. That road leads north to Baguio, summer capital of the Philippines and possible seat of Japanese leaders.

To the west of this action, troops moving south on a highway from Dagupan toward Manila captured the road junction of Calasiao and pushed beyond Bulog—a five-mile gain.

Further west along the beachhead, forces moving south of captured Lingayen have pushed down Highway 13 to a point past Umanday, seven miles inland, behind the Agno River which curves up to Lingayen Gulf and empties into it west of Lingayen town.

Other 6th Army troops secured the mouth of the river by occupying Labrador on its west bank. Labrador

28 Planes Safe After Storm; Seek 2 Fliers

TORONTO, Jan. 12 — (CP): — R.C.A.F. officials reported to-day that all 28 aircraft from No. 1 Air Observers School at nearby Malton which were caught aloft last night in a sudden snowstorm, have been located and that only two crew members are still missing.

Officials said the last missing plane was located in the Lakewood area and that two of its four-man crew had been reported safe. They were the pilot and another unidentified member.

Officials said no fear was entertained concerning the fate of the two missing airmen and that they hoped to locate them within a short time.

A total of 19 crew members are known to have bailed out to safety while four of the aircraft crash-landed.

The planes were out on routine night navigation exercises. Three found their way down through a hole in the storm to Trenton Airport and 18 others made their home base at Malton where they were guided to a landing by radio signals.

The planes roared away from the Malton Airport at intervals around 8 p.m. and an R.C.A.F. official said to-day the weather was comparatively clear with slight snowflurries when they left.

Fifty-two planes were scheduled to make flights during the night, but when the storm struck without warning around 11 p.m. The others did not leave as scheduled. Radio signals were sent to the 28 in the air to head for safety as soon as possible, but many were a considerable distance away.

One landed, wheels up, at the now unused Oshawa Airport. Two came down in the Uxbridge area, one near Gravenhurst, one near Aurora, and another at Lanark in the Ottawa district. Officials said that crews of all these six had reported but they were not sure just which made forced landings and which crashed after the crews took to their parachutes.

Many Nazis May Have Been Trapped

German Attack In The South Grows In Power

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Jan. 12 — (AP). — Americans driving up from the south and Britons closing in from the north were believed today to have pinched off at least the westernmost seven miles of the Belgian bulge.

As the Germans withdrew in near zero weather from the west, Supreme Headquarters announced that firm contact had been established between British forces and the American 3rd Army near St. Hubert. That anchor town was entered.

The 3rd Army penetrated twice into the German south flank between Bastogne and Vianden, in Luxembourg.

The two forces presumably met somewhere south of Champion, 13 miles west of the key road centre of Houffalize, and may have trapped at least enough German rearguards to raise the bag of prisoners since Field Marshal Von Rundstedt struck to above 35,000.

Exclusive of today's action, the U.S. 1st Army had bagged 16,348 since Dec. 16; the 3rd 11,360; and the American 7th in Alsace Lorraine 4,901.

Against the 7th and the French 1st Armies in the south, however, the German 1st and 9th Armies were hitting with increased armor, and threatening Strasbourg from positions nine miles north and 10 south.

Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo chief and German home army commander, perhaps was directing the attack on both sides of the Alsatian capital. French troops, apparently surrounded because they were supplied by air, lost Oberheim, 15 miles south of Strasbourg.

Britain To Use Dardanelles

LONDON, Jan. 12 (CP) — Authitative British quarters said today that Turkey had granted permission to the Allies to ship supplies to Russia via the Dardanelles.

No details were given, but the informant said they were under the impression negotiations had been handled mainly through military channels.

Turkey recently broke diplomatic relations with Japan, sending the last official Axis listening post out of the country and depriving the enemy of bases for Japanese agents who might report on the movement of Allied supplies through the Straits between the Mediterranean and Black Sea.

The Straits are the easiest and most direct route of supply between the Western Allies and Russia.

Until now the chief routes have been the Northern Sea Arctic Sea route to Murmansk, where there are difficult handling problems in winter, and the Persian Gulf route, where a land overland truck and railway route was set up by the United States Persian Gulf command.

An announcement last Sunday said Maj.-Gen. Donald H. Connolly, who set up the Persian Command in 1942, was being recalled and that his Chief of Staff, Brig.-Gen. Donald P. Booth, was taking over.

Japs Moving Out of Burma

By PRESTON GROVER—Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 12—(AP).—The British 14th Army's advance into Burma was moving so rapidly today it provided fullest evidence that the Japanese have decided they cannot hold it much longer. Already 14th Army troops are less than 50 miles north of Mandalay and other forces striking south after crossing the Chindwin River are almost due west of Mandalay in excellent position to outflank any resistance on the west of the Irrawaddy River in that area.

Other forces which seized Akyab recently are moving inland as well as southward.

Southeast Asia command officials today for the first time permitted correspondents to write on their own responsibility that the withdrawal of the Japanese from all Burma within a reasonable period was under way. However, a peaceful withdrawal is hardly expected.

Changed British estimates of the situation were made evident simultaneously with publication here of the successful American landings on Luzon.

With the landings on Akyab, the British forces are in good position to clean the Japanese from territory between the coastal range and the coast of Burma fronting on the Bay of Bengal.

The supply problem would hamper a Japanese defence of the

Russians Start New Drive From Vistula Bridgehead

LONDON, Jan. 12—(CP).—The German radio said today that the Russians had opened an offensive on a broad front in Southern Poland, striking from the Vistula bridgehead west of Baranow toward Krakow. The Russians established the Baranow bridgehead, 125 airline miles south of ruined Warsaw, during the summer. In drives across the rolling Polish plain, they struck within 35 miles of Krakow, ancient capital of the Polish kings and a city of 254,300.

"The first attacking waves were completely wiped out by fire from our guns, mortars and infantry weapons," the Germans asserted.

"Succeeding columns which reached the main battle lines were forced back in extremely violent fighting. Bitter fighting is going on for some penetration areas.

"Russian losses in the first hours of the battle were extremely heavy."

When the Russian offensive ground to a stop beyond Baranow during the summer, the Russians said they were within 80 miles or so of German Silesia, second only to the Ruhr as a German arsenal. Silesia is rich in coal and iron and studded with war plants.

At that time, the Russians also said they were within 18 miles of Kielce (58,200) and 17 of the important Polish city of Tarnow.

The Russians have another Vistula bridgehead closer to Warsaw at Warka.

The south Polish plain over which the Germans say the Russians struck is an historic invasion route and one of the easier approaches to Berlin. The plains lie north of the rugged Carpathian Mountains, south of which other Russian forces are striking through western Hungary within 44 miles of Austria, 84 of Vienna and 51 of the Slovak capital of Bratislava.

Truce Reached In Greek War

By Stephen Barber
Associated Press Staff Writer

ATHENS, Jan. 12.— (AP).— A truce has been reached in the Greek civil war to enable Left Wing E.L.A.S. representatives and the Greek Government to discuss their fundamental differences, British Headquarters announced to-day.

"At the request of E.L.A.S. representatives hostilities will cease at 1 a.m. on Jan. 15 (7 p.m. E.D.T., Jan. 14)," said an official statement.

The agreement was signed at 10.30 p.m. Thursday by Lt.-Gen. M. Scobie, British commander in Greece, and four E.L.A.S. delegates after two days of conferences.

By terms of the truce all E.L.A.S. forces will withdraw from designated areas, the E.L.A.S. will surrender all military prisoners they hold in exchange for an equal number to be released by British authorities, and all British civilians now detained will be turned loose.

The prisoner exchange provisions do not apply, however, to any Greek civilians held by the E.A.M. (National Liberation Front), civil police, the official announcement said.

Archbishop Damaskinos, newly-named regent of Greece, said he was "profoundly shocked to learn of the E.L.A.S. refusal to release innocent men and women taken as hostages in many thousands."

"Nevertheless," he said, "if the E.L.A.S. central committee feels that it can assist in re-establishment of law and order . . . I am ready to facilitate a meeting between them and representatives of the Greek government.

State Senator Is Slain In Car

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 12—(AP)—Police today were following several "leads" toward solving the slaying of Republican State Senator Warren G. Hooper, a principal witness in the Carr grand jury investigation of corruption in Michigan government.

While state law enforcement agencies were co-ordinating their investigation into the killing of the 40-year-old legislator, found shot to death Thursday evening in his burning automobile four miles north of Springport, Mich., Special Prosecutor Kim Sigler and his staff of grand jury investigators were working on the case.

Hooper, who Sigler said had given a "complete confession and had been granted immunity from prosecution to testify concerning all the facts," was shot twice in the left side of the head and face, and his body was charred from his knees to his chest.

State police, who said they still had not found the gun that killed Hooper, were concentrating on at least two clues.

One was a bullet, removed from Hooper's head, which had been discharged from a .38-calibre pistol. The other was a set of footprints leading from the car through the snow to the pavement. Capt. William Hanson of the state police said the prints were small and might have been made by a woman.

King Peter Precipitates Crisis

LONDON, Jan. 12 (CP).—Premier Ivan Subasic of the Yugoslav government in London called his cabinet into urgent session today to consider the situation created by young King Peter's expressed opposition to a regency plan drawn up by Subasic and Marshal Tito.

Before the meeting Mr. Ivan Cavrilovitch, Subasic's Foreign Minister, asserted that Peter's move was "unconstitutional," but declared the Cabinet undoubtedly would take a middle course in an effort to keep the door open for further negotiations with Tito.

"The urgent task of the government," said Gavrilovitch, "is to take some action to get out of the trouble in which His Majesty has placed the Subasic regime by his unconstitutional move."

The Foreign Minister asserted that objections which the King raised to the regency plan "actually don't mean anything and could have been worked out had he presented them to Premier Subasic for transmission to Marshal Tito.

Earlier some quarters expressed belief that Subasic might resign as a result of the King's stand.

British editorial writers, meanwhile, expressed the view that Peter had acted unwisely and suggested that the Yugoslav stalemate would be dealt with jointly by Britain, the United States and Soviet Russia.

2 Million Sheep Perish

Drought In Australia Almost Disastrous

By EDWARD WATERMAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

CANBERRA, Australia, Jan. 12—(AP)—More than 2,000,000 wool-producing sheep have perished due to Australia's worst drought since being settled by whites and the country's most productive acres have been turned into huge dust bowls.

About 750,000 square miles—one third of the continent—particularly the southeastern portion is affected.

Heavy rains are now falling but month-long continuous rainfall will be necessary to make the recovery substantial.

Instead of exporting barley, oats and maize, Australian officials say the country will be importing these crops this year.

Meat production, it is estimated, will fall off 10 per cent; the wheat farmers' income will be reduced by at least $50,000,000, and wool producers will lose an estimated $45,000,000.

Cereal growers are already collecting $10,000,000 governmental drought relief funds.

Because hay crops have failed, grain for stock is being used more heavily at a rate of more than 1,000,000 bushels weekly, further reducing supplies intended for dairy stock, fowl and hogs.

Japan Now Feels Weight of Total War

Limits Of Civilian Japanese Resistance An Unknown Quantity

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

While the invaders made a most auspicious beginning of the Luzon operation — and the fair fortune continues so far as appears from news dispatches which are lagging because of security censorship—we should be prepared for some of the most bitter fighting of the whole Pacific war.

As War Secretary Stimson remarks, although the landings were made with surprising ease, this is only the beginning. We shall see more of those amazing fanatical sacrifices by the Japanese soldiery.

Apropos of this I was talking a couple of days ago with a British general just back from Burma, and he said that in the final great battle which grew out of the Japanese invasion of Indian territory near the Burmese frontier last year, the British killed 50,000 Japanese who made a suicidal stand after being trapped. And that figure wasn't guesswork, because the bodies were counted.

Tough Question

This question of Nipponese resistance cropped up last night when your correspondent was asked: "Will the Japs have to be beaten militarily before they are out?"

That's a tough one because we don't know the limits of Japanese resistance, especially of the civilian population, to the terrors and privations of total war. Indeed, the Japanese government itself can't know how much the people can take, for only now is Nippon beginning to get an idea of total war through Allied bombings of the home land.

The vice of war will tighten rapidly on them now. Our possession of bases in the Philippines will multiply the difficulties of the Mikado's people a hundred-fold, for the bombings will intensify and the Allies will clamp a tight aerial and naval blockade across Japan's lifelines. Nippon will know terrors and privations which she has been dishing out to others but hasn't experienced herself in modern times.

However, I think Japanese people are likely to follow their Emperor —who is literally a god to them—so long as he calls them. That means so long as the government instructs him to stand firm, for despite his exalted place he is not a free agent.

Competition To Be Keen

Canada May Lose British Market

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 12—(CP)—Canada cannot expect to export much butter to Britain in competition with the other great dairying countries of the world after the war Dr. C. C. Taylor, agricultural attache at the U.S. embassy in Ottawa said yesterday. Addressing the closing session of the 78th annual convention of the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario, Dr. Taylor said Canada also could expect keen competition for the British cheese market.

"It may not take Denmark and the Netherlands very long to regain their pre-war volume of exports to Britain," he said. "The continent of Europe has not reduced cattle numbers, particularly milk cows, during the war years to anything like the same extent that it has liquidated hogs and poultry."

He said Canada's chief competition for the British cheese market would come from New Zealand and the Netherlands, while Denmark, New Zealand, Australia and the Netherlands would be the country's chief competitors in the butter field.

R. E. Wilson of Aylmer, Ont., was elected president of the association at the closing session today. He succeeds F. D. Harrison of Burgessville.

Calls Upon Hungary To Pay Reparations

MOSCOW, Jan. 12—(AP).—Pravda declared to-day that Hungary must expect to pay reparations to Russia and return annexed territories to Romania and Czechoslovakia.

A Hungarian delegation is here awaiting armistice terms.

The Communist party newspaper said Soviet policy assured the Magyars of "conditions for the restoration of national, political and economic independence."

"Hungary had less claim for understanding aid from the United Nations than any other country because she was the last and most stubborn satellite of Germany," Pravda said. "Nevertheless the Soviet government has given Hungary a chance to redeem herself."

The editorial added that the Hungarian people "will receive the opportunity to carry out elections of a provisional national assembly on a democratic basis to express their will and decide their fate."

Toronto Flier Weds Belgian

TORONTO, Jan. 12.—The time-worn cliche, "love will find a way," held its own again yesterday in the marriage in Brussels of LAC. Gordon Charles Humphrey of Toronto and Mlle. Gilberte Henry of Brussels.

The wedding was held despite the threatened postponement of the ceremony under the plan of Allied authorities to ban weddings between Allied troops and Belgian girls, and the reluctance of the airman's superior officer to give his approval to the marriage because of lack of a "waiting" period. "I am certainly glad to hear that it has been held at last," LAC. Humphrey's mother, Mrs. Joseph Humphrey, of 388 Carlton St., said last night.

The ceremony was conducted by the registrar of suburban Schaerbeek, Gaston Williot.

In the news cable reporting the marriage Mr. Williot is quoted as stating that no Allied authority forbade the ceremony, although Humphrey's superior officer "seemed reluctant to give approval," presumably because he thought there should be a waiting period.

The next Japanese defence line is expected to run from a point north of Lashio, southwestward along the railroad to Mandalay, then south along the river toward Rangoon.

Escape Cut Off.

Japanese escape by sea is cut off. For months their sea communications to Rangoon were made untenable by Allied bombers, even before American operations on Luzon and Mindoro made escape by sea unfeasible.

Escape must be by railroad and highway. The principal railroad is one connecting southern Burma with Bangkok in French Indo-China. It has been blasted by bombers repeatedly but remains usable.

One thing is likely. Rangoon probably will fall without a fight unless tre Japanese choose to put a suicide unit there. It lies on a peninsula from which there are no east-west connections with Siam and Indo-China, into which the Japanese must retreat.

The Japanese generally have been in an extremely difficult situation since their disastrous effort last spring and summer to invade India through Imphal.

They lost the best of their striking force then and it has not been replaced. It is estimated that fewer than 200,000 Japanese remain in Burma, which gives British formations a solid numerical superiority in ground forces alone.

Russian assault guns have penetrated the last quarter of the city—some 3,400 blocks of which have been cleared by Soviet shock troops. Most of north and east Pest have been completely mopped up. At several points Red storm units have driven half-way from the railroad station to the banks of the Danube.

Suicidal S.S. detachments were reported rigidly enforcing orders to shoot any German or Hungarian soldier attempting to surrender, but Hungarian units were quitting en masse, the Russians said.

Some 4,000 prisoners were taken in the last 24 hours.

Red Star front dispatches said prisoners reported German artillery was almost out of ammunition and machine-gunners and riflemen were running out of cartridges. They have been cut off even from air-borne supplies since early this week.

Meanwhile, Soviet forces under Marshal Rodion Malinovsky grappled for a stranglehold on the sector north of the Danube, opposite Komorom, communications hub 40 miles northwest of Budapest and within 50 miles of Bratislava. This is the springboard from which the next great Russian advance is expected after resistance in Budapest has been liquidated.

In Eastern Slovakia other Russian troops were reported virtually on the outskirts of Kassa (Kosice) and field reports said the Germans were forcing civilians in the zone to evacuate deeper into the mountains.

Election Battle In Grey Grows In Fervor

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Jan. 12 — (CP)—The constituency of Grey North, with Owen Sound as its hub, moves rapidly along the way to becoming the political battleground of the nation as the federal by-election campaign, which ends in voting on Feb. 5, grows in fervor.

All three candidates are in the riding. The Liberal nominee, Defence Minister McNaughton reached Meaford, Ont., yesterday to start his campaign while Air Vice-Marshal A. E. Godfrey, the C.C.F. candidate, spoke here last night, lashing out at the government conscription policy.

W. Garfield Case, Progressive Conservative candidate, addressed a meeting at Kilsyth and charged there was collusion between the Liberal and C.C.F. parties in that the latter had nominated a candidate at all.

All signs point to a sharp and bitter campaign with the eyes of the nation focussed on the outcome of a battle based largely on the government's handling of the army reinforcement problem.

Some political observers feel Gen. McNaughton's defeat or even a prospect of losing his bid for a Commons' seat might bring about a general federal election.

From Ottawa was reported a definite feeling in some quarters the government will want to know whether Gen. McNaughton is elected before starting a new session, another factor in making the Grey North fight one of the most important single-seat contests Canada has had in years.

A King Decoy

Parliament reassembles Jan. 31 and custom has been to prorogue the adjourned session and start a new session the following day.

Mr. Case said at Kilsyth the reason for nomination of a C.C.F. candidate was 'clear and well-defined . . . the C.C.F. nominee is only a King decoy." He referred to C.C.F. support of the government recently in the vote on an amended confidence motion and added: "The only conclusion is that nomination of Mr. Godfrey in this riding is another C.C.F. attempt to save the government and its candidate."

Turning to conscription he said Justice Minister St. Laurent had told his own electors that invoking of conscripton would be a betrayal of French Canadian ancestry in Canada. Mr. Case added: "Why should we betray the men overseas for the sake of some political promises made on the hustings of Mackenzie King and his French-Canadian supporters in the heat of an election campaign."

Air Marshal Godfrey, retired, said he could not see how any country could possibly be successful in its war effort "with an enlistment policy so confused as is the present government's policy." The C.C.F. program was one of total, planned mobilization of all resources, material, financial and human.

As to his own candidature in Grey North, he said: "The old parties had hoped to keep this contest as a little fight between themselves. They are not only annoyed, they are deeply worried."

J. J. Noseworthy, C.C.F. member for York South, termed this by-election "national in its issues."

Gen. McNaughton, in an interview at Meaford, said that while his job was the Defence Department and seeing that the army got all the reinforcements and equipment that it needs, he would spend as much time as he could in the riding.

Premier Drew Criticizes Chief Of CBC

TORONTO, Jan. 12 — (CP). — Charging that he had been discriminated against by the CBC, Premier George Drew of Ontario last night criticized Dr. Augustin Frion, general manager of the CBC for what he termed "idiotic" and "absurd" regulations invoked to bar him from using a provincial network for an address.

The Premier said for all practical purposes he was given "an outright refusal of permission to broadcast" a radio address dealing with the need of Dominion-Provincial conference and which was to have been broadcast over 27 stations. He said Dr. Frigon told him the speech could go out only over one station at the time arranged. The speech was to have been recorded and rebroadcast with "a time lag of at least three hours" between each broadcast.

"That would mean the same speech would be repeated at various parts of the province for some three weeks," he said.

Pointing out that he was to talk in favor of the conference at the earliest possible date he asked when a broadcast assumed a political nature "in the opinion of Dr. Frigon." The Premier admitted he pointed out some "events which had occurred" emphasizing need for the conference "if we are to avoid the greatest constitutional crisis we have ever faced."

It was not the first time the head of the CBC had made it clear he would "say what is political and what is not." The premier said he was refused time other than the regular CBC free political time after he had returned from overseas to tell the people of Ontario how well treated their "husbands, sons, fathers and friends" were in hospitals overseas.

The request was made for September, while the next free time period was scheduled for Nov. 22.

"It is difficult to use appropriate words to describe Dr. Frigon's callous suggestion that I should defer such an explanation for two months. I had told him (Frigon) that my remarks were to be nothing but a report on those (hospital) conditions."

U.S. Soldier To Be Hanged

By JOHN CHESTER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ATTLEBRIDGE, Eng., Jan. 12—(AP)—A 12-man army court martial today sentenced Private George E. Smith of Pittsburgh to be hanged for murdering Sir Eric Teichman, British diplomat.

Smith, standing in front of the court, swayed as the sentence was read but recovered his composure and left the courtroom handcuffed to one of his escorts. He smiled faintly as he went out.

The prosecution rested with the assertion it was fortunate that the one witness to the shooting of the former British Embassy attache in Chungking "was not killed by Smith on that occasion."

That witness was Pte. Leonard Wojtacha, Detroit, Mich., who accompanied Smith on an afternoon gunning trip Dec. 3 during which Sir Eric was shot on the grounds of his estate.

By request of defence counsel, Smith disrobed before the 12-man U.S. court martial and showed himself tattooed from neck to knees. Pictured by his counsel as a homicidal degenerate with a mental age of nine years, he declined to take the stand.

Sin Implies Disloyalty To God Week Of Prayer Audience Told

Rev. Samuel Johnston presided at the Week of Prayer service Thursday night in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe and Dr. James Semple assisted in the worship service.

Dr. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's Church gave the address. His subject was the forgiveness of sins. This passage from Matthew VI—12 in the Lord's Prayer he said, was both theological and ethical, it recognized man's relation to God, and his relation to his fellow man.

Forgiveness implies a new relationship to God. Sin breaks the harmony, forgiveness restores it. Matthew uses the Greek word which means debt, and debt implies something owed to another that has not been paid. It calls attention to the sins of omission and neglect, which are the most common of all. There are also the positive sins of the flesh, and the pernicious sins of the spirit which are more heinous than those of the flesh. All sin implies disloyalty to God, and unfaithfulness to Him.

When a man is forgiven he enters into a new relationship with God. It is a conscious experience. God does not leave the soul in doubt about its acceptance with Him. Paul teaches the witness of the spirit. This doctrine is sometimes called assurance. Bunyan's Pilgrim lost the burden when he stood by the cross, and went on his way with a lighter step, his soul was filled with joy and peace.

Forgiveness rests upon the free and unmerited mercy of God. Alexander Whyte says that every heresy and schism within the church has been caused by an attempt to earn rather than to receive pardon, the only condition of salvation is that a man turns from the path of sin, and looks to Christ with trustful eyes. The door of mercy is always open.

Those who injure others injure themselves. They do not realise how great that loss is to them. They are generally thoughtless, unimaginative people who cannot see very far, or discern how thoroughness will affect another's life. Christ spoke the literal truth when He prayed "Father Forgive Them For They Know Not What They Do."

Martin B. Chenhall presided at the organ and the choir sang a suitable anthem, the junior choir also took part.

The service this evening will be held in Trinity Church with Rev. Samuel Johnston as preacher.

German Drive

miles northeast of the city of 193,000 on the Rhine.

St. Hubert, southwest anchor of the contracting Belgian bulge in the Ardennes, finally was entered by the Allies. The Germans announced its evacuation two nights ago. Southeast of Bastogne, a troublesome German pocket was all but erased in a welter of enemy blood.

At least eight towns fell to Allied arms on the Western front.

The Germans, although they admitted they were giving up the western half of the Ardennes salient, still fought hard delaying actions against British and American troops west of the steep-banked Ourthe, which flows through fallen Laroche. Enemy resistance was offered to screen the removal of as much transport and equipment as possible.

Front dispatches had predicted Field Marshal Von Rundstedt would retire to a line running from Vielsalm on the north for 16 miles southwest through the road hub of Houffalize to near Bastogne — thus retaining only about one quarter the ground gained at the high water mark of the German counter-offensive launched Dec. 16.

The U.S. 3rd Army advanced two miles northwestward to enter St. Hubert, last important road centre in the salient between it and the U.S. 1st Army. The town is 14 miles west of Bastogne. Throughout the salient, the 3rd Army noted German withdwrawals eastward.

British 2nd Army troops pursuing the Germans from the western end of the emptying bulge reached the outskirts of Champion, 13 miles west of Houffalize, in a seven-mile thrust through snow drifts. They also linked up with 3rd Army troops in St. Hubert.

Ronchamps and Grune were taken. The 3rd took Vesqueville, three miles southeast of St. Hubert.

A Tank Battle

Along the north flank of the salient, violent fighting in which tanks were involved continued in the Vielsalm sector, nine miles west of St. Vith. U.S. 1st Army troops ran into the most resolute German resistance yet encountered in their counter-offensive.

First Army units battered into Langlir yesterday morning and the battle swayed back and forth with the Germans mounting two counter-attacks. The Americans attacked at 6.30 last night, fought deeper into the village and withstood a German suicidal assault in the last light of the winter dusk. The enemy dug in for the night.

Street fighting continued in Vielsalm.

With the Ardennes bubble pricked, the German 1st and 19th Armies were obviously trying to find a hole on the Alsace plain through which a "second best" assault might be launched.

The importance the Germans attached to this second attempt to keep the initiative through the bad flying months of winter was reflected in repeated reports that Himmler himself had come up to take over—all command from the professional, Gen. Hermann Balck.

On the Alsace-Lorraine front where until lately the Germans had little armor, 100 tanks were spotted in reserve by pilots in a single day, while dozens more were in actual combat north of the Haguenau Forest and along the Rhine-Rhone Canal as far as Krafft, 10 miles from Strasbourg.

The U.S. 7th Army gained one victory, however, capturing Behren, 4½ miles south of Saarbrucken at the extreme west of his 60-mile front. Its men fought hard in Hatten, 10 miles northeast of Haguenau, but were forced to yield ground in the Rhine bridgehead area north of Strasbourg, jutting within nine miles of the city. The French engaged in "hard fighting" 16 to 17 miles south of Strasbourg at Rossfeld and Herbsheim, where the Germans were striving to widen their salient.

from the Athens area, including Sporades, Euboea, and Cyclades islands to the northeast, east and southeast. By 1 a.m. Jan. 18 they must have retired west and north of a line running generally northward and east from a point on the Gulf of Corinth, some 85 miles northwest of Athens, to a point on the east coast some 130 miles to the north.

A shifting of E.L.A.S. forces both into and out of the Peloponnesus is provided. Those normally resident there must return. If now bearing arms elsewhere those normally resident elsewhere must leave. British authorities will supervise the transfers. E.L.A.S. evacuation of Zante Island off the west coast of the Peloponnesus also is required.

The truce stipulates further that the E.L.A.S. troops are to retire from the Salonika area by 1 a.m. Jan. 17.

Canadian Units Carry Fight Along Adriatic

ROME, Jan. 12—(AP).—Canadian units of the British 8th Army, facing desperately resisting German units along the Reno River, have increased the tempo of battle in that sector at the southern end of the narrow spit of land separating the Comacchio lagoon from the Adriatic Sea, it was announced today.

Allied 5th Army raiding parties stabbed deep into enemy territory as patrol activity was stepped up with the advent of better weather along the entire Italian front.

Allied headquarters said "very strong" forces of fighters and fighter-bombers ranged over Northern Italy, continuing their assault on enemy communications and stores, as well as frontline installations.

Despite bad weather yesterday, headquarters said a force of British and American light naval craft engaged an enemy convoy southeast of Genoa, scoring torpedo hits on two lighters and probable hits on a third.

Recent 8th Army action has focussed on the Reno River front to the south of a spit of land lying to the east of the Comacchio lagoon on the Adriatic coastal sector.

Here German troops transferred from Norway have been reported in action under orders from Hitler to maintain "at all costs" the Reno line—to which the enemy had withdrawn before savage and sustained attacks by the 1st Canadian Corps.

Today organization members also were found to have been hurled into the German line as Field Marshal Kesselring's manpower problem apparently worsened.

11-Year-Old Crime Brings Confession

Detective Edward Barker said Hess walked into police headquarters and admitted slaying Michael Halmak with a shoe and fleeing to other parts of the country where he has been working at various jobs ever since.

Hess was arrested on a homicide charge.

Mrs. Stewart Clysdale presided, and the treasurer reported a balance of $155.85. It was decided to pay the expense of caring for the memorial plot and to ask the council for their 1944 donations.

The roll call was answered with a short poem and an interesting paper on 'Their Tree of Life,' telling of the value of the cocoanut tree and its fruit, was given by Mrs. Arthur Edwards. A paper on 'Farm Women's War Platform' was given by Mrs. George Weller, and an instrumental by Mrs. Snelgrove concluded the program.

Mrs. Hilliard Ray will be convener of the February meeting on agriculture and the roll call is to be answered with a recipe for a supper dish.

Dunbar Claims 21 Pledges Been Fulfilled

COBOURG, Jan. 12.— (ENS). — Twenty-one of Premier George Drew's election pledges have been carried out, the remaining one being the commission for lands and forests, which has been partially done and will be completed by the time the Legislature meets in February, the Hon. George Dunbar, Provincial Secretary and Minister of Game and Fisheries, told a Progressive Conservative banquet here Thursday night.

To bring the realization of this fact home to Cobourg residents, Mr. Dunbar gave them the welcome news that the fifty per cent. assumption of education costs would mean for Cobourg the sum of $36,404.82, less than the mill subsidy the town is already getting. Translated into the mill rate, Cobourg tax rate would be reduced by 11 mills, exclusive of the present mill subsidy.

"I look to you, Mayor Dodge, to see that it is passed on to the property owners of Cobourg as it was designed to relieve the real estate tax," declared Mr. Dunbar.

"I will certainly see that such is done," promised the Mayor in reply. The banquet was given by the Progressive Conservative candidate, Earl Drope and his wife, of Harwood, and was attended by men and women supporters from various parts of the riding. Mayor Roy Dodge of Cobourg, past president of the County Progressive Conservative Association was chairman. Fred Richardson of Cobourg, Earl Drope, Harwood, Kenneth Crews of Trenton, W. A. Goodfellow, M.L.A. for Northumberland and Gordon Fraser, M.P., of Peterborough, along with the Provincial Secretary, were speakers. The toast to the Ladies was proposed by A. R. Willmott, of Cobourg, and responded to by Mrs. Ruby Meggs of Gore's Landing.

Soloists during the evening were Albert Hircock of Cobourg and Shirley Drope of Harwood. Flying Officer "Scotty" Murie, D.F.C., of Cobourg, was a guest at the banquet.

Expect Election

Gordon K. Fraser told the audience that he would not be surprised at all to see Premier King call an election as soon as parliament convened in order to ward off sure defeat of McNaughton in the North Grey By-election. Mr. Fraser said that he had travelled as far as Newfoundland and the Maritimes, had talked also to men coming back from overseas, and all said that they had lost their respect for McNaughton.

"I am quite sure that the people in North Grey will feel the same way about him. When Parliament was in session Mr. McNaughton would not answer a question until he had leaned over and spoken to Mr. King, nothing more than a Mortimer Snerd, Mr. Fraser declared".

The member for Peterborough also declared that there was no need for worry over what the C. C. F. would do in that by-election as it had fallen from grace, two of them going communist and many supporters turning away.

"As for Premier King, he is through. When we go back to Ottawa I would not at all be surprised to see him call an election to stop the North Grey by-election because he sees that he cannot possibly win in North Grey" stated Mr. Fraser.

Too Crowded

In his opening remarks the Hon. Mr. Dunbar said that he had made a survey of the Girls' Training School at Cobourg. He had found it to be over-crowded but the staff was very well qualified. Mr. Dunbar said that he took it up with the Federal Government and found them co-operative with the result that the residence nearby was procured to handle the overflow. On one building $26,000 was spent and on the other, $28,000 or a total of $54,000 making them two of the finest homes for girls' training schools in the Dominion. He said that he had recently inspected them and found them to be very satisfactory.

About 90 per cent of the inmates were there through no fault of their own. He said that he agreed with the United States theory that there should be a training school for some parents and he would like to see it in Canada as the adult delinquency was four times more prevalent than juvenile. He said that he liked the personal contact of teacher and pupil and if the teachers could see some of the homes in which juvenile delinquents lived, they might be in a position to advise the parents and stop juvenile delinquency right at the start.

Mr. Dunbar intimated that the two training schools in Cobourg would be retained after the war even after the Galt training school was returned to the provincial government. The provincial government last year had spent $75,600 in maintenance of the two training schools in Cobourg and he said that he would not want to see them removed to some other centre as he felt that they were very well located in Cobourg.

Keeping Promises

The speaker went on to relate that some people were inclined to scoff when Mr. Drew brought out his 22 point platform. All but the point in reference to a commission for lands and forests had been carried out and this would shortly be accomplished also, he said. Two weeks after Mr. Drew took office he cancelled a 13½ million acre contract which was tied up with a $20,000 deposit. There had been no intention to carry out the contract, he declared, as all that was wanted was to export pulpwood to the United States. There was still pulpwood being exported to the States but that was because of an agreement with Washington which would be binding for the duration of the war but the day war was was over the exports would stop.

Mr. Dunbar went on to point out that two mills were under construction, one to employ 3,000 at Espanola and one below Port Arthur.

At Port Arthur the site had been cleared and they awaited lifting of priorities to obtain materials to build. These would be the first two mills in Ontario to use Jack pine for which there was no prior sale except to the United States.

Mr. Dunbar then announced the amount of the saving to Cobourg of Mr. Drew's fifty per cent educational costs assumption. The speaker also sketched the remaining points in Mr. Drew's election platform. Speaking of the housing question, he said that the government had felt that the Housing Act of 1920 was broad enough. When Toronto expressed the feeling that the Act was not broad enough he had listened to their demands and had approved of their request promising to put into effect but only to apply to cities like Toronto. "I did not want to throw it wide open lest somebody take the ratepayers into the real estate business. We wrote off $500,000 in one case and $150,000 in another where municipalities had defaulted and couldn't pay the interest on their housing debt. I cannot see it being thrown wide open so that the province would be paying the debts incurred by some municipalities."

No Restrictions.

Mr. Dunbar discussed Bracken's policies as compared with those of the C.C.F. Agriculture, he said, took care of twenty-five per cent and private enterprise must look after the other seventy-five per cent. The small man in private enterprise with his dreams of expansion, unfettered by those who would tell him what he could and could not do, was the spirit of Canada. Democracy would stand being pushed around in wartime but after the war the people would resent control. He closed by declaring that he would like to see agriculture on a sound basis with a floor which would assure the farmer of adequate returns because the farmer was the largest purchaser of commodities from factory and store.

The speaker was thanked by W. A. Hoskins of Cobourg.

Old Children

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12—(AP).—The defendant was charged with cutting off the top of an Italian pine tree in a public park, but, he pleaded, he had taken it home as a Christmas tree for his two children. "How old are your children?" asked Judge Joseph Call. "Well" said the defendant hesitatingly, "they both work at Lockheed." He drew a 30-day suspended sentence.

Sgt. E. H. Barnes Awarded Service Medal

MILLBROOK, Jan. 12 — (ENS). — Sergeant E. H. Barnes, of Millbrook, has been notified that he has been awarded the Canadian Efficiency Medal, given for 12 years of continuous military service, and the Clasp, for 6 years over and above the 12 already mentioned.

Sgt. Barnes was with the Durham Regiment as Orderly Room Sergeant for several years, and after the amalgamation with the Northumberland Regiment in 1939, when an old name, the Midland Regiment, was revived, continued in that official capacity. Following the outbreak of war, he was made Pay Sergeant of the Midlands, and still holds that position.

During World War No. 1, Sgt. Barnes was with the 139th Battalion, but was discharged as unfit for overseas' service. Since the outbreak of the present war, the Victoria County Regiment has been added to the Midlands.

Sgt. Barnes has been an accountant at the Bank of Toronto Branch for several years and was formerly manager at Keene.

J. FRED REED
Chairman of Supervision and Finance

C. ALEX. SOLLITT
Vice-Chairman

INAUGURAL MEETING—The Peterborough Board of Education held its inaugural meeting on Thursday evening. T. J. Carley, K.C., was elected as chairman, and the chairmen of the various committees were named. Walter E. Bannon and Frank H. Jobbitt, the two new members who were elected in December, took their seats for the first time. The eleventh member of the Board is the county representative, who is not appointed until the County Council meets in January.

T. J. Carley Named Chairman Of 1945 Board Of Education

T. J. Carley, one of the senior members of the Board of Education for 1945, was named chairman of the Board succeeding G. Wilson Craw, at the inaugural meeting of the Board of Education Thursday night.

The report of the nominating committee made up of Alex Sollitt, D. V. Canning, Mrs. E. Parnall, Fred Reed and Mr. Craw, was given by the latter as follows: Health Committee, Mrs. F. K. Harris (chairman), D. V. Canning, Mrs. E. Parnall and T. J. Carley; Vocational Guidance, C. A. Sollitt, J. F. Reed, W. E. Bannon, T. J. Carley, County Representative, P. D. Scollard, T. P. McMillan, C. Derry, C. Westbrooke, Ian McRae, G. A. Macdonald, and E. J. Ferguson; Property Committee, D. V. Canning as chairman, with the entire board; Supervision Committee, J. F. Reed, chairman, with the entire board; Committee on Appointments, G. W. Craw, chairman and whole board; and Finance Committee, J. F. Reed, chairman, and members are the chairmen of the other committees.

Upon assuming the chairmanship Mr. Carley thanked the Board members for the honor of being named. He explained that each year brings its problems to the Board, and that it would require the co-operation of every member. There will also be problems of a kind requiring great consideration and I hope and trust that this year the Board will be as successful as those in the past, he said.

Invokes Blessing.

As a departure from the usual inaugural meeting, the Board had invited Rev. F. W. Craik of St. James' United Church, to invoke God's blessing on the 1945 members. Mr. Craik read some scripture verses dealing with religious duties and led in prayer before the business got underway.

Inspcetor K. Wightman reminded the Board of Education that there were several teachers due for superannuation in June. The cases of Albert Hope, who has been on the staff since September 1921, and Fred H. Dearborn, who has taught for 40 years, but only in Peterborough since 1917, were referred to the committee on appointments, as they had applied for an extension.

The remainder of the retirements were dealt with at the meeting. F. E. Kerr, B. A., who has been on the staff since September 1903, making a total of 42 years, is to be retired at the end of June on a motion by Canning and Sollitt. Miss J. McNaughton, who has served on the staff since September 1925, a 20-year term, was granted an additional year in 1944 will be retired.

Also included in this group is A. S. Zavitz, mathematics teacher at the Collegiate. Mr. Zavitz, has been a member of the staff since 1917. It was moved by Canning and Scollard that he be retired in June.

The case of Mrs. H. Jackson, who was taken on the staff from Confederation School for the definite period of one year, is being given special consideration by the committe on Appointments. The Board will have to determine, whether her service at May's and Confederation Schools will be considered a part of her city experience. If so, she will be credited with 27 years.

Want Raises.

Several requests were received from members of the staff asking consideration for a raise in salary. These requests which were referred to the Committee on Appointments included one on behalf of the principals, who said that though they were turned down in 1944, they were still carrying greater responsibilities, more than those employed as full-time classroom teachers, and they felt that their increased duties merited consideration. Miss Musa Cox, music teacher, explained that the two new schools, May's and Confederation, had increased her duties considerably. Walter Northcott, who served on the staff as a janitor for 30 years, asked that his case be reconsidered. He felt that in view of his long term of faithful service with only a few days absence in all that time, he merited the same consideration as the teachers.

Another Teacher

A report from Inspector Wightman indicated that it might be necessary in September to hire an additional domestic science teacher and instead of a part-time, a full-time manual training instructor.

He explained that crowded classes were cutting down the time allotted on the schedule and the only way it could be corrected was to have a larger staff. Mr Munro, who is now working 3½ days a week would be agreeable to working full time, the Inspector intimated, and this would mean he would have to take over one of the manual training centres. The increase in cost would include the salary of household science teacher and the difference between what Mr. Munro is already receiving and the full-time salary. Special grants from the Department would not be changed, as they are already paying a grant for both centres.

It was recommended by Mr. Sollitt, who said that he considered it a good thing, because so many students left school upon completion of the entrance class.

"It's the only thing we can do," declared Mr. Craw. "We have added extra classes and I feel the girls should get the same treatment as the boys. As it is now, the boys get manual training, and in the Sixth Grade the girls are left to get a little sewing, with teachers who are not especially trained in that work.

A motion was made by Craw and Canning that another household science teacher be employed and Mr. Munro given full-time work. This was done with the proviso that the arrangements be settled in time to be entered in the estimates.

School Attendance

Collegiate attendance for December was reported at 90.27 percent of the enrolment. The vocational school set a record high of 97.03 percent, but the academic department dropped to 86.06 per cent.

Confederation School headed the list of Public School for the best attendance during December with an average of 89.28 and Queen Mary was close behind with 89.05 percent. The other schools reported King George 88.88; Central 88.45; Queen Alexandra 88.09; Prince of Wales 87.70; May's 87.29; King Edward 84.86 and Parkhill 78.48. The total enrolment was given as 3,461 with the average attendance 3,030. During the month war savings stamps to the value of $775.75 were sold in the public schools.

Fred R. Revoy, attendance officer reported 24 absent through illness, 16 for home help, 10 due to parential neglect and four due to illness in the home. Four truants were reported, two of them being a boy and a girl from the collegiate. A boy and a girl were granted employment certificates, both were over 15 years of age and had not been in school since June 1944, having just recently moved into the city.

Kinsmen Instal Ken Smylie As President

Ken Smylie was installed as president of the Peterborough Kinsmen Club for 1945, at their inaugural meeting held Thursday evening at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club.

Other executive members installed by Art Lewis, immediate past-president, were Ford Warren, first vice-president; Roy Lewis, second vice-president; Jim Archibald, secretary; Ab. Boorne, treasurer; Stuart Munro, registrar; and Gordon Langhorne, James King, William Osborne, John Nornabell, and Harley Weir, directors.

Mr. Lewis told the club members that he is looking for great things from the new executive, and that it is one of the strongest bodies of executive Kinsmen elected.

"I believe the club is important to the community and that the community is important to the Club", said Mr. Smylie, is a brief address after the inauguration. The newly-elected president declared that the club is also important to each of its members. "But", he warned, "we all must put something into it, if we expect to get anything out of it". He expressed his praise and admiration for Mr. Lewis and his executive of 1944, "for first-class work in everything that was attempted".

"This is one of the best service clubs", Mr. Smylie pointed out, "and if we all cooperate, and hold high the banners, we will surely attain each of our aims and ideals".

Present Button

Mr. Roy Lewis, a vice-president for 1945, presented Mr. Art Lewis with a Kinsmen Club past-president button. The retiring president told the club that the Kinsmen Club enjoys the high regard of the community at large, and that it is looked to many times for leadership in certain community affairs.

"It is solely a Canadian club, and other service clubs are willing to acknowledge that it has become one of the leading groups in Canada", he said. Paying tribute to the executive members he worked with in 1944, he reported that membership had grown, and that a "fair year" had been enjoyed.

Mr. Lewis left a suggestion with club members as he retired from the presidency, that one project the Kinsmen Club in Peterborough might take leadership in, would be an advancement of the tourist trade in this district. "Of course it would be a cooperative venture with other groups in the city", he added.

During the evening, plans for a carnival to be held in April were approved, and it was decided that the usual games would be featured. After the business section of the evening had concluded, entertainment was left in the hands of Art Thomas, who made an instant hit with conjuring tricks centred around a deck of playing cards and small ping-pong balls. Although several attempts were made, when last seen, none of the Kinsmen proved successful in solving the card magic. After dinner, the members enjoyed a sing-sing.

Dives Through Glass

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 12—(CP)—A peeping tom who got caught in the act proved himself a capable diver, too. When Alfred Smith caught an unidentified man looking into his home, he collared him and took him inside while he phoned police. But the "tom" wriggled free and dove through a window, leaving a trail of broken glass behind him.

Pte. Bob Hewitt Killed In Italy

PTE. BOB HEWITT

Private Bob Hewitt, son of Major C. D. Hewitt, M.D., medical officer in charge of the hospital at the Peterborough Training Centre, was killed in action in Italy December 29. The information was confirmed by his father this morning.

For some years prior to the war he was employed with Canadian National Steamships as a young officer on the "Lady" boats plying between eastern ports of this country and the West Indies as far as British Guiana. Shortly after the Germans struck, young Hewitt, with a commission in the Royal Canadian Navy, volunteered for that branch. At that time there wasn't a ship available for him. He didn't wait but went to Toronto and enlisted with the 48th Highlanders. That was in February 1940, and in the following June he was overseas. A brother Francis was killed in a motor accident some years ago.

He was married in England and is survived by his wife and a daughter. Mrs. J. D. Hall (Girlie) is a sister.

War Board Order Curtails Civilian Goods

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 — (AP). — The United States War Production Board has ordered drastic new restrictions further curtailing civilian goods production.

The additional tightening, a government source said today, will have the effect of "wiping off the books a large percentage of the consumer projects already authorized under the spot reconversion program."

This will result from a sharp cut in the allocation of metals for the program, due to greatly expanded military requirements.

Moreover, W.P.B. field offices have been instructed to be "very careful" in the approval of new applications.

This means that the spot plan, already suspended in about 125 labor-short industrial centres, is for all practical purposes now on the shelf in all parts of the country.

Dollar volume of projects authorized through 1945 under the plan was more than $620,000,000 as of late December.

Cut to Driblet

"Output will be reduced to a driblet," was one authoritative verdict.

A small trickle had begun — of such products as vacuum cleaners, lamps and shades, lawn mowers, floor sanders and metal razors. But now, it was explained, the surplus of materials on hand when these items were authorized has disappeared.

Operation of the spot program has been limited from the start to spots where manpower, materials and facilities could be spared from the war effort.

The new jolt results, it was stressed, not essentially from a lack of manpower, but from a serious shortage of materials.

The additional curtailment comes close on the heels of W.P.B.'s order freezing all regularly-programmed civilian production at levels authorized for the last three months of 1944. That step, also dictated by mounting munitions requirements, was designed to keep consumer goods output from rising beyond minimum essential civilian needs.

Despite the tightening the spot program will not actually be junked. Its machinery will be retained for possible later use.

Besides, in some few areas where manpower and the materials are available the program can continue to function.

20,000th Blood Donation

On Monday morning the 20,000th blood donation was given at the Peterborough Red Cross Blood Donors' Clinic, while on the same morning in Kingston the 50,000th donation was given. The Kingston clinic was opened a year before the local one, and during its period of operation at least 50 per cent. of donations have come from members of the armed services located in that area.

In 1944 Kingston had 20,000 donations with 10,000 coming from the citizens of Kingston and district and in the same year Peterborough and district gave 10,000 donations of which 2,000 came from men of the Training Centre. The year was the peak one since the establishment of the clinic, but with a capacity of 300 a week, Peterborough is still falling short of what might be done.

The people of this city as a whole cannot be proud of the figures given especially when it must be remembered that many of those donors in the past year gave three and four donations. Thus it is apparent that only a small percentage of the citizens are actually supporting the clinic.

As the year just begun progresses, there will be greater need than ever for blood plasma on the fighting fronts of the world. The lives of Canadian soldiers will depend upon the generosity with which Canadian civilians at home donate their blood. We say civilians advisedly; the heightened demands of war have already reduced military establishments; this district has suffered with the rest, and further reduction may be expected. No longer can the local clinic look to service men to fill its quota; it must be met by continued donations from civilians already enrolled and by the enlistment of hundreds of new donors.

This newspaper sincerely endorses the plea made by the local clinic. As far as any effect upon the donor is concerned, the clinic asks for only an hour of his or her time once every three months. The actual time taken for the donation is only five to seven minutes. Giving is painless and harmless—and yet the donor may be holding out hope of life to some service man whose own blood has been spent. It is a little thing to do to help guard in some measure the lives which have been offered bravely in our defence.

Address Your Parcel Correctly

We learn from the Post Office Department that there has been considerable delay during recent months in getting parcels to Canadians overseas, because the parcels have been insufficiently addressed. Everyone knows how much the parcels mean to the men who receive them; it is a pity that any failure on the part of the sender should jeopardize the parcel's chance of arriving.

There are a few simple rules to be observed when sending parcels to men in the fighting forces abroad. First of all be sure to print the address; don't trust to the legibility of your handwriting; a little damp may smear the address, and block letters are much more legible under such conditions than script. Next, be sure that the address is complete, for if it is not the parcel may be delayed for some time. Next, if the man to whom your are sending the parcel is in hospital, do not attempt to address the parcel to wherever you think he is; give his usual complete address, and add the words In Hospital to it, preferrably in red ink.

Wrap the parcels carefully, because they are going a long way and must be able to stand several changes of transport. Wrap your parcels in corrugated paper, or something that will absorb shock; use plenty of heavy paper over this and tie with strong twine. Be sure that your knots are firm.

Above all, don't put foods in parcels which spoil quickly, and don't pack any sort of liquid in a glass container; a tin is the only suitable container for jam, or anything of that kind. Don't put food and soap in the same parcel, for the soap will make the food taste. Never, under any circumstances, put matches or lighter fluid in a parcel. And do not use shoe-boxes for packing; they are not sturdy enough for the strain.

A little care and common sense will mean that every parcel you send will reach your soldier as soon as possible, and in first-rate condition. Isn't it worth the trouble?

Fires At Sea

When fire breaks out in a ship at sea it is a nuisance, at the very least, and it may mean the loss of the ship, at worst. During recent months there have been too many fires in ships bearing Canadian mail to our soldiers overseas, and although none of these has been disastrous, they have all meant the loss of a certain amount of mail. Investigation has shown that all these fires have had a single cause—foolish packing of matches or lighter fluid in parcels.

There is no safe way of sending matches or lighter fluid abroad. Whatever precautions you may take, there is always a likelihood that they will start a fire, and when that happens thousands of parcels and letters may be destroyed. The fire consumes some of them, and others are spoiled by the water used to quell the fire; many parcels which are not utterly ruined have to be re-packed. The whole thing is dangerous, wasteful and avoidable.

Don't put matches or lighter fluid in parcels you are sending abroad. Don't endanger parcels that others have sent. Don't endanger the lives of merchant seamen, and ships that Canada needs. The only efficient precaution against fires is to keep these combustibles out of parcels.

A Whiff From The Past

Every now and then someone brings an old newspaper into our office believing, quite correctly, that we shall be interested in it. Recently a fragment of the British Whig of Kingston was left with us, its date being June 26, 1879. We have read it thoroughly, including all the advertisements, and the latter are much the most interesting part of it. There is news, admittedly, of an Ottawa plot to discredit Sir John A. Macdonald—headed "Extraordinary Rumour"—and an account of an Orange celebration in Montreal; murders in New York and Toronto are briefly noted, and the public is adjured to hear the band play on the wharf that evening. But it is in the advertisements that the true whiff of old Kingston is discernible.

One firm offers corsets at remarkably low prices, and advises its clientele not to overlook the charms of "La Figurine". It boasts "this new corset reduces the figure to elegant proportions without the slightest degree of inconvenience or discomfort"; it is made with "the celebrated spoon busk". A Russian hairdresser tells the public "Real hair work done. Combings made up to order from 25 cents an ounce upwards. SWITCHES, CURLS, FRIZZES, PUFFS and FRONT PLAITS always on hand cheaper and better than any place in the Dominion". On the front page there is a paean in honour of the Holman Liver and Stomach Pad which, the advertiser insists, "is not a patent medicine but a scientific principle"; a picture is printed of a gentleman looking extremely like Abraham Lincoln (or Mr. John Bracken) wearing this invaluable aid to health. Victoria Hypophosphites, "the great brain and nerve remedy" is also extravagantly praised, and "German Syrup" is recommended as an unfailing cure for pneumonia. An advertisement headed "Look Out! Don't Sit On Grass!" warns the public that this is the surest way to get dysentery, which it describes in minute and indelicate detail; the cure is an Emulsion of Castor Oil.

Whatever people may say to the contrary, newspaper advertisement is more honest, and less grossly disagreeable today than it has ever been in the past. The newspapers themselves are responsible for the change, for they have refused to carry advertisements which make extravagant claims, or which are offensively worded. Not a paper in Canada today would dream of publishing an advertisement for "Pain-Killer" as a specific for diphtheria, as every paper did 66 years ago. People who pine for the good old days of modesty, honesty and propriety might bear these things in mind.

Just at present the weather man is showing us what can be achieved by degrees.

The head of the U.S. Rural Electrification Administration has resigned. Didn't have enough power, it seems.

His Pen Strikes Like Lightning

By A. J. CUMMINGS

DAVID LOW is the greatest British cartoonist of our time. I would add that he has become a British institution if that did not seem to imply something static and ponderous. There is nothing ponderous about Low; he is vigorously alive, and his pen strikes home with the speed of lightning.

It would be difficult today to imagine Britain's politics lacking the antiseptic of his biting wit. In all political circles, not least in those that have suffered most from this lynx-eyed commentator, he is acknowledged to be the king of his craft and to be a serious force in the shaping of public affairs.

HE began his career in New Zealand when, as a schoolboy, he sold his first cartoon for half-a-crown. In Australia, his brilliant caricatures of leading public figures and his power of summarizing shrewdly the political controversies of the Dominion quickly brought him fame.

Then, soon after World War I, this bright-eyed innocent-looking young man was induced to come to London, where, in the pages of the "Star" newspaper he showed an easy aptitude in mastering the subtle complexities of British politics in getting under the skin of the British character.

Seventeen years ago, the Radical "Star"—to its own great loss—allowed the Conservative London "Evening Standard" to have his services; and it is creditable to the tolerance and good judgment of Lord Beaverbrook, the Conservative newspaper proprietor, that, ever since, Low has been left free to express, in his own inimitable manner, comments on the men and policies of his time which (to put it mildly) were not always in the "Evening Standard's" line of thought.

JUST before the present war, Low published, in book form, a collection of his newspaper drawings. He called it his "Political Parade." What a parade it is! He makes them march, he makes them grovel, he makes them pirouette before him, he makes them stand on their heads.

He has them as completely under his command as if he had them body and soul poised on the edge of his deep black pen—the great ones of the earth (if any such there be), the wicked ones, the pretentious, the self-exalted, the stupid, the perverse and the silly.

Though often playful, Low is rarely merciful. Politics is not a game. It is a serious business which, for good or evil, affects the daily life of every man, woman and child in the land; and for those who mismanage the business and stifle the hopes of the people there can be no quarter.

That, it seems to me, is how Low approaches a task which he carries out with a master's touch.

HE studies the daily newspapers with the closest possible attention; and once he paid me the compliment of saying that he caught many ideas from my own contributions to the Press. But as a political writer I have looked often on his cartoons with the envious admiration of one who sees the laborious argument of a thousand words impressed on the page in the few fatal strokes of an incomparable artist.

His most celebrated creation, I suppose, is Colonel Blimp. Blimp is an elderly Englishman—bald-headed, florid of countenance, long-moustached and pot-bellied—who appears again and again in various guises, but most frequently half-naked in a Turkish bath, as a kind of symphonic motive to personify the shallow commonplace prejudices of social and political die-hards.

This ridiculous figure, so cunningly portrayed, has aroused more laughter and evoked more bitter protests (especially among those who feared that the cap fitted them too well) than anything that has yet emerged from Low's inventive brain.

"Blimp" has become a dictionary word. It is part of Britain's political vocabulary. It has even been the subject of an incidental debate in Parliament!

Last year, "The Life And Death Of Colonel Blimp" was presented as a highly successful British film — which annoyed the solemn anti-Blimps because it seemed to convert the reactionary Colonel into a lovable and not particularly foolish character, and for the same reason gave pleasure and considerable relief to the real-life Blimps.

Nowadays, thanks to Low, I manage to get much quiet enjoyment out of Blimpish conversation with the assurance that they are not and never have been Blimps.

LOW is a beautiful draughtsman, with a marvellous economy of expression and an unerring sense of design. These are qualities which give life and strength to the best of his war cartoons.

No man has done more with his pen to make clear the fundamental issues of this frightful conflict. But, in my opinion, Low rose to his highest stature in the critical years before the war, when, unceasingly, in a series of remarkable drawings, he sought to impress on a half-sceptical public the peril of Europe of Fascist power-politics and the fatal consequences of a failure to achieve collective security among the anti-Fascist and peaceably-inclined nations.

If I had to name the gem among his masterpieces of satire, there is one I should unhesitatingly choose. Some artist somewhere may have produced a symbolic drawing more devastating, more superbly implacable, than that terrible cartoon—"They salute with both hands now"—which appeared three days after Hitler's bloody purge in 1934. But I take leave to doubt it.

Yes, David Low is the greatest of them all.

Orange Toronto!

A few days ago we had some comment on the fact that "Tory" Toronto had elected a Communist to its Board of Control. Well, a reader calls to remind us that Toronto in the same election did another thing worth comment. It elected—and at the head of the poll—a Roman Catholic to its board of control.

There are those who speak sometimes of "Orange, Protestant Toronto," who think of that city as being bigoted and intolerant. Well, when Orange and Protestant Torontonians rush to the polls to elect a Roman Catholic over all others to be one of their rulers, rejecting at the same time a candidate who was understood to be the publisher of the paper Protestant Action, it may be time for Toronto's critics to take stock of their criticism.

We hope some Quebec newspapers will not let this thing go unnoticed.—Ottawa Journal.

Three Generals

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

THE text of Marshal Montgomery's statement to correspondents at the Twenty-first Army Group Headquarters makes first-class reading. It reveals in its colloquial directness the lively mind of this professional soldier, the keenness of intellect which he brings to bear on the problems of the battlefield, and the generosity of his spirit. The anxieties of the past three weeks appear to have bounced off his self-confident person without taking much toll of his energies, and he still conveys the strongest impression of being a man who knows his business.

The business he is up against at the moment is one of the grimmest he has faced for some time. Dispatches from the front indicate that he now has it well in hand, despite the suggestion in his statement that at times it looked doubtful if he could contrive to have enough men in the right place at the right time so that his military philosophy—the attainment of balance—might be well founded. However he seems to have got enough reserves to meet the problem posed by the enemy, who is now being "written off". Sir Bernard does not say that the battle is over; on the contrary he warns that there is still much to be done, but the Allied world is breathing a good deal easier than it was at Christmastime.

Amid these pressing battlefield considerations Marshal Montgomery found time to say a word about two other generals—his Commander-in-Chief and his enemy. Of General Eisenhower he spoke in admiration and soldierly comradeship. His words should end once and for all the sniping that London has indulged in at the American commander who is bearing an almost insupportable burden of responsibility. The uncomplimentary articles that Montgomery refers to cannot be allowed to continue, nor can American suggestions that British generalship is not all it should me. The Marshal's evident sincerity and the warmth of his praise of the American soldier should do much to end the transatlantic cross-fire that has brought comfort to our enemies and grief to our friends.

Of Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt, the last of the Prussians, Sir Bernard speaks highly. He rates him better than Rommel and considers him the best German general he has come up against in this war. Well may he do so. Rundstedt has outlasted Hitler's wrath and the purges that have got rid of his fellows in the officer corps, and today he stands with the great Prussians, Clausewitz and Schlieffen. The practised hand that began to be felt in the conduct of German resistance when the pursuit across France had run itself out was the hand of Rundstedt, and it bore no resemblance to the military genius of Adolf Hitler. Germany's war is once more in the hands of a Prussian militarist who has made war his life's study. As long as there is any fight left in the German army the struggle will be conducted with skill and determination.

Short Days Aid the Nazis

LONG, dark winter nights, as well as bad winter weather, are fighting Belgian—German—French battles on the side of the enemy along the front.

Few observers back home realize how short the days and how long the nights are in west Central Europe at this season of the year. Aachen, largest German city yet taken by the American forces, and typical battle line marker, lies near the 51st degree of north latitude. Although in that zone in late December and early January about eight hours elapse between sunrise and sunset, effective daylight usually is cut sharp at both ends of the day by heavy fog. Since the sun is low in the south its rays are dimmer than those of the high summer sun even when fog is absent.

In peacetime, city dwellers in Central Europe often kept lights burning until after 10 o'clock in the morning and frequently turned them on again as early as 2 p.m. Even on the clearest midwinter days twilight is of little use to Allied fliers so that for a period of 14 to 16 hours they find the battle area blacked out.

It was doubtless during these long hours of darkness that the Germans made their elaborate preparations to break through the Allies' line. Under nature's blackout, the enemy can fill highways with marching men and long processions of tanks and trucks, and can shift trainloads and boatloads of supplies fully protected by the darkness.

After the first of the year, the period of sunlight will lengthen and the period of darkness will shorten fairly rapidly. By the end of January, along the 50th degree of latitude which cuts across the German bulge into Luxembourg and Belgium, there are nine hours and 16 minutes between sunrise and sunset. Thirty days later, on March 2, the sunlight period will have lengthened to 11 hours and the interval from the earliest morning twilight to latest evening twilight 14 hours and 28 minutes. At the maximum in June, the period of darkness will have entirely disappeared; then twilight will extend throughout the night and there will be 16 hours and 22 minutes of sunlight.

The important geographic fact that European lands can be developed and heavily populated much farther north than the lands of North America is shown by tracing the 50th degree of latitude westward across the Atlantic. This battle front parallel cuts through Northern Newfoundland and passes only 80 miles south of Hudson Bay.

Culled From Our Contemporaries

PLASTIC EYE

A Canadian soldier who lost an eye at Dieppe is wearing an all-plastic artificial eye as a result of the ingenuity and efforts of a Montreal dental technician.

Germany controls the glass eye industry and glass eyes may no longer be available when present stocks are depleted. Meanwhile the casualties of war are increasing. The wounded men are coming home, many of them having lost an eye. They are suffering from the psychological effect of their disfigurement. They need artificial eyes. The all-plastic artificial eye will be an invaluable contribution to their welfare.—C.I.L. Oval.

TO TRY TRAITORS

Official lists—now almost complete—are being compiled of British and U.S. subjects who live in Axis territory and are paid from Axis sources. British traitors numbers up to 50—half of them women—and there is about the same total of American quislings.

Records of what they have said over the enemy radio have been made and kept, to be taken into court as proof of the voices of the speakers.

They face trial when Germany is defeated. The British are liable to prosecution under the Treachery Act, which carries the death penalty.

A broadcast does not in itself constitute treachery, a legal expert said—it depends what the speaker says.—London Daily Mail.

IT'S LIKE THIS

A smoking compartment, as everybody knows, is a black-upholstered cell at the far end of a railway car. It has a ripe atmosphere compounded of conflicting aromas from old cigar butts, shaving soap and stale jokes. It is a roost for travelling salesmen, a boudoir for tired porters and a business office for the conductor who has nowhere else to count his tickets.

In the morning it is full of shirtless males trying unsuccessfully to wield a razor without cutting themselves. In the afternoon it is full of outstretched legs and swaying humanity. By evening it is a shambles.

Its decor completely lacks the feminine influence. Whoever designed it selected the salient features of a barber shop and a saloon and compressed them all into one small cubicle. The sole concession to ornamentation is the battered brass cuspidor so dear to the hearts of our forefathers.—Vancouver Sun.

U.S. MOTOR INDUSTRY

In its record peace-time production year, 1929, the motor industry turned out 5.4 million cars and trucks, valued at $3.4 billions. Its next biggest year in number of units produced was 1941, with 4.8 million cars and trucks, while that year made a new high at $3.7 billions in the dollar amount of production.

But last year, manufacturing weapons of war, the industry turned out products with a total value of $10.5 billions. In terms of 1941 average costs this would be equivalent to a production of 13.6 million cars and trucks, while in terms of 1929 units it would correspond to an output of 16.6 millions. In dollar value it is roughly equal to the total peace-time output of the four pre-war years, 1938-41 combined.—New York Herald Tribune.

A Bible Message

I am the living bread which came down from heaven: if any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever: and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world.... As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father: so he that eateth me, even he shall live by me....

These things said he in the synagogue, as he taught in Capernaum. Many therefore of his disciples, when they had heard this, said, This is an hard saying; who can hear it?

When Jesus knew in himself that his disciples murmured at it, he said unto them, Doth this offend you? What and if ye shall see the Son of man ascend up where he was before?

It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life. (John 6: 51, 57, 59-63.)

Now the first day of the feast of unleavened bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the passover? And he said, Go into the city to such a man, and say unto him, The Master saith, My time is at hand; I will keep the passover at thy house with my disciples. And the disciples did as Jesus had appointed them; and they made ready the passover.

Now when the even was come, he sat down with the twelve.... And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body. (Matt. 26: 17-20, 26.)

Unconsidered Trifles

"Did you hit this man when he was down?" asked the solicitor.

"I had to," replied the defendant, "he is bigger than I am."

This story comes from a Johannesburg paper, South African Business Efficiency.

Addressing a trade association in America, one of the speakers, dealing with the question of what constitutes an expert, said it reminded him of a lady who went into a store to purchase a pair of birds. She told the salesman the variety she wished, and that she desired a male and a female. The birds were finally selected and handed her.

She then asked the salesman how she could tell the difference between the two. He instructed her to go to another store to buy a supply of male and female worms, and that when she fed the worms to the birds, the male bird would always eat the female worms—while the female bird would eat the male worms. She thanked him profusely and went on her way.

When she got to the door, she turned, came back to the salesman and said: "I must be stupid, but how am I going to tell which are the male and which are the female worms?"

And his reply was:—

"Madam, I am only a bird expert; you will have to see a worm expert about that."

The Right to Swing a Cat

With the gentleman from the Ontario Department of Planning and Development who deplores "the biscuit-box apartments of which Ottawa is full at the present time" we most heartily agree.

About once every six months we deplore the further construction of these paper-walled "compartmentalized living units," and every alternate six months we deplore the willingness of our City Fathers to allow real estate men to cheapen fine new areas by crowding houses together on pocket handkerchief lots.

Thus far our deplorings have been of little use. If the Ontario official can put some law and regulations behind his criticism we'll be duly thankful.

A real estate man with a piece of property presumably figures that if he sells it to ten people he'll get almost twice as much money as if he were to sell it to five. Likewise an apartment builder with an eye to the high rents of today figures that if he can rush up a building that will last for ten years he doesn't need to care if it blows down in a big wind in the eleventh year. Suppose there is no sound proofing in a cardboard wall? What's it to him?

This newspaper is not known for favoring rules and regulations that encroach on civil liberties or free enterprise. But we have less use for the mean-minded real estate man or apartment builder. The city has a responsibility to order the development of its dwellings with a view to health, happiness, good appearance and the right to swing a cat. Is City Council proud to have a man from Toronto, of all places, come along and speak of drab monotony and "biscuit-box" apartments?—Ottawa Journal.

Britain Will Not Desert Polish People

LONDON, Jan. 12 — (Reuter). — Prime Minister Churchill, in a letter made public Thursday, declared Britain will "not depart in any way from our resolve that the independence, domestic freedom and full sovereignty of the Polish State will be preserved."

The Prime Minister added, however, in the letter to Lord Alfred Douglas, that he could not "agree that the frontiers should not be adjusted, provided that Poland has a secure home and resting place fully adequate to the economic needs of her population."

Mr. Churchill's letter was prompted by a "deathbed" communication from the 79-year-old Lord Alfred, a son of the eighth Marquis of Queensberry—"Old Q," famous for the Queensberry boxing rules.

Lord Alfred wrote: "I am writing to you as a dying man to implore you, after your magnificent speech about Greece, not to fall into the pit of dishonor which would be the result of the betrayal of Poland to people whom you yourself described, not so long ago, as 'bloody baboons.' ...If you let down the Poles your own reputation will be irretrievably damaged in the eyes of posterity."

The Prime Minister replied: "You may be sure we shall not depart in any way from our resolve that the independence, domestic freedom and full sovereignty of the Polish State will be preserved.

"I cannot, however, agree that the frontiers should not be adjusted, provided that Poland has a secure home and resting place fully adequate to the economic needs of her population."

High Tariff System Aids 'Infant Industries'

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

It was largely to protect "infant industries" that the United States and Canada created their system of high tariffs. The protective system has continued long after the "infants" have become giants. Today, though the necessity of restoring world trade is everywhere admitted, there are still powerful forces at work to protect these giants with the tenderness of the nursery. And even though the heavy industries of the United States and Canada must secure huge foreign markets or collapse, it is still alleged that they cannot compete with the world at large.

This theory is denounced by the National Planning Association, an organization of business and labor leaders, in its powerful new study of American foreign trade.

"The allegation that American industry is unable to compete today with foreign production and labor," says the association's report, "does not hold under examination. The reason for the exceptional concentration of world demand upon American goods lies in their relative excellence and low cost. Our plants are in general technically modern and well equipped. American labor is skilled and, with its modern equipment, can produce more than foreign labor in the same time. This productivity, as demonstrated by the higher wages of American labor, is therefore an asset, peculiar to American industry, rather than a cost.

"Also many American manufacturing industries can operate at lower costs than their foreign competitors because mass production and marketing opportunities permit the reduction of overhead costs to a minimum. There is no need for a general policy of subsidy through high tariffs and through foreign loans which cannot be repaid because our imports are too low. The plain fact is that American industry, as a whole, has a great competitive edge over the rest of the world."

The same can be said of Canada, which is the fourth industrial power among the United Nations and the second largest exporter in the world today.

The National Planning Association insists that the great mass-production industries of the United States, which employ more workers than any others and on which the whole economy depends, do not require protection. It admits that some lighter industries making such things as watches, woollens and embroideries would have difficulty, without protection, in competing with foreign goods, but:

"The industries which require protection do not bulk large in our total economy — and will be even less important in post-war full employment economy. In contrast, the industries which would profit from large foreign markets, or which need supplementary foreign markets to operate at full capacity and efficiency effect millions of workers and a great proportion of the nation's vested capital.

"It is time to recognize that the maintenance of high tariffs is a special-interest concession benefiting a minority . . . Tariff walls maintained to protect the inefficient, also act as powerful dams to hold back the tide of foreign demand for American products in general. Tariff reductions would expand the nation's over-all employment and business volume, and would set up pressures to transfer the productive facilities of substandard industries to more profitable uses. Reductions would mean some adjustments in the productive structure, but would create additional business and employment opportunities."

One of the great myths of American and Canadian business is that it must not be compelled to meet the competition of cheap foreign labor. Says the National Planning Association:

"The fear that competition with 'cheap foreign labor' would destroy American labor standards and the American standard of living is without real substance. The American wage scale is based upon the productivity of American labor. Absolute earnings, of course, depend not only on wage rates but upon steady employment. American labor standards, like the industry's profits and the nation's living standards, suffer most from unemployment. Doing business with the rest of the world, buying as well as selling, will help materially in achieving and maintaining domestic full employment.

"Industries which require tariffs are in many cases characterized by low wages and unsatisfactory labor conditions. Increased demand for our exports, whether made effective by import expansion or the extension of financial aid, would increase employment in our efficient and high-wage industries. Thus a higher volume of foreign trade would improve wages and labor standards by causing the transfer of additional workers from low-paid to high-wage industries."

Reduced tariffs, the report argues, also will benefit the worker by reducing his cost of living:

"High tariffs, in the light of the changed American position in the world, will artificially raise the prices we must pay for foreign products and unnecessarily depress our own consumption of real goods and services. Now that American industry has reached full stature, it is to our advantage to exchange our production specialities for foreign production specialities and, thereby, to raise foreign and domestic living standards . . . A substantial proportion of all Americans do not yet enjoy what we are proud to call an American standard of living. Exchange of goods which can be produced efficiently abroad for goods we produce advantageously here can hasten the day when the American standard of living will be the living standard of all Americans."

If this is true for the United States, a relatively self-contained nation, it is far more true for Canada, which depends more on foreign trade for its living than any important nation.

Marmora IODE Plans To Elect Officers

MARMORA, Jan. 12 — (ENS) — Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E. met on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. O. W. Wallace, and the Regent, Mrs. D. P. Marett presided. Miss Helen Jones read correspondence regarding the new ship adopted by the Chapter, H.M.C.S. Glenbrook. The Regent called attention to the appeal of the National Command of the I.O.D.E. for $300,000 in January to purchase books for the services.

The proceeds of the dance to be held in the Town Hall on Friday evening are to be devoted to that fund.

Nominations were held for next year's officers, the election to take place at the next meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Helen Brady.

Field Commanders Given New Posts

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—(AP)—War Secretary Stimson said that a "number" of field commanders have been relieved because they failed to measure up to their particular assignments.

He declined to make public the names of the men, telling a news conference that such re-assignments "are made without public announcement in order that the efficiency of a loyal officer may not be impaired in his new assignment."

Four Roosevelt Boys Serve With US Forces

By C. R. BLACKBURN E
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—(CP)—One of the most tremendous of the heavy responsibilities falling uopn President Roosevelt is that of sending millions of American boys into battle—including four of his own.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt have five children, four boys and a girl. All four boys are in the service, all have been in action, and it is rumored, one would have the Congressional Medal of Honor if he were not the President's son.

Their daughter is the wife of Lt.-Col. John Boettiger now stationed in the War Department here.

All the boys are officers, but this is not surprising. They are all intelligent, well-educated, athletic men of the type that would almost certainly obtain commissions regardless of their background.

In the pre-war days the Roosevelt boys frequently made the headlines. They were arrested for speeding, got mixed up in pranks and horseplay that made news, got married and divorced and remarried.

Their War Record.

They might well be described as typical monied-class Americans.

Here is their war record, in brief:

James, 37, a full colonel in the Marine Corps, on the staff of the Commanding General, Amphibious Training Command, United States Pacific Fleet, veteran of numerous bloody actions of the Pacific Islands, and holder of the Navy Cross "for extraordinary heroism."

Elliott, 34, colonel in the Army Air Force Reserve, awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for outstanding service, who, in his own words, has fought in "every lousy spot the Air Corps can think of to send its men."

Franklin, Jr., 30, lieutenant-commander in the Navy, wearer of the Purple Heart for wounds suffered in Sicily and the Silver Star for his part in the invasions of North Africa and Sicily.

John, 28, lieutenant on an aircraft carrier in the South Pacific, who was kept out of combat duty for some time because of an eye condition.

No one has questioned the readiness of the President's sons to share the dangers of battle with their fellow-Americans since early in the war when they were attacked by a Congressman.

Eliott, a former radio network owner and commentator, replied to that charge with his own and his brothers' record and said: "We feel that we are fighting for all America; let us fight without being stabbed in the back for the sake of politics."

James is reported to have told a friend: "Before this is over one of us has got to die or people will think we got all the breaks."

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 12 —(AP).—Ed Blancett was driving along minding his business Wednesday when a pair of pants dropped out of the sky. Papers in a wallet containing $136, identified the owner as Maj. R. T. Akins, Deming army air field, New Mexico. Blancett drove on to the Oklahoma City air service command where he works and learned the Major had just landed at nearby Tinker Field. The Major, who emerged with trousers on, reported the others had blown out of the plane as he tested his bomb bay doors.

Mission Band Elects 1945 Officers

HAVELOCK, Jan. 12 — (ENS) — The election of officers was the main item of business at the annual meeting of the Mission Band of the United church, held at the parsonage.

The officers are as follows: President, Betty Post; vice-president, Betty Brown; secretary, Jackie Southward; treasurer, Eleanor Forsythe; temperance secretary, Kenny Nobes; peace secretary, Muriel Forsythe.

The president presided for the worship service and the new officers began their duties. A poem entitled "The Secret of Happiness," was read by Betty Brown. The Scripture lesson, "The Story of Jesus in the Synagogue," was read by Kenny Nobes, and a New Year's prayer was read by Betty Post.

Plans were made for carrying on the work of the band in general for 1945. Mrs. A. C. Reid closed the meeting with prayer. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Reid, January 22.

Padre Wounded When Huns Broke War Rules

HALIFAX, Jan. 12—(CP)—Shelled by the Nazi while on a task of mercy, Hon. Capt. W. W. Burnett, Protestant chaplain of the New Brunswick Hussars, has come back to Canada with a hero's decoration, with wounds, but with no bitterness toward the enemy who broke the rules.

The padre, who returned Tuesday aboard the British Hospital Ship Llandovery Castle, said he didn't know why he was wearing the Military Cross.

"I haven't done anything," he said earnestly, sitting on a cot in a ship's ward, but here is his story.

Attached to the Hussars, he went with them as they helped crack successively the Gustav, Hitler and Gothic Lines in Italy. Four months ago, when the Hussars were dug in before Rimini, Capt. Burnett went out as the only officer of a party of eight collecting Canadian battle dead.

"All our own dead were collected," he said, "and we thought we had better pick up some of the German dead that were lying about. We were carrying one of the Germans on a stretcher when a German 88 (88-millimetre shell) came over. There were eight of us in the party, and it killed two and wounded four, including myself."

Capt. Burnett's wife lives at Aurora, Ont.

HOW CHURCHILL ARRIVED IN ATHENS—Wearing the uniform of an officer of the Royal Air Force, Prime Minister Winston Churchill is assisted from the armored car that brought him from the airport to the British Embassy in Athens, Greece, when he arrived in an attempt to iron out the factional problems that resulted in civil war. Churchill spoke to both parties and warned them that if they did not come to some agreement, Britain would take over.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

There should be a hectic battle in the senior division of the Girls' Basketball League tonight when the loop-leading Transports take on their old opponents, St. John's in the first half of the weekly double-header. These two teams always stage a torrid tussle every time they are tossed in there together and tonight's clash is not likely to be any exception. The two had one of the closest series in local cage history in the playoffs last spring and the rivalry that was engendered then has been carried right through into the current campaign. The first time the two met this season the Saints surprised Transports by walking off with the decision. The champions reversed that verdict the next time the schedule brought the two outfits together but in both cases the game was decidedly close and the result could easily have gone the other way. Now the rivals are facing each other again. They meet in the 7.45 o'clock fixture tonight. The second game will be a junior battle between the Y.M.C.A. Grads who have waltzed through all opposition so far this season and the Westclox girls who won the last time out at the expense of the Quakers. The Big Bens realize that they are up against heavy opposition but they are determined to extend the Grads and make them realize they have been in a ball game. The junior fixture is scheduled for 8.45 o'clock.

The newly organized City Basketball League gets under way tonight with a double-header at the P.C.V.S. gym and with the Collegiate team entered in the loop it is expected that the student body will be well represented in the gallery when the league swings into action. Coach Bev Goulding's P.C.V.S. team, a young outfit but one that has been working nicely in practice will clash with the C.G.E. team in the opening game on the card at 8 o'clock while Cougars and Outboard Marines, the other two teams in the loop, will provide the competition in the second half of the twin bill with start scheduled for 9 o'clock. The teams should provide two rousing battles to get the league away to a flying start. The balance of the schedule will be played on Saturday nights with a weekly double-header to be staged alternately at the Collegiate and Y.M.C.A. gyms.

Hockey Hungry Fans

A number of ardent hockey fans will be slipping up No. 7 Highway as far as Omemee tonight, the reason being that the Omemee Black Hawks are slated to meet Lindsay in an O.H.A. intermediate B game this evening and a number of well-known Peterborough players will be wearing the Hawks' livery. When Omemee opened their season Monday night in Oakwood they had the Petes' razzle-dazzle line of Bun Kingdon, Honey Tompkins and Art Heal and also the services of Joe Blewett and Les Burton and all five will be in action against the Lindsay crew tonight. Hockey-hungry Peterborough enthusiasts, anxious to see their favorite sport and some of their favorite players again, are adopting the Black Hawks as almost a home team and a lot of them are preparing to make the short hop to Omemee. It should be quite a battle at that. There is a lot of rivalry between Omemee and Lindsay and it has been increased by the Omemee move to get permission from the O.H.A. to sign Peterborough players. Probably no one took the trouble to inform the governing body that practically a whole senior B championship outfit are still living in Peterborough. Anyway there are no strings on the permission to sign local players and so the Black Hawks are sure of valuable reinforcements whenever needed.

With the city council operating most of the rinks that are available in Peterborough and providing young folk with a chance to skate and play hockey it is interesting to note that the municipality did not embark in a rink-operating venture until 30 years ago. In 1915, after considerable discussion in the council, where opponents of the proposal pointed out that a civic rink would mean that the city would be entering into competition with a privately-run rink, it was finally decided to open a skating cushion at the corner of Sherbrooke and George streets. The late Frank H. Dobbin and W. J. Johnston were the two aldermen who were named to act as sponsors for the new venture and the council voted a grant of $100 to finance the enterprise. It was announced that the rink would be free to the public, and that it would be open every day, except Sunday, from 9 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night, with hockey allowed from 9 to 10 a.m. and also from 6 to 7 o'clock in the evening. Ald. J. J. Duffus who was chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, arranged to have the rink flooded by the city firemen and water was supplied free of charge by the Utilities Commission. The first rink was quite a success at that and was well patronized during that first winter of the First Great War.

Belleville Surprised

Ken Colling comments on the defeat of the Belleville team by Stirling as follows: "Toots" Holway's local "Bears" ran into a cold snag at Stirling last night when the "Combines" were always ahead to win 5 to 4 in as good a junior hockey tussle as one would ask to have the privilege of paying an entrance fee to. It was all-out hockey with unadulterated speed throughout. As a matter of fact the kids had to skate or otherwise freeze. Belleville was minus the efforts of the two Meagher brothers, Bernie and Al, who were on the sick list, Al being the chief scorer for the locals. However, on the night's play the "Bears" had ample chances to win, but the "Combines" weren't to be denied. The Stirling kids deserved their victory as they played all out hockey and once on top never relinquished their advantage. The ice was fast and so was the game. The best for the winners was Earl Cousins and an oddity was the fact his dad (Tom Cousins) was blowing a good whistle with St. Louis as one of the night's officials. Belleville could have well won the game had they been able to shoot the "boot heel." George Reeves got two sweeties.

The N.H.L. race is beginning to take on a different appearance with the sudden coming to life of the New York Rangers. The Patrick men have not lost a game in 1945 and last night by registering a 5 to 1 win over the Boston Bruins are now tied for fourth place with the Ross outfit. Boston scored the first goal last night inside the opening minute on a play set up by Bill Cowley but that was the extent of their scoring. The Rangers kept them under control by effective checking and in the meantime found openings for five goals themselves. Meanwhile at Montreal the Canadiens were having a merry evening at the expense of the Toronto Leafs, winning 7 to 4 to take over sole possession of the N.H.L. leadership. The Flying Frenchmen had it 7 to 1 until the last few minutes when Leafs staged a belated rally and ran in three goals. The Richard-Blake-Lach line accounted for five Canadien markers with Blake and Richard shooting a pair each and Lach getting the fifth.

"The undergraduates and alumni both need athletics," Lew argues—neglecting to add that the guys in the athletic department would be in a tough spot without them . . . The word at Washington last night as to the work-or-fight situation in connection with sport programs in the United States was that a presidential committee and J. Monroe Johnson, director of defence transportation, will ask James Byrnes for an over-all definition of policy as a guide for wartime athletic activities. The director of war mobilization was expected to rule as to whether basketball tournaments, track meets and other sports would come under the ban on conventions.

The office of defence transportation virtually suggested cancellation of events by sports promoters but the whole question is expected to be ansyered by Burnes.

Pittsburgh Hornets' sails are deflated today if they thought they were good last Sunday when they smashed Indianapolis Capitals' home record of 16 games without a defeat. The American Hockey League pace setters laced Hornets 5-1 last night in the only scheduled league game, at Indianapolis.

Two goals by Connie Poitras sparked the Caps' triumph. Bob Walton scored Hornets' only goal and the other Indianapolis marksmen were Dick Kowcinak, Larry Thibeault and Bill Thomson.

Racing Breeder Urges Steps To Maintain Stock

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEWMARKET, England, Jan. 12 (CP)—Jovial Lord Rosebery, Britain's leading racing breeder in 1944 and president of the powerful Thoroughbred Breeders' Association, told the annual meeting that "racing is the shop window by which we prove the goodness or otherwise of our wares," and stressed the urgent need of more racecourse tests if Britain's world-wide reputation for bloodstock was to be maintained.

The British thoroughbred was a commodity desired all over the world, he said. Before the war Britain exported an average of more than 1,000 animals a year. The demand now was greater "but if we are closed down much longer in the manner we are at present, the future outlook will be bad" he added in reference to the lack of export facilities, curtailed race meets and labor shortage during wartime.

He expressed the hope the government would allow more flat racing next year—only five tracks have been allowed to operate on a limited basis in England during the last few years of war—and noted that a limited amount of steeplechasing, only major sport banned in Britain during the war, will start again soon after a two-year absence.

"India, Australia, New Zealand, South America and North America all want our thoroughbreds," he added. "They want to buy the best and therefore they must come here. But I would like to give this warning, that if they cannot buy the best they will go elsewhere for the second best, because they are short of bloodstock."

Urges Thoroughbred Export

He said the government had expressed a wish to increase export trade generally and that he would like to obtain the backing of the Chancellor of the Exchequer with a view to thoroughbred exports because "once people get used to the second-best they do not have the same incentive to buy the best and we will be in danger of losing these markets, or at any rate, a considerable part of them, for good.

"I would also point out that these animals have to be proved on the racecourse before sale. That is why I hope we will have more racing in the near future."

Speaking of the labor problem and general war needs, Lord Rosebery told the breeders that "we have all been at our wits' end to try and keep our stud farms going."

"The fine old pasture which is so necessary for horse breeding has, in many cases, been plowed up (for agriculture) and will not be right for years to come."

Labor would remain a problem for some time, not only in the stud but in the racing stable. As an instance, he said the "boy" who exercised Derby winner Ocean Swell is 73 years old. Another "lad" was exercising horses 50 years ago.

"If we could get more labor there is no doubt there would be more horses in training," he added.

Noting that when France and Belgium were liberated racing was allowed twice a week in Paris and three times a week in Brusssels, he said that "if it can be allowed to flourish on the continent we may reasonably expect better treatment in this country."

Rangers Upset Bruins Tied For Fourth

By The Canadian Press

New York Rangers rode a full-size playoff boom today after handing Boston a decisive 5-1 trouncing which lifted them into a fourth-place tie with the Bruins in the National Hockey League. The triumph stretched Blueshirts' unbeaten streak to five games.

In last night's other game at Montreal, Canadiens regained sole possession of first place over Detroit by turning on their season-long tormentors, Toronto Maple Leafs, for a 7-4 victory.

Leading part in keeping the Ranger string alive was played by Centre Fred Thurier, who tallied one goal and set up two others, including Walter (Ants) Atanas' game-winning shot late in the second period.

The New Yorkers continued the close-checking brand of hockey to which Coach Frank Boucher credits their surprising upsurge, and after Jack Crawford scored in the first minute of play Bruins gave Goalie Ken McAuley little trouble.

Hank Goldup tied it up midway through the period and the two clubs battled evenly until Atanas' payoff goal. Kilby Macdonald repeated within two minutes and Grant Warwick and Thurier added insurance in the final session.

Bob Bill was lost from Rangers already short-handed defence staff when he was cut over the eye by a flying puck.

In scoring their second win of the season over Toronto, Canadiens shook Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Toe Blake loose for two goals each. Centre Elmer Lach helped his potent wingmen to three tallies and got one himself.

Leafs were faced with a landslide reverse until Habitant defensive lapses gave them openings for three goals in the last five minutes of play. After a five-goal Montreal barrage in the second period, it appeared only a question of how high the Frenchmen would run their total.

For Toronto, Sweeney Schriner indicated his return to form after a long layoff by bagging two goals. Nick Metz and Babe Pratt scored the others.

Dutch Hiller and Butch Bouchard were the other scorers for Montreal.

Axe Is Held Over Heads Of Hawks

OTTAWA, Jan. 12—(CP)—Johnny Gottselig, who is scouting Eastern Canada and the United States for hockey talent, said here last night that Bill Mosienko, who scored 70 points for Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League last season and has garnered 24 so far this season, is the only player now on the club's roster who can be sure of finishing the season with the Hawks.

Gottselig said President Bill Tobin was prepared to cut loose any players except Mosienko in the interests of future campaigns. Tobin and Paul Thompson, Hawks' manager-coach, were well pleased with the deal which brought them the Cully Simon, Don Grosso, Butch McDonald trio.

Slack, who has a good diamond name anyway, will tryout with the Winston-Salem Club in North Carolina, and might get a chance with the current world champions later if he shows enough promise....Oh, sing us that lullaby-Byrnes.

Sont la:

In line with the current fad in Montreal of comparing Rocket Richard with Howie Morenz, they're saying now the new stickhandling find, "Kitoute" Joanette may be a second Aurel Joliat. Probably before the season ends, we'll have a complete team compared with those famous Canadiens of yore who drew the plaudits of the Eastenders.

Anti-social:

The story behind the story circulated now is that Earl Seibert drew his discharge from Chicago Black Hawks because he just would not mix with the boys, and apparently wasn't willing to give his best for the Windy City six. The late Maj. Fred McLaughlin is said to have kept Seibert on with the Hawks, but as soon as he died, the rest of the boys in the front office lost no time getting rid of the big lad.

Merry-go-round:

Favorite pastime of the sportsters right now is trying to figure out that strange round-robin situation in the N.H.L. where Detroit clouts Toronto Leafs, Leafs dismay Canadiens, and the Montrealers put the skids under Red Wings right royally. The experts can understand how Leafs can put up such a good fight against Canadians, who play a more wide-open game than the canny Wings, but just why the paper-inferior Leafs can handle Canucks has everyone stymied and almost believing in psychological warfare.

Oshawa Gives Up Junior Laurels To St. Michael's College Majors

TORONTO, Jan. 12—(CP).— St. Michael's College Majors, roaring through their Ontario Hockey Association schedule at a terrific 11-goal-a-game clip, are writing an emphatic "finis" to Oshawa Generals' long domination of provincial junior hockey.

Led by Johnny Blute and Leo Gravelle who together have sniped 34 goals in 10 starts, Majors are unbeaten in the six-team Junior "A" dery and their only serious rivals, St. Catharines Falcons, are beginning to fade. Falcons have dropped their last two games after putting up a dogged struggle for leadership.

Charlie Conacher's Generals are mere ghosts of the great Oshawa team that swept to the 1944 Memorial Cup. They are barely holding third place against Galt Red Wings and Toronto Young Rangers, respectively tenants of fourth and fifth. Toronto Marlboros, with a single triumph in 11 games, are in the league cellar.

Competition is a bit keener in the O.H.A. senior circuit, where Hamilton Majors lead by two points over St. Catharines Saints. Three standbys of last year, Johnny Conick, Dillon Brady and Doug Runions, are supplying a big part of the Hamilton scoring punch.

Toronto Staffords, other loops member, have only one win and two draws in eight games but are showing improvement and may make it a three-cornered battle before the schedule closes in February.

In the Ottawa Senior League, Hull Volants and two Capital teams, Canadiens and Montagards, are in a three-way tie for leadership. Two Smiths Falls clubs, Rideaus and Mic-Macs, are tied for first place in the Rideau District League, with Prescott running second. Westport, Carleton Place and Perth share the cellar.

Johnny Blute Retains Lead

TORONTO, Jan. 12 (CP)—Fattening his average in his team's 18-2 victory over Marlboros last week, Johnny Blute retained his position atop the Junior O.H.A. scoring race with 34 points.

Roseneath WMS Hears Report

ROSENEATH, Jan. 12.—(ENS).— The regular meeting of the W.M.S. was held on Tuehday night in Mrs. A. Nill's home.

The theme of the devotional period was 'The Kingdom of God in This Community,' and leading in prayer were: Mrs. W. Smith, Mrs. R. Crego, Mrs. G. L. Tucker, Miss Helen Weir and the president, Mrs. R. C. White.

rMs. A. Nill was appointed recording secretary during the absence for the winter of Mrs. M. Davey. The financial statement for the past year as prepared by the treasurer, Mrs. J. A. Nichol, and read by Mrs. C. W. Varcoe in the former's absence, was as follows: Receipts: Balance from 1943, $12.81; membership and presbyterial fees, $4.90; systematic givings, $25.50; offerings, $12.08; special collection for Batawawa church, $9; Easter Thankoffering, $19.25; autumn Thankoffering, $24.35; sale home cooking, $16.16; afternoon tea, $17.70; Christmas bazaar, $63.15; donations, $20.50. Total $225.40.

Expenses: To Batawawa church $9; to presbyterial treasurer, $190; presbyterial tax, 90c; balance on hand, $25.50. Total $225.40.

Miss Clarice Atkinson, Mission Band leader, reported the number of meetings held 11 and the average attendance 8. Money raised through membership fees, collections and Thankofferings, and forwarded to presbyterial treasurer, $8.11.

Mrs. Varcoe read a letter from Mrs. Lily Turner thanking the society for the gift of a life membership certificate and the members for the gift of a life membership pin.

It was suggested the February donation towards a bazaar be a tea towel and Mrs. White invited the members to the parsonage for the February meeting, Miss Helen Weir volunteered to present the study and Mrs. G. L. Tucker volunteered as a program convener.

Study Philippines.

Mrs. A. J. Campbell presented chapter four of the study, 'West of the Date Line,' and introduced fellow Christians in the Philippines, 13,000,000 of them. Mrs. Campbell dealt with the situation of the islands, more than 7,000 of them, their relationship to other parts of the world, the diverse customs and religions, previous and present ownership, the methods employed by the United States to introduce Christianity into the islands." It has been claimed that, previous to capture by Japan the islands had the highest standard of living in the Far East. Repatriated persons recently arrived on the Gripsholm report there are still 435 missionaries on the islands, said Mrs. Campbell in conclusion.

Mrs. Varcoe, program convener, announced the numbers as follows: A group of readings on 'Personality' by Mrs. Sam Black; a piano solo 'Prelude in C. Sharp Minor' by Rachmaninoff played by Miss Clarice Atkinson, and two readings, the first, 'In the Valley With Jesus,' her own composition, and the second number was entitled 'Pity the Preacher.' Rev. R. C. White closed the meeting with prayer and the hostess served refreshments.

That was the way Seaman Edwin Long and Theone Clifford got married, just two weeks after they met at the stand—and argued over whose nickel was going into the juke box.*

Holder Of Amazing War Record RAF Sky Veteran, Now Missing

GLASGOW, Scotland, Jan. 12 — On a sultry, windless afternoon in September 1939 a dark-haired lad lounged in the stern of a trim cutter in the middle of Pembroke Bay. Lazily he watched a swimmer coming nearer and recognized a friend.

The swimmer scrambled aboard—with order to Guy Penrose Gibson, 21-year-old pilot officer, to cancel leave and report at once.

Forty-eight hours later Gibson was bombing Kiel. That was the start of the most amazing record of the war.

In the five years since, Guy Gibson has packed more adventure, earned more medals, added more lustre to the Air Force—where all are heroes—than perhaps any other man to date.

At 26 he is a veteran, a V.C., a double D.F.C., and a double D.S.O. Now he is added to the list of gallant flyers who "failed to return."

On the night of September 19 last he led a pin-point attack on Rheydt, in Prussia. As master bomber he flew low, directing the bombs on the target. At 21.45 hours his voice, calm, unhurried, and precise, was heard over the "inter com." —"Come in now to bomb. M for Mother. J for Joseph."

That was the last that was heard of him.

Wouldn't Stop

From the first day raid on Kiel Gibson was mad to be in the thick of it. They just couldn't ground him.

Even on his "rest" nights he made single-handed attacks on such highly-defended objectives as the Tirpitz, then completing at Wilhelmshaven.

When Goering sent the Luftwaffe to destroy the cities of Britain in 1941 he was due for a break. Instead he wangled a change to night-fighter pilot. In three months he made 69 sorties, and bagged four Huns and probably destroyed two others.

"I watched the cities of Britain burn, and just thirsted for revenge," he said once with, for him, unusual bitterness.

Asked what he thought about over Germany, he replied—"I am the only one left of 25 who joined with me. I think of them."

The skeleton story of his career is revealed by the dates of his citations:—

July 10, 1940, awarded D.F.C.;
October 10, 1940, a bar to D.F.C.;
November 17, 1942, D.S.O.;
March 30, 1943, a bar to D.S.O.;
May 28, 1943, Victoria Cross.

At the time of his V.C. he had put in 600 hours operational flying and had dropped 370,000 pounds of bombs. Berlin (five times), Cologne, Danzig, Gdynia, Genoa, Le Creusot, Milan, Nuremberg, and Stuttgart—he had bombed them all.

All his medals were for "contempt for personal danger, outstanding bravery, devotion to duty, magnificent example to others."

The Victoria Cross was awarded for his dam-bursting epic.

One of his regrets was that he had to bomb the Monastery at Cassino. "Another score to settle with the Huns," he said.

A Crowded Life

On the ground his life was as full as in the air.

Since the war started he has married, been nominated for Parliament, toured Canada and the United States with the Premier, made recruiting and hospital appeals, becomes a blood donor, and found time to devote to his hobbies, chief of which are reading the classics, tinkering with his car, and sailing.

Even to his wife Gibson would never "shoot a line" on his flights. The day he bombed the dams she got the details from an evening paper. She had believed he was "pen pushing" at the Air Ministry that day.

There's a story behind the code word used by Gibson to announce the successful breaching of the dams. It is said Whitehall and Washington listened in to the operation.

Gibson was much attached to his black labrador, Nigger. He often took the dog up with him. Nigger was killed the day before the dam exploit. Gibson was heartbroken, but he chose the code word "Nigger" for next day.

After his V.C. exploit and his trip to America it was intended to keep Gibson on the ground. He was given a staff job. But he made the life of his superiors almost unbearable until he was allowed to resume bombing on a "limited scale."

In March of this year he declined to stand for Macclesfield, although nominated, because "the war absorbs all my energies."

When they nominated him as Chief Scout in succession to Lord Somers he replied, "I was a Scout, but only passed my cooking test."

In fact, he has only one unrealized ambition—to bomb Tokyo.

Narrow Escapes

Gibson had probably more hair-breath escapes than any other flyer. But he wouldn't talk about them. "I've only been shot up half a dozen times," he would grin.

One narrow squeak he couldn't hush up was when a shell hit his rudder bar, wedged and failed to explode. It now adorns the mess at his station.

Another time flak cracked his batteries and nearly gassed him with the fumes of the sulphuric acid. "I opened the hatch. Lucky it was a summer day and I could breathe," he said, "but I was scared to death."

He has only one superstition—his old yellow sweater he wears for luck.

The last view his aerodrome staff saw of him was when he climbed into his Lancaster for the last raid. A photographer snapped him as he ran up the ladder.

Gibson turned and grinned. "Be sure you let my wife have a snap," he shouted.

In every R.A.F. mess they cling to the hope he will yet return. They remember him as a great guy.

YPU Hears Talk On Authors

HAVELOCK, Jan. 12 — (ENS) — Miss G. McCorvie of the High school staff was the guest speaker at the first meeting of the year of the Young People's Society of the United church and gave an interesting talk on Canadian writers, prose and poetry, entitled, "All Aboard," a trip across Canada in literature.

With a map to illustrate the regions discussed, Miss McCorvie started at Vancouver and continued across Canada to Halifax. As samples of various writers' works, Miss Ruth Wilkinson read Pauline Johnson's poem, "Canadian Born" and John Wilkinson read "Chased by Wolves," an excerpt from Ralph Connor's book, "The Man From Glengarry." A vocal solo, entitled, "The Stranger of Galilee," was sung by Miss Jacqulyn Puffer.

The Christian culture convener, Miss Lorraine Pages, conducted the program. During the devotional period, Rev. J. W. Wilkinson offered prayer and the scripture lesson, Psalm 23, was read by Miss Beverley Bennett.

The meeting was closed with the Mizpah benediction and a social half-hour under the direction of Miss Joyce Fielding, was enjoyed.

London Dangers Equal Those At Front—Jack Downer

London can be just as dangerous a place to be as in the thick of heavy fighting in Sicily, judging from a recent experience of Pte. Jack W. Downer, 458 Bolivar street, who has just returned from overseas, after being injured in Sicily last July, while serving with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

He was in a house in London when a Nazi bomb landed near-by, practically destroying the place, and killing residents of neighboring houses. Although he came through the narrow escape unscathed, he still has in his possession a small fragment of the German missile.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Downer, this soldier holds high admiration for the English people, carrying on their daily work and living in the face of terrible danger. This is a sentiment expressed by practically every Peterborough soldier who has been in the British Isle in wartime.

Pte. Downer suffered spine injuries in Sicily on July 16, 1943, after being thrown from a truck. He was taken to North Africa, and spent some time in hospital there. He also contracted the sand rash, an ailment peculiar to desert countries.

Later, he was returned to a hospital in England, where he has spent most of the time until returning to Canada. He is now home on 30-days leave.

A former employee of the Canada Packers Company, Pte. Downer was married in England in December, 1944, and his wife is expected to arrive in Canada in a few weeks' time.

He enlisted in April, 1941, and went overseas in September, 1942. Where he will go after his leave is for the army to decide, but according to Mr. and Mrs. Downer, "he likes the army,...and always has; and he wants to stay in it until the war is over."

Veterans To Get Prompt Action

OTTAWA, Jan. 12 — (CP) — Veterans Minister Mackenzie has told a meeting of government employees that weaknesses in veterans legislation will be corrected as quickly as they are discovered, it was announced Thursday.

Representatives of departments dealing with veterans met to discuss uniformity in the interpretations and administration of legislation.

Mr. Mackenzie said men leaving the services must be handled "with ability and humanity."

"There is no limit to the value of the work which can be done," he added, "for those people who work with veterans are the ones who enable them to bridge the gap between the battlefield and normal civilian life.

"All that you can do, all that I can do, and all that my department can do, never will be enough to compensate these veterans for what they have done for Canada. There may be flaws in the re-establishment program, but they will be corrected as soon as we can find them."

PTE. THOMAS TRIPP

Pte. Tom Tripp Italy Casualty

For the second time since landing in Italy, Pte. Thomas Tripp, 26-year-old Crawford's Grove soldier, has been wounded in action, according to information reaching his mother, Mrs. Harry Tripp. No other information was given in the brief telegram, except that the wound was of a slight nature, and occurred in December.

Previously, Pte. Tripp suffered wounds in the neck and back, while taking part in heavy Italian fighting. After spending about a month in the hospital in Italy, he returned to the front lines.

Pte. Tripp's brother, AB. Herbert Tripp, who is now serving aboard H.M.C.S. Prince David, recently hitch-hiked more than 200 miles to see him, but Pte. Tripp had returned to the Italian front only two hours before the sailor arrived. Both were extremely disappointed at the narrow margin of time which separated them from seeing each other. AB. Tripp has seen considerable action while serving with the Canadian naval forces, in the Mediterranean theatre.

Before enlisting, Pte. Tripp was working in Alberta. He enlisted in September 1943, and went overseas in December of the same year. A younger brother, Bud, is at sea with the Merchant Marine.

Blind People Given Free Bus Rides

Through the cooperation of the Peterborough Bus Company, local blind men and women and now permitted to ride without charge on city bus lines. This announcement was given out at a meeting of the Peterborough Advisory Board of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, held Thursday afternoon, with W. C. Hughes in the chair.

A few days before Christmas a special letter was sent out to all blind persons in the city notifying them of this decision. "It is the finest Christmas present," stated Mr. Hughes "that any local firm could possibly give our blind folk." A resolution was passed thanking the Peterborough Bus Company for their consideration and generosity. Mrs. R. Whalon, welfare convener, stated that all blind persons in the city and county had been remembered at Christmas time by gifts of clothing, fruit and groceries and that several others had been supplied with fuel and cash as welfare relief assistance.

A financial statement read at the meeting showed that an expenditure of $2,953.39 had been made durign the fiscal year on behalf of 59 blind persons, of which $2,220.95 was spent on work in the city of Peterborough and $732.64 in the county. Towards these expenditures, the Board received $2,500 from the Red Cross and Community Fund, a grant of $100 from the county council and $200 from tag days held during the year in several small communities in the county.

It was felt by those present that the work being done throughout the county area deserved greater recognition and stronger financial support by the county council. A resolution was passed authorizing a deputation to go before the county council in session next week and request a grant for $700 for 1945.

H. W. Henry, field secretary of the Institute, himself blind, was present at the meeting and pointed out the increase in the blind population in the last four years. He suggested that when drawing up a budget for 1945, the Board should allow for further increases.

Those present were: Miss Betty Lytle, Mrs. R. Whalon, Mrs. Stanley Higgins, Mrs. G. K. Fraser, Miss R. Young, Mrs. Frank Lynch, Miss Agnes Grant, Mrs. E. V. Morphet, W. C. Hughes, T. T. Rodger, H. W. Henry.

After her basic training at Galt, she became a sick bay attendant and has been stationed at Cornwallis. Since arriving overseas, the young Wren is stationed at Niobe, Scotland, where there are several Peterborough boys.

Two out of three of the Doleman family are serving in the forces. In addition to having her daughter in the Navy, Mrs. Doleman's husband, Pte. Ed Doleman, is stationed at Petawawa with the Veteran's Guard.

Beggar Given Month In Jail

Calvin Cruikshanks, 41, no fixed address, who pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court to a charge of begging asked the court for three months in jail.

"I am not going to ask the county to keep an able-bodied man like you for three months," said His Worship.

Cruikshanks said that he was suffering from chest trouble and that three months imprisonment would give him a chance to regain his health and let him out in the spring when he promised he would go to work.

Magistrate Langley sentenced the accused to a month in jail and warned him that if he came before the local court again on a similar charge he would be sent to the Burwash Reformatory where he would have a lot of hard work to do.

Cruikshanks was arrested soon after being released from a week's sentence for begging.

Three Casualties

Three men from the Peterborough district have been reported casualties while serving overseas with Canada's armed forces. Pte. Keith Eldon Gemmill, son of Mrs. Margaret A. George Albert Shea has been listed as slightly wounded. He is the son of Mrs. Martha T. Shea, R.R. 6, Lindsay. On active service with an Eastern Ontario regiment, Pte. Robert Barlow, of Brighton, has been reported slightly injured. His wife is Mrs. Shirley Barlow.

Husband, Wife Both Die Within A Week

Death did not tarry long in reuniting Mr. and Mrs. George Albert Lee, whose home for many years has been at 175 Edinburgh street.

An employee of Richard Hall Limited for thirty-three years, George Lee died at his home a week ago, on Friday, January 5, and was buried at the Little Lake cemetery last Monday.

On Monday, January 15 the body of Mrs. Lee will be laid at rest beside her husband. Death had left them separated only one week.

Mrs. Lee died this morning at Nicholls Hospital of paralysis with which she was stricken early last Sunday morning.

Apparently in good health late last Saturday night she had left the Belleghem funeral home, where the body of her husband was resting until Monday afternoon. During her widowed vigil there, it was reported, she had expressed her sympathy to the relatives of a woman friend who had died just about the same time and whose remains lay in state in an adjoining room of the funeral home. It was said she had casually but prophetically, as it eventually applied to herself, remarked, "You never know when it is going to hit you.

Mrs. Lee suffered a stroke only a short time after she reached her home and had retired, early Sunday morning. In the extraordinary circumstances of the conjunction of time and fatality affecting the heads of the doubly bereaved family, Mrs. Lee was gravely ill at home when her husband's funeral took place Monday afternoon. She followed him in death early this morning.

Mrs. Lee was born in Peterborough sixty-five years ago, daughter of the late Henry Manley and his wife, Susan Colon. She had lived here all her life, and had been a member of George Street United church and an ardent helper in its affairs. Mrs. Lee is survived by three sons, Kenneth and Allan at home, and Gordon J. Lee in Italy with the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, and one daughter, Mrs. Ernest Henwood of this city; also by three sisters, Mrs. W. Cox of Vancouver, Mrs. L. J. Sprague of New York and Mrs. T. H. Bullied of Toronto.

The funeral will take place Monday at 2.30 p.m. from the Belleghem Funeral Home, 190 Hunter street, to the Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Dr. Semple will conduct the services.

Three Pay Fines For Cafe Brawl

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., issued a warning in police court that the next person convicted of causing a disturbance in the Louis Cafe, Charlotte street, will be given a jail sentence.

A few days ago three men and women were fined for being involved in a fight in the cafe and this morning three more men were charged with causing a disturance in the same place Thursday night.

William Graham, Wellington street, Arthur Pearl, Stewart street and Ray McIlmoyle, Gilchrist street, all pleaded guilty and were each fined $10 and $1.75 costs.

"This is becoming too common an event," said Chief Constable John W. Thompson, who told the court that there had been a fight in the Louis Cafe Thursday night, resulting in the police being called in and the arrest of the three men who were arraigned this morning.

Magistrate Langley agreed that such disturbances were becoming too common and announced that henceforth jail sentences would be handed out instead of fines.

LONG SERVICE AWARD—RSM Fred Lockhart, MM, whose wife lives at 100 Ware street, has been awarded the first and second clasps to the Canadian Efficiency Medal, in recognition of long and efficient service with Canada's armed forces, it was announced today. He is now serving overseas with the S.D. and G. Highlanders.

2 Men Honored For Long Service

In recognition of long years of efficient service with Canada's armed forces, RSM. Fred Lockhart, M.M., and Musician P. J. DeCarlo, have been given Efficiency awards.

RSM. Lockhart, whose wife lives at 100 Ware street, has been awarded the first and second clasps to the Canadian Efficiency Medal, it was announced by the Department of National Defence today.

This soldier, who recently won the Military Medal while serving with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders overseas, has been with the army since October, 1924, when he enlisted in the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers. In 1936, the 57th Rangers was incorporated in the Prince of Wales Rangers (RF), and RSM. Lockhart remained with that outfit until August, 1940, when he enlisted in the S.D. and G. Highlanders. He went overseas with them in July, 1941, and has been serving in Europe since then. He won the Military Medal for the work in getting ammunition to his regiment when it was under severe shelling, and for saving part of the ammunition when a supply dump was hit by an enemy mortar. Before enlisting, RSM. Lockhart was a receiver at the C.G.E.

Musician P. J. DeCarlo, whose wife lives at 29 Victoria avenue, was awarded the Canadian Efficiency Medal. He has been stationed in Kingston for two years where he is a member of the D.D. 3 Band. This soldier enlisted with the old 57th Regiment in June, 1932, and remained with it after it was incorporated into the Prince of Wales Rangers (RF).

Another winner of the Canadian Efficiency Medal is RSM. F. J. Turner of Madoc. He is serving with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

The Canadian Efficiency Medal is awarded men who have served efficiently for 12 continuous years, in Canada's armed forces. The first clasp signifies an additional six years, while the second clasp is won for still another six years. When a soldier was in the reserve army in September, 1939, and subsequently joined an active regiment, each year spent active counts as two years.

Board Informed $271.95 Is 1944 Surplus

A general report on the year by the secretary-treasurer, Jack Huggins, informed members of the Board of Education at their inaugural meeting, Thursday night, that there was a small surplus of $271.95 in the general account from 1944.

He explained that a detailed financial statement had not yet been prepared, and he congratulated members of the old Board on the surplus. He pointed out that the 1944 estimates had been pared down drastically, and there had been several unexpected expenses such as the employing of additional help and the annexation of schools.

In his report, he also requested that the Board give him an assistant secretary. Mr. Huggins explained that in the past two years the office work had grown tremendously, and that things like the annexation meant additional work. He said the staff in 1944 had reached 180 and that the Board was doing business to the amount of $400,000 a year, which was no small thing. He declared that two people could not handle the job as efficiently as it should be done.

Since all committee chairmen are members of the Finance Committee, it was moved by Fred Reed and D. V. Canning that the matter be left with the Finance Committee to investigate office routine and the systems being used and report back to the Board.

To Sell Uniforms

The Students Council at the Peterborough Collegiate may not know it yet, but there is a possibility they may be going into the clothing business, as a result of a report by their principal, C. S. Browne, Thursday night.

In discussing the newly formed cadet unit, Mr. Browne reported that the Department of National Defence recalled that shortly before the cadets were disbanded, new uniforms costing $1,800 had been purchased and members asked if the uniforms they had could be sold.

The uniforms referred to consist of maroon berets, grey sweatshirts with the school crest stamped on and grey trousers, which are excellent for gym work. Mr. Browne said that he thought the Students Council might undertake the sale of the old uniforms which have been carefully kept.

About 250 army uniforms will be needed and the plan is that the Board of Education will pay $625 when they place the order; $625 12 months after delivery; and $625 24 months after delivery. The Department of National Defence gradually absorbs the cost, by making payments for a period of six years and longer if necessary. Mr. Browne requested that authorization be granted to make the purchase of new uniforms and on a motion by C. Alex Sollitt and D. V. Canning, this was done.

Stage Changes

Several other items in his report were referred to the Property Committee for investigation. Mr. Browne recommended that the superstructure of the school stage should be redesigned. He said it had originally been made for use by the students only, but since it was being rented, the facilities were not now adequate. There is a pressing problem due to lack of storage space. Above the fourth floor, there is an attic, unfloored, and a present articles are stored on the joyces. The principal said that if this area was floored it would take care of the problem.

Looking ahead to even more crowded conditions at the Collegiate at the beginning of the September term, Mr. Browne recommended that preparations might be made for the large crowd which will "stretch accommodation to the limit."

It was moved by Craw and Sollitt that the committee formed in 1944 to view this problem, continue working. Those serving are: Mrs. E. Parnall, Mrs. F. K. Harris, Carley, Canning, Sollitt and Craw.

Mr. Craw asked Mr. Browne if there were many discharged soldiers and airmen attending school. He was told there were four. Mr. Craw asked if there was any chance of the Board getting a grant for their education and Mr. Reed pointed out that they were all residents of Peterborough who had not been able to complete their final year in academic before they enlisted. Only those coming from outside points, would receive a grant, Mr. Huggins reported.

Final Payment

In Inspector Wightman's brief report, he reminded the Board that some action would have to be taken in making arrangements with the North Monaghan Board about the 118 pupils outside the city. Members have to know what they are going to get in the way of payment between January and June for the estimates. The chairman, T. J. Carley, named a special committee to look after the matter and members are: Craw, Reed, Canning and W. E. Bannon.

The Y.M.C.A. which rented the school auditorium during December for two carol services, one for adults, Sunday night, and one for school boys and girls during the week, asked for a refund. It was decided that since the affair during the week was for school children only, the rent for that occasion would be refunded. This was a motion by Craw and Sollitt.

A request from the North Monaghan School Board for the use of May's School for their regular and special meetings until their own school was fixed up, was granted on motion of Canning and Bannon. Any expenses incurred are to be borne by the visiting board.

P.O. FRED TANNER

Apsley Flier Finishes 32 Missions

The nicest Christmas present which P.O. Fred Tanner, overseas with the RCAF, received, was the announcement that he had completed his tour of operations over enemy territory. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tanner, Apsley.

Although only on operational duty for about six months, the young flier has made 32 trips, and not once was any member of his crew injured. He is through flying over enemy territory for a while, but he writes that he has not forgotten to say a prayer for the other men on the station as he hears them roar off in the darkness.

"You probably think that Christmas has made me unserviceable for writing, but really that is not the reason for neglecting you," he wrote his parents. "I guess it's because I feel I have nothing to worry about now. Little did I think six months ago when I began operational flying, that on December 24 I would complete my first tour over Germany. I am proud to say it's true and I am sure you will be proud to know that I was one of a swell crew fulfilling their duty as well as any crew on their first tour.

"I may say that you were never out of my thoughts at take-off time and with my little prayer I used to think how you at home were also praying for us too. Only too well do we realise that never once did we fly alone, unguided. It is an experience no man can ever forget. We are a few of the fortunate ones to see it through.

"On our last trip, we were directed to another drome and so because of bad weather, were forced to spend Christmas away from our station. Altogether we were away four days, but we appreciate the kind hospitality they showed us. They tried to make Christmas as bright as it would be at our own camp. But it is impossible to arrange for 200 extra fellows on such short notice."

Prior to enlisting, P.O. Tanner was employed at Braund's Charlotte street store. Since finishing his tour, he has been granted a 17-day leave and he was planning to spend it in Aberdeen, Scotland. The young flier has been serving as a gunner.

Living Room Suite Includes Studio Couch

A studio couch and not a chesterfield is the main piece of furniture in the first prize at the mammoth bingo being held at the Brock street rink next Monday. This change was made it is reported at the request of patrons who seem to favor a utility collection which consists of a studio couch, occasional chair, lounging chair, coffee table, end table and reading lamp, and these comprise the set which is the major prize.

Previously it had been reported the first prize was a chesterfield suite.

Jack Armitage, president of the club stated today the benches being made are comfortable and have backs on them so that patrons will be able to relax with a substantial back rest while playing bingo.

Two Men Fined Town Hall Fight

As a result of a fight in the Havelock town hall on the night of December 26, a Campbellford and a Marmora man were each fined by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning.

Morley Tanner, Campbellford, entered a written plea of guilty to creating a disturbance and Forrest Robinson, Marmora, who appeared in person, also pleaded guilty to a similar offence and both were fined $10 and $3.75 costs.

Earl Mahoney, who entered a written plea of guilty to being drunk in a public place in Havelock, was fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

The charges were laid by Chief William Aikens of Havelock.

Two charges against Harry Ferguson, Havelock, of drunken driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident were adjourned until January 17, at the request of W. J. Athur Fair who is acting for Ferguson.

The charges arose out of a recent accident on the premises of a Havelock service station.

Free Phone Service Enjoyed By Board

It couldn't happen, but it did, the Board of Education learned with a good deal of surprise at their inaugural meeting on Thursday night. A letter from the Bell Telephone Company brought the good news that free telephone service had been inadvertently given since December, 1940.

F. D. Tufford, manager, wrote that during an audit of their records, it was discovered that one hand telephone and one cut-off key which were installed in December, 1940, at the Collegiate, had not been charged for. This discrepancy has been verified by a visit and they are in good working order, he reported.

When the matter came up for discussion, T. J. Carley, the new chairman of the Board, remarked that it was a curious matter and surely the first time on record that the firm had slipped up.

"I didn't know they made mistakes," declared Walter Bannon.

"They're not charging for back service, so we'd better keep quiet," said D. V. Canning.

"We can't pay for back service, its not in the estimates," laughed Mr. Carley.

Women Assist Greatly In WPTB Work

The value and influence of consumer branches and their work to the country, and the continuing vital part women could play in keeping price control, were stressed by Mrs. C. M. Wright, of Toronto, addressing a special meeting of the Consumer Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Thursday afternoon in the Y. W. C. A

Mrs. Wright is an economist in the Toronto office of the W. P. T. B., and is also national convener of price study panels. She explained that the laaison officers to the Consumer Branch represent from two to three million women, and that the value of their work hould not be underestimated. She said that the comments and question of liaision officers were forwarded their regional offices. and then summarized and sent to Ottawa, and urged them to realize that they were working for the good of consumers as a whole.

The speaker said that, on the whole, the price cailings were being kept very well, and that most infractions were inadvertant. She felt that citizens realized the difficulties in keeping a breast of changing orders and conditions, and that merchants appreciated clarification of the orders, and corrections in their pieces. She defined the aims of the work as reasonable prices, and a good supply of necessary articles.

Improve on Clothing.

Discussing the work done in consumer problems, Mrs. Wright stressed particularly the clothing situation, and the great strides made. She said that the manufacture of every garment was under administration, and quality was regularly checked but again mentioned the value of individual investigation by liaison officers. Labelling orders have brought the greatest protection to the consumer, she went on.

In speaking of prices for new articles, Mrs. Wright said that they would be on a basis comparable to that of the basic period. In connection with this question of new articles, she mentioned the necessity of reaching the young people of Canada, since they will represent a large part of the post war buying group. She urged that it was most important that they be made to realize the effects of inflation, so that they would not pay too much for new goods, not getting the full value for their money.

On the subject of prices, Mrs. Wright urged the formation of a price study panel in Peterborough, and volunteers were asked to make monthly reports on various commodities. The reports are to be handed to the chairman, and then forwarded to the regional office.

Mrs. Wright was introduced by Mrs. H. H. Graham. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served, with Mrs. R. Parnall and Mrs. V. R. Henry in charge.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Our recipes today consist of different ways of cooking chicken. Our first is a broiled chicken but, unless you are quite certain the chickens are tender, it is wise to steam them first. This may be done as follows: Set the dripping pan in a moderate oven (350 degrees-400 degrees) and nearly fill it with boiling water. Place two sticks across the pan extending from side to side, and upon them lay the chicken. Invert a tin pan over it, close the oven door and let the chicken steam slowly for half an hour. Transfer the chicken from this vapor bath to a wire broiler, turning the inside to the fire first. Broil until the chicken is tender and brown, turning it frequently. If the chicken is small, it will cook in 15 minutes or less. Do not have too hot a fire Lay the chicken on a warm platter spread it with butter, sprinkle with salt, and pepper and serve at once.

Chicken Pot-Pie.

One chicken, 3 tablespoons flour salt and pepper, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk. Clean singe and cut up the chicken. Place it in a pot and nearly cover with water Cover the pot and simmer gently. An old fowl will require at least three or four hours slow cooking but a year-old chicken should be done in 1½ hours. Remove the cover during the last half hour of cooking, to reduce the gravy to about 1½ pints when done. Three quarters of an hour before time to serve, make dumplings. When dumplings are ready to serve, add salt and pepper to the chicken and make the gravy by adding to the liquor in the kettle. 3 tablespoons flour, stirred to a paste in one cup of milk. Skim out the chicken, lay it on a platter, place the dumplings on top and pour the gravy over all.

The Experts Say . . . . .

By The Canadian Press

OTTAWA, Jan. 12 — (CP). — LUMPY SUGAR: When you start in to bake and find the sugar is lumpy, you must sift before you measure. And did you know that white sugar should be measured with a light touch, like flour, while brown sugar should be packed down tightly in the cup?

LEATHER PATCHES: Most of us have heard of using the best parts of old worn-out gloves for patches, but it's a new wrinkle to use the leather from handbags that have seen their best days. The heavier leather....in larger pieces, too, make fine reinforcement for the knees of children's snow suits.

FRESH BREAD: To keep bread fresh and mould-free store it in the refrigerator....wrapped loosely in waxed paper to keep it moist.

MORE COLD SENSE: If you are having trouble with your angora sweater or mitts shedding their fuzz tie them up in a paper bag and tuck them in the ice-box when they are not in use. Angora threads stay in one piece when they are kept cold.

RAYON STOCKINGS have to be pampered these days. Since they are weakest when wet, dry slowly and feel dry before they actually are they must be hung carefully on a smooth rod and allowed at least 36 hours' drying time for maximum wear. To speed drying roll them in a towel and press gently after the washing, to absorb moisture. Theh unroll them and hang them up.

LIGHT UP: Dust on light bulbs and lamp shades robs you of some of the light you pay for....so keep the bulbs shining clean by dusting them gently with a dry cloth, and whisk or wipe the shades once in a while. Also, to keep the light bill within reason, have family make it a habit to turn lights out when they leave a room.

NOT DRY-CLEANABLE: Nowadays when something terrible happens to your clothes when they are dry-cleaned....if they shrink skin-tight, or the seams pull out or the belt falls to pieces....it's a tragedy especialy since the Prices Board tell us the need for clothing conservation will be more urgent in 1945.

So avoid these when you are buying clothes:

Glued-together belts which are hard, if not impossible, to clean. Fabric, leather or imitation leather pasted on buckles or backs of belts may come loose or fray in cleaning. Or softened glue or stiffening may discolor the belt.

Narrow seam allowances are no insurance against strain, so watch for generous seam allowances especially in loosely-woven crepes and other rayons, velvets and velveteens.

VEIL STARCHER: To restore that crisp look to droopy hat veils, press them over a piece of waxed paper with a medium hot iron.

F.B.I., Mounties Working In Cooperation

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (CP) — One of the seldom-publicized phases of Canadian-American co-operation was emphasized here this week when the Federal Bureau of Investigation National Police Academy opened a 14-week specialized course with 83 students including City Detective William Thompson of Toronto.

It was the largest class in the years the National Academy has functioned, says J. Edgar Hoover, F.B.I. director. In almost every case at least one Canadian police officer has been among the students.

Similarly the Royal Canadian Mounted Police classes, conducted at Regina, frequently have American law officers among their students.

The two great law enforcement agencies work together closely, with an F.B.I. officer always on duty in R.C.M.P. headquarters in Ottawa and an R.C.M.P. assistant commissioner attached to the F.B.I. staff here.

These two officers act as liaison between the two organizations. If the F.B.I. discovered anything that might be of interest to Canadian authorities it passes it over to the R.C.M.P. officer who is virtually a member of the F.B.I. staff. He passes it along to Ottawa if he thinks the information is useful. Co-operation in Ottawa is the same.

Also these two liaison officers serve as intermediaries when one Bureau requires information from the other.

Waiting for U.S.A.

Fate of the proposed Food and Agricultural organization, a draft constitution for which was presented to the United and Associated Nations last fall by a committee headed by L. B. Pearson, now Canadian Ambassador-elect, rests largely upon the attitude adopted toward it by the United States Congress. Approval has been received from close to 20 countries but several others, including Canada, apparently are waiting to see what the United States does. President Roosevelt is expected to recommend approval within a matter of days. The proposed world organization would attempt to guide food and agricultural production into efficient channels throughout the world to ensure that unnecessary hunger does not exist anywhere. Congressional approval is expected to be granted without much debate.

Newspaper headlines here gave greater prominence to the Navy's prompt denial of Admiral Ingraham's warning to expect robot bombs on the American coast within 60 days than to the grim warning of death from the skies falling on New York and Washington which the Atlantic Fleet Admiral said would certainly come. An intra-departmental scrap is more interesting than the possibility of an air bombardment.

PIGEON BRINGS SECRET INFORMATION — When a weary homing pigeon, heading across the Channel from France, came to rest on a British tug, an important chain of events was kept intact and a Canadian corvette, HMCS "Mayflower," was given an unexpected chance to help speed the victory. The tired pigeon carried important information from a French patriot regarding gun emplacements and flying bomb platforms. It was sent aboard the "Mayflower" which broke wireless silence to send the information in code to shore authorities. The picture at the Left shows the pigeon being passed in a bag from the tug to the Canadian corvette and the one on the Right shows the well-bred and mannerly visitor taking its ease by a porthole of the wardroom on board the "Mayflower." (RCN Photo)

Pigeon Found On Convoy Tug Carries Secret Information To Captain

A BRITISH PORT, Jan. 12—How it ever selected the landing field it did, is something on one has been able to figure out since, but the pigeon which dropped in on a tug forming part of a Normandy-bound convoy during the early days of the invasion, performed a meritorious service by doing so.

There was one thing in particular which distinguished this particular pigeon from any other type of winged messenger that might pay a social visit to a naval craft. This pigeon was travelling on business—bearing a message which appeared to the tug's captain to be sealed army orders.

Without wasting time the tug informed the senior officer of the convoy, Lieut. Douglas "Pincher" Martin, R.C.N.V.R., Halifax, in H.M.C.S. Mayflower. It was dark at the time, but Mayflower closed in on the tug and the pigeon and message capsule were transferred aboard the veteran Canadian corvette.

Contents of the electrifying results after they had been translated by a young French-Canadian sailor, Signalman Andre Belland, R.C.N.V.R., of Montreal, serving in the "Mayflower." Despatched by a French patriot behind the German lines, the message was written in French on two long thin sheets of paper and contained most secret and important information concerning positions of German anti-aircraft guns, flying bomb sites, fortresses, troop train and tank movements.

Praised By Admiralty

Many words had been omitted, sentences were incomplete and other words were abbreviated. Most of the places and technical words in the message were unfamiliar to Belland. However, such a good job of translation was done by the young signalman that he was recently commended by Admiralty for his work.

So vital was the information that wireless silence was broken to notify shore authorities of the discovery. The information was coded and sent on its way, and it's safe to assume there were a few flying bomb platforms unoperational by the next night.

"Little fault was found with the translation," said Lieut. Martin. "Due to Signalman Belland, otherwise unreadable portions of the text were translated intelligently with consequent saving of time and possible life."

Belland, whose mother lives at 504 Bellechasse street, Montreal, has served in the Royal Canadian Navy for the past four years. He spent most of his time at sea except for a period at the naval base at Gaspe, Que. He is 28 years old, and has two brothers serving in Canadian warships. The three have met only once in nearly three years. Belland has been serving on board the "Mayflower" for two years.

Entertain Bird

The pigeon which carried the vital message was adopted temporarily by the officer of the "Mayflower," until it could be returned to duty. It was given freedom of the wardroom, which it inspected carefully from all angles for half an hour in a very polite and housebroken fashion.

But the pigeon's stay aboard the Canadian corvette was brief. When the convoy reached its destination, Lieut. Martin found the pigeon and its story provided a marvellous password for a speedy journey to Army headquarters, where already everything was in readiness to act upon the information in the message.

FIGHTERS NEVER CHANGE

Marriage Works No Miracles On Nervous, Irritable Girl.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am engaged to be married to a very beautiful and attractive girl, but she is always quarrelling with her family. Do you think, if we marry, that she will treat me the way she does her father and mother and sisters and brothers?

WORRIED.

ANSWER — I do. The marriage ceremony works no miracle that changes a woman's character and disposition. It does not turn a nervous and irritable girl into a placid and easy-going wife. It puts no honey on a shrewish tongue. It makes no pacifist out of a born fighter. What a girl was before marriage she will be afterwards, only more so, because after marriage she feels she can let herself go.

Meek Act Assumed.

It is very hard for a young man really to get any line on a girl's temper and temperament before marriage. All girls put on their company manners as well as their company clothes when a youth comes a-courting. They all act meek and mild and are so soft-spoken that butter wouldn't melt in their mouths. They laugh at a man's jokes, listen with absorbed attention to his conversation and are so easy to get along with that it seems a simple trick to handle a woman.

Naturally a girl who is trying to annex a meal ticket for life isn't going to call a man's attentions to her faults and weaknesses. She isn't going to tell him that the angelic disposition that he admires so much is camouflage. She isn't going to tell him of her own accord that she is selfish and lazy and extravagant. It is her place to conceal her faults. It is up to him to find them out if he can. And the only possible way in which he can do this is to get a close-up of her in the family circle.

The girl who cannot get along with her parents will not get along with her husband. If she "sasses" them, she will use her tongue as a two-edged sword upon her husband. If she is cross and irritable and makes scenes to get her own way in her father's house, she will be worse in her husband's house.

Therefore, unless a man enjoys a fight for the fight's sake, he does well to avoid the girl who is always quarrelling with her parents and brothers and sisters. And, unless he desires to be henpecked, he is wise if he sidesteps the girl who is the family boss.

A good daughter makes a good wife. Marry the girl who is sweet and lovely in her own home and she will bless yours.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX— I never met a woman who didn't wish that she was a man. I would like to know why they feel this way?

A MAN.

ANSWER—Well, virtually every woman wishes she was a man because this is a man's world and life is so much easier and pleasanter for men than it is for women. If a woman marries, she gets a worse deal than the man does, because she has to bear children and undergo the slavery of motherhood. If a woman goes into business, it is harder on her than it is on a man and she has far less chance of success than he has and is paid less for her work.

If a woman is talented and has spent years in perfecting herself in her particular line of work, she has to choose between it and love, but when a man marries, he

JUST FOR WOMEN

By CONNIE NICHOLSON (Society Editor of The Examiner)

Winter is here with a vengeance, and everyone is bundling up to the ears, and taking that old fur coat out of moth balls, donning it with sighs of thanksgiving, still remembering the "I won't put that thing on again" with which it was put away last year.

A fur coat is certainly the thing to battle cold biting winds, and the woman who is lucky enough to own one, should be doubly careful, since furs are more expensive now. Worn or ripped spots naturally should be given expert attention by a furrier. but with a litttle care and practice, a coat can be kept sleek and lovely looking for a longer period of time, and be more durable and attractive.

It should be remembered that furs must be kept in a moderate temperature, so that the skins will stay supple. When they become wet from snow or rain, never dry them in front of a fire or register or radiator, or even in a hot cupboard, because the skins tend to become weakened, and split with strain. The proper method for drying wet fur is to shake the coat out thoroughly, and follow with a brushing with a good, firm- bristled cleaning brush. Hang it up in a warm room, so that it is not rubbing against anything and let it dry slowly and thoroughly, giving it another shaking before wearing it again.

Light-colored furs have a tendency to pick up a thin film of grease and dirt, which hides their natural brilliance and gloss and shows up quite clearly. To give a new look to the coat or collar, shake it free of dust, and then, laying it over a newspaper, sprinkle the fur well with powdered magnesia, which can be bought in any drug store. Rub this powder in thoroughly, and then fold the coat with the fur inside, and wrap in clean paper or a fresh sheet or clothing bag.

Leave it folded for about three or four days, and then take the coat out and shake it thoroughly, and bush it free of the powder. Let it air out of doors, or in a cool, well-ventilated room. The powdered magnesia, which acts as an absorbent, draws out the dirt and grease film, and leaves the skins gleaming again.

Try It!

It never fails! Just when you are rushing around at the last minute, looking for that best pair of stockings, or the particular handkerchief to put in your blouse pocket a bureau drawer sticks. More haste, less speed, they say, and the gremlins certainly work overtime to make that adage "hold water."

However, whenever a spare moment presents itself, there's a way to eliminate a recurrence of temper-fraying sticky drawer. Just pull it all the way out, and rub the sliding edges lightly with sunny yellow bar soap. Slide the drawer back in and rub it into a perfect sliding surface. Presto! the gremlins effectively squashed, the drawer will work again as smoothly as can be.

Stain Stopper.

Ink stains are the bane of many a business girl's existence, since they have the annoying habit of appearing regularly, no matter how carefull she tries to be, on her fresh white blouses. It's true, they will disappear with repeated washings, but the trouble generally is that the blouses wear out before the stain.

However, there's always a silver lining to every cloud, and here's one of the newest ways to remove that nasty black or blue spot. If the stain is just fresh, and still wet, run cold water over it, and then soak the stained portion of the garment in milk. Better still, if it's available, is buttermilk. Keep squeezing the offending portion of material through the milk, changing it frequently, and the stain will disappear. Then, wash the blouse and it will be spotless again.

Another sure-fire stain remover, and a little more powerful, if a paste of peroxide and baking soda. If the stain is fresh, one or two applications will usually do the trick. If it has dried, allow the paste to remain on for a while, and then remove and wash.

Recipe for Starch.

Speaking of blouses brings to mind a pet peeve of the younger set, who wear blouses or sweaters and skirts most of the time. Most girls prefer to do their own washing, at least lingerie and blouses, and they find it difficult to hit the right proportions of starch to give a fresh lift to the material, without making it into a piece of sailcloth in a stiff breeze, or as limp as yesterday's lettuce.

Household linens and cottons, as well as dainty blouses, respond equally well to this easy starch recipe. Mix one quarter of a cup of starch with an equal amount of water, and stir it into a smooth paste. Gradually add a quart of boiling water stirring constantly, and then cook from three to five minutes, until clear. For a heavy starch results if one part of the solution to three parts of hot water. A medium starch results if one part of the solution to five parts of hot water is used, and a light starch can be made from one part solution and eight part of water. Remember that excess starch can be removed quickly from the iron, by running it over a sheet of waxed paper which has been sprinkled with a little salt.

Chiselling A Tip

DENVER, Jan. 12 — (AP). —A man weaved up to Ernie Arlein and, while holding four dollars bills in his hand, asked for a quarter. "You've got money," said Azlein. "That's right," the man replied. "Me and my buddy got enough for a steak dinner, but we haven't got the quarter for a tip."

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, January 13

DESPITE obstacles, delays postponements and other frustrating circumstances, this day may be a constructive and profitable one by aggressive and well-planned activities. Initiative and a prudent show of force and determination should be instrumental in breaking down depressions, normal limitations and all forms of thwarting persons or situations. Tact, patience and perseverance may prove effective, when more strenuous tactics fail and arouse reprisals.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may turn difficulties and depressions, with impediments and obstacles, into gainful and pleasant lines, by the use of tact, amiability, adherence to accepted codes and systems, or use of force and impetuosity or erratic conduct fail. With poise, vigilance and strict attention to details and accepted procedures unexpected success, with increased assets, profits and other material as well as sentimental returns may be looked for. Conflict at home should yield to finesse rather than force or strife.

A child born on this day should be active, energetic, forceful and ambitions, but should find that finesse, diplomacy and tact sometimes produce more happiness and material satisfactions.

Soccer Teams Enjoy Banquet

As a fitting climax to a successful soccer season in the Public School Soccer, King Edward School senior team, winners of the championship, along with the junior semi-finalists eleven, were entertained at a banquet on Wednesday evening at the school, when the Home and School Association members provided an excellent supper for the two teams.

Don Crawford, principal of the school, occupied the chair and intimated regrets of absence from Inspector K. S. Wightman and Stan McLeod. Invited guests were Rev. F. W. Craik, Stroyan Leith, Sr., and Gordon Langhorne, representing the Kinsmen Club.

Cup Presented

On behalf of the school team, Jack Byers, captain, accepted the new Kinsmen Soccer Trophy from Gordon Langhorne, who gave an interesting address on the activities of the Kinsmen, that were mainly to the advantage of the youth in the city. He complimented the boys on the superb co-operation that was production of great team-work to success. The club will fix a plate suitably inscribed on the base.

The new cup replaces the Alex Kay trophy that had been won by King Edward team for six years in succession, thereby holding the cup for "keeps."

During the evening, Captain Byers thanked the principal; Coach George Ball for the timely advice during the games that ultimately meant winning the championship; while J. Currie, coach of the junior eleven, proposed the "Thanks to the Ladies."

As a final entertainment for the evening three reels of motion-pictures were depicted on the screen. An R.C.A.F. reel recording events of the "Train Busters"; an Elephant Hunt; and a very instructive educational movie that described the method and training essential to running the 100 yards to 440 yards. 3 feet and 2 feet hurdles, also the method of running relay races and passing the baton.

merely adds a home and wife and children to his career. They are a help to him instead of a hindrance, as they are to a woman.

Finally, the world judges a man lightly and a woman cruelly. A man may sow his wild oats and be forgiven, but a woman who makes even a step off of the straight and narrow path is blacklisted by society.

It is because men get most of the perquisites in life that women wish they were men.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX— When a boy calls on a girl and the time comes when the call should end, should the girl suggest to him that it is time for him to go, or should he depart of his own accord?

EDWARD G.

ANSWER—The boy should be a self-starter. No girl should be put to the embarrassment of having to order a boy out of her house, or even suggesting to him in the most delicate and tactful way that she is weary of his company and that he had better take the air. And when you start to go, don't linger. Go as if you were shot out of a gun.

It did look, for the greater part of the evening as if he were going to get through without the usual "extra end" game, but along about 11 p.m. Percy DeWolfe played the shot that tied up the old game against E. Hand. This meant overtime and our record for one "extra end" game per night is still intact.

There were some real close finishes in last night's games and several games were decided on the last stone of the 10th end. Tom McArthur two down, going home, against B. Scott made a pickout shot to win by one point.

D. Maciver just nosed out I. Hamley, 7-6. George Sorenson got a last minute verdict over Dr. C. McKee. Eddie Williams breezed home a winner by the smallest of margins. He played against Tom Ryan.

C. Williamson was up only two points on C. Blewett. It did look as if the boys were playing for keeps.

Tonight we continue the schedule at 7:45 p.m. with B Group.

IS IT STRONG OR WEAK?

IT IS HARD to tell sometimes whether your partner's bid indicates strength or weakness, especially when he rebids his suit under certain circumstances. If his bid, however, indicates that the hand is a misfit, the disaster usually will be less if the declarer is the one with the weaker holding. The stronger hand, with fair honor strength in it, makes a pretty decent dummy for him, but his hand, so weak in high cards, is an almost worthless dummy for his partner.

North: ♠ Q J 10 6 4 2; ♥ 8 5; ♦ Q 6 5; ♣ A 3

West: ♠ 8 7 5; ♥ K Q J 10 3; ♦ A 10; ♣ Q 6 5

East: ♠ A K 3; ♥ 6 4 2; ♦ J 9 4 2; ♣ 7 4 2

South: ♠ 9; ♥ A 9 7; ♦ K 8 7 3; ♣ K J 10 9 8

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pass | Pass | 1 ♣ | 1 ♥ |
| 1 ♠ | Pass | 2 ♣ | Pass |
| 2 ♠ | Pass | 3 ♦ | Pass |
| 3 ♠ | Dbl | 3 NT | Dbl |

East was full of glee when his questionable double drove South into the unsound bid of 3-No Trumps, and it got set three tricks after West opened his heart K. Four tricks in that suit, two in spades and one in diamonds encompassed South's discomfiture.

When it was over mutual recriminations broke out. North argued that his second spade bid was clearly a signoff, especially since he had passed originally, and showed not much except plenty of spade length. South refused to accept that version, saying North had made a free bid over West's 1-Heart and that his rebids thereafter could not deny a fair hand. He said his own reopening of the bidding at 3-Diamonds, a very strong reverse call after starting with a lower-ranking suit, was justified because of his partner's free bidding.

There is none too much to be said in behalf of the complete argument of either partner, except the result. At 2-Spades, not doubled, North could not have received anything like the punishment eventually accorded his partner. But the hand is indeed another example of the value of having the weaker partner be declarer with a long suit.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ A 9 8 2; ♥ K 7 3 2; ♦ 10 4; ♣ 8 7 5

West: ♠ Q J 10 5; ♥ Q 9 8; ♦ A K; ♣ K J 6 4

East: ♠ 6 4 3; ♥ 5; ♦ Q J 9 7 5 3; ♣ 9 3 2

South: ♠ K 7; ♥ A J 10 6 4; ♦ 8 6 2; ♣ A Q 10

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

Following the diamond A and K, then a switch to the spade Q, how should South play for 4-Hearts if West had opened the bidding with 1-No Trump?

Agriculturists Hear Annual Report

APSLEY, Jan. 12 — (ENS) — The Agricultural Society held the annual meeting in Apsley House, and the president being unable to attend the first vice-president Mrs. W. Lean, conducted the meeting. The auditor's report was read showing a balance of $297.87 on hand for 1945, and the following directors reported on their classes:

Mrs Joseph Tucker reported for the Dom[illegible] science section, saying that t[illegible] was a larger exhibit in every class, particularly in pies. Mrs. F. McFadden said in the horticulture section that flowers were better than were usually exhibited, this in spite of the dry summer. Commenting on the needlework, Mrs. W. Lean said there were more entries than in 1943, and a good class of work was shown.

In the poultry section, A. Blakely reported a much larger list of entries than in any previous year and a better class of fowl. A. Downing reported a small showing of horses, while F. McFadden said cattle were about as usual, though sheep and swine had a much larger showing in 1944.

For the children's work, Mrs. A. Blakely said there was a satisfactory number of entries, but mostly along the same lines—penmanship and drawing. She suggested they be encouraged to do more sewing, woodwork, and birch bark work. W. Lean declared there was a better showing than usual in the vegetable display, both in amount and quality, and the judge, Mr. Davidson, remarked on the good quality of potatoes and onions.

Mrs. F. McFadden and W. Lean were appointed delegates to the convention to be held in King Edward Hotel on February 6-9.

The election of officers took place as follows: President, Joseph Tucker; first vice-president, Mrs. W. Lean; second vice-president, H. Harriss; directors, Mrs. Joseph Tucker, Mrs. Frank McFadden, Mrs. Robert Scott, Mrs. A. Blakely; A. Downing A. Blakely W. Lean F. McFadden and Walter Nelson; auditors Mesdames S. Brown and N. Wilson.

Meetings are to be held the third Tuesday of each month and meeting of women directors will be held on Thursday to revise the list of women's work and place special prizes.

No 1945 Federation Levy In N. Monaghan

Farmers of North Monaghan who subscribed to the tax levy plan of contributing to the support and expansion of the Federation of Agriculture are being asked for their sympathetic understanding of a clerical error in the very first levy for this purpose.

This is an optional method. Farmers can take it or leave it. If they approve it they affirm their hope in effectual organization of their business on a national basis.

The plan has been explained and advocated. It is now in application in seven Peterborough townships. North Monaghan is one, but a clerical error in that township set the 1944 Federation financing levy at ½ a mill instead of 1-5th of a mill.

At the Federation meeting Wednesday night it was explained that Monaghan authorities are retaining the half-mill amount to the credit of those who have paid it, except the one-fifth part payment which these farmers directed. The remainder will stand to their credit.

The amount is not large. Half a mill levy is only 50 cents on every $1,000 of assessment; and one-fifth of a mill is 20 cents on every $1,000.

Reeve M. H. Johnston confirmed this morning the explanation that was briefly discussed at the Federation meeting Wednesday night. He said he had mentioned it at the township nominations meeting, and the "old council" had decided that there should be no levy in 1945 for this purpose.

Cockney Applauds General Alexander

LONDON, Jan. 12—(CP)—Pte. Charlie English, a 22-year-old cockney, marched against the Gustav Line and, as the artillery support cleared his path, thought: "Blimey, what a barrage. It must have taken brains to think this one out....I'll write old Alex a letter of thanks."

He did, too, and got an answer—from Field Marshal Harold Alexander.

The Field Marshal's letter said in part:

"Nothing is too good for you chaps because I know from past experience what you have to go through. It is one thing to plan and stage a battle—but it is far more difficult to fight and win it—and in this great hour of victory it is you fellows to whom the honor and glory must go. You have done a wonderful job and I am very proud of you all and deeply grateful...."

"You ought to have seen my mates' faces when I showed them that letter," said Pte. English. "Why, even my officers speak differently to me now."

Annual Reports Given To Auxiliary

The New Year's meeting of St. James' Auxiliary of the W.M.S. was held Wednesday afternoon in Wesley Hall with seventeen members present. The president, Mrs. E. M. Davis, presided, opening the meeting with devotions which were concluded with prayer by Mrs. E. L. Woodley.

The business included reports of the past year's work when the following members reported for the various departments and offices:

Mrs. McAdams, recording secretary, gave the standing of the auxiliary with a roll call of 51 members, of which 15 are active life members. Two members attended every meeting of the year, and four members attended 11 meetings. Three members are shut-ins, unable to attend any meetings, bringing down the average attendance. She said they lost three members through removal from the church and city. June and November meetings were given over to the Baby Band when splendid programs were put on by their leader, Mrs. George Martin. The allocation and 15 per cent. increase was raised through the envelope system of giving, and the Easter and autumn thank-offerings and self-denial envelopes, all voluntary.

Mrs. W. K. Sloane reported on associate members which someone has called the "reserve army" of the auxiliary, from which it gets many recruits. Mrs. Sloane also reported $34.34 from mite boxes.

The Mission Band reported 44 members, having exceeded their allocation by a considerable amount, and altogether a record year, with Miss Wagar as leader, assisted by Mrs. Davis.

Temperance was reported by Mrs. E. Beavis, who presented her department every month, besides addressing three other organizations.

Mrs. F. W. Craik, reporting for Christian Stewardship, showed straight givings from the envelope system to be $181.13, an increase of $21.62 over last year.

In her yearly report Mrs. R. B. English, as treasurer, said St. James' Auxiliary had raised a total of $457.61, which accounted for the total allocation with 15 per cent. increase asked for.

For Community Friendship, Mrs. Wesley Rose as secretary, reported having visited 34 people in home or hospital, and sending 128 cards to sick members. Mrs. Rose, also on behalf of the auxiliary, voiced their appreciation for the fine work of the first year's tenure by the president, Mrs. Davis.

Officers Installed

In an impressive service Rev. Mr. Craik installed the 1945 officers, after which the new executive took their places.

The finance committee was appointed to include Mesdames Rose, English, Prest, Craik, Davis and McAdams. The nominating committee will be Mesdames E. L. Woodley, W. R. Moncrief, Davis, McAdams and Miss M. Morton. Mrs. E. J. Wagar was appointed auditor, and the delegates to the Presbyterial meeting are Mrs. H. F. Doig, Mrs. Ernest Johnston, with Mrs. W. Rose and Mrs. A. E. Prest as alternates. Missionaries were chosen for prayer and group leaders appointed for the year.

The closing devotional service was conducted by Mrs. Davis, assisted by Mrs. Beavis and Mrs. Prest.

"The Church of the Philippines" was the interesting subject of study presented by the leader, Mrs. E. Johnston, and Mrs. Davis, in dialogue form.

Allied General Killed At Luzon

LONDON, Jan. 12 — (CP) — The War Office announced Thursday that Lt.-Gen. Herbert Lumsden had been killed by a Japanese air attack on January 6 while aboard an American warship in the Pacific.

Lumsden, appointed by Prime Minister Churchill as his special representative to Gen. MacArthur's Headquarters in November, 1943, presumably was killed during the invasion of Luzon Island in the Philippines when Japanese planes heavily attacked the American convoy.

Lumsden formerly was a corps commander in the British 8th Army in Africa.

The announcement said:

"The War Office announces with deep regret the death in action of Lt.-Gen. Herbert Lumsden, D S. O., M.C., who was killed by enemy air action January 6 while on the bridge of one of the U.S. warships engaged in the Pacific.

"In a message of the Prime Minister Gen. MacArthur, under whom Gen. Lumsden was serving, says:

"'It is superfluous for me to speak of the complete courage which this officer so frequently displayed in my immediate presence during the operations in this theatre during the last year. His general service and usefulness to the Allied cause was beyond praise and his loss has caused deepest sorrow through all ranks. My own personal sorrow is inexpressible.'"

Lumsden was 48 years old. He commanded the 12th Royal Lancers which won fame for rearguard fighting during the withdrawal to Dunkerque in 1940.

Speeding Americans 12 Miles Inland In Luzon Attack

By C. YATES McDANIEL
Associated Press War Correspondent

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ADVANCE COMMAND, Jan. 13—(AP).—Powerful columns of the U.S. 6th Army pushed forward steadily today toward Manila during the fourth day of the invasion of Luzon after advancing 12 miles to cover more than half the road distance to the Agno River, without meeting any enemy opposition.

The American troops moved cautiously despite advance patrol reports of empty trenches and abandoned dugouts near the river, the most formidable natural barrier across the Central Luzon plain.

Only in the eastern sector of their bulging beachhead have they met any considerable resistance. Japanese guns and mortars hidden on the slopes or ridges forming the southern spurs of the Benguet Mountains fired intermittently into the flank.

Infantrymen on the left flank of Gen. MacArthur's front called for air support to smash a strong enemy position on the Manaoag-Pozorrubio road, where first appreciable resistance was reported the second day of the invasion.

The main U.S. force gained three more miles in the 24 hours to Thursday midnight, seizing San Carlos and Malasiqui at the deepest points of penetration, 12 miles from the coast.

Highway Centres

Both towns are highway centres. San Carlos is the hub for three highways. Two cross at Malasiqui.

From Malasiqui it is 98 airline mile to Manila, down a wide valley well suited for tanks. By highway the distance is more than 130 miles.

Japanese attempts to bring reinforcements north to meet the MacArthur forces were jolted again as American planes strafed and bombed airdromes, motor columns and rail facilities. More than 200 vehicles and five tanks were destroyed in one attack. Another knocked out many locomotives and 40 freght cars.

American planes, still dominating the Luzon skies, heavily bombed Grace Park airdrome near Manila, destroyed a number of parked aircraft.

Aided by guerilla forces, other U.S. planes blocked strategic Luzon defiles, leaving them useless for enemy troop movements. This was the first mention of Luzon guerillas.

Heavy and medium bombers meanwhile carried out their usual

Cause of the accident is not known and names of the passengers were withheld by the army and navy pending notification of their next-of-kin.

Pacific Coast Cities Still Crippled

VANCOUVER, Jan. 13—(CP)—The strike of 2,700 members of the Street Railwaymen's Union (A.F.L.) in Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster entered its fifth day this morning with no indication of settlement.

Union officials rejected appeals to return to work and international union officials, who declared the strike unauthorized and ordered an investigation of the walkout. Meanwhile the British Columbia Electric Railway Company declined to negotiate with union officials for increased wages and better working conditions for the men.

At Ottawa, Federal Labor department sources said there was nothing to prevent company and union officials from negotiating for a settlement. Any agreement increasing wages rates would require approval of the National War Labor Board, however.

The strike began early Tuesday morning following disallowance by the National War Labor Board of the British Columbia's regional board's approval of an increase of 4½ cents an hour for the union workers. The union had sought increases ranging from 12½ to 29½ cents an hour.

Mayor J. W. Cornett of Vancouver had urged the men to call off the strike and pave the way for further negotiation, but this was refused unless the company were to offer an acceptable proposal. Mayor Cornett interview company officials who declined to negotiate "while the men were on an illegal strike."

Strike Illegal.

W. G Murrin, president of the Electric Company, wired the International officials yesterday, charging that the strike "was illegal" and urged action to bring it to an end.

A. L. Splading, acting president of the International Amalgamated Association of Street Car Employees (A.F.L.) yesterday requested O. A. Rowan, International Union Board member, to fly from San Francisco to Vancouver to review the strike situation and report to headquarters in Detroit. Mr. Rowan was unable to make the flight last night.

Mr. Splading in a long distance telephone call to Vancouver told interviewers that the "main object is to get the cars running again." Difficulties, he said, could be adjusted later. "As far as the International is concerned we are doing everything in our power to get them back to work."

May Hit Singapore

Say Canadians In New Thrust

LONDON, Jan. 13 (CP)—Berlin broadcasts today said Canadian units were taking part in the British thrust against, the western tip of the receding Ardennes bulge.

"German disengaging movements in the western flank, hesitatingly followed by British and Canadians, continue according to plan without enemy pressure and are not yet concluded," a Trans-ocean dispatch said.

German commentators sought to switch the spotlight to the Strasbourg area, asserting the French 1st Army lost 8,000 men in a small area south of that Rhine city. One infantry division and a tank division which had garrisoned Odenheim were declared "completely wiped out."

A front report from Reuters War Correspondent Charles Lynch last night said Canadian parachutists—veterans of fighting in Normandy last summer—had engaged in fighting in the Ardennes sector, but his dispatch implied they no longer were in action.

Presumably these men were members of the British 6th Airborne Division, disclosed a week ago to be fighting in the Ardennes sector.

The 6th fought east of the Orne river in Normandy, north and northeast of Caen shortly after France was invaded. It was disclosed then the unit included Canadians.

American Navy Smashes 38 Jap Ships

PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 13—(AP)—A furious assault on four huge Japanese convoys massing along the French Indo-China coast still roared on, according to latest Navy reports, with U.S. 3rd Fleet planes pouring down more of the bombs, rockets and torpedoes which already have smashed 38 enemy ships.

A 5,000-ton cruiser, several destroyers and 12 transports loaded with troops apparently intended to be thrown into action on Luzon in the Philippines were among 25 ships sunk on Thursday, first day of the attack. Thirteen other ships were damaged.

Navy accounts to date report no damage to the American Fleet.

Suggesting the vulnerability of the Asiatic mainland to invasion from the Pacific, Admiral Halsey's Fleet defied Japan's continental land-based air power by moving in close enough to send raiders inland. They set off big fires around the city of Saigon, 1,000 miles east of Manila.

Germans Lose 200,000 In Last Push

Hun General Saves Most Of Armor In Clever Retreat

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Jan. 13 (AP) — United States 1st Army troops drove more than a mile through snowbound forests today toward Houffalize, heart of the Germans' shrunken bulge into Belgium, while U.S. 3rd Army forces an the south battled within five miles of that highway stronghold and British 2nd Army units continued to roll up gains in their frontal advance against the western tip of the dwindling salient.

First Army vanguards sliced to within less than six miles of Houffalize, menacing the Germans' last escape road, and narrowing the waist of the enemy salient to less than 11 miles in the Allied nutcracker clamp.

Ousted from 100 square miles at the tip of the bloody salient, Field Marshal Karl Von Rundstedt already had fallen back to within two to three miles of the Ourthe River. The new blows menaced any German hopes of holding a line through Houffalize east of the river.

By unofficial estimate, Von Rundstedt had lost the equivalent of 20 divisions—perhaps 200,000 men—in his break-through drive. But he had rescued the bulk of his far-reaching armor, in strength still constituting a striking threat.

Retreat 25 Miles

The tip of Von Rundstedt's drive had been bent back 23 to 25 miles from its nearest approach to the Meuse river, and British and American Armies had rewon 60 per cent of German-overrun territory.

German rear-guard resistance folded quickly in the collapse of the western end of the Belgian pocket as Von Rundstedt abandoned a sector from seven to 10 miles long and nearly 10 miles wide.

U.S. 1st Army troops pushed three miles south of Laroche at the northwest tip of the salient, and the British 2nd Army in a four-mile advance joined hands with U.S. 3rd Army men near St. Hubert on the southwest corner. St. Hubert was captured without a fight.

Offer Veterans Guidance As Businessmen

OTTAWA, Jan. 13 (CP) — The Canadian serviceman who wants to go into business after his discharge, using his re-establishment credit as capital, will have the best of advice on how to go about investing his money with a view to the most returns.

Citizens' committees on re-establishment credits are being set up throughout Canada under the Veterans' Affairs dischargees on the chances of their choice of investment succeeding. Allowances will be provided to carry over the business-minded veteran until his first returns start coming in.

These committees will be just one aspect of the Department's program for the steering of service personnel, both men and women, through various preparatory channels to useful and remunerative jobs.

At the moment, the Defence Departments are preparing service personnel through educational and propaganda programs for the day they are demobilized. And the Veterans Department, headed by Hon. Ian Mackenzie, himself a veteran of the First Great War, has 750 counsellors in a staff school preparing for the job of advising draftees.

Aid Re-Adjustment

Other important sections of the re-establishment program include occupational centres to be set up throughout Canada where small groups of dischargees suffering nervous exhaustion can readjust themselves and win back confidence before entering useful civilian occupations. Other hospitals prepare disability cases for appropriate jobs and in this connection posts have been efficiently filled by both limbless and sightless vets.

The department finds about 10,000 jobs a month for dischargees through co-operation with National Selective Service.

Many of the veterans go back to their pre-war jobs when they get their discharges, and, not taking advantage of various benefits like land settlement, educational facilities or reestablishment credits, they put their mustering out pay into insurance, houses, repairs or furniture with the advice veteran's counsellors.

Some single men don't bother with the re-establishment credit but legislation provides that they can claim it for a period of 10 years after discharge. This takes care of the man who decides to get married after he has been home a few years and provides him with the cash to set up house keeping.

Canadians Hand Out Hot Reception

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC, Jan. 13.—(CP Cable.)—The Germans have been seeking persistently to establish positions on the Canadian-held south bank of the Reno river south of the spit of land separating Lake Comacchio from the Adriatic—and the enemy is meeting a hot reception.

On Thursday for instance, a Toronto armored reconnaissance regiment accounted for almost an entire German company which tried to infiltrate the Canadian positions. Going in with tanks after an artillery barrage by British gunners, the Toronto men killed 22, wounded eight and took 40 prisoners.

Captured Germans said without elaboration "the white flag is becoming more and more in vogue in our outfit."

About 15 miles to the southwest, meanwhile, along the Senio river bank northeast of Fusignano, which is about three miles north of Canadian-captured Bagnacavallo, the enemy staged a sizeable raid. They attacked in three waves, the last supported by tanks, and brought along sappers to blow up houses on the Canadian-held east bank and also sought to get prisoners to establish the identity of forward troops.

The first two waves were beaten off but the third gained some yards. Counter-attacks yesterday morning drove them back slightly, although the Germans still hold some houses on the Canadian-held side of the river.

Hungarian-Slovak Front Bursts Into Flame Major Push Through Poland

Many Armored And Rifle Divisions Thrown Against Germans As Russians Surge On 400-Mile Front

LONDON, Jan. 13—(CP-Reuters).—Berlin reported today that Marshal Stalin's armies had started their long-expected winter offensive in the East with three great attacks spread over a front of 400 miles. The German DNB agency's commentator, Col. Ernst von Hammer, reported a Russian offensive in East Prussia after announcing last night the attack from the Vistula River bridgehead in Southern Poland.

DNB also said today that the Red Army went over to the offensive yesterday in yet a third sector—on the Hungarian-Slovak frontier between Lucenec and Kassa (Kosice).

"Early this morning the Russians went over to the offensive between Yedtkau and Schlessberg, on the East Prussian front," Von Hammer said, "having yesterday carried out several pinning down and harassing attacks between Suwalki and Goldap."

On the Vistula front — where Marshal Ivan Koniev was stated to be in command in the bridgehead 120 miles south of Warsaw—D.N.B. reported fierce fighting today in a penetration area where well-fortified German position were being assaulted by great numbers of armored and rifle divisions.

28 Divisions

"The 13th Soviet Rifle Army is attacking in the northwest the bridgehead, the 5th Guards Army in the south and the 3rd Guards Army in the northeast," the agency said.

"These armies represent some 24 to 28 divisions. In addition Marshal Koniev has three tank armies at his disposal and is supported in the air by the 2nd Soviet Air Army, with the 6th Soviet Air Army standing by in the rear.

In the area west of Lucenec and south of Kassa, along the Slovak-Hungarian border, the agency said seven or eight Russian rifle divisions had been flung into the attack and were being met by German and Hungarian troops who were inflicting heavy losses on the Red Army forces.

The Berlin radio yesterday said a huge Russian winter offensive—"the biggest of all time"—had penetrated German lines on a broad front west of the Vistula river in Southern Poland.

Moscow remained silent, giving no hint whether the German report is true. The regular Moscow communique announced that the remnants of the Nazi garrison at Budapest had been compressed into a pocket of five square miles in the heart of the Hungarian capital.

A Huge Army.

A late report from Berlin to Stockholm said the Russians were attacking in Poland with 500 guns, two air fleets, several tank armies and innumerable infantry divisions in "the greatest offensive yet launched," amid "extremely violent fighting."

When fighting subsided in this area last August the Russians held positions only 20 miles southeast of Kielce, rail town connecting German-held Warsaw with Krakow. Kielce and Krakow appear to be the immediate objectives of the fresh assault at threshhold of German Silesia.

The Soviet High Command announced last night that inside devastated Budapest the Russians continued systematic liquidation of German and Hungarian die-hards. A midnight Soviet war bulletin said Hungarian Patriots had risen and were firing on the Germans from cellars and rooftops.

The Patriot action brought retaliation from the Nazis, according

Find 19 Fliers Who Baled Out Of Planes

TORONTO, Jan. 13 — (CP). — Successful conclusion came late yesterday to the search for 19 airmen forced by a sudden storm on Thursday night to parachute to safety at widely-scattered Ontario points.

The last missing — two Polish student navigators—were found in the Muskoka district by Royal Norwegian Air Force ski troops, after 17 others who bailed out in an area extending from there to Lanark County, in Eastern Ontario, had been accounted for.

The men were crew members of five planes of a flight of 28 from No. 1 Air Observers School at Malton which were on night exercises when the storm struck. Of the other aircraft, 38, aided by radio but flying almost blind, got back to Malton. Three reached Trenton and two crash-landed, one at Oshawa and another north of Aurora.

The big flight left Malton between 8 and 9 o'clock on Thursday night, and a spokesman for Dominion Skyways Ltd., civilian company which operates No. 1 A.O.S. said no warning of the impending storm had been received from either the Meteorological Bureau or the Department of Transport.

This statement was denied by Dr. John Patterson, Controller of Meteorological Services, who claimed "our men were on the job."

The Malton-issued forecast, it is understood, was for intermittent snow, becoming continuous by 8 p.m. The wind velocity at 4,000 feet as placed between 20 and 30 miles per hour, growing stronger after 8 o'clock.

Call-up Laws Change Jan. 15

OTTAWA, Jan. 13—(CP).—Men discharged from the armed forces who have not had service outside Canada are in future to be subject to military call-up, Labor Minister Mitchell announced today.

The new rule comes into effect January 15 and ends the present practice of not calling men who have had three years or more service in Canada. The practice is not to call men with overseas service records.

Announcement of the change was made by Mr. Mitchell on behalf of Selective Service and the Defence Departments. He said the change followed recommendations from several mobilization boards, the Selective Service advisory board and discussions with a group of senior officers of the forces.

Exemption for those with overseas service applies also to men who have served with the Royal Canadian Navy in international waters

Quiet Prevails On Italy Front

ROME, Jan. 13.—(CP).— Quiet prevailed yesterday all along the Allied front in Italy, it was announced to-day.

It was probable worsening weather was responsible for the lull, although previously improved conditions had permitted sharp patrol action in several sectors, notably on the Reno river front at the Adriatic extremity of the battleline.

Here the 1st Canadians corps, attached to the British 8th Army, was reported seeking to break a German defence position which enemy prisoners said Hitler had ordered held "at any cost."

Kinship With Britain Grows

Editor Says War Has Strengthened Bonds

NEW YORK, Jan. 13. —(CP). — Kinship between Great Britain and Canada "has without doubt been immeasurably strengthened" by the course of the war, J. S. Woodward, editor of the Saskatoon Star Phoenix and director of the Canadian Press, said to-day.

Mr. Woodward has just arrived here from the United Kingdom, where he has concluded an extensive speaking tour, under auspices of the Ministry of Information, in which he told the people of Britain about Canada's war effort.

Canadian soldiers who have served in Great Britain will sing the praises of the British people when they arrive back in the Dominion, Mr. Woodward predicted. "We are different in our various ways, but not in our admiration for a heroic job," he said.

Despite bombing of her cities and war-born industrialization of much of her former rural area in addition to greater cultivation of available land, the outward appearance of Britain is relatively unchanged, Mr. Woodward reported.

Three main factors are responsible for the magnificent British record of civilian accomplishment under fire, said Mr. Woodward. He listed the gallantry of British women who have taken all war's home-front hardships in their stride; the leadership of labor; and the inspiration of Prime Minister Churchill.

3 Million French Prisoners in Germany

Answers Question Why French Have Not Greater Army In The Field

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Anaylst

The German report that the Russians have opened a major offensive on the southern Vistula front in Poland may signal momentous development.

This anxiously-awaited Red drive is calculated to provide the perfect completment to the Allied pressure on Field Marshal Von Rundstedt in the west. It will establish the big squeeze which shortly should give us a fair gauge of the enemy's remaining strength, and ultimately will crush the life out of him.

Into this picture fits, in a big way, the sensational news that Turkey is opening the Dardanelles for passage of Allied supplies to Russia. This the quick feed-line to the Soviet Vistula front.

Casualties Heavy

Allied soldiers are suffering heavy casualties in the bloody battle of the Belgian bulge—and the end isn't in sight. So great is the call for manpower in Europe, and in the Pacific theatre, that the United States alone is inducting a minimum of 900,000 men for the armed services in the first six months of 1945.

With this stark background, the publisher of a daily newspaper has asked me what substantiation there is for reports that, while Allied boys are being sacrificed, there are French and Belgian youths who also could be used, but are not.

I find no support for such an idea. On the contrary, both France and Belgium seem to be doing all they can to get their available men into action, and the Allies are rendering such assistance as they can. However, the situation is complicated and difficult.

Take the case of France. With a pre-war population of about 42,000,000 she might be expected under normal conditions to put a maximum of 10 per cent under arms—say 4,000,000—apart from colonial troops. But actually the French government reports that the Germans are holding 780,000 French prisoners of war, 225,000 voluntary French workers, 750,000 French slaves, 600,000 deportees of military age, and 600,000 deportees from Alsace and Lorraine, mostly men. That's nearly 3,000,000, or close to three-quarters of France's quota of fighting men.

Despite these handicaps, Gen. De Gaulle has flung an eager force into the flaming Western battle front, and is reported planning to add 1,800,000 to the army, making a total of more than 3,000,000.

May Reverse Old Judgment

Witchcraft Case 250 Years Old Under Fire

BOSTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—Six persons convicted of witchcraft 2½ centuries ago may be absolved of the charges under terms of a petition filed in the Massachusetts legislature.

H. Vance Greensllt of New Orleans, a descendant of the Greenslade family of Salem, seeks to clear the name of Ann Pudeator who was hanged in Salem, Sept. 22, 1692. She was Ann Greenslade before her marriage.

While Greenslit asked only that conviction of Ann be reversed, Robert W. Hill, Salem attorney who signed the petition and State Senator J. Elmer Callahan who filed it yesterday with the Massachusetts Senate decided it would be simple justice to include in the measure others against whom the convictions of witchcraft stand.

These number at least five—Bridget Bishop, Susanna Martin, Alice Parker, Wilmot Read and Margaret Scott.

Convictions against some 21 other persons, a number of whom had been executed, were reversed by the provincial legislature in 1711 and cash compensation voted certain individuals and heirs.

Kiwanis Club Installs 1945 Officers

Jack Lewis was installed as president of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club for 1945, at the club's inaugural meeting, Friday afternoon. A number of guests from the Lindsay Kiwanis Club were present.

Ford Moynes, Lieutenant-Governor of the Kiwanis Division No. 5, officiated at the meeting, and other executive members installed in office were: Milf Hardill, first vice-president; Dinny Fitzgerald, second vice-president; Tom Mark, treasurer; Ernest Bartlett, secretary; and John Comstock, Vince. McCabe, Dr. Cliff McKee, Laurie Mitchell, Harold Rehill, Tom Rodger and Jack Sinclair, board of directors. A few of the new executive members were absent from the meeting.

Using a large letter "K", standing for Kiwanis, as the salient point in his address, he examined each of the various departments of a Kiwanis Club, illustrating its place in the completed structure, and how the co-ordination of all phases of Kiwanis is necessary for a successful year.

He said, "The letter "K" also stands for our motto, 'We Build'; and we do build. We build on a great many avenues of life; we build socially. Each time we take part in a Kiwanis activity, we are exemplifying our motto." Mr. Moynes advocated giving every Kiwanis member a job to do, which helps immeasurably to stimulate and retain interest in club activities.

Rehabilitation Work

The Lieutenant-Governor left a suggestion with the Peterborough club memers, that a big job for Kiwanis in 1945 will be centred around rehabilitation problems for the return of many men and women from the armed forces. Stressing the magnitude of the job the soldiers, sailors, and airmen have done and are doing, he said, "We will have nothing else to do but hang our heads in shame, if we do not do something to help the boys who will be coming back."

The president of the Kiwanis, Mr. Moynes said, is the key man.

JACK LEWIS

Leadership as a trait is essential, but there must be nothing dictatorial about that leadership. Important posts are also held by the two vice-presidents, Mr. Moynes declared, describing them as "the two able lieutenants." Any suggestions or ideas from "the rank and file of Kiwanis" should come to the president through the two vice-presidents, he pointed out.

Speaking to the 1945 secretary, Mr. Bartlett, Mr. Moynes pointed out that the secretary's work is heavy, and detailed, but extremely essential to the club. In conclusion, he told members that if they recognize their duties, they will practice regular attendance, and give the new officers the best possible co-operation in 1945.

Mr. Moynes then presented the president's pin to Mr. Lewis, the past-president's pin to Charlie Saunders, and the secretary's pin to Mr. Bartlett.

In a brief address, Mr. Lewis paid tribute to past-presidents in the Peterborough Kiwanis' history, and expressed his hopes for a successful club year in 1945. He suggested that Kiwanis undertake some work this year which would be bigger than most other Kiwanis accomplishments in the past, and these include the tremendously valuable Sea Cadet movement in Peterborough. He also stressed the fact he would like to see an increase in membership in the coming year.

Opinion Divided On Golf Issue

LONDON, Jan. 13—(AP).—British professionals are divided today over the suggestion by the English Golf Union that the golf ball be standardized in weight and size all over the world.

At present there is a difference in diameter between the British and American pellets although they are of the same weight. Both are 1.62 ounces in weight but the English ball is 1.62 inch in diameter while the American ball is 1.68 inch.

George Duncan, British open champion of 1920 and a professional at Mere, Cheshire, said "The Royal and Ancient Club and the U.S. Golf Association should come to an agreement so as to preserve uniformity throughout the golfing world."

But Charles Whitcombe, captain of the British Ryder Cup team, said "Don't mess with it. Any change in the ball won't hurt the professionals but the amateurs like to hit the ball as far as they can. Personally, I don't like the American ball."

Water Main Improvement Costs Cancelled In Annexed Area

Local improvement charges for water mains in the recently annexed sections of North Monaghan were cancelled as from January 1 by the Utilities Commission at its first meeting this year, Friday afternoon.

These mains were laid in the township on the same basis of payment as sewers in the city. Outstanding debentures and other carrying charges on the water service in the area that has recently come into the city fold have been assumed by the Commission. At the same time the water rates were reduced by one-third. They were 50 per cent more than the charges within the city, and they have been now brought to parity with the Peterborough consumers. The reduction affects the Commission in the amount of approximately $1,800 a year.

Retain Chairman

Gordon S. Matthews was re-elected chairman of the Commission by his associates, George A. Macdonald and Fred Hills, and thereby begins his nineteenth year in that presiding position. At the close of 1944 Mr. Matthews had completed nineteen years in the administration of the city's three utilities, water, electric power and gas. He was appointed chairman in his second year, and since then has been continuously returned to the chairmanship.

December Reports

R. L. Dobbin in his December reports remarked: "It is interesting to note that on Christmas Day, 1944, our power load was up to 8,000 h.p., as compared with 6,500 h.p. on the corresponding day in 1943." It was thought that perhaps this increase was due to more extensive Yule celebrations in the homes, possibly more cooking.

Continuing the electric department's reports for last month—

"The peak for December 1944 was 14,300 horsepower as compared with 12,500 in 1943. This is an increase of 1,800 horsepower over 1943, and this condition has been evident since September. The extra power is largely going to the General Electric and Quaker Oats Company, but, in addition the Commercial and Domestic load has increased.

"We delivered from the sub station nearly 1,000,000 kilowatt hours more than in December, 1943, and work was continued on twelve miles of rural lines for the Hydro Electric Power Commission. Decorative colored lights were placed in the centre of the city for the first time since 1941.

Waterworks Department

Pumpage for December, 1944, was 92,812,000 gallons as compared with 95,347,000 gallons in 1943.

The mean temperature for the month was 17.0°F as compared with 18.95°F for December, 1943. As a result the river froze over December 1 and has remained so ever since.

Repairs were started at the pumping station on Set No. 3. The gate control needed some attention, and new parts are on order from Montreal. The job will be completed in the Spring.

At the filtration plant the sedimentation beds were unwatered and thoroughly cleaned. Certain sluice gates that had been leaking for some time were repaired. The filtered water reservoir was also unwatered and inspected. It was found in good condition.

A section of 8" main on Romaine street was completed, and four consumers connected. Seven new water services were laid during the month, and six repaired. Owing to the thick blanket of snow there is not very much frost in the ground, and as a consequence, no water services were frozen.

Gas Department

Gas made at the plant was 4,754,300 cubic feet as compared with 4,903,000 cubic feet in 1943. No new gas services were laid, and two were repaired. Twenty-one services were frozen during the month and all were thawed out.

Power Increases

Mr. Dobbin also reported increases in the quantity of electric power sold during December.

Domestic lighting was up 7.28 per cent; commercial lighting 30.3 per cent and commercial power 40.86 per cent.

The commercial lighting reflects mounting use of street signs and brighter window displays in the business district; and the power consumption by the industries showed a substantial gain of more than 40 per cent.

Consumption of gas was down slightly last month, a set back in industrial demand nullifying gains in domestic and commercial divisions.

Total consumption of gas last year was 54,459,900 cubic feet as compared with 49,520,400 cubic feet in 1943.

Germans Lost

2,000 yards through forest lands south of Langlir, seven miles north of Houffalize, reaching to within three miles of the all-important Houffalize-St. Vith highway. Germans fought back violently.

Without Houffalize, the Germans probably would have to pull back all the way to St. Vith on the north and Vianden on the south, retreating again into the Siegfried outer defence zone.

First Army patrols which stabbed east of the Salm River already were within nine miles of St. Vith. The latest 3rd Army punch through northern Luxembourg was only six miles from Vianden. At both these danger spots the Germans appeared to be putting up their stiffest resistance.

While Von Rundstedt had power to lash out again, it seemed likely such a thrust would be directed elsewhere on the Western Front than in the Ardennes bulge.

The Alsace plain, with Strasbourg as its chief prize was a potential toehold for such an offensive — but stiffened French-American defence there was holding the latest enemy assaults to a virtual standstill.

Gain 2 Miles

Third Army soldiers gained two miles overnight in rolling back Germans west of Bastogne. Southeast of Bastogne, the mop-up of the Harlange box was completed. Another 2,377 prisoners from this Nazi debacle flowed into 3rd Army cages yesterday.

Farther down the line, seven miles south of Echternach, Americans cleared the village of Machtum on the Moselle's west bank in a local action.

North of the Belgian bulge, the Germans were stabbing out in small counter-attacks, and one in company strength hit U.S. 9th Army lines this morning in the Lindern-Leiffarth area. A front dispatch said it was making no appreciable headway.

Lost Oeting

Along the southern end of the front, U.S. 7th Army troops were forced from Oeting, five miles southwest of Saarbrucken. But farther east in the Bitche salient the Americans were doing most of the advancing now, and occupied Althorn six miles south of Bitche.

A score of miles farther east, Americans cleared Rittershofen, eight miles south of the German border at Wissembourg. Bitter fighting continued all around the nearby village of Hatten, where Germans were trying to crack the American-held Maginot Line. Reports reaching headquarters indicated the Germans had failed to gain during the last 24 hours.

Lines were unchanged around the German bridgehead north of Strasbourg. South of that city the French temporarily at least were checking the armor-led enemy push near Rossfield, Herbsheim, and Benfeld.

Von Rundstedt was leading an orderly retreat just four weeks after opening his winter offensive into Belgium and Luxembourg Dec. 16.

Marvel Is That God Tolerates Our Prayers Audience Told

There was a large and representative congregation at Trinity United Church for the fifth meeting of the "Week of Prayer" services being conducted under the auspices of the Ministerial Association of the City of Peterborough.

Last night's service was conducted by the minister of Trinity church, the Rev. J. Hodgson, assisted by the Rev. W. McDonald; and the Rev. S. F. Johnston, newly inducted minister of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church preached the sermon. A solo was given by Mrs. (Dr.) Mitchell, "If I Were A Voice".

The subject of the address, which was one of a series on the Lord's Prayer, was based on the words: "Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil." Mr. Johnston began by saying that there was no prayer more frequently uttered and none more frequently disregarded than this. It was a subject", he said, "about which most people knew from their own experience. There was no escape, every one must undergo temptation no matter where he was placed."

There were three things that this text suggested to the mind of the speaker, namely: (1) The meaning of temptation; (2) The purpose of it, and (3) The lessons that may be learned from it.

"Temptation," said the speaker, "was an inducement to do evil, and that inducement could come either from within or without", from a man's own heart or from the circumstances in which he found himself or in which he allowed himself to be placed. But whatever its source it was usually as subtle as it was strong. One of the subtleties of it lay in the fact that it was so seldom recognized as temptation until the evil had been committed. Whatever may be our defences, erected by ourselves against temptation, we have each of us an "Achilles' heel" by which temptation gains admittance into the life. That man is strong who, recognizing his weakness, goes to God with the words: "Lead us not into temptation but deliver us from evil."

"But there is a purpose in temptation," went on the speaker. "Through is God is touching the soul, cleansing, shaping and strengthening it. Every temptation contains a challenge from God to the life. It is a call by which we are urged to hand the directing of our lives to the only one who has the power to give us victory over any and all temptation."

"Herein lies a danger," the speaker warned, "It is the danger of believing that since strain brings strength, and temptation the cleansing of the soul, that we ought heedlessly to run into temptation for the sake of the purification which it could bring. Such a belief, he said, went directly counter to the prayer as uttered by our Lord, which was "Lead us NOT into temptation."

To bring his address to a conclusion Mr. Johnston sought to show some of the lessons that one might learn from the words of this petition.

"We must be honest with ourselves when we pray this prayer", he said. "There is so much "vain repetition" about our praying, and often downright humbug. The marvel is that God tolerates our prayers at all. Generally speaking our cries and our petitions are the result of fear and not of repentance. We shall get nowhere until we recognize the power of sin to destroy the soul and turn to God who alone can give needed strength to overcome temptation.

We must be prepared to forsake the sin from which the temptation arises. Have you never prayed for power to overcome temptation while hugging the sin close to your heart? "Whom do you think you deceive?" asked the preacher, "You deceive no one but yourself. Such praying is in reality a distortion of the words spoken by Jesus. What such a prayer really means is "Lead us into temptation, far enough to enjoy its pleasures but not far enough to be punished by its consequences."

"Here is a prayer that encourages us to go to Him who alone can enable us to overcome temptation. In answering this prayer God may not be pleased to remove the temptation itself but He gives power to be victorious over it and this He does by changing the life within. Then do we understand the words of St. Paul, the Apostle, when he said "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature; old things are passed away, behold, all things are become new."

Foil Attack

The crucial Indo-China assaults, aimed at breaking up a big enemy effort to strike in behind General MacArthur before the convoys can even get under way, caught the Japanese by surprise.

That was attested by last night's communique pointing out that six loaded transports were sunk at Saigon and at least another six in the harbor of Qui-Nhon, 250 miles to the north-east.

Admiral Nimitz yesterday confirmed the sinking of Japan's 45,000-ton superbattleship the Musashi. He said conclusive evidence shows she "blew up and sank as the result of damage inflicted on her by aircraft attacks" last October 24 during the second battle of the Philippines Sea.

The Musashi and a sister ship, the Yamato, damaged in the same action, were the two most powerful battleships in the Japanese fleet.

A Nimitz communique covering Thursday's action said only 18 enemy planes were airborne over Saigon. Carrier fighters shot down 10. Fifty enemy planes were found at Thanh Son Nhut, air base north of Saigon Island. Eight were destroyed. A Nipponese bomber was spotted and shot down off the coast.

At Camranh Cat-Lai near Saigon and at Qui-Nhon Harbor 20 flying boats and seaplanes were wrecked.

Mainland raiders set many fires on shore around Saigon, at the Thanh Son Nhut air base and at Port Nhabe.

Admiral Nimitz said last night that fresh reports from Admiral Halsey, which had been delayed by a required radio blackout to protect fleet movements, show at least 33 enemy ships were sunk at Formosa on Monday. They included two destroyers or destroyer-escorts, one oiler, a big cargo ship, two medium cargo ships, and 27 small craft.

Thirty-seven Japanese planes were destroyed and 61 damaged. A chemical plant was wiped out, a smelter hard hit, shops were wrecked, locomotives and tank cars destroyed, ammunition dumps blown up and radio stations damaged. Four American planes were lost.

Call Is Made For 'D-Day'

LONDON, Jan. 13—(CP-Reuters)—A "Spiritual D-Day" was called for on Thursday by the Bishop of Chelmsford, Dr. Henry Wilson, who recently urged the setting up of a Church "Headquarters Staff."

"It was forced to evacuate territory it has held unchallenged for centuries. If it is to recover its bridgeheads, this can only be by achieving a successful D-Day."

Another 135 city blocks fell to the Soviet shock troops yesterday. The Germans now hold only about one-fifth of the flaming capital.

Most of the trapped enemy garrison was concentrated in Pest, eastern half of the capital. In Buda, west of the Danube, Marshal Fodor Tolbukhin's 3rd Ukraine army units had driven to within a mile of the river, the midnight communique said.

Meanwhile, northwest of the stricken capital other Russian troops again repulsed desperate German efforts to break the arc of Soviet armor around the city and relieve the Nazi force. The communique said the Russians, in checking the German rescue units killed 1,000 of the enemy yesterday and knocked out 102 tanks in the last two days.

A Berlin broadcast by Col. Ernst Von Hamme said the Russian drive north of the Danube toward Bratislava and Vienna "can be regarded as definitely stopped." By latest Soviet account the Red army was crashing through the outskirts of Komarom, key Danube communications hub.

Premier King Won't Extend Parliament

OTTAWA, Jan. 13—(CP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King today asked the electors of Grey North to give Defence Minister McNaughton a seat in the House of Commons to enable Gen. McNaughton to explain and present vital war measures at one more short session of the present parliament.

In a message to the electors he assured them that a general election was coming within a few months and asked that partisan considerations be put aside for the time being.

The statement re-affirmed in ever clearer terms than any used by Mr. King before that he would not seek to extend the life of the present parliament beyond the constitutional five-year term which runs out April 17.

His statement indicated the intention, if General McNaughton was elected, to hold a session sometime between February 1 and April 17 but declared that if a session was to be held General McNaughton's presence in the House was essential.

"There is only one issue in the present by-election," said Mr. King. "It is this: Is the Minister of National Defence to have a seat in the House of Commons without which, should there be another session, however brief, he cannot fully discharge his vital wartime duties, or is the wartime administrator to be embarrassed, at a critical stage of the war, by a domestic political campaign?"

The purpose of holding another session, said Mr. King, was to avoid if possible a general election campaign with its distractions while the European war continued.

He said that when parliament was dissolved, as it would be automatically on April 17, it was not necessary to hold an election immediately. He recalled that more than two months elapsed before dissolution and the election in 1917.

End of June

If a similar time were taken from April 17 it would be possible to postpone the election until the end of June.

In a review of circumstances leading up to the by-election, Mr. King said General McNaughton was not a member when appointed a minister. At the recent special meeting of parliament he was accorded the special privilege of appearing on the floor of the House to explain government policies regarding the army.

"Once the House of Commons voted to aid the government in maintaining a vigorous war effort and it was apparent that there was no need for an immediate general election the government sought at once to arrange for General McNaughton's election as a member for the remainder of the life of the present parliament," said Mr. King.

This was necessary for the transaction of public business and the most effective prosecution of the war.

The Government, he said, assumed that "a course of procedure so obviously in the public interest would be welcomed by members of all political parties." It did not believe that in holding the by-election it was running any risk of occasioning political controversy.

Put Aside Politics.

"The present House of Commons having, as recently as December 7, overwhelmingly agreed to aid the Government in maintaining a vigorous war effort we had every reason to expect that, until the time came for the people to speak in a general election, party politics would be put aside and attention concentrated on the prosecution of the war."

The by-election, he added, could not be a test of the country's confidence in the Government which could only come at a general election. The result could not change the Government. All that it could do was "support or impede a vigorous war effort."

"As citizens of Grey North by ensuring General McNaughton, without delay, a seat in the House of Commons, you will be giving to Canada's Minister of National Defence the fullest opportunity to devote all his time end energies effectively to the support of Canada's armed forces," said the Prime Minister.

"You will be strengthening Canada's war effort as a critical and, it may well be, decisive period of the war. Any other course can only have the opposite effect.

"I appeal, therefore, to you, irrespective of party affiliations, to put partisan considerations aside for the time being. I appeal to you, without distinction of party, to demonstrate to the whole of Canada your readiness to aid in maintaining a vigorous war effort."

Elim Tabernacle To Observe First Anniversary Services

The first anniversary service will be held at 'Elim Tabernacle' on Simcoe street on Sunday. Twelve months ago Rev. F. C. Poole, then of Montreal, together with Rev. B. G. Evans, came to Peterborough in response to a call received from a number of people in the city. The old "Lyceum Hall" was rented, and for the past year services have been held there, the name being changed to Elim Tabernacle.

Supply ministry was supplied until May last when Rev. Poole was sent from Montreal to take full charge of the work. The twelve months have been richly blessed and an encouraging number have been added to the church.

The Apostolic Church (in Canada) to which Elim Tabernacle is attached, is an outgrowth of the outpouring of the Holy Spirit in Wales, in other of the British Isles, and abroad, from 1904 onwards, when many, who at that time knew the Lord Jesus Christ, as their Saviour were led, through the illumination of the Spirit to search the Scriptures as to the meaning and object of Pentecost.

The Apostolic Chuch has churches in the British Isles, Denmark, France, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and Mission Fields in Nigeria, Gold Coast, India, and China. The Missionary International Headquarters is at Bradford, Yorks, England.

Following Baptism By John Christ Begins Ministry

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 14 is Matthew 3-4, the Memory Verse being Matt. 4:19, "He said unto them, Come ye after Me.")

MATTHEW IN his gospel, omits the period between the return from Egypt of Joseph, Mary and the Child Jesus, and the preparatory ministry of John the Baptist, the forerunner of Christ.

"In those days," he writes, "came John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judea, And saying, Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand."

"This is He that was spoken of by the prophet, saying , The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, making His paths straight."

John is described as wearing clothes of camel's hair, with a leather girdle about his loins, eating locusts and wild honey—which are still foods in that part of the world.

His preaching was listened to with awe, even Pharisees and Sadducees coming to him to be baptized. These latter he reproached, telling them they could take no comfort in the fact that they were Jews—God's chosen people. They were sinners and must repent and be baptized; but the baptism with which he baptized them was water, he said, but the One who was to come was mightier than he, "Whose shoes I am not worthy to unloose. He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire."

Jesus Comes to John

Jesus came to John to be baptized, and at first John would not baptize Him because he felt unworthy. Rather should Jesus baptize him, John. But Jesus said, "Suffer it to be so now: for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness." So John baptized Him.

As He came from the water the "heavens were opened unto Him, and He saw the spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon Him.

"And lo a voice from heaven, saying, This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

Jesus had no sins of which to repent, but in this act He identified Himself with the people to whom He was to preach and over whom He will reign. This is the start of His ministry, and God blesses it with His benediction. No other man ever heard those words from above uttered, and John must have felt that here was the confirmation of his own prophecy, and been awed.

Jesus, after His baptism, retired to the wilderness to meditate and pray. Here He was tempted of Satan. First, after fasting 40 days, being hungry, Satan suggested that He turn the stones into bread; Jesus declined, saying, "Man shall not live by bread alone."

Satan then took Him to a high pinnacle of the temple, telling Him to cast Himself down, as God would not permit Him to be injured, but Jesus reproved Satan, saying, "Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God."

The last temptations was the offer of all the kingdoms of the world if Jesus would bow down and worship him. Imagine. Jesus scorned him and told him, "Get thee hence," and Satan went away defeated.

Leaving the wilderness, Jesus heard that John the Baptist had been cast into prison, so Jesus departed into Galilee, leaving His home in Nazareth, and living in Capernaum, near which most of His ministry was spent and His works performed. He preached and taught, and "the people which sat in darkness saw great light."

Walking by the Sea of Galilee, Jesus saw two brothers, fishermen, Simon Peter and Andrew, and He said to them, "Follow Me, and I will make you fishers of men," and they left their nets and followed Him.

Going a little farther He saw two other brothers, likewise fishermen, the sons of Zebedee, James and John. He called them and they, too, followed Him.

Thereafter Jesus went about Galilee teaching in the synagogues and healing all manner of sickness and disease.

"And His fame went throughout all Syria." Great multitudes of people followed Him "from Galilee, and from Decapolis, and from Jerusalem, and from beyond the Jordan." His great ministry was begun.

Deep Mental Image of Christ Needed

By REV. E. R. JAMES.

The disciples saw no man save Jesus only.—St Matthew 17, 8.

The Christmas and New Year's festivities are over. You are settling down to your work; the year stretches before you with its problems, joys and sorrows and disappointments more or less heartbreaking. Perhaps these words may sink into your minds: "The disciples saw no man save Jesus only."

The writer is St. Matthew, whose name was Levi. He was a publican, which means a taxgatherer or customs officer. He was stationed at one of the gates of Capernaum. It took a great deal of courage for a Jew to be a Roman taxgatherer—a collaborator, we would call him to-day. But Levi had an ideal in life. He desired to be rich. In this business, way of success would be fairly certain. But he would have to pay the price which Quislings do to-day. It meant that he would be a social outcast and hated by his on people.

One day a Man stood at his office door and asked for permission to pass beyond the gates. Levi was attracted by the calmness in that Face, a contrast to his own strain and anxiety. He cannot forget the Face of that poor Man, yet so content. That night he lies awake and wonders. The Prophet's Name and doings are familiar to him. Day by day that Man looks in and is courteously granted permission to pass on. Then one day the Man looks into his eyes and says, "Follow Me."

Levi as a business man has a keen sense of values. Now he sees what is really valuable. He sees the pearl of great price and sold all to obtain it. He gave up a profitable business and follows a Man, Who says that He has not where to lay His head.

To his own astonishment and that of the Apostles the Master ordains him that apostolic office and gave him the new name of Matthew. In his list of the names of the Apostles he alone adds the taunt provoking term: "Matthew the publican."

He was not a member of the inner circle. Peter, James and John, who were permitted to see the Lord's transfiguration. They told him and St. Matthew writing from his own experience adds: "The disciples saw no man save Jesus."

Much modern Christianity is flabby and sentimental because men have no deep mental image of the Lord Christ. Of course they say He is Good. But what do you mean by "Goodness"? Goodness, real and unadulterated, is the most attractive power in this world. Goodness will draw all sorts and conditions of men and will make a tremendous appeal. Is your goodness attractive?

There are Christians whose goodness is not attractive. They arouse antagonism. You desire to shock them by realizing the worst side of your character. Such people, though Christians, have a wrong mental image of the Lord Christ.

What steps are you to take to attain that attractive goodness?

When you retire for the night offer this prayer: "Lord, let my first thought be of Thee.' When you awake say: "Thanks be unto Thee, O Lord." It will take time to develop this habit. But by the Help of the Holy Spirit there will come the day when you almost uncon-

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Jesus Begins His Ministry

Scripture—Matthew 3-4

By Alfred J. Buescher

John the Baptist came preaching in the wilderness of Judaea, and saying, repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

Jesus came to John to be baptized, but John did not want to baptize Him, feeling he was not worthy, but Jesus persuaded him.

After baptism, Jesus was tempted by Satan in the wilderness, but He withstood all temptations and the devil finally left him.

Jesus called the sons of Zebedee, James and John, and Simon Peter and Andrew, and began preaching.

MEMORY VERSE—Matt. 4:19.

Back In Luzon

The Americans are back in Luzon and this means the beginning of the long promised and long delayed retribution. There is still a long way to travel and many bloody battles to be fought, but the dream of the Nipponese empire will soon be over. Japan has always wanted to expand southward in the Pacific, her war with Russia forty years ago was simply a feeler, or a preliminary to her greater dream. Her northern frontier had to be made secure against Russian pressure, but the Japs do not like colonizing cold countries. They looked to the Philippines, Indo China, Siam, Malaya and the Dutch East Indies as greater outlets for the over-populated homeland. Her march of conquest, the culminating effect of her dream started in 1941 with the attack on Pearl Harbor, and in swift moving events through the next few months she overran all the territory which she had for years been dreaming about procuring. Her armies came so near Australia that, that Dominion had a very narrow escape, and it was due to the valor of the Australian troops in bitter jungle warfare across New Guinea that had much to do with stopping of the Japanese march southward.

For three years the Japs have had access to the natural resources of the Pacific world and have been able to accumulate great reserves of raw material. But from now on, due to the progress of the American armies in the Pacific, Japan is going to have to depend upon her reserve supplies. Her lines of sea communication have been severed by the invasion of the Philippines. Unless her navy can stop the United States forces, as they pour into Luzon, Japan will become dependent on supplies transported overland through China.

Defeat of the Japanese navy in a decisive battle to hold Luzon would open the way for an American advance northward to Formosa. It would also make possible the liberation of Hong Kong and the landing of an army in China. But these operations are so vast, that possibly another year will elapse before these are accomplished. Canadians have been so engrossed with the gigantic task in Europe that they have failed to realize the task that United States has undertaken in the Pacific, and the organization required to seek out the Japs and beat them thousands of miles from the shores of America.

Luzon is a doubly important point because of the grim tradition that clings to it. On its bloody soil, American troops had to taste their first bitter pill of defeat since the Civil War. Over a period of 75 years a psychology of invincibility had been built up, which valuable in some respects, brought the nation dangerously close to disaster.

But this bitter pill of defeat, steeled the American hearts as nothing else could have done. It has implanted the will to win that overrides all obstacles. Hence in the long run it was bound to happen that the immense resources in manpower and industrial power would overwhelm the enemy and prove the decisive factor. Between Pearl Harbor and this proud sight of 600 ships steaming fearlessly into Lingayen were formidable tasks, that only a great nation, and one with the heart to win, because it believed its cause was right, could have performed.

How To Lose The War

We were shocked, as were many of our readers, by a small item which reported that 600 workers at the Bonny Blue Mines in Virginia stopped work because they could not get any cigarettes at the company store; upon promise of a packet a day, they have gone back.

It may not be as bad as it sounds. There may have been some unfairness in the way in which the cigarettes were being distributed and the strike may have been a protest against it. But even this would not be a good excuse for a strike. In wartime miners are essential workers. To strike for cigarettes is to show fantastic irresponsibility.

What is more, it takes the edge off the workers' final and drastic weapon—the strike. A strike is a serious matter, which has been invoked by workers in order to gain concessions which make the difference between decent and honourable working conditions and bare existence. But to strike for a package of cigarettes a day is like using a cannon to steal candy from a child.

Luckily this freak strike is not characteristic of the attitude of labour organizations on this continent which have, upon the whole, put their full weight behind the war effort of Canada and the U.S. What returning soldiers will think about the 'cigarette strike' we hardly dare to think.

Common Sense About Peace

Isolationism has been regaining some of the strength which it lost in the U.S. after Pearl Harbor, and several isolationist speakers and writers are insisting that their country should stay out of any postwar world organization for peace, because mistakes are being made in European settlements now. The best reply that we have seen to this sort of argument is that given by Roscoe Drummond, the Washington correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor, who says:

"While full-functioning American membership in a world security organization is needed under any conditions it is more than ever needed if there are bad spots in the peace. The honest fact is that—and this needs to be put if America is to be free of another world war—the worse the peace, the more necessary is the world organization to prevent war....We want the best possible peace, but the fact that it may be less than the best possible peace does no alter America's stake in a world organization to prevent another world war".

International affairs are necessarily conducted in a rough-and-tumble manner, and no nation can impose its ideas of strictly ethical behaviour upon the rest of the world. If anything worthwhile is to be done, compromises and concessions are inescapable. But out of the welter of compromise fine things may come, and any nation which turns up its nose at a chance to help in the struggle for a good peace is not doing its best either for itself or for the rest of mankind. None of us, men or nations, can hope to have things our own way all the time; the best we can hope for is successful compromise with a decent balance on the credit side.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Some of the worst nutritional troubles are caused by heavy meals and light work.

A contemporary reports that people with foresight are buying farms. It takes more than foresight to run a farm.

Ottawa is having some trouble which it describes vaguely as 'a garbage breakdown'. Something rotten in the capital.

Many a man thinks that he would be happy if he had a million a year. And the government, which would get $950,000 of it, would be even happier.

Modern politics is so simple that even a pugilist can follow it. The quick jabs come from the Left, and the cagey defence from the Right.

A shortage of eggs is reported from the U.S. Can it be that all the hens are busy making shells? (A poor yolk, but better than leaving an empty space).

A scientist tells us that a good-sized cloud weighs about 300,000 pounds, though it doesn't look it. Must be the silver lining.

Communiques from the Southwest Pacific have so consistently overlooked the part played in the fighting by Australian forces that they have begun to refer to themselves as 'MacArthur's Secret Weapon'.

Annoyed by a poor audience at North Bay, Miss Agnes McPhail announced that she was growing tired of "talking to empty seats". Other comedians have a formula for curing this trouble — 'louder and funnier'.

Giving 'teenagers something to do is the best way to combat juvenile delinquency, says the Boston Post, and right around his own home where he can be of some use to his parents rather in some other lad's backyard, we add.

Canadians are talking about the winter, deep snow and cold weather; in England everyone is also talking about the winter, worst since 1891, with rain, sleet, fog and capricious winds, and the thing about the whole affair is no matter how much is said it cannot be changed.

Diary Of A Tidy Man

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Was seized with a tidying fit today, so I sorted up a large bundle of papers into a number of smaller bundles, tied them neatly with string, and put them neatly on a shelf. It is impossible for me to do more than this, because I am constitutionally unable to throw anything away. Among other papers I came across an official notice which I received from the Metropolitan Police of the City of London many years ago, asking me to reclaim an umbrella which they had found, and which they thought belonged to me. As a matter of fact it was not my umbrella, and I did not claim it, but I cherish the notice, because it is the only polite communication I have ever had from the police. I can imagine the scene at Scotland Yard, when an Inspector said to a Sergeant: "Here's a nice-looking brolly; seems to me I saw Marchbanks with one like this on Piccadilly a few days ago; very decent chap, Marchbanks; drop him a line and tell him we've got his gamp here." I cannot part with my evidence of this official solicitude.

MONDAY: Was chatting with a man who has been suffering from bad dreams, which he erroneously describes as nightmares. As I understand the matter the only genuine nightmare is the sort of dream in which you suffer from increasing dread and shortness of breath, accompanied by pressure on the chest, until it seems that you must either throw off the weight or be smothered; it is at this point that you find yourself sitting bolt upright, screaming blue murder. If you don't, you are probably found in your bed in the morning, quite cold and stiff. I have only had nightmare once or twice in my life, and many people never have it at all. Bad dreams, however, are common with me, and I rather welcome them, as they break the monotony of the long hours of sluggish slumber.... A psychologist once tried to attach great significance to my bad dreams, but I did not play quite fair with him, for I withheld from him one revelant fact, i.e., that I never go to bed without having a bite to eat, and my digestion sometimes gives me bad dreams even when I am wide awake. Of course, my nightly snack may merely act as a porter who throws open the gates of my repulsive unconscious, letting all the bugaboos and hobgoblins out for a frolic, but frankly I don't care. Better a bad dream than no dream at all.

TUESDAY: This daily snowfall is getting to be too much of a good thing; I don't much mind shovelling out my path once a week, but once a day is rank imposition. What is more, I am running out of places to put the snow I don't want; if I keep on piling it on the sides of my path, it will soon be as high as my head, and if it should ever collapse I will be like the old man of Quebec, who fell in snow up to his neck.... A child asked me to mend her doll today; it has broken up into a trunk, a head and four limbs, like a country with too many parties. I gave her the usual speech about my inability to mend anything, and then set to work. It was a gruesome experience, reminiscent of the scene in Mrs. Shelley's romance where Frankenstein puts together his monster out of bits of slaughter-house waste. But more by good luck than good management I outfitted the doll with new entrails made of strong string, and tightened these by winding one leg around and around for twenty-three revolutions. Now the doll is better than new, for it kicks, twists and squirms like a real infant. Shall I set up a Doll's Hospital?

WEDNESDAY: As I want to get the remainder of my winter's coal in tomorrow, I had to shovel my drive today; it has not been touched since the first snowfall, and this was no task for a child; it was no task for a hypochondriacal diarist, either, but I tackled it with the valour of ignorance. In ten minutes I was sweating freely, in spite of a cutting wind. After twenty minutes I could think of nothing except Dr. Smirle Lawson's warning that shovelling heavy snow was a good way to bring on a stroke. After half an hour I had what I am certain was a slight stroke, and went inside for a dose of a special stroke-medicine which I keep. It did me a lot of god, and after that I took stroke-medicine every half hour regularly. As a result I finished my drive magnificently and did not have even a touch of stiffness from the unusual exercise. I know plenty of people who would have been as stiff as frozen mackerel if they had done what I did, the way I did it.

THURSDAY: My coal came today, and went into the bin with the usual amount of banging and thumping. A fine black dust settled on everything in the house, and when I looked in a mirror inadvertently, I was startled to see that I had been metamorphosed into a blackamoor... Then I went down into the cellar, and addressed my furnace in these words: "O Furnace (I always model my speeches to my furnace on Cicero's orations)....O Furnace, three winter months having now gone by, and the Yuletide and New Year seasons having been completed, I, Marcus Tullius Marchbanks, have purchased all the coal, wood, coke, charcoal and kindred combustibles that I intend (to purchase, understood). Look to it, Furnace, for I shall feed you justly, but not wastefully, and if it should so hap that when all these good things are gone the gods still send us inclement weather, I shall cram your maw with broken chairs and cardboard boxes, but not another morsel of coal will I buy. Witness O ye gods of the household, and you, Furnace, that M. Tullius Marchbanks will throw himself upon his poker and perish before he will spend another denarius on coal." ....The furnace was impressed and roared politely, but there was a faint contemptuous smell of goal gas when I went to bed.

FRIDAY: The papers are full of news about the 'paternity trial' of Charlie Chaplin, which appears to have misfired. That is to say, the jury did not decide against Charlie and so the whole thing has to be gone through again. Charlie might as well have realized at the beginning that a very rich man had only the ghost of a chance of winning such a case. It all reminds me of the Usher's song in "Trial By Jury"—

But when, amid the Plaintiff's shrieks
The ruffianly Defendant speaks
Upon the other side,
What he may say you needn't mind;
From bias free of every kind
This trial must be tried.

SATURDAY: This afternoon climbed out on the roof of my verandah and shovelled snow down into the garden; it had piled up to the point where I could hardly get my bedroom window open, and although I am no fanatic for fresh air it is convenient to be able to hurl slops into the road, or lean out and shout "Who's there?" at late callers. I become dizzy when standing on a soapbox; the roof of a verandah is as high as the Empire State building to me. Consequently I did my shovelling with the utmost caution, and paused now and then to cling to the wall with my eyes shut, recovering my balance. Knocked down several icicles and was interested to find how sharp they were. If ever I decide to murder somebody I shall stab him with an icicle, which will melt, destroying my fingerprints and all traces of the weapon. The melted ice will mingle with the victim's blood, and I shall go to his funeral in that state of profound satisfaction which we all feel when we have done a good job, and have not sought to take credit for it.

THE WOLF

Stevenson—"Teller of Tales"

(By STEPHEN WILLIAMS)

PERHAPS no man ever put less of his life into his work than Robert Louis Stevenson. His life was full of tragedy; he lived only forty-four years, and during the major part of that time he was continually struggling against ill-health. His work, on the other hand, is full of comedy. It is in every sense "literary"; light, airy, fanciful, continually skimming over the surface of life. Nowhere do we get a hint of the agony and frustration that he must have suffered. Stevenson must have been painfully aware of such tragedy; yet when he put pen to paper he seemed to forget all about it. He seems to have written his books as a way of escape from life—as abstractedly and delightedly as a child building castles with coloured bricks.

ROBERT Louis Stevenson was born in Edinburgh on November 13, 1850. From birth he was a delicate child; he went to several schools—he was often absent through illness. Even at a young age he started many school and home magazines in which he wrote blood-and-thunder serials; and at home he plundered his father's library, reading such books as "Rob Roy", "Waverley", "Guy Mannering", George Sand's "La Mere au Diable" and old volumes of "Punch".

IT was taken for granted that he would become an engineer, like his father who was a lighthouse designer. But Louis, as he was always called, was interested only in literature and the raw stuff of life from which he could create it. He did a certain amount of engineering, but valued it only because of the remote and romantic places it caused him to visit. Moreover, he hated the polite society of Edinburgh and escaped whenever he could to share in the Bohemian life of the literary and artistic circles of the town. But Thomas Stevenson, his father, was a reasonable man and he at last let Louis have his own way; not without a certain amount of heartburning, for he was disappointed that his son did not follow his own career. He accepted the inevitable, and being a man of some means, gave Louis an allowance while he was still struggling to earn his living by writing.

Stevenson's perpetual bad health had one good result: it took him to interesting places—Mentone, Grez-sur-Loing, the Cevennes, Holland, Davos and the South Seas—and all these places gave him ideas for books. A canoeing holiday in the Netherlands produced "An Inland Voyage" which was published in 1875; it was quite favourably received and brought him £20. His tour in the Cevennes later in the same year produced the famous and well-beloved "Travels with a Donkey".

ON one visit to London he met Sidney Colvin, Professor of Fine Art at Cambridge University, who introduced him to the editors of various important magazines; and so began that delightful series of literary exercises, which he collected later under the titles "Familiar Studies of Men and Books" and "Virginibus Puerisque".

Meanwhile he was spending much time with his cousin, Bob Stevenson, and other painters and writers at Grez-sur-Loing, and living the kind of life he has described in the essay "Fontainebleu". He was at home here—just as another English artist, Frederick Delius, was in later years—and his warm volatile nature responded eagerly to the French atmosphere. And it was there that he met the woman who later became his wife—Fanny Osbourne, an American. They were married in California, wither Stevenson had gone to meet her in 1880, and Fanny began a long and devoted career as wife and nurse.

OTHER circumstances were favourable: Stevenson was writing at top speed and at last making a modest living out of it, and his father, approving of his marriage, had guaranteed him a yearly allowance of £250. The only enemy was ill-health, and it was only a matter of time till it won the battle.

The next scene is Braemar, in Scotland, where the Stevensons went to live after various journeys in search of health. One day Louis found Lloyd, his stepson, tinting a map he had drawn of an island. He began to help him, added a few details and wrote "Treasure Island" in the top right-hand corner. So was born one of the most famous adventure stories in the English language.

"Treasure Island" (published in 1883)) was a great success, and "R.L.S." at once became famous. His story "The Body Snatcher" which appeared in the 1884 Christmas number of Pall Mall Magazine was widely advertised on boardings. The Times had a leading article on "Jekyll and Hyde", perhaps his greatest work. It was also quoted in many sermons, and within six months of its publication more than 40,000 copies were sold in England alone.

Stevenson tried his hand at almost every form of literature, but his chief enthusiasm was for fiction. He expressed his creed in the essay "A Gossip on Romance," which he wrote for Longman's Magazine, stressing the value of pure incident as exemplified in such things as the "Arabian Nights" and "Monte Cristo," where the story is all.

BUT all this time the forces of disease were slowly working for his destruction. Congestion of the lungs, violent haemorrhages, sciatica and Egyptian Ophthalmia followed in quick succession. Once when his suffering prevented him from speaking he wrote on a piece of paper to his wife: "Don't be frightened. If this is death it is an easy one."

Yet even illness had its compensations; for a time the Stevensons lived at Bournemouth and as Louis was known to be an invalid he was not much bothered with visitors (Henry James alone had the perfect freedom of their house) and was able to devote more time to his writing.

However, it soon became obvious that North Europe was no climate for him. He was wasting away visibly and so the great decision was taken and in August 1887 the Stevensons sailed for the New World.

They never returned. From the United States they went on to the South Sea Islands, finally settling down on an estate in Samoa, which they called "Vailima"—"Five Waters." Right till the day of his death Stevenson worked unceasingly. His European fame grew to immense proportions and collected editions of his works were prepared. The Samoan natives knew him as "Tusitala"—"The Teller of Tales."

A few weeks before his death he picked up "Weir of Termiston," which he had begun and abandoned two years earlier, and happily resumed work on it. But he did not live to finish it. On the morning of December 3rd, 1894, he dictated the beginning of Chapter 9 to his stepdaughter. In the afternoon he wrote letters. Just before supper he put his hands to his head, cried out "What's that?" and fell down unconscious. In an hour or two he was dead.

All night Samoans watched by the body and in the morning hundreds of natives came, with flowers and gifts. They buried him on a mountain top 1,300 feet above the sea. It was where he had wished to be buried.

A Bible Message

And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it; for this is my blod of the new testiment, which is shed for many for the remission of sins.... And when they had sung an hymn, they went out into the mount of Olives....

Then cometh Jesus with them unto a place called Gethsemane, and saith unto the disciples, Sit ye here, while I go and pray yonder. And he took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and began to be sorrowful and very heavy.

Then saith he unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death: tarry ye here, and watch with me. And he went a little farther, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless not as I will but as thou wilt.

When the morning was come, all the chief priests and elders of the pepole took counsel against Jesus to put him to death: and when they had bound him, they led him away, and delivered him to Pontius Pilate the governor....

Then the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the common hall, and gathered unto him the whole band of soldiers. And they stripped him, and put on him a scarlet robe....

And after that they had mocked him, they took the robe off from him, and put his own raiment on him, and led him away to crucify him. (Matthew 26: 27, 28, 30, 36-39; 27: 1, 2, 27, 28, 31.)

Letter To The Editor

BIBLE STUDENT APPROVES

Sir,—May I take this opportunity of expressing my appreciation of your timely editorial "How is Your Biblical Knowledge?" The general lack of knowledge regarding the Bible in this so-called age of enlightment is appalling. Surely the students who ambitiously study for degrees from the school and universities of this world are to be highly commended and are worthy of all the honours that crown their efforts.

Earthly diplomas in themselves however, could never give to any life a sense of completeness or fullness. There is another type of study whose laurels are Eternal—the approval of God. Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. 2 Tim. 2: 15.

The Lord's own word to questioning minds is "Search the scriptures....for they are they which testify of me. John 5: 39.

It is recorded that when Paul and Silas preached in Berea, their hearers displayed nobility in searching the scriptures to see if the Apostle's doctrine was then corroborated. Acts 17: 11.

The same spirit that characterized the attitude of the people toward the Son of God at His lowly birth in Bethlehem's manger seems all too evident today.

Then, there was no room for Him in the dwellings of men. Now, there is no room or time for Him in our lives. How expressive are the lines:

Room for business, room for pleasure,
But for Christ the crucified
Not a place that He can enter
In the heart for which He died.

How gladly we welcome mails that bring letters of loved ones to us. The Bible is God's letter. How sad to see it so neglected and ignored.

To hear and heed the scriptures would involuntarily change the lives of men and nations. They would prove themselves a key to unlock the mysteries of this world's most intricate current problems, be they political or national.

Best of all, they tell how the high claims of divine justice have been met and a reconciliation between God and sinful man has been effected through the substitutional sacrifice at Calvary when Christ the great mediator, bore our sins in His own body on the tree.

Personal faith in that finished work assures the believing individual of a joyous hereafter where no clouds of disappointment can ever obscure the Eternal sunshine of the city of God.

Let us therefore endeavour to read more and more the Holy Scriptures which are able to make us wise unto Salvation. 2 Tim. 3: 15.

W. CECIL G. PARRINGTON.

Message From "Monty"

No handsomer tribute was ever paid to the American soldier than that of Field Marshal Montgomery in the midst of combat. "A brave fighting man," he says, "steady under fire and with tenacity in battle that stamps the first-class soldier. His courage and good fighting quality stopped the German drive."

But that was by no means all the Marshal had to say. His voice was heard beyond the battlefield. As head of a joint American and British army he was saying to his people at home what only a Briton could say to Britons. In the blunt language of a soldier, he was calling for an end to civilian sniping, a truce to fault-finding and bickering. His words apply as much to us as to his countrymen. By emphasizing what the Allies have accomplished by military co-operation, he emphasized what they have failed to do on the political front. If battles are won by team work and wars are won by team work, it is not likely that peace will be won by dissension.

Fortunately, Marshal Montgomery is as articulate as he is pugnacious. He clarified much that was obscure about this great conflict in the Ardennes, revealing how a broken line is mended bit by bit, stabilized and finally flung once more into offensive action.—New York Times.

With The Armed Forces

By JEAN STENTON

The editor of this column will welcome extracts from letters from boys serving or any other information concerning them.

With the beginning of a New Year it is interesting to look back over some of the 1944 events, particularly those which have involved Peterborough personnel. While correspondents overseas do their best to keep the people at home informed of events, many incidents are shrouded by the veil of censorship, to be released some time later by the Government. The little booklet "Canada at War" for November and December, reveals some facts which may not be generally known to the public.

"An amphibious operation on the shore of Scheldt, near Hoofdplaat, about 33 miles west of Antwerp, brought considerable relief to the troops inland. In the early hours of October 9, amphibious troop carriers brought ashore three regiments of D-Day veterans; Highland Light Infantry, Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, and the North Shore Nova Scotia Highlanders.

These men spread out along the coast and took Breskens, Schoondijke, and Fort Frederik-Hendrik. They were also able to push inland to combine with the forces that were fighting seven miles south to cut the Scheldt area in half. The consolidated forces pushed together across the Atlantic end of the sector.

Many Units Fighting.

Through the dike-combed Scheldt pocket there was little opportunity for Army tactics or manoeuvres. Canadians fighting there said the going was even tougher than at Caen. Enemy mortar and artillery fire were both extremely heavy. Advance was difficult as roads are mostly alongside or on top of dikes where the men were exposed.

Their most prized possessions were flame throwers. When they were fired on by the Germans, the flame throwers were put into action; while the enemy combatted the flames the position was overrun. Many times Allied artillery could not be used for fear of shelling Canadian troops.

At the end of October it was announced that United States troops were fighting under Canadian command and were taking part in the advance on the northern sector of the Netherlands. When its structure was first announced in August, 1944, the First Canadian Army included British, Netherlands, Belgian and Polish forces, as well as Canadians. Since that time a Czech brigade of refugees trained in the United Kingdom as well as the United States units, have been added. In the end-of-the-month thrust through the Netherlands, it was Canadians who took Bergen op Zoom, Poles who captured Breda, and British who seized Roosendaal—but all were in the First Canadian Army, which is under Canadian Command.

PTE. ORVILLE WAINMAN

Since he joined the Army Show in England, Pte. Orville Wainman, son of R. A. Wainman, Lindsay, has been meeting some of the people who make the news headlines, according to word received here.

Lady Astor, the first woman member of Parliament in England, took his troupe through her beautiful estate and while there they met General Doolittle of the United States Air Corps. At present the performers are working overtime rehearsing for a command performance to be given before Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth.

Pte. Wainman went overseas with the S. D. and G. Highlanders and was fighting with that unit at the time he was wounded in France. He suffered leg and thigh injuries and following his discharge from the hospital he became a member of the Army Show troupe. Prior to enlisting he played in Mos Yokum's Orchestra, and a brother, Capt. Harold Wainman, is also serving overseas.

New Cruiser.

AB Leslie Groombridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Groombridge 296 Rogers Street, is a member of the crew of the new British-built cruiser, H.M.C.S. Uganda, which has been added to the Canadian Navy. It was commissioned on Trafalgar Day, October 21. An 8,000-ton medium cruiser, the Uganda was originally commissioned late in 1942 and served with the Royal Navy during the Sicilian and Italian landings. This ship is 549 feet long, mounts nine 6-inch guns, eight 4-inch anti-aircraft guns, and a considerable number of smaller guns.

Formerly an employee of the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company, AB Groombridge enlisted in February, 1943.

Nice Gesture.

Pte. Gerald R. Perry, of Cloyne, Ont., who is a cousin of Mrs. C. Killingbeck, 52 Olive Avenue, has written expressing thanks for the parcel which he received from the Peterborough Active Army Auxiliary. He was stationed in Belgium when he received the box, and he is a member of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders. The young soldier said that if the members of the Auxiliary could see how happy the boxes made the boys, they would feel repaid for their work.

Swimming Lessons.

Holland is a dispatch rider's nightmare, and those who have thoughts of surviving, recommend that all applicants should be well versed in the art of swimming, according to Sgmn Thomas Bunker, who has had plenty of experience.

"For the last five days and nights it has been raining steadily and the roads are really a mess. Talk about small roads and all full of holes, well Holland has them. One thing about it, if you go off the roads around here, you won't get back on them again by yourself. At night, it is really hard going, and most of the roads have a river or swamp on both sides of them.

"I nearly took a swim the other afternoon with my scout car. I got half way across a little bridge, only wide enough for one car, when a Bren Gun carrier came around the corner going pretty fast. I was waiting for him to put on his brakes, but he just kept coming, so I braced myself and he hit me head-on. I smashed the windshield with my nose and outside of breaking the track on the carrier, that's all that happened. Of course, I have missed a lot of skin off my nose. I found out his brakes wouldn't work, so I guess I was the one he picked on to get stopped."

Sgmn. Bunker wrote that when they first went into Holland, the people were friendly, but since going further inland their attitude has stiffened. He says that most of the men wear wooden shoes, and of course the children. The young soldier said he loved to watch the children run in them, and he stressed that they could really travel. He owned a pair for a while, but because they were hard on the sox, he gave them up.

Flee Flood

"Jerry certainly made an awful mess of one part of Holland when they let the river go. I have never seen anything like the floods. It is hard on the people who owned the farms around that way. All they could do was grab what they could and run for it. The water was really deep, 50 feet in places.

"The Germans have been getting a little braver these last few nights. He has been over trying to bomb the bridges around us. So far it's no score and I hope he doesn't get them either. Last night, he certainly shook up our billets. In a way we are getting used to that kind of stuff and they have to land very close to get a rise out of us now. They don't come over much during the day and we have some wonderful aircraft around our place. We watched a Spitfire take an awful flop yesterday. It appeared as though he were going to land on the road from where we were standing, but he fooled us and just lit in a field right beside the road. The flier made a marvellous landing and he didn't get hurt at all. He was also able to tell his chum, who was flying overhead, that he was all right. He was brought down by a few hot pieces of lead from German small arms."

Pay No Attention

Sgmn. Bunker in his letter written December 21, said that while he was fixing a flat on the road, he counted 18 flying bombs going overhead. The Germans are sending lots of them over and he said it was easy to distinguish them from Allied planes. He wrote that they sounded more like a motorcycle than a plane, and they travel around 300 miles an hour, according to reports. No one bothers to duck any more unless they are coming down close by, he declared.

The men in the front lines are not neglected from a health point of view, the dispatch rider said. He had an opportunity to get his teeth fixed up and so learned something about it. They have the chair in a big truck and it has its own lighting and heating systems, and they come right up to the front. It's just like walking into the dentist's office back home, he related.

One of the men overseas for a long period of time, Sgmn. Bunker has now been away four Christmases. Prior to the war he visited Peterborough several times.

The Right Moment

Rfmn. T. A. Montgomery was overseas two months before his mail caught up with him and the Christmas parcel from the Peterborough Active Army Auxiliary arrived among the first things and was a real treat, he writes.

"I have been in Europe a little more than two months and my mail just began to catch up with me at the end of November and your parcel was gratefully received. For a time I was stationed in Holland, but now am in the front lines over in Germany. Little did I think back in 1939 and 1940, that I'd be sitting in a trench in Germany, writing back home to Peterborough."

Rfmn. Montgomery is serving with the Royal Winnipeg Rifles and

Banishment To Tasmania For Rebels Unwritten Chapter Of Canadian History

An example of the dramatic, human stories that go to make up Canadian history, and which have in large part never known the writer's pen, is the banishment to Tasmania of some of the participants in the rebellion of 1837.

Professor Fred M. Landon of the University of Western Ontario told this story a few years ago on a visit to Windsor. He read from a diary of one of the Canadians who lived out the horrible years of his punishment on the wild Tasmanian isle, but died aboard ship within a few hundred miles of his native land he so longed to see once more. Professor Landon's reading of the diary and the story it sketched was a tale which in the hands of a master of the historical novel could set many of the best-sellers back on their heels.

Take a group of farmers or tradesmen and put them in a great stone jail at London, Ont. ,where they looked out through cold iron bars on the courtyard below. Take a dozen or so of them, a few at a time, and take them out in the courtyard at dawn and shoot them where the other's can see their blood redden Canada's soil.

The Queen's Mercy

Then have young Queen Victoria, newly ascended to the throne of the great British Empire, send word to Canada that she has granted amnesty to most, death to no more, and banishment to a few score.

Tasmania!

The word must have sprung at them with the brightness of a flash of lightning! Not London and its prison walls and certain death when one's turn came, but Tasmania.

Tasmania. Where was it? What was it like? How far away was it? When would they get back?

These poor, and in many cases ignorant but well-intentioned and determined Canadians, firm in the belief that they had been right in their rebellion, must have asked those questions, and what heartbreak must have been theirs when they learned the answers!

Tasmania; Even in 1944 this island, situated off the southern coast of Australia, seems so far away.

Chained on Prison Ship

They put chains on them one day and took them to Kingston and put them on a ship. Going up the gangplank which led them from the sweet soil of Canada, they had fought with ridiculous weapons but splendid bravery to save from what they believed were dangers, they took one last longing look behind, and then entered the dark hold and were fastened to the joists, as was the custom in prison ships in those days.

They went down the east coast of the United States and around the tip of South America and off across the broad and lonely waters of the Pacific. The diary tells of their homesickness at this point and of how men died and they knew nothing was wrong with them but that they were sick for home. And they lowered them over the side into the salt sea and Canadian flesh and bones sank down in the shark-filled waters to a grave they did not want.

Tasmania was bad, but getting home again was worse. Once your term was up they stopped feeding and housing you and turned you loose in the forests to do the best you could.

Once in months a ship would call and then the docks would be crowded with sick, heartsore men who wanted passage home, and offered not only to work their way, but to pay everything they had for the opportunity. Sea captains in those days were not gentle men, and the big and strong they chose and the ill they left behind. And there was no other way to get home.

The Man From St. Thomas

The man from a farm near St. Thomas, whose diary Professor Landon read, got his passage some two years after his sentence was served. He became more ill on board and soon it was seen that he was dying. One day he called the first mate, who had befriended him. From under the blanket which covered him as he lay sick on the top deck in the wintry sun, he reached a scrawny hand which held his diary. It had his address on it, and he requested that it be returned to his family, so that they would at least know what had happened to him, if death persisted in keeping him from joining them.

The last two items are in different hand writing, that of the first mate. He tells how on Christmas Day they lowered the Canadian over the side of the ship into the sea off Juan Fernandez, the island where Alexander Selkirk, the original "Robinson Crusoe," spent his days while marooned.

Then he tells of landing in New York and of returning the diary to St. Thomas.

Yes, that is a chapter of Canadian history so far unwritten. There are others. If historians or novelists looking for new fields will look at Canada, they will find plenty.

Some Varieties Of Birds Travel Far To Winter

By G. H. RICHARDSON

For a spell of few weeks, in the winter there is so little movement of birds that frequently you see the same species. However, the number of different things which you learn from repeated observation certainly make up for the lack of numbers. Then, too, there is a pleasant diversion in noting the different trees, and mammals, such as squirrels and rabbits.

Once in a while we see robins reported in the newspapers in winter. It makes us wonder where they go as a rule and what they do. Their wintering ground extends from southern Ontario South in the States, to Mexico and the southern States. Berries and fruits form part of their food at this time. When we do see them, in winter, as like as not they are feeding on Sumach seeds or Mountain Ash berries.

While on the question of where our summer birds winter, it might be interesting to the readers to know where others do winter. The bluebird, for instance, goes below our borders from eastern Nebraska and southern Massachusetts, south to the Gulf. The redwing occupies much the same winter territory as the bluebird. The black and white warbler, which is reasonably common throughout southern Canada in summer, goes as far as central America and Ecuador to winter. One interesting point about the winter ranges is that various species of northern and southern breeding range, mix in winter and not only this, but in parts of northern South America, there is in winter a mixture of tropical with north temperate birds.

Canada Jays Are Nosey

Often when you are out for a walk and stop for lunch, if you whistle their calls you will soon have chickadees flocking about you, and if you are patient will eventually have them on your hands eating crumbs from your sandwiches and making the air alive and cheerful with their notes. In the north the Canada jays and whiskey jacks are very nosey about camps, coming at the smell of food.

Canada jays are much like very overgrown chickadees, being slightly bigger than the common blue jay and of very fluffy plumage, darker gray above than below, with a black cap. They nest in the Canadian zone and come south irregularly, sometimes well down into southern Ontario.

There are two species of Chickadees in winter in most of southern Canada. The commonest is the black-capped chicadee the other is the brown - headed or Acadian chickadee. The latter is very similar to the commoner species, except that it has a brown crown and grayish cheeks, instead of black crown and white cheeks. The Acadian chickadee is slightly more northern in summer distribution than the black-capped although their ranges overlap in part. The brown-headed has a very nasal voice and says chick che yanh, yanh, instead of chickadee dee. In the southern parts of southern Ontario, the brown-headed chickadee is a rare visitor, much looked for by bird students.

The Tea Hour Gossip . . . .

After the heavy desserts we have had during Christmas and the New Year, we are all ready for some recipes for light desserts. Here are several good ones.

Spanish Cream

1 ounce (2 tablespoons granulated gelatin), ½ cup cold water, 1 cup hot milk, 1-3 cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 2¼ cups cold milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Make a custard of the egg yolks, sugar and hot milk. Add the softened gelatin and proceed as for any standard sponge mixture. Mold, chill and serve with whipped cream.

Apple Or Other Fruit Tapioca

1 cup of any fresh fruit, such as apples, peaches, apricots or cranberries, 1 cup dried fruit, which has been soaked but not cooked, ¾ cup granulated tapioca, ½ cup sugar, 3 cups cold water. Cook the tapioca and water in a double boiler, until transparent. Pare and core the apples, place in a baking dish and sprinkle with sugar. Pour over the sweetened fruit, the tapioca. Cover and bake in a slow oven 250 degrees to 350 degrees F. until the apples are entirely tender. For the last 10 minutes, remove the cover so that the surface of the pudding may brown slightly. Serve either hot or cold with cream. You can use

Globe-Trotting Young Man Recommends Merchant Marine If You Want Adventure

By DON McGIBBON

Pennsylvania newspapers have tagged him a soldier of fortune, but to his mother, her 6' 2" son is just a rolling stone, moved about by a wanderlust for many years.

Jon Paul Hanes

When it comes to colorful wartime experiences, you can hand the cake to 25-year-old Jon Paul Hanes, of Philadelphia, who in the past five years has served in the Canadian Army, the American Army, and the U.S. Merchant Marine. He is now on leave, visiting friends in Peterborough.

In the service of the United Nations, he has travelled the equivalent of two and a half times around the world. Two ships have been torpedoed under him, and he has been injured on numerous occasions.

His present rank in the Merchant Navy is that of Chief Cook, although that unassuming title offers no hint that he holds six medals, including the famed French honor, the Cross of Lorraine.

Visit To Antwerp

One of the highlights of Cook Hanes' adventurous career happened only a short time ago, when he narrowly escaped death by a V-2 rocket in Antwerp. He had arrived in the great Belgium port in the first convoy to enter after it had been opened.

"I was walking along a street in Antwerp", he began, "and the next thing I was conscious of, I was attempting to get up off the ground, stunned and bruised. A fellow merchant seaman was with me at the time, and for a while, I was sure he was dead. He wasn't, but others on the street were. A little girl was lying face down on the road; I went over to her and turned her over. She was dead. It is difficult to describe what had taken place. Later, I walked through the once-beautiful Victoria Square in the heart of Antwerp, shortly after another rocket had struck. I can never forget what I saw that day. No one else who was there will forget either, I am sure. Death and destruction, those are the only two words that can approach describing it. A street car was filled with bodies; the motor man slumped over the wheel. That was typical of this section of Antwerp, after one of Germany's vengeance weapons fell", he said.

Joined Canadian Army

Cook Hanes' story of his part in the war actually begins in 1939, when he was in the United States Army. When Canada entered the war, he, along with others, "bought himself" out of the American Army, and enlisted in Canada's active forces in Ottawa. In two weeks' time, he was on his way overseas attached to a field ambulance unit, and headed for the excitement which had prompted him to join another country's fighting forces.

All through the great Nazi air blitz of 1940-41, he served in some of the most consistently attacked places in the British Isles. London was one of them, and many are the memories he carries today of life in London during her "darkest hours".

Cook Hanes was discharged from the Canadian Army on medical grounds, and he returned to this continent. Once again the wanderlust and love of adventure took hold of him, and after five months, he became a member of the Merchant Marine, in the United States. While here, he worked the coast-wise runs down to Cuba, and from there to South American ports, including Rio de Janeiro, in the Argentine. Then, in February, 1942, he left the Merchant fleet and re-enlisted in Uncle Sam's army, in the medical corps. As a result of injuries he had sustained while in England, he was finally discharged from the American forces, after going on manoeuvers in the Mojavi desert, California, and taking a surgical technician's course at a government hospital in El Paso, Texas.

"It was inevitable that I should join the Merchant Marine again", he smiled, in a matter-of-fact manner, across a luncheon table.

"And, from then on, excitement came in liberal portions."

Supplies for Salerno

A matter of hours after American doughboys had stormed shore at Salerno, in Italy, Cook Hanes was on a ship that carried ammunition and high octane aeroplane gasoline to Italy. It was necessary for amphibious jeeps, known as Ducks, to ferry the supplies for the most part, to shore. According to this sailor, the Duck, (one of which was seen in Peterborough during the Victory Loan campaign last autumn), is doing marvellous work overseas.

"While at Naples, I saw something that left a variety of impressions on me", he declared. "Crew members of the boats were not allowed to give food to the people there, but they would approach the boat and actually beg for it. Everything we threw out as garbage, they could have. Some would snatch at it, and then barter, or auction it off in some way among themselves. Those were in the early days though, and things are different now."

"I can tell a little about one ship that was torpedoed; the other is strictly a military secret. We were in a convoy sailing off Gibraltar. Our ship was hit either by a mine or torpedo. No one found out. It was in early morning, and all I can remember is leaping into the water, and falling near a raft. The boat went down, but other ships in the convoy picked up the survivors. Being torpedoed can best be described in the words of most merchant seamen: "a thump, a bump, and a jump."

According to an Edinburgh, Scotland, newspaper, one of the convoy's that this sailor was with, was made up of a total of 167 ships, carrying a total of one and a half million tons of supplies, and covering an area of 26 square miles on the ocean. The journal's story said in effect that a lone sub was known to have approached the ships, but it was an extremely cautious sub, and vanished forthwith.

Cook Hanes has packed a lifetime of experience into the past five years. He has served where he would be accepted.

To this reporter, it was rather difficult to believe that a man with such an enthusiastic appetite for adventure, once entered a university in an attempt to fulfill a lifetime's ambition to be a doctor. Cook Hanes' brother is now studying surgery in the United States, while another brother was killed in the South Pacific on active service only a short time ago, at 18 years of age.

Advocates the Marine

Despite any hardships, this globe-trotting American heartily advocated the Merchant Marine to any and all who are looking for a clean and healthy work. Adventure is something that is thrown in, he said, but the important thing, is the job itself.

"There is work to be done, and the Merchant marine services of all countries are trying to do it. Everyone knows they have done well". Now at 25 years of age, he is frankly thinking of settling down sometime soon, and discarding any further thoughts of travel. This will come after the war has been won, of course, he said.

But that isn't the way his friends see it! They say, and not without justification they believe, that Cook Hanes, the seventh generation of a family that has followed the sea, has a long road to travel, before settling down.

Among the decorations he wears are: the Pre-Pearl Harbor Medal, the Asiatic-Pacific Medal, the Eastern European Theatre award, the Mediterranean Convoy Medal, the Atlantic Convoy Medal, and the Cross of Lorraine.

U.S. Starts To Make Plans To Restore Trade

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The United States has begun already to take the initiative in restoring the world's trade, knowing that only by its restoration can the American economy hope to prosper and private enterprise survive. Two recent developments mark the United States' determination to start goods moving through the world after the war. First, the United States has undertaken, by a new lend-lease agreement, to help Britain rebuild its industries and its export trade. Second, a spokesman of the government has asked Congress to approve a program of wide international economic co-operation. The government has acted in words and in deeds.

The new lend-lease agreement covers the year which will follow the collapse of Germany, whenever that occurs. In this year the United States will reduce by 43 per cent. the amount of goods it will send to Britain under the lend-lease formula, since Britain will not need them to maintain its present war effort against Germany. But a substantial part of the goods shipped in this period will be used to aid Britain in peacetime reconstruction.

By securing from the United States, without payment, goods to be used in the war against Japan, Britain will be enabled to turn over a large part of its own industrial capacity to the manufacture of peacetime goods for its own use and for export. Secondly, the lend-lease goods will include about $60,-000,000 worth of prefabricated houses for bombed-out British workers and also increased food shipments to improve the British diet. Thirdly, and perhaps most important, the United States agrees to reconvert its own industry to peace at the same rate at British conversion. For example, if the United States decides to convert 40 per cent. of its plants to peacetime use after Germany's collapse, Britain will do the same. The agreement thus prohibits any "undue competitive advantage" for the industry of either country.

The new lend-lease agreement turns out to be one of the most enlightened policies of international co-operation on record. But it is only the beginning of the United States government's plans.

In a statement to a committee of Congress a few days ago Mr. Dean Acheson, assistant secretary of state, outlined the government's larger plans in detail. His statement confirms at every point the forecast made by the Free Press in a dispatch from Washington in mid-October. In brief, the United States government proposes nine distinct projects of world economic reconstruction as follows:

Repeal of the Johnson Act which prohibits private and public United States loans to countries that have defaulted on loans in the past; expansion of the lending authority of the Export-Import Bank to make possible large American foreign loans; ratification by Congress of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, as proposed at Bretton Woods, its chief purpose being to guarantee foreign loans by private lenders; ratification of the Bretton Woods currency stabilization plan; reduction in tariffs; an international trade conference "at the earliest practicable date for the reduction of barriers to trade"; creation of an "international trade organization to study international trade problems and to recommend practical solutions"; possible expansion of the Securities and Exchange Commission to check the soundness of foreign loans; approval of the Dumbarton Oaks league of nations charter.

Mr. Acheson also urged, as part of this general scheme, a new system of commodity agreements along the lines described in dispatches to the Free Press from Washington.

Taken together all these proposals represent the largest attack ever ever made upon the problem of world trade in modern times. If they can be effected, the world may look forward to an expansion of prosperity greater than any it has ever known.

It must be remembered, however, that while the United States government proposes, Congress disposes. While Congress may well agree to foreign lending and currency stabilization, the true test of its willingness to restore trade will arise when it is asked to reduce tariffs. Powerful influences like the National Planning Association, in a report already quoted here, are working for tariff reductions in the United States. Forces possibly more powerful already are at work against them. The clear indication that the U.S. senate will not ratify the post-war oil treaty between the United States and Britain is an ominous sign; for the objection to this treaty is that it would result in the importation of large quantities of foreign oil in competition with American producers after the war. Every detailed proposal to increase competitive foreign imports into the United States will be vigorously fought in Congress by well-organized pressure groups.

Of this the President is well aware, but he is basing his whole post-war program in the United States on his plan to restore the world at large. Having prevented such an effort at the London Economic Conference of 1933, and seen the results of that failure, he understands better than any of his predecessors that the United States can only prosper in a prosperous world. He knows that if the United States refuses to lend money and accept goods in payment, other nations will be forced into autarchy, as they were after the last war, and another world depression will be assured.

Students Beat C.G.E. 22-13; Marines Lose

The City Basketball League got a good start with a double-header in the Collegiate gymnasium Friday night in which the P.C.V.S. squad triumphed over the C.G.E. 22 to 13, while Cougars won a sizzling contest from Outboard Marines 31 to 30.

Coach Bev. Goulding trotted out a school squad of 11 players against C.G.E. in the first game and the Collegiate outfit played good basketball to take the decision from the Electricians. The winners were in front 7 to 4 after a low-scoring first half and after the rest they outscored C.G.E. by 15 to 9 in the second period.

Don Plunkett sparked the Collegiate attack by racking up three field baskets and three successful free throws for a total of nine. Thompson was next in line for the winners with four, and the rest of the points were well distributed throughout the squad.

Galley was high scorer for the Electricians with a total of five points and no other C.G.E. player had more than two points.

The teams:

P.C.V.S. 22—Thompson 4, Brown 3, Courtney 2, Estlick 1, Collins, Darling, Lee 3, Whitaker, Matthews, Rooke, Plunkett 9.

C.G.E. 13—Galley 5, Seabrook, G. Johnston 2, Geraghty, Shadgett, R. Johnston 2, Praskey, Carrell 2, Waterman, McQuade 2.

Referee, Curley Krug; umpire, M. Richardson.

Cougars and Outboard Marines had a red-hot battle which the former, hanging on by their eyelashes, won by 31 to 30. Marines stages a last moment drive that almost grabbed off a victory for them but Cougars just did manage to hang on and come home in front by the narrowest possible margin.

It was an exciting argument all the way. Neither outfit could take a commanding lead in the first half but Outboards finished the half in front 14 to 12.

Cougars drew away in the second half and at one stage had a lead of 10 points but the Outboards cooked with gas in the last few minutes and kept very close to pulling the game out of the fire.

Steve Csumrik was the big gun on the attack for the winners with 19 points. Menzies with 9 and Routley and Nicholls with seven each were the top scorers for the Outboards. The teams:

Cougars, 31—Davern 6, Csumrik 19, Mathias 1, W. Turner 4, A. Turner 1, Edwards.

Outboards, 30—Menzies 9, Stewart 4, Nicholls 7, Routley 7, Kemp 3, Bouck.

Referee, Curly Krug; umpire, M. Richardson.

Rangers' Spurt Amazes Fans

By The Canadian Press

A few days ago you wouldn't have believed it could happen but there they are to-day, the New York Rangers, smack in a fourth place tie with Boston Bruins and in a contending position for a National League play-off berth—no less.

It only goes to prove what any old hockey fan already knows—that the Broadway Blues have been noted for their amazing recovery spurts. It was that way in the old days and it's no different now.

Just a few days ago Lester Patrick's men were still being chided about battling with Chicago for the right to the loop cellar.

Rangers, though they have won the Stanley Cup three times since they entered the league in the 1925-26 season, have never won an N. H. L. championship and only three times led the American section of the loop. Usually they hung third or fourth on the combined ladder, sometimes bouncing down to the bottom.

First time they won the world's championship was 1928. Finishing second in the American section of the ten-team loop, Rangers whipped Pittsburg and Boston in total-goal series and beat Montreal Maroons in the playoffs.

All the teams are in action this week-end with Detroit out to catch up to Canadiens again, meeting the loop leaders at Montreal to-night while Boston plays at Toronto. Tomorrow, Rangers face the strong Canadiens, Toronto seeks to overcome their jink at Detroit and Boston is at Chicago.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

The Peterborough juvenile hockey league which promises to provide a lot of interesting competition will open its season on Monday night and the Lakefield Rink will be the scene of the opening double-header. In the card arranged for the first night the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School team will battle the Y Cubs in the first game while the nightcap fixture will see the Lakefield juveniles clash with Jim Buchan's Hawks. All four of the teams hope to have a strong lineup. It will be Collegiate's first venture in organized hockey in years and the players are being coached by Bev Goulding. The Y team sponsored by the Y's Men and coached by G. Harris is said to have rounded up a likely bunch of youngsters. Jim Buchan has not announced his Hawk lineup for Monday but he has been working on the team for some time and will likely come up with a strong aggregation. As for Lakefield, reports from the northern suburb are that the kids have been showing a lot of class in practice. The juveniles should have a good season all around and there promises to be a lot of interesting hockey before the winner is decided.

There was some high class rolling in the City Five Pin League Thursday night with W. Boon setting the pace with a cross of 876, a nice effort in any sort of a league. In second place was Jack Playford, leader in the scoring averages for the first half of the schedule who served notice on all and sundry that he proposes to stick up around the top during the second half. He came up with a total of 865 to run second for the night. Incidentally three other trundlers managed to beat the 800 mark in Thursday's rolling. Doug Abraham kicked in with 859, Bud Weese spilled the pins to the tune of 856 and Bill Howes contributed a 825 record. Eight players had a single of 300 or better. As for team scores the Outlaws produced one of the finest efforts of the season when piling up 3669 pins to swamp the Ramblers 6 to 0. Jack Wade's outfit were in championship form as their huge total and the fact that they put together a team single score of 1285 clearly shows. Gene Reynolds and Bud Weese shared the honors for high single, each coming through with a 347 score, classy trundling even in a loop where good scoring has been a feature.

Champs Increase Lead

The Transports are further out in front in the senior division of the Ladies' Basketball League as a result of their 26 to 19 victory over the second-place St. John's team last night and the win served notice on the opposition that the champs are shaping up to finish the loop in first place. In other words it looks as if the chief battle from now in will be between St. John's and C.G.E. for the right to grab off second place and reach the playoffs with the Transports. The latter went through the regular schedule last season without a loss and then had a tough time beating St. John's in the final series. The champs handled the ball better than the Saints in last night's game and shot more accurately. Eva Clarke seemed to be the only St. John's player who had her eye on the basket and her 16-point effort kept the losers in the ball game although it was not enough to earn them the verdict. In the junior game Westclox gave the strong Y Grads a nice argument before being beaten 35 to 15. Grads cashed in on their scoring opportunities in better style than the Big Bens although Olive Hanwell made a great effort to keep Westclox in there. She scored 14 of her teams' 15 points. For a first year player the Westclox forward is setting up quite a record. Altogether this season the Big Bens have scored a total of 65 points and Olive Hanwell has been responsible for 49 of them. For a rookie to score 75 per cent of her team's score for the season must represent a new mark.

Judging by the quality of basketball played in the opening double-header of the City League in the Collegiate gym last night the loop should provide some keen competition before the winners are decided. Both games were hard fought and interesting and the second battle in which the Cougars eked out a 31 to 30 over Outboard Marines was plenty exciting with the Outboards making a last minute drive that came within an ace of turning the trick for them. Chief factor in the Cougar win was the scoring splurge staged by Steve Csumrik who seemed to find the big Collegiate gym to his liking and ran up a score of 19 points. In the first game on the card Coach Bev Goulding of P.C.V.S. used his Cossa squad to put up a neat win at the expense of the C.G.E. who were beaten 22 to 13. Collegiate dressed eleven players and the young squad looked decidedly promising. Future double-headers in the City League will be played on Saturday nights and the next twin bill, a week from tonight will be staged at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium.

They'll Come Back

Bill Westwick, Ottawa Journal sports commentator, thinks that professional hockey players now on war service will be able to come back all right when the conflict is over. Digging into ancient history the Ottawa scribe says: "Tiny Thompson, a top notch goalie in his day and now chief scout for Chicago Black Hawks, takes a rather dim view of the chances of former hockey stars in the armed forces recovering their past form after the war. "Tiny" seems unduly pessimistic in view of past performances. The records are studded with the names of stars who came back from the First Great War and continued to shine in their former hockey company. Several professional stars have been mentioned from time to time. Ottawa provided an outstanding example in Harry Broadbent, who played some of his greatest hockey after coming back from the war. By the time some of his mates overseas had returned "Old Elbows" was right in scoring stride, and played on no fewer than three Stanley Cup championship teams before he called it quits. "Red" Dutton is a striking example—one of the greatest of competitors — and the redoubtable "Duke" Keats another. Art Gagne came back to shine on one of the finest lines with Joliat and Morenz. So did Bill Cook, one of the greatest right wingers ever to don skates. Alex Connell reached stardom after a long spell of overseas service. The professionals mentioned are only a few. The list is longer than that, but you don't have to look any farther than this city to recall some of the top plight amateurs who came back and hit their old strike in City League company that boasted strong and well matched teams."

Doug Vaughan, Windsor Star sport columnist, declares that the Detroit Red Wings are confident that in their game with Canadiens in Montreal tonight they will end the ascendancy of the Flying Frenchmen and come up with a win. Here is what the Windsor scribe says about the outlook: Last year Montreal's record of nine victories and one tie in games played with the Red Wings was not hard to understand. The Canadiens were so much the best team in the National League that it is a wonder that they lost the five games that they did. But this is a different year and the Canadiens are not as strong as they were last year while the Wings are a vastly better team. Yet the answers, so far, has still been the same. The Wings, apparently, just can't beat the Canadiens despite the fact that other teams—especially the Toronto Leafs—haven't found them too tough to handle. When the Wings headed for Montreal yesterday, they were a determined band of athletes. "With the addition of Earl Seibert," said Captain Flash Hollett, "we are stronger now than we have ever been since I've been with the club. I think Saturday night will see us put an end to that Montreal jinx. And once we do I'm confident it will be clear sailing from there on to a National League championship." If Hollett's confidence is justified it's another of those things that remains to be seen.

St. John's Lose To Transports In Senior Game

Transports increased their lead in the senior division of the Ladies' Basketball League by defeating St. John's 26 to 19 in the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium Friday night, while "Y" Grads in the junior section kept up their unbeaten record by turning back the Westclox 35 to 15.

The senior game was a tight fought interesting battle with the Transports always in front after they had overcome a 4 to 0 St. John's lead set up in the first couple of minutes but with the Saints always pressing so that the winners had no chance to ease up.

Eva Clarke of the losers who was the individual star of the game was a one-girl riot squad rattling in seven field baskets and two free throws for a total of 16 of her team's 19 points and her successful shooting kept the Saints always within reaching distance of the winners.

However the rest of the St. John's team were off in their shooting and that was the difference between the two outfits. Transports handled the ball smartly and took better advantage of their scoring chances Beryl Dobbin having 10 points, Fran Bestard six, Isobel Bullock 5 and Jean Castle 4.

Eva Clarke put St. John's in front with two quick baskets at the outset but Beryl Dobbin evened up the count with two neat scores and from then on the Transports took command of the game. They were in front 12 to 8 at the half and outscored the Saints 14 to 11 in the second half.

The teams:

Transports 26—Beryl Dobbin 10, Isobel Crary, Irene Stewart, Fran Bestard 6, Jean Castle 4, Isobel Bullock 5, R. Fleming 1.

St. John's 19—Marg Batley 1, Teresa Heslip, Joan Patterson, Eva Clarke 16, Marg. Hawthorne, E. McIlhagga 2, Edith Harte-Maxwell, M. Keeler.

Referee—Joe Cooper.
Umpire—Mary McPherson.
Timer—A. Neiman.

In the junior game "Y" Grads kept their victory parade going but Westclox gave them a better argument than they have been encountering, although the unbeaten league leaders finally won by 35 to 15. The Big Bens provided a lot of opposition especially in the first half and the Grads were only 16 to 7 in front at the rest period but they increased their lead in the second half.

Betty Lou Braund with 17 points, Shirley Curtis with 12 and Betty Stewart with 6 did all the scoring for the winners while Olive Hanwell was responsible for all but one of the Westclox points. She tossed in six field baskets and two free throws for a total of 14 points. The only other Westclox score was contributed by Verna Patterson who cashed in on a free throw.

The teams:

"Y" Grads 35—A Metheral, M. Braund, Betty Lou Braund 17, H. Duncan, M. Barrett, Shirley Curtis 12, Betty Stewart 6, Pat. Martyn.

Westclox 15—Olive Hanwell 14, Betty Wyatt, Barbara Wyatt, Verna Patterson 1, Josephine Crowe, V. Clarke, F. Hanwell, Viola McLean, J. Hobbins.

Referee—Hymie Smith.
Umpire—Joe Cooper.
Timer—A. Neiman.

Marion Timm Sweeps Honors

Marion Timm with a high three of 706 and singles of 296 and 234 took all the individual honors in the Ladies' Five Pin League at the Y.M.C.A. this week. Only two other bowlers managed to top the 600 mark, E. Stanbury with 681 and H. Davis with 626.

In addition to Marion Timm's two good singles, other outstanding efforts were H. Jackson 276, E. Stanbury 264 and 251, Dot Bestard 250, R. Akers 249, H. Davis 237 and C. Henry 232.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—Perhaps the most significant statement at a press conference following Eddie Eagan's appointment as New York boxing commissioner was Eagan's remark that he would cooperate as fully as possible with the National Boxing Association . . . The other high spot was Gov. Dewey's refusal to sing "Don't Fence Me In" at the boxing writers' dinner . . . It may take a lot of the fun out of sports writing if those wordy New York-N.B.A. feuds are ended, but it will be a lot healthier for boxing if champions are champs everywhere and if suspensions are made to stick in all states . . . One thing is sure, the appointment of Lt.-Col. Eagan (Yale, Harvard and Oxford) makes it impossible to revive Bill McGeehan's designation of the commissioners as the "Three Dumb Dukes."

Theatre Packed To See Fight

LONDON, Jan. 13 (CP)—Fighting wasn't confined to the ring when promoters chose a suburban London theatre as a suitable spot for a boxing card.

Unparalleled scenes occurred when crowds outside the theatre fought to get inside—hundreds of them without success—while the crowds inside fought and scrambled to get upstairs or downstairs to reach their seats. No one anticipated such a turnout of fight followers at such an out-of-the-way place.

The house was sold out long before the bouts began and many ticket-holders, including women, were caught in the surging mob which was not dispersed for nearly an hour.

Some who saw the feature attraction figured that those who didn't were lucky. It ended in the fourth round when Al Phillips, powerful contender for the British featherweight title, was disqualified for a low blow and the fight awarded to Dave Crowley, a veteran who two years ago appeared all washed up.

Crowley's comeback has been amazing. Recently he won the Southern Area lightweight championship and is a challenger for the British lightweight championship which he held in 1938 and lost to Liverpool's Eric Boon.

The piece-de-resistance of the evening, however, came in an interval between bouts when two turkeys were auctioned for $247 and $117.

From Burma comes word of Dick Pratt, brother of Babe Pratt of Toronto's National Hockey League team and signaller with the Royal Corps of Signals. He is working with advance troops pushing through thick jungle against the Japanese.

Pratt, whose home is (Osborne street) Winnipeg, came to Britain to play hockey shortly before the war and was with Perth Panthers and Fife Flyers. He joined the Signal Corps in 1941 and went to Singapore where he worked on radio communications until the port fell. He escaped to Ceylon, later moved to India.

As part of the advance troops, Pratt carried a compact receiving and transmitting set with which he advises supply planes as to proper dropping points for packages and parachuted equipment.

CORNWALL, Jan. 13 — (CP). — Cornwall Cookies gained two points on the leading Valleyfield Braves of the Interprovincial Hockey League last night, scoring a 4-3 victory over the Braves with Bernie Lauzon leading the way with two second-period goals.

McIntosh, who scored all Valleyfield goals, set the Braves ahead 1-0 in the first period, but in the second frame, Dick Proulx scored the equalizer, and Lauzon sent the Cookies ahead 3-1. Early in the last session, Babe Tapin made it 4-1 before McIntosh added two more for the Braves.

Kentucky Derby Unlikely To Be Cancelled

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—The Kentucky Derby, banned in the order that closed all United States race tracks, may be run after all this year if the government approves of plans concocted by several men high in the thoroughbred sport.

Their prime motive is to keep alive the mile-and-a-quarter run for the roses without conflicting with the request of War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes' request that all race tracks remain idle until such time as war conditions permit the runners to re-enter the American sports scene.

The plan which at this time seems to fit best into governmental regulations is one that would stage the race without any spectators (and naturally no betting) with three-year-olds quartered at Churchill Downs furnishing the competition and the purse dependent on the calibre of the field. It would be a far cry from the spectacles of the past when upwards of 75,000 fans have watched the top three-year-olds battle for as much as $75,000 but it would perpetuate the race that the American public calls its own.

Some 200 horses are wintering at Churchill. Many of these are three-year-olds although few, if any, are the type that would run in the Derby in ordinary years. However, such big stables as Warren Wright's Calumet Farm and John Marsch call Kentucky their home and under government orders can ship their horses home.

SAMMY SNEAD GUIDES THE BALL BY REMOTE CONTROL—Balanced on one foot, Sammy Snead uses "body English" to try to down his putt on the 14th green in the 19th annual Los Angeles open golf tournament at the Riviera County Club. Whether Snead's system of remotely controlling the ball had anything to do with it or not, Sammy won the crown with a total of 883 for the 72 holes, nosing out defending Champion Harold "Jug" McSpaden by a single stroke.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Jan. 13 — (CP). — It's no secret that basketball isn't any wow as a crowd drawer in Canada, but officials of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association are training their sights on the future when they hope to make the game a drawing card in these northern parts. They'd like to see it become as popular as college basketball in the United States, where the hoopsters play to capacity audiences in Madison Square Gardens in New York.

One of the big difficulties, aside from lack of spectator interest, has been the practical non-existence of gymnasiums with sufficient seating capacity to handle even moderate crowds. The game isn't ready to move into the large hockey arenas, so boosters have to look somewhere else.

Latest idea of the C.A.B.A. is to get the Dominion Government to turn over some of those big Army, Navy and Air Force drill halls after the war for conversion to basketball stadia. Many of the Air Force buildings might be available now, following the reduction in air training, but the real expansion of the game would have to wait until post-war years for players anyway, so things can't go much beyond the planning system now.

The association also plans to encourage and foster the sport among junior players — the logical first step in the development of any game—to build up reserves of future players. Missionary work among the younger players has been neglected since the outbreak of war, mainly because most of the boys in the required age groups are playing on European fields.

There are still many opportunities to stir up interest among the boys below junior age, and indications are the association will get started in that direction before too long.

As part of the program to get a start on this fifth war year of basketball, the game's boosters are staging exhibition matches in Toronto January 26, when fans will get a line-up on the comparative strength of teams in Ontario at least. Last year's Dominion champions, Merritton Hayes Steel of St. Catharines, will be out on the floor to show their strength.

The Merritton squad includes several players brought across the border from the U.S. to combat the shortage of Canadian players. By the process of elimination they swung into the title last year by downing the C.S. Army Engineers from Edmonton after the R.C.A.F. Pat Bay Gremlins from the West Coast were kayoed by service regulations.

Majors Wallop Staffords; Increase Lead

By The Canadian Press

Hamilton Majors administered an 8-3 licking to Toronto Staffords in a Senior O.H.A. fixture at Hamilton last night to raise to four points their league leadership over St. Catharines Saints. On two previous occasions this season, the cellar-dwelling Staffs had worked a tie-game with Hamilton but this time the Majors won a clear-cut decision.

The veteran line of Doug Runions, Dillon Brady and Johnny Conick each accounted for two goals and two assists during the 60 minutes. In addition to the old masters, Liscombe and Shillington figured in the Hamilton scoring with a goal apiece. Robertson was also a helpmate with assists on two occasions. Scorers for Toronto were Drummond, Strongman and Moorehouse, while Dafoe, Calhoun and Victry got the assists respectively.

Staffords grabbed the lead with the only counter of the opening session but Runions and Co. clicked off four in a row in the second and had the visitors 6-1 down until midway in the third period before Toronto saw the net again. A small crowd witnessed the tilt in which there were only two penalties.

At St. Catharines, the Senior Saints entertained the Toronto Army Shamrocks at an exhibition party and won 14-6. Fritz scored three for the home club and Davis did likewise for the Soldiers.

Freddie Schott, Akron New Seeker After Heavyweight Boxing Crown

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)— Freddie Schott of Akron, O., now a 4-F New Jersey war-plant worker, is the latest contender in the heavyweight boxing picture.

Making his first major start at Madison Square Garden last night, the undefeated 20-year-old walloper, now a resident of Paterson, N.J. stole the limelight in all-star card of three 10-rounders by whipping Billy Grant of Orange, N.J. in a slam-bang affair for his 32nd straight victory.

After Schott and Grant finished their exciting contest before 12,507 (gross gate $40,489), Jimmy Doyle, the California "young master" from Los Angeles easily outpointed Frankie Terry of Brooklyn and Phil Terranova of New York, former N.B.A. featherweight champion, climaxed a late rally by knocking Charley (Cabey) Lewis of Havana down twice (nine and five counts) in the ninth round to win a close decision.

Schott, who can absorb as well as hand out punishment, is ambitious to meet the winner of the Jan. 26 Garden scrap between Lee Oma and Joe Baksi. Promoter Mike Jacobs has indicated, however, that he must prove his ability further by first meeting Tami Mauriello, a heavy defeated by both Oma and Baksi. Schott who had Grant near a knockout in the third, weathered a savage attack by Grant in the fifth, then won going away by seven rounds to three on the Associated Press scorecard. He weighed 209¾; Grant 178.

Admiral Nelles Wanted Action

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 13 (CP) — The Canadian Navy's first Canadian-trained full-blown Admiral—Percy W. Nelles—almost got no further than midshipman's rank. Promotion and retirement of the Admiral was announced Wednesday.

The decisive-spoken sailor with iron-grey, curly hair and horn-rimmed glasses, was serving with British Admiral Sir Christopher Craddock at the start of the First Great War.

Slight "Canada" Nelles was serving in Craddock's ship when Von Spee's German force was reported in the Southeast Pacific. Craddock transferred to a faster ship and led an outnumbered force to a gallant end at the battle of Coronel off Chile.

Left behind was a disconsolate midshipman who lived to see Von Spee defeated at the Falkland Islands and to head the Canadian Navy.

The most recent anecdote on the Admiral concerns his work in connection with invasion planning. Visiting the destroyer Algonquin, he was told by her officers they wanted to see some real action in the fight in prospect and not just have to do patrol duty.

"All right," said the Admiral, "I'll get you some action."

He walked into a planning board and argued he wanted the R.C.N. in the front rank of invasion craft. It was important they be given a chance to engage the enemy closely. It would add lustre to their growing tradition as a fighting force.

The Algonquin found herself at dawn on D-Day the nearest Allied ship to the beach and under enemy guns. An officer is reported to have remarked: "I never thought the Admiral would take us so literally.

Kesselring Recovers

LONDON, Jan. 13 — (CP) — The German radio said Thursday that Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring, German commander in Italy, had an "accident" recently at the Italian front, but now is fully recovered. On Dec. 31 the Brussels radio broadcast what it said was an order of the day from Hitler, issued in November, announcing Kesselring's death.

For Bad Winter Coughs, Mix This Syrup at Home

Quick Relief. Big Saving. So Easy. No Cooking.

This well known recipe is used by many thousands of housewives, because they have found that it gives them an effective, dependable medicine for distressing winter coughs. It's so easy to mix—anyone can do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for effect on throat membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all and takes but a moment. No cooking needed. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey instead of sugar syrup.)

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of cough syrup, unusually quick-acting and dependable, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be surprised by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick, satisfying relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please in every way.

Seaforths Guess About V.C. Award While Smokey Smith In Dark

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC, Jan. 13 — (CP). — The men of the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada knew that their buddy, Pte. Ernest A. (Smokey) Smith of New Westminster, B.C., was going to be awarded the Victoria Cross long before announcement of the award was made public.

The men — all of them except Smokey—knew because they had studied every phase of the action in which Smith carried on as a one-man army. With this study they coupled events that followed the action and came up with the deduction that Smokey would get the V.C.

(Smith now is at his home in New Westminster, having returned from the front by plane Christmas Day).

The citation accompanying Smokey's award told of how he saved the Savio River bridgehead last Oct. 21 by beating off German counter-attacks, but this is the story pieced together shortly after the action.

Cleaned Up Four

Smokey was among four men posed at a culvert on a crossroad over which any counter-attack against the bridgehead would have to pass. He swung into action when four Germans were seen coming up the road. Pte. Kenny Ballard of Vancouver opened fire and the Germans answered with Schmeiser fire. Smokey worked his way around behind the Germans and with his Tommy-gun killed one and wounded two who died the following morning. The fourth got away.

Later, a German tank was heard approaching. Smokey and his comrades leaped into a ditch alongside of the road. They waited in the ditch until the Hun machine was almost on top of them, then let fly a piat bomb square on the nose. As the tank careened on past them, Smith and Pte. Jimmy Tennant of New Westminster opened up with their Tommy-guns and sprayed the enemy infantry riding on the Panther tank's back.

The enemy began chucking grenades at the two in the ditch. Tennant was hit by the first and his arm broken. He crawled along the ditch to Smokey and lay there.

The Germans jumped down from the tank as Smokey leaped on to the road. The tank had pulled to an abrupt stop in its path obstructed by a knocked-out half track. The Huns were at point-blank range. There were more than 15, perhaps as many as 25.

"There were quite a few," said Smokey later. "I was so mad it looked to me as though there were hundreds, but I guess there weren't. Anyway, I wouldn't mind betting a lot of them were hit. You couldn't miss. All you had to do was point."

Finish Second Tank

Another tank closed in with more infantry, but Smokey grabbed more magazines from the ditch and took them on too. He won his point. The Huns withdrew and the tank turned around and sped up the road, its machine-guns blazing into the ditch where Tennant lay. It couldn't depress the muzzle low enough and its hail of lead sped over the ditch into the farmland beyond.

When the fighting ceased, Smokey loaded Tennant on his shoulders and took him back to a first aid station. Then he returned to take up his position at the crossroads and to keep an eye on the 25 prisoners captured by him and others during the battle.

A few days after the action, Smokey was taken out of the tank-hunting platoon and was made a driver at regimental headquarters. The move lead to speculation that Smokey was in line for something big.

Add to Rumors

The speculation spread when the army commander congratulated the battalion on establishing and holding the bridgehead. The commander said the Seaforths had materially helped in the development of the army's battle-plan.

The Seaforths had made possible a subsequent army operation and the men were sure decorations would result. They pieced names and performances together and decided that Smokey was the logical man to get a decoration. He had done a terrific job that night.

But so closely did the boys keep all their speculation from Smokey himself that it is entirely probable that until the day he left the front and made his way to an airport and a plane for home he never dreamed he soon would be wearing the Victoria Cross.

Will Compromise

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 13—(AP). —Garage proprietors say if Lieut. Jay Edward Maeder of South Euclid, O., will claim his car they're willing to compromise on storage charges. Maeder is believed to be stationed at Fort Jackson, S.C. The car was stored almost a year ago. Storage costs—75 cents a night — soon will equal the value of the car.

ONE YOU SEE AND ONE YOU DON'T—Although there appears to be only one soldier in this picture, made somewhere in the European theatre of operations, a closer inspection will reveal another all-but-invisible soldier to the right. The hidden one is wearing the new army snow cape, demonstrating its concealing qualities on snow-covered terrain. The barrel of his carbine gives away his position to the photographer.

Garbage Fees Placed On Tax Bills

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 13 — (ENS). — Major action at the inaugural meeting of the village council this week was the decision to place all garbage and refuse fees on the tax bills for 1945. Rates will be set at a special meeting, January 18, when it is expected the entire fee for a tenant will average about 50 cents a month.

More frequent garbage collection will be maintained during the five warmer months of the year and those with sceptic tanks will be billed only for garbage collection.

Peterboro Flier Makes 55 Heavy Raids

WITH R.C.A.F. BOMBER GROUP IN BRITAIN. — Arriving overseas with the rank of corporal as an aero engine mechanic in February, 1942, to finally become engineer leader of the Bison Squadron, Group Capt. Kenneth E. Johnston, D.F.C., 66 Lee Street, recently completed his second tour of "ops" on Halifax bombers with the Bison Squadron of the R.C.A.F. Bomber Group.

On his first tour Group Captain Johnston logged more than 30 sorties on enemy targets, and more than 25 on his second tour. He was commissioned on completion of his first tour and awarded the D.F.C.

The 30-year-old flight engineer served in ground crew in England for six months before remustering to air crew. He trained in Wales, graduating as a sergeant. Posted to an R.A.F. squadron, he saw service with several squadrons before completing his first tour. Moving into the R.C.A.F. Bomber Group, he instructed at several heavy conversion units for nine months before joining his present squadron as engineer leader.

GROUP CAPT. K. E. JOHNSTON

Although he has had the usual experiences of air crew in being shot up by flak several times, the sortie he recalls most vividly was to Dusseldorf, when the bomber attacked an unidentified fighter over the target.

"That was a close shave,' said Group Capt. Johnston. "Fire from the enemy fighter's cannons holed the port wing and rudder, and shot part of the elevator away. We were able to get back to base due to the fine airmanship of the skipper, who later was awarded an immediate D.F.C. Fortunately none of the crew was injured."

Group Capt. Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Johnston, 66 Lee Street, was a former employee of the Whittington Service Station at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer Streets. He enlisted in 1940.

G. R. Langley, Works Engineer of the Canadian General Electric, spoke on "Post-war Development", at the Friday Night Supper Club. The sub heading of the topic were three in number, namely medical, recreation, and conservation, the latter Mr. Langley chose to elaborate on. Reforestation, he said is the important item under post-war conservation.

The club was visited by a few of the former members, Capt. Harry Marsh, Pte. Jack Perry, A. B. Gordon Duncan, F.O. Buck Hamilton and telegrapher Chalmers "Chum" Gillespie.

Also Messrs. E. Johnston and W. J. Hamilton.

Capt. Marsh made an earnest appear for the I.O.D.E. Book Fund, which is to send books to the boys and girls in the forces (overseas). He pointed out a few examples of how useful books are to the troops and asked that this appeal for books be well supported.

Don. Graham and Jim Shields conducted the sing-song.

Newton Hamilton was the lucky winner of the door prize.

Sunday School Assists Robomb Victims

No teaching or learning may be said to be worth any more than the results it produces in actual practice, and when it includes something that also embodies a measure of self-sacrifice, this becomes all the more evident, for professions without deeds in this enlightened world, only serve as a retarding factor, when their effect should be to encourage others, if a good work is to gain the momentum that it deserves.

Sunday Schools of course are chiefly concerned with the propogation of the christian faith, and have one of the greatest missions on earth to fulfil in that one feature alone, but here again, the results of their teachings are best shown in deeds rather than words, the former serving to prove just how effective the latter has been.

At a time when so much evil is abroad in the world, all adherents to the Christian faith can do much to counteract its effect, by putting into practice the teaching of the Great Master, upon which their faith is founded. The value of such to the impressionable minds of the young, must surely prove of lasting benefit in the days that are to come, let alone the immediate benefit they may have for all concerned.

One of the happy features connected with the work of raising the means locally to alleviate the sufferings of robomb victims in Britain, hos been the manner in which the various Christian bodies have rallied to its support, prominent among which has been the part played by the younger folk, to whom this practice of their teachings must have incalculable value.

Today the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund can demonstrate this once again, by acknowledging a contribution of $16.13 from Knox United Church Sunday School, which because it was also associated with the White Gifts Service, would carry all the more significance in regard to the practice of their Christian professions, and make a more lasting impression on the minds of the young folk who participated.

Linked up with this comes a donation from three children, Mary, Jane and George Rowsom, in far away Locust Valley, Long Island, N.Y., who in a similar manner will learn how much more blessed it is to give, rather than receive.

When anniversaries that have meant much in happiness come along, to celebrate them by an act of benefit to assist in bringing some comfort to those in distress, would seem to bear the hallmark of thankfulness as well. Today a personal gift is also acknowledged, being given by a husband in the name of his wife, on their wedding anniversary.

School Doctor At Collegiate

The school doctor, Dr. L. Mylkes, and school nurse, Miss Mary Jory, paid their first visit to the Collegiate Friday afternoon, beginning the new program which calls for him to examine high school as well as public school students.

First to be given a check-up were the girls on the basketball team. The principal, C. S. Browne, declared he thought it was a step in the right direction to make certain that students were physically fit to engage in strenuous sports activities.

From now on, Dr. Mylkes will be visiting the high school on Fridays and will gradually examine all the students. Next on the list will be the Grade 9 pupils who have not been examined by a school doctor in the past two years.

THE OLD AND THE NEW—A new barn to house the horses used in the city's garbage collection has recently been turned over to the City Council by the contractor. In this new barn is housed seven teams required to make the collections of garbage and ashes in the city. The pictures above show the old barn recently used and the new one just completed. (Parks' Studio Photos)

New Horse Barn Is Erected To House City's Seven Teams

If the horses owned by the taxpayers of Peterborough, and working for them six days a week in the hauling of garbage, could talk among themselves, they must have discussed with unanimous satisfaction their recent change of lodgings and their agreement with the New Year's injunction, off with the old and on with the new.

Actually it was the Saturday before Christmas they moved from the ramshackle old wooden barn which they had been putting up with since the beginning of last spring, a mean abode reeking of smells that only underprivileged horses could endure as beyond hope of improvement and escape, with a sway-backed roof that seemed threatening to cave in any time, from the depressing atmosphere they strode across Townsend Street to their brand new quarters that even old Man o' War or Seabiscuit wouldn't have disdained, especially if led into either of the two box stalls.

Since then the day's job goes on just the same, from the lingering dark of January mornings into the afternoon. On the last trip back to the incinerator and their new domicile, the city's horses possibly imagine the loads lightening as they anticipate the comfort and the spacious airiness of their $22,000 barn on brick and concrete.

By this time they have perhaps become accustomed to their ritz surroundings. It didn't take them long to get used to their automatic drinking gadget, conveniently placed over the left end of each manger. You might say correctly that each horse has an individual drinking bowl. It is an iron container about half the size of a bucket. In the bottom there is a metal float, and when the horse thrusts his nose down against it the pressure on the float opens a tap. And when the nasal pressure eases, the flow of water stops. In brief, the horses draw their own water supply whenever they feel like it.

There is not much anyone can say about a horse barn, even if some wags mention it as the city's "horse palace," a phrase that was quoted the other day in these columns acknowledging the quality of the building as compared with the old one now vacant and of no other use.

Contract System Failed.

Taxpayers who are interested in their common property should remember that the City Council decided after years of experience with the contract system of the removing garbage that conditions were forcing the municipality to assume this civic work and do it as a general service to the public.

That initiative involved the acquiring of horses and wagons and other equipment, employment of a staff of men, and of the providing of quarters for the horses that would be for a long time a credit to the city, and eventually an economy. The old wooden barn on the south side of Townsend Street between George and Aylmer Streets as a unit of the property bought by the city from the Allin Ice Company. The deal included several other wooden buildings, one of them the huge ice storage barn which the city used last summer in the municipal supply of ice to the public.

The Council paid the Allin Ice Company $6,500 for its office building, barns and lands. It was a "lock, stock and barrel" purchase, and the complete inventory is at the City Hall if anyone is interested in such minute details.

The land was desired any way in the expectation that as an extension of the large area fronting on the west side of George Street, between Rink and Townsend Streets, the whole block might become a public park or playground. Finally it was proposed as a possible site for the Memorial Community Centre project.

Crown Property Taxable Council Feels

When Crown property serves other uses than those of the Crown, then it should be taxable. That is the contention of the city council, as suggested by City Clerk Outram the other night, in reply to the announcement of the Department of Public Works that payment of taxes on the Charlotte street property should be discontinued, on the advice of the Department of Justice.

The council's attitude is in effect that taxes on the south side Charlotte and Louis street stores and houses will be charged against the tenants if the Government holds out on its liability.

Liability on those properties develops when instead of being removed and replaced by a Postal-Customs building they are let to tenants, who are paying rent to the Dominion Government. The houses and stores extend from the creek along the south side of Charlotte and down the east side of Louis street.

Instead of taxes the Crown has been paying into the city treasury 12 per cent of the revenue from those buildings. Last year the amount paid to Tax Collector Couper was $352.80, and the balance $699.03 was written off by the Court of Revision according to information elicited at the council's meeting.

Some Arrangements

R. Winter of the Department of Public Works wrote some time ago that in future "taxes cannot be paid." City Clerk Outram prepared a review of the fact and statute pointing out that Crown properties when used as Armouries, Postal and Customs and so on were not taxed, but otherwise, and in the particular realty uses and income on Charlotte street it was considered that the Crown should pay the municipal tax.

"Why shouldn't the arrangements we have now stand?" Ald. Glover commented, and the council appointed Mayor Hamilton, Alderman Bradburn and Glover and Mr. Outram to review the correspondence and draft a letter to the federal Department emphasizing the city's posiiton and its reason for demanding tax payments on the Louis and Charlotte street properties.

3,500 Milkweed Bags Being Shipped To US

Loading of 3,500 bags of milkweed pods was being completed today at the C.P.R. freight yard for delivery to Petosky in North Michigan.

Reg Hunter, Bob McAdam, and Frank Paterson and one small boy were packing the bags into a freight car on Friday afternoon and the work had to be continued to-day with some doubt about one car providing sufficient space.

The pods were picked last fall by school children and a few adults throughout the county, and the filled bags have been kept in storage here.

"We were well pleased with the response to this call," Mr. Paterson said. "In some sections the number of bags was not so large as we expected. The down will be ginned at Petosky, the fluff will be separated from the seeds, and will be used as kapok substitute in lifebelts for sailors, in the lining of aviators' flying suits, and some other similar purposes. The collection of pods was undertaken by the Canadian Government at the request of the United States, whose kapok supply is in the hands of the Japs."

Council Faces Resumption Of Ice Business

Alderman Glover's special committee decided Friday afternoon to recommend to the council another emergency ice supply program this year.

R. H. Turner was invited to the meeting and was asked whether he would undertake the responsibility assumed by the council in 1944 of storing an ample supply of ice for the population's requirements. To do that, Mr. Turner said, he would have to increase the production of his artificial ice plant, involving considerable expense, question of materials, and it was said he was not prepared to make to the city a promise that was almost a contract.

Attending with Alderman Glover were Mayor Hamilton, Aldermen Cotton, Dutton and Curtis.

The chairman reported from Canada Packers that they were not in a position to supply the local demand. The committee faces the problem from the standpoint of the needs of a large number of Peterborough's homes in the emergency circumstances resulting from the war. The members realize that some additional cost will be incurred by the necessity of removing snow from the big pond at the Curtis property northeast of the city to admit penetration of frost for depth of ice.

The special committee would prefer to let this ice problem pass into other hands. If there is any deficit at the end of the year they will write it off against the cost of victory. In the meantime the council feels that the community, the collective people, should not side-step the responsibility of having a stock of ice for the needs of the long warm summer.

1944 Weather Range Smaller Records Say

The weather of 1944 ranged between slightly narrower bounds than in 1943 as shown on James Harrison's charts at the waterworks.

The extremes in 1943 were maximum of 88 degrees on June 25 and minimum of 30 below on February 14, a sweep of 118 degrees in the thermal limits for that year.

In 1944 the sun became more dominant reaching 93 degrees on August 11, and the minimum for the year was 16 below zero on December 28. That cold spot was only a few weeks ago. The sting was in the tail of that year.

The mean temperature last year was 44.08 degrees and in the previous year 40.2

The snow gauge for 1944 measured 63 inches and in 1943 20.84 inches. Rainfall last year was only 19.7 inches, generally a sharp disappointment and considerable loss to farmers. In 1943 the rainfall was 26.91 inches.

Hospital Bill Is Approved By Committee

The hospital committee of the City Council spent several hours on Friday evening studying the new Civic Hospital private bill to be presented at the coming session of the Ontario legislature. Clause by clause was gone over and debated and the bill is now ready for presenting to the council on Monday night.

In the bill it is proposed that the Civic Hospital will be operated by a board of 14 governors of which the mayor and warden of the city council will be members, the county council will name two members, the lieutenant-governor will name one, and the city council will appoint nine. The fourteenth member will be the chairman of the Medical staff who is automatically a member under the Ontario Hospital Act.

Two of the city's nine nominees will come from the present Board of Nicholls Hospital as a mark of gratitude for the benevolences of the late Robert and Charlotte Nicholls. The city's nominees will be named for a three year term except the first board when there will be for one year, three for two and three for three years. All governors will be eligible for re-appointment.

The estimates must be submitted to the city council by February 1 each year and the council has control over all purchasing of new equipment. The City auditor will audit the books, advise the council of expenditures not in the budget and keep close check on book-keeping system.

In the agreement between the Nicholls Hospital trust and the city council the Trust will turn over to the city at the time the private bill is proclaimed Nicholls Hospital and all its assets and from then on the hospital will be administered by a Board of Governors. In the meantime it is expected that the Hospital Committee of the council will make plans for the erection of the new hospital and when the building is completed it will be turned over to the Board of Governors.

Sleighs Fail To Carry Lights

With old-fashioned winter weather prevailing some of the old-fashioned customs have returned, and one revival is that of sleigh-ride parties. Farmers and teamsters who have horses and sleighs available are finding no difficulty in renting out their equipment.

In this connection, Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure sounds a note of warning: "I do not want to stop any of their fun," said the traffic officer yesterday, "but it should be remembered that sleigh-rides are not like they used to be because of the automobile traffic. Many of the sleighs that are in use for these parties have their lights so placed that they can hardly be seen, and I have had several complaints of sleighs being nearly run down by motor cars whose drivers failed to see the horse-drawn outfits.

"For the safety of their passengers I would suggest that sleigh-owners should place adequate lights on their equipment and put them on poles high enough to enable them to be seen at a distance."

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, January 14

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds auguries of progressive and productive activity particularly in religious, cultural, educational and professional lines, with many pleasant contacts and adventures of a social and sentimental character. Hospitality, entertainment and social gaiety are in sight, with personal popularity in affiliations with those in advanced position or influence.

Those whose birthday it is have a year ahead in which they may find benefit, advancement, preferment and solid cooperation from those in influential places, in both public or professional life. Cultivate these, and find enhanced prestige and social popularity, as well as hospitable and congenial associations, possibly in celebration of domestic or social occasions.

A child born on this day may be endowed with talent, personal attributes and charm, which should assure a successful, prosperous and happy life.

For Monday, January 15

Monday's astrological forecast holds a precautionary note, in matters pertaining to health, work, property and all ambitious situations, where a constrictive, static, or depressing state of affairs may obtain. With a concentrated study of affairs, and a marshalling of latent forces, crystallized and stubborn conditions may be productively manipulated. Alert, practical and careful handling of all affairs may break through stubborn barriers, even in personal contacts and relationships.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of limitations with stubborn obstacles or impediments which call for concerted marshalling of all the available resources, facts and faculties. At the same time health must be considered, with that of the family, and funds, position, and all interested safeguarded. Perhaps postponements or delays might be blessings in disguise.

A child born on this day may have certain talents and subtle abilities, be serious and earnest but may be overwhelmed by obligations or other impediments. An optimistic viewpoint and tokens of loving appreciation should greatly assist.

FUN ON A FURLOUGH

Parents Should Realize Son's Need For Youthful Companionship

A FATHER and mother have been weeping on my shoulder and telling me how deeply wounded they were by their sons conduct on his recent furlough. They had been looking forward to his coming as to a little time of perfect joy snatched from the strain and anxiety of war. Father had been walking to save up gas so that Johnny might use the car. Mother had scrubbed the house from top to bottom and cooked up all the dainties that Johnny especially liked.

Father had puffed out his chest as he thought how proud he would be taking Johnny down to his club and showing him off at the store and nonchalantly saying: "Son, tell 'em about that time when you led the attack at Guadalcanal," while open-mouthed audiences gaped in wonder and awe as they gazed upon a hero. And Mother had arranged with all of her clubs to give him receptions at which he would tell how he was winning the war and when it will end. And, most of all, they dreamed of the long, happy evenings they would spend alone at home together, just talking family talk.

And at last, the glad day arrived. Johnny came marching home fine and fit, overflowing with youth and high spirits and looking a picture in his uniform. But after he had hugged Dad and kissed Mom and told her there wasn't a gal in the Fiji Islands who could hold a candle to her, he grabbed his cap and said he would step out for a minute and see the boys.

"And that," mourned the disappointed parents, "was about the last we saw of Johnny. He was practically kidnapped by a bunch of young male and female guerrillas who dragged him from one party to another. And when he wasn't in their houses they were in ours, so we hardly got a word with him, and about the only time we would see him would be when we would tiptoe into his room of a morning while he was asleep.

"It nearly broke our hearts for Johnny to just ditch us for this silly young crowd. We simply can't understand why he would enjoy being with them more than with his own parents, whom we know he loves. And especially why he would hang around that baby-faced little nincompoop of a girl, instead of being with his mother, who is the president of the Hypathia Club."

Millions of other parents, who have been counting the days till their sons' furloughs, are going through the same bitter experience of finding out that they are not as necessary to their children's happiness as their children are to them, and that after Tom, Bob or Sam has seen that Mother and Father are enjoying their usual good health, and that everything in the old home is just like they left it, they turn to their old crowd for entertainment. It isn't because they don't love their parents. It is just because youth calls to youth and no old person can meet the demands.

This is particularly the case just now. The boys who come fresh from all the horrors of war don't want to think about it or talk about it. They want to dance and make merry with youngsters as irresponsible as they are. And so parents should not begrudge them their little flings when they come home on furloughs.

Paris Fashions Feature Warm Dresses

By ADA DE KOEOED
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Jan. 13 (AP)—Shivering mannequins in world-famous but frosty fashion shops presented yesterday the latest creations featuring warmth and utility.

Tailored suits were shown to furcoated audiences in all fashion houses, with a few others also stressing woollen kitted frocks. For the most part salesgirls, models and buyers all concentrated on keeping warm. There is little heat in any Paris shops.

The needle rooms all were occupied with spring and summer fashions which were expected to be made from silk, either real or artificial, as wool and other materials are becoming scarce.

Despite demands from overseas for French fashions, exportation is for the moment out of the question—due both to shipping restrictions and the exchange rate.

Some models of new French undoubtedly have been shipped abroad by individuals, however, for Allied soldiers have been patronizing nearly every shop.

Among the novelties being launched toward the end of the winter season is Jeanne Lavin's latest in headgear—a small skullcap of velvet or embroidered silk with a flared veil which falls down to the shoulders achieving a medieval effect for wear with afternoon dresses.

Knox WA Hears Annual Reports

Annual reports, as well as monthly reports, were read at the January meeting of the Women's Association of Knox United Church, in the church parlors. The reports showed the increased interest being taken in the W.A., and the financial returns from the cent-a-day method of raising funds were gratifying, so this method will be continued for 1945.

Mrs. G. Davis has charge of the devotional service. Mrs. C. Gertley read the scripture, and also a story illustrating the passage read. Mrs. N. Todd sang a solo, and Mrs. Gertley led in prayer. Mrs. J. Londerville, Mrs. S. Watson and Mrs. C. Gertley were appointed as representatives to the Lord Council of Women.

The following officers for 1945 were installed at a joint service of all women's organization of the church: Honorary president, Mrs. H. J. Mahoney; president, Mrs. R. Laing; secretary, Mrs. J. Allen; treasurer, Mrs. J. Londerville; first vice-president, Mrs. C. Weldon; second vice-president, Mrs. N. Godfrey; pianist, Mrs. H. Williamson; card convener, Mrs. H. Trotter.

IODE Canvass In Progress For Libraries

The climax of a month-long campaign in Peterborough to raise funds for the I.O.D.E. camp libraries project, will be a mammoth bingo, to be held Thursday evening, January 25, in the Brock Street Arena. Peterborough I.O.D.E. chapters have been canvassing a special names list, in an endeavor to meet their objective of $5,000. The Dominion-wide objective is $300,000, and Ontario's share is one-half of that sum.

The Peterborough Lions' Club volunteered their assistance in carrying out this bingo, and their equipment will be used, with the entire proceeds going to the library fund. Since the I.O.D.E. work is on a voluntary basis also, all the money collected goes directly towards the purchase of books. An excellent list of prizes has been collected, and I.O.D.E. members are selling tickets. Ticket holders have preference for the seats.

Donations of books are also being solicited. At a special meeting in the Y.W.C.A., with representatives of the local I.O.D.E. chapters in attendance, members were told that boxes had been placed in several stores in the shopping district, where donations could be left. They are in Grafton's, W. E. Franks, Hall's, Borland's, and the Salvation Army Recreation Centre. Mrs. A. W. Turner was named as chairman of the campaign committee, with Mrs. J. H. Turner as secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. M. Comstock as assistant treasurer.

I.O.D.E. service libraries began shortly after the outbreak of war, and have grown continually throughout the years. Books are being sent constantly on request, to remote stations, hospitals, newly-built military posts, and ships. Some of the money is used to replace books, which have become illegible through usage, since they are at a premium wherever servicemen are stationed. A card index in national I.O.D.E. headquarters prevents any duplications or shipments.

Lord's Prayer Theme For Meetings

MILLBROOK, Jan. 13—(ENS)—The extreme cold this week has greatly lessened attendance at the community Week of Prayer services, which opened at St. Andrew's United church on Tuesday evening, with the minister, Rev. A. L. Sisco, in charge, and Percy Hamilton, lay reader of St. Thomas' Anglican church, taking the talk, substituting for the rector, Rev. A. E. Chevis, absent through illness.

Rev. Walter Patterson, minister of Grace Presbyterian church, read the lesson from John 17, the general theme for the three services being the Lord's Prayer. Mr. Hamilton dealt with the first two clauses, emphasizing that prayer is the life blood of Christian religion, and people need faith for its foundation. The Fatherhood of God, involving the brotherhood of man, was made clear, and the necessity of praise to His name, as well as avoidance of not only swearing, but also the use of slang, was stressed.

Talk On Prayer

Wednesday evening the gathering was in St. Thomas' church, with Mr. Hamilton taking the prayers in the rector's place, and bringing a message of encouragement in connection with the improvement in Rev. Mr. Chevis' health. Rev. Mr. Sisco read the lesson from Ephesians 1, and Rev. Mr. Patterson gave the address. Dealing with the third and fourth clauses of the Lord's Prayer, he made it clear that it is a part of the sermon on the mount which was spoken only to the disciples, in the presence of the multitude.

Points stressed included the fact that if we do God's will 'as it is done in heaven', we will do it gladly, wholeheartedly, and with full giving up of our own wills. The next petition, "Thy kingdom come" means that Christians are praying for the destruction of the kingdom of Satan; that we may ourselves be members of that kingdom; that we give allegiance to its principles; and that we come into the fellowship of God, and strive to eliminate all evil from our own hearts, and from the world.

The concluding service was in Grace Presbyterian church on Thursday evening, with Rev. Mr. Patterson in charge, and Rev. Mr. Sisco giving the address, "Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil", were the petitions dealt with, the necessity of testing for the development of a strong, Christian character, being stressed. The fact that God is always and everywhere against evil, and when Christians pray in faith and earnestness, He will deliver us from its power, was stressed. After expenses are paid, the offering received each night will go to the newly-formed Canadian Council of Churches. Usually this money has been given the Bible Society, and Mr. Patterson announced that last year $107.00 was remitted to the Canadian Branch of the B.S., from collection in the village, the largest sum for several years, and $30 more than in 1943.

Rhea M. Wilson Wed In Mother's Gown

Decorated with poinsettas, St. Paul's Church was the scene for a pretty wedding when Rhea Mae Wilson, third eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wilson, R.R. 3, Peterborough, became the bride of Russell George McCarrell, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett McCarrell, of Dunsford. Rev. Samuel Johnston officiated.

M. B. Chenhall was at the organ, and accompanied the soloist, Miss Mary Robson, when she sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her mother's wedding gown of white embroidered marquisette. She wore a floor-length veil of white net, trimmed with point d'esprit lace, caught to her head in a halo effect, and matching finger-point gloves. Her only ornament was a necklace set in amethyst stone, gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of yellow 'mums.

Mrs. Earle McCarrell was matron of honor, and Misses Olga and Ora Wilson, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids. The matron of honor wore floor-length white crepe, with high neckline, shirred bodice, gathered skirt and long full sleeves. Her shoulder-length veil of white net was caught to her head with white rosebuds. She wore white gloves, a gold locket and carried a bouquet of mauve and white mums. The bridesmaids wore floor-length dresses of rose and turquoise shadow crepe with sweetheart necklines, long-fitted waists, gathered skirts and long full sleeves. Their shoulder-length veils of white net, with scalloped edges were also caught to their heads with matching rosebuds. They wore white gloves, gold lockets and carried bouquets of mauve and white mums.

Earle McCarrell was his brother's groomsman and the ushers were Mansell Burley, cousin of the groom and Donald Wilson brother of the bride.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where her mother received, wearing a dress of black sheer over pink, matching accessories and a corsage of yellow mums.

The dining room was prettily decorated with streamers while the bride's table was centred with a four-tier wedding cake with long, green candles in silver candle holders set at either end.

Those serving were Misses Viola Wilson, Mary Walker, Dorothy Mahood, Hertha Skuce, Norma Skuce, Doris McCarrell and Wilma Hewitt.

The matron of honor and bridesmaids received silver bracelets, the soloist coral earrings and the groomsman and ushers pen and pencil sets.

For travelling the bride donned a brown tailored suit, turquoise crepe blouse, a brown muskrat coat and matching accessories. After a wedding trip to Toronto the couple are now residing on the groom's farm at Dunsford.

Hasty Petes Angry About Lamone Their First Retreat Of The War

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC, Jan. 13—(CP) —The story of the Lamone River bridgehead is one about which the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiments would rather not talk because it relates the unit's first withdrawal in either the Sicilian or Italian campaigns.

The operation, dogged by ill luck from the start, went in at 1 a.m. Dec. 5 after two abortive efforts the day before. It ended nine hours later when the regiment retired from the bridgehead under pressure of heavy fire from enemy tanks and self-propelled guns closing in upon them. Fairly heavy casualties were suffered in killed, wounded and missing.

The first attempt came Dec. 4 soon after midnight. The unit had been trained, even to the extent of sand-table exercises, for the exploitation of the bridgehead. They were approaching the river prepared for that task when informed they would have to make their own crossing.

Belleville Man Leads

Capt. Max Porritt of Belleville, Ont., now believed to be a prisoner of war, led his company on a six-and-a-half-mile approach to the Lamone during which he was told to get his men across and to begin operations at 12.50 a.m. He arrived at 1 o'clock, briefed his platoon leaders without being able to make a reconnaissance of the river and ordered the advance. The men did not get very far.

"Thank God some friendly Germans sent us back," the boys joked later in speaking of the enemy's terrific fire from well-spaced positions on the opposite dyke.

When Porritt reported the situation back to regimental headquarters he apologized without cracking a smile, for having reached his starting line 10 minutes late!

He asked for a second chance, requesting a repetition of the air show that had preceded the 1 o'clock attempt when 150 dive-bombers did a beautiful job on the enemy-held dykes.

It was daylight then, but by the time the planes arrived dusk had settled. As Porritt had still been unable to get much more detailed information about the river he decided not to put his men in. He had withdrawn about 500 yards, and sat tight waiting for orders.

Hit On Flank

By this time, with better indication of the strength of the enemy, a two-battalion attack was ordered for 1 a.m., Dec. 5. This was the nine-hour operation which ended with the Hasty Petes retiring. Companies under Porritt, Capt. Cliff Broad of Madoc, Ont., and Maj. Ron Church, Belleville, Ont. were ready. In the darkness and mist the companies suffered casualties but a reserve company was brought forward and the crossing was effected at 4 a.m.

For more than two hours the operation went well. Buildings on the west bank, along a road running parallel to the dyke, were taken out and then the unit struck inland. Furthest penetration was 1,000 yards northwest of the crossing place.

About 8 o'clock word was received of a strong infantry counter-attack coming in on the bridgehead's left. Positions there were crumbling. At the regiment's own front, to the left and right, enemy tanks and self-propelled guns began closing in, lacing the attackers mercilessly.

Minus their anti-tank weapons and with the threat to their left, the Hasty Petes withdrew to avoid being whittled down from their front and flanks and being cut off from the rear.

A preliminary stand was made on the west dyke and then, while Capt. Broad's company acted as rearguard the other two retired to the east bank and took up positions commanding the far side.

Among the casualties was one man to whom Capt. Porritt had promised he would personally return. After reporting his company's story to regimental headquarters, Porritt removed amps and documents from his pockets, and, unarmed, set out with a stretcher party.

They crossed the river, the enemy holding fire, and made for the spot where the wounded man lay. A German officer whistled to Porritt and beckoned him to approach. While the Red Cross party went on, Porritt discussed his right, under the Geneva convention, as an unarmed officer with a stretcher party.

When Porritt was last seen the argument was still going on, the Nazi politely adamant that Porritt had no such rights. The stretcher-bearers returned with the wounded man, and it is believed that Porritt, having no success with the German battalion commander, was made a prisoner.

RICHARD BRUCE SANDERSON

HAVELOCK, Jan. 13.—(ENS). —The funeral took place Friday afternoon of Richard Bruce Sanderson, 4-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Sanderson, Havelock. The baby died Thursday morning while on the way to a hospital in Peterborough. The service was conducted at the family residence by Rev. W. J. Lennox of Campbellford and interment was made in Maple Grove cemetery.

The baby had been in St. Joseph's Hospital at Peterborough for two weeks prior to Christmas to have a formula for feeding arranged. Since that time he had had good health, and a little heavy breathing noticed first on Tuesday was the only indication of illness.

Rowe Compares CCF To Nazism

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Jan. 13—(CP).— Prime Minister Mackenzie King's appeal to the electors of Grey North to support Defence Minister McNaughton in the by-election on February 5 lent new spirit to the campaign which is being pressed with vigor during the week-end.

Mr. King's statement was issued at Ottawa while Gen. McNaughton was speaking last night at Clarksburg in the outlying reaches of this constituency in which he is seeking a Liberal victory to give him a seat in the Commons.

Earl Rowe, Progressive-Conservative member for Dufferin-Simcoe in the Federal House, spoke here last night in favor of W. Garfield Case, Progressive - Conservative candidate, while Air Vice-Marshal Earl Godfrey, the C.C.F. candidate, addressed a meeting at Meaford.

5,000 in January.

Gen. McNaughton informed his Clarksburg audience that his Department's plan to send 5,000 reinforcements overseas in December with the same number moving in January, had been carried out.

He had been made aware of the seriousness of the Western Front situation when asked to accept the Defence portfolio.

At Meaford Air Marshal Godfrey said he didn't believe either the Liberal or the Progressive Conservative brand of conscription was good enough.

"Halfway measures," he said, "will not provide either adequate manpower or adequate material supplies and nothing short of the very best that all Canada can provide will be good enough."

The C.C.F. had entered the riding, not to elect either a Liberal or a Progressive Conservative, but to give the people of the riding "a chance to vote for the C.C.F. policy and candidate."

Mr. Rowe told his audience that in the C.C.F. philosophies things reminded him of Hitlerite Germany. He referred to "centralization, regimentation and totalitarianism now offered in disguise by Mr. Godfrey's party," and said "these doctrines have made slaves of half the world."

He said Prime Minister King told Hitler in 1931 that if Britain was attacked Canada would be at her side, but "refused to let Britain build airfields for Empire purposes in Canada in 1938." Yet, went on Mr. Rowe, "despite a tremendous majority in approval of meeting the situation with equality of service, and to the maximum of our strength we have been humiliated with faltering and floundering expediences while our boys have fought and pleaded for reinforcements."

Mr. Rowe said Vice-Marshal Godfrey "seems to be a travelling salesman for the King-Coldwell powerhouse at Ottawa."

Farmer Rescues Hungry Pheasant

HAVELOCK, January 13—(ENS) —A pheasant, the only one seen in this locality this winter was noticed by Jesse Anderson, a farmer who resides a few miles east of Havelock, in the fields on his farm and he carried feed to it on several occasions.

Later it ventured into the cleared space at the barn and allowed Mr. Anderson to pick it up. He discovered it to be very thin and almost frozen, so placed it in the hen pen where the warmth and good feeding are bringing it back to its normal condition.

CATTLE PRICES HIGH

AYR, Scotland — (CP). — Spectacular prices marked two recent Ayrshire cattle sales, with the top price of 2,000 guineas (about $9,400) for a 10-month-old bull, Burton Knight Errant. The five-year-old stock bull Bargower Golden Future brought 1,700 guineas.

● Authorities say the difference between husky children and those who are poor eaters, underweight and nervous is often simply a matter of proper nourishment, especially an adequate supply of vitamins.

But vitamins alone are not enough. For authorities now agree that vitamins do not work alone. They work as a team with certain other food elements.

For this reason, thousands are switching to Ovaltine. Unlike mere "vitamin carriers," Ovaltine food beverage contains not only extra vitamins but nearly all the precious food elements needed for health and top vitality. These include Vitamins A, $B_1$ and D, the important minerals calcium, phosphorus and iron, high quality proteins and quick energy fuel-food—a combination of food elements authorities agree are needed for best results.

So, if your child is thin, nervous and not developing properly, why not turn to Ovaltine as thousands are doing. Three normal meals plus two glasses of Ovaltine a day give your child all the extra amounts of vitamins and minerals needed for health and top vitality. 164

New Horse Barn

Spent $650 On Repairs

A further factor of asset was the temporary use of the horse barn and adjoining lofty building, once part of the ice storage plant, as accommodation temporarily for the horses and equipment that would have to be bought for the city's collection of garbage. Subsequently the council had to spend $650 on repairs to the wooden horse barn, but it served its purpose throughout most of 1944, and tided over the council's property committee during that period of transition from the contract system to public ownership and operation of the garbage collection plant.

Meanwhile the city council realized that the old horse barn would have to be replaced with a new one, and it was decided to erect a thoroughly modern barn for the needs of the present and the future. That has been done. The contract was let to the Eastwood Construction Company. The only extra, the Examiner was informed, was incurred in the digging of the foundation. The site of the new building had been partly filled in and reclaimed from an old pond, and in excavation for the concrete footings it was found advisable to enlarge a stretch of the concrete base.

The barn is 90' by 40', with twenty single stalls, two box stalls and two harness rooms, laid out for the utmost in convenience. The stalls are lined with heavy lumber. Wood also was used in the ceiling or floor of the huge mow. Otherwise the construction is of steel, concrete and brick.

Chutes for oats and hay are disposed for handiness. A hay track in the peak of the barn with sling and pulley provides for comparatively easy unloading of hay and oats, hoisted to the mow level at the rear outside and then run along the track. The bags of oats are emptied into the big bin which is equipped for automatic feeding on the ground floor. And the loads of hay are placed in the huge mow.

The plans, specifications and the terms of contract were all prepared by Guy Quartermaine of the City Engineer's Department.

Begin At 7 a.m.

Garfield G. Torrance, who was formerly in charge of the Board of Works yard on Townsend street, is the superintendent of both the collection and disposal of garbage. Under him are five men unloading firing at the incinerator, including Alonzo Coughlin foreman.

For the collection system there are now seven sleighs, with two men to each. Bert Lee is the stableman responsible for the care of the horses. He has Norman Harper as helper and there is also one man at each of the city's two dumps, one in North Monaghan and one in Ashburnham. The collection fleet also include two motor trucks, each with four men—driver, one man on top and two loading from the street. Mr. Harper also acts as spare man on the routes.

One of these trucks is chiefly confined to the centre of the city, removing garbage from stores, restaurants and hotels, three times a week instead of the bi-weekly calls throughout the rest of the city. The other truck helps out here and there. At present it is an extra for the Monaghan annex. In fact the system has hardly become established into a steady routine for the enlarged city area since the south and western sections of North Monaghan parted company from the township.

The property committee bought a small pick-up truck for Mr. Torrance who responds to any complaints of garbage and ashes that may be missed in the daily rounds, and is also able to supervise the general collection. The staff with the superintendent at present numbers thirty-two men, for the incinerator and garbage collection, and will probably continue at that strength into the spring until it is definitely determined by experience the department's ability to perform the work as efficiently as required.

The working week is fifty hours with Saturday afternoons off, and the over-all job is approximately 8,600 "pick-ups" twice a week, 7,500 within the former boundaries of the city and 1,100 in the annexed areas.

Each sleigh averages two trips daily with garbage to the incinerator and three to six trips of ashes, the winter chore. In summer the average is three loads of garbage. Volume of the city's community refuse has naturally increased since annexation, and it may be necessary this year to complete the extra burning unit at the incinerator advancing it nearer to capacity.

The twenty stalls are now housing eight teams, seven of them owned by the city and on every day work. The other team are boarders, on loan for the winter.

Bert Lee looks after the feeding, grooming and harnessing of the horses every morning, and has them ready for the collectors by seven o'clock.

Ordinary Conveniences

Several rooms at the front of the barn on the ground floor have been provided for the men of the collection and barn staff. The accommodation on the west side is for cleaning-up, lavatories and shower, and on the east there is a room where the men have lunch. These are only ordinary conveniences, but they are quite ample and include an electric plate for making tea.

So much for details of the city's garbage collection and disposal plants on Townsend street, incinerator and barn. For the present the sleighs are kept in one of the old ice storage buildings across the street. The investment in the collection system, including the big new stable, was undertaken by the city council when it become apparent that as a result of the effects of the war years the contract cost, steadily increasing, would likely continue in that direction; together with contractors' difficulties in maintaining their staff of men, and finally complaints from citizens about the service, an accumulation of factors convincing the council that the day was at hand when the municipality would have to set up its own system. It has not yet been in operation a year, and since then the addition of the North Monaghan area has contributed a surplus problem which will be gradually overcome as the department absorbs and simplifies the work in the larger city area.

18 Students From Collegiate Make Donations At Blood Clinic

Since the outbreak of the war, students at the Peterborough Collegiate have taken an active part in many phases of war activities and have established an enviable record. Until this week, there has been one part of the war work which has been beyond their scope, that of blood donations. Because of the 18 years age limit, few are eligible.

But at the Wedenesday Clinic, with the permission of school authorities and their parents, 18 students from the Collegiate, who were eligible, attended as a group and made donations. For all but two, it was their first. Alan Hooper gave his third and Miss Ethel Gill made her second.

Pleased Too

A member of the Royal Canadian Artillery, Bdr. George Chappell, is also enthusiastic about the Auxiliary's Christmas box. He told particularly of how much parcels meant coming to the men in the Netherlands area and remarked that he hoped he would be back in Peterborough soon to extend his thanks personally.

"Our weather over here last month certainly has been terrible. There's nothing but rain, and plenty of it. If it does not soon let up, canoes will have to be an Army issue, either that, or we all take up swimming lessons. Things are going along very well here, at times a little rough, but that is to be expected.

Parcels Appreciated

Two sailors serving in Canada, have expressed their appreciation to members of the Navy Auxiliary for their kindness in sending them boxes at Christmas. They are AB Fred A. Willison of HMCS Bytown, Ottawa; and AB Roland Halcrow of HMCS Scotian, Halifax.

Both men praised the variety in gifts in the parcels and said how much it meant to get gifts when they were away from home, particularly when Peterborough organizations took the trouble to remember them.

DON'T FORGET THE BIDS

REMEMBERING what your opponents bid is the key to correct play of many contracts. It places certain cards for you and can make it advisable to play the hand differently from what you would have done if you had not heard the bids or had forgotten them. Some pretty good percentage of all successful contracts would be beaten if the defense had not made some particular bid or bids during the auction and thereby given the ultimate declarer a clue on the path to follow.

Laying down the A and K of his partner's diamonds in quick succession, West made it clear he had no more of the suit, then led the spade Q, to the K. South then started to count. Surely West had at least three hearts to the Q for his No Trump bid. The heart A brought the news that East had one, with West surely marked for the rest. So, instead of playing the normal first two tops as usual with nine trumps, South then finessed the J and followed with the 10 lead to the K, which erased the Q.

Reckoning West then as having exactly four cards in each black suit, South scored the spade A, ruffed the 8, ruffed the diamond 8, ruffed the spade 9—to make a total of four spade rounds and thus eliminate that suit from West's hand. With only three clubs left then, he led the 10 to West, who was stuck with the lead. He won that with the J, but then had to pitch away from his club K-6 into the fork of the A-Q. So South lost only one trick in clubs, plus two in diamonds and made his contract.

Your Week-End Question

If you hold a twice-guarded king of trumps, while sitting to the left of the declarer, and see the twice-guarded ace in the dummy, what procedure should you seek to use in an effort to "put pants on the king?"

Hitler Cited For Death Of 33 Lambs

DARTFORD, Kent., Eng., Jan. 13—(CP-Reuters).—Hitler was cited in court here Thursday as responsible for another crime—the death of 33 lambs last September 1.

A German flying bomb which fell near Erith, Kent, broke the chain tethering William Morris' Alsatian dog and next morning the dog was found lying exhausted in a field surrounded by 100 sheep. Two were dead and 31 others had to be destroyed. Morris faced a damage action for £100 (about $450).

The defence argued that the law covering "the mischievous interference of a third person" covered the owner, adding "In this case, the third party is Adolf Hitler who sent the flying bomb."

That failed to impress the presiding judge, however. He admitted it was an ingenious point but did not think intervention of a third party discharged Morris' liability and ordered Morris to pay £5 down and the remainder at 10 shillings a month.

Universities Re-arrange Courses To Meet Needs Of War Veterans

By FRED KERNER
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

TORONTO, Jan. 13 — (CP) — Adjustment of courses to meet the needs of an increasing number of war veterans who are entering or re-entering university under the Government education grants scheme is in process throughout Canada.

A. B. Fennell, secretary of the Conference of Canadian Universities, said here that though no general policy had been agreed upon by Canadian universities, most favored the policy announced by McGill University in Montreal which places courses on a three-year basis.

The McGill plan permits students to enter university immediately, taking spring and summer term courses which will enable them to advance into second year in the fall. The scheme calls for courses to start in January, June and October, instead of the regular terms starting October and January.

Most recent figures released by the Veterans' Affairs Department in Ottawa show 535 veterans already entered or re-entered university. Of that number 294 are from the Army, 200 R.C.A.F., and 41 Navy. Eighteen are women. In addition the Department reports 25 veterans are taking chartered accountancy courses. This number will be greatly increased within the next few months, Department officials predict.

Toronto Program.

At the University of Toronto, Dr. W. J. Dunlop, Director of Extension Studies, said the heaviest enrolment as of men seeking engineering courses. U. or T. has outlined a first-year course which will open April 2, allowing six months' study before the regular term opens in October. This will permit students taking the summer course to enter second year in the fall.

Toronto also plans various special classes to all-over extra term courses. The "specials" include such courses as a concentrated 10-month business curriculum covering accounting, statistics and other related subjects. University officials say this particular course has received a good response and will open February 5.

At the University of British Columbia, one semester for war veterans opened January 1, with others set to begin May 1, and October 1. Veterans who started in January take three of five first-year subjects and start the other two prescribed courses May 1, thus enabling them to enter second year in the fall. Students starting first year in the fall will sit in with regular college classes.

Dr. Robert Newton, president of the University of Alberta at Edmonton, said courses for veterans at Alberta would not start until after the war, or at least until there was a large number of veterans returning to warrant putting the university on a year-round basis.

Western Colleges.

First classes for students at University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, start to-day while two other terms open May 15 and July 3. Demobilized personnel starting courses to-day will complete a regular academic session by August.

At the University of Manitoba, Winnipeg, courses also will be started at other than regular semester opening dates.

University of Western Ontario, London, Ont., and McMaster University, Hamilton, Ont., Summer School courses will be extended for the benefit of veterans who wish to start the fall term with a share of their university work completed.

Principal R. C. Wallace of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., announced recently that Queen's Summer School will offer a full year's work in the faculties of Arts and Applied Sciences to ex-servicemen and women.

Quebec's two French universities Laval at Quebec City and University of Montreal, are both planning special courses. University of Montreal officials said they were ready to have three or four terms in the coming year if it were found necessary.

Sir George Williams College, in Montreal, which has been giving courses to veterans for the past two years, starts a new term for first-year students in Arts, Sciences and Commerce January 22. Also planned is a college preparation course for veterans not qualified for university entrance.

Officials at Dalhousie, University of New Brunswick, Acadia, Mount Allison, and St. Francis Xavier said they would do their utmost to facilitate re-entry of returning servicemen individually.

Veterans' Courses

GUELPH, Jan. 13—(CP)—Dr. G. I. Christie, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, announced that a special course of veterans of this war who are to be established on farm holdings under the New Veterans Land Act, will be started soon.

Duty Of Parents Not Teachers To Mould Young

HAVELOCK, Jan. 13 — (ENS) — Rev. J. O'Neill of the Faith Mission was guest speaker at the January meeting of the Home and School Association. After telling a story for the boys and girls, Mr. O'Neill took as the basis for his talk Jesus' visit to the home of Martha and Mary, as he thought this narrative had a bearing on both home and school because the behavior at school was but a reflection of the home teaching. The home that was open to Christ and where He was welcome within the hearts of the inmates had a great influence on children and school life, he said. It as not the duty of the school teacher to mould character, he said; that was the duty of the parents.

Wrong Attitude.

The lesson taught by Christ's rebuke to Martha in reply to her request that He should bid Mary to assist her with the domestic duties is that sometimes duties in the home rob people of their communion with Jesus. The secret of success in all undertakings was communion with God, he concluded.

Mrs. G. Kennedy, membership convener, announced that the prize of $2 for the room getting the largest number to join the Home and School Association during last year was won for the fourth successive year by Mrs. R. W. Joheen's Room. Mrs. F. McKay, program convener, announced that Founder's Night would be observed at the February meeting. There will be a candlelight service at that time.

The treasurer, Mrs. C. Taylor, reported $53.15 on hand.

Win Shield.

The Attendance Shield, awarded to the room having the largest number of parents in attendance at the meeting, was won by Miss J. Fielding's Room. A piano duet was played by Lois McKay and Betty Post. The pupils of Miss Fielding's Room sang a group of songs, and a recitation "January" was given by Clara McKay.

The committee who interviewed the Town Council on Monday evening in regard to providing a skating rink for the children, reported the result, that the Council was only willing to pay for the electricity, for flooding and the rental for the lot. The society went on record as being unanimously in favor of a rink, and expressed the hope that the Council would reconsider the matter.

Momentous Battle In Poland Reds Gain 15 Miles Reserves Brace Nazi Lines

Konev Continues Push In Sub-Zero Weather Plans To Liberate Warsaw And Invade Industrial Areas Of Reich

MOSCOW, Jan. 15—(AP).—Russian armored forces surged through Southern Poland today to within 64 miles of the heavily-fortified German-Silesian frontier amid mounting indications that the new Soviet winter offensive may soon spread over the entire eastern front from the Baltic to Yugoslavia.

Marshal Ivan S. Konev's new thrust, which in three days has carried across the Mida River on a 37-mile front and driven a deep wedge into the Warsaw-Krakow defence line, appears to be part of a great Red Army general offensive to clear Poland, liberate Warsaw and carry the battle to the industrial areas of Southeastern Germany.

(Berlin reported late last night that other powerful Soviet forces had begun attacks west of the Vistula at Magnuszew and Pulamy, 33 and 65 miles southeast of Warsaw and along the Narew River north of the Polish capital. Earlier German broadcasts told of new Russian attacks in East Prussia.)

Fighting in sub-zero temperatures Konev's troops made gains yesterday up to 15 miles and captured 200 more localities for a three-day total of 555.

In the northern sector of his salient across the Vistula, however, his troops met sharply stiffening German resistance just south of Kielce. Other Red Army elements seeking to push their way past the Vistula toward Warsaw ran into the same hard defensive fighting.

The large number of reserves which the enemy High Command has already thrown into the mounting battle was beginning to brace the sagging German Eastern front. Ther was little doubt that the Red Army must soon meet up with the toughest kind of opposition, since the Germans apparently base their hopes for a defence of the Southern corner of the Fatherland on the Warsaw-Krakow line.

Military observers in Moscow pointed out that Marshal Konstantin Rokossovswy's 1st White Russian Army was massed before Warsaw on the Eastern bank of the Vistula ready to give the Germans another big defensive problem. Further north the 3rd White Russian Army is poised in East Prussia, augmented by other Soviet troops released from the Baltic campaign.

2,000 Germans Slain.

A midnight Soviet bulletin said 2,000 Germans were slain as the Red Army took Pinczow, important road hub and German stronghold between Krakow and Kielce, while other hundreds were slain north of Chmielnik in the drive to the Nida river. Capture of Ponczow gave Konev a good base for an outflanking movement on Warsaw or for a northwestward drive across Nazi Poland communication lines.

The Warsaw-Krakow railway and highway were cut in the Miasowa-Brzegi area, 31 miles southwest of Kielec, which is 93 miles southwets of Warsaw. Another Soviet column had driven to within nine miles south of Kielce.

The Russian communique disclosed that other Soviet troops had seized the railway station of the important rail junction of Losonc (Lusenec) in Southern Slovakia, and 40 other localities in that area 60 miles northeast of Budapest.

Russians battling inside the devasted Hungarian capital wrested another 200 city blocks from the German garrison, now compressed into a tiny area next to the Danube. Dispatches said "complete liquidation" of the enemy in Budapest was in "sight."

Another 2,500 Germans and Hungarians were taken prisoner in fight-

American Army Hurdles Luzon Barrier

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ADVANCE COMMAND, Jan. 15—U.S. 6th Army troops on Luzon passed a formidable barrier as they crossed the winding Agno River at a point 91 airline miles from Manila, still finding resistance negligible, and expanded their Lingayen Gulf beachhead 30 miles to a total of 45, Gen. MacArthur reported today.

The infantrymen in their fifth day of the invasion hurdled the Agno, where the enemy had been expected to make a stand, at Bayambang, 22 miles from the gulf. They continued south at a pace limited only by the ability of supply columns to keep up with them.

Mangatarem was captured by the westernmost column in an eight-mile advance brushing through two enemy skirmishing parties of 150 men each. The eastern flank had more difficult going but approached Catablan, 20 road miles inland, in a five-mile gain. On this front the invaders ran into small arms and artillery fire.

Extension of the beachhead took in the important rail and highway junction of Damortis on the north and approached Alaminos on the southern side of the crescent-shaped arc, representing gains of 10 and 20 miles, respectively, from an original beachhead measuring 15 miles.

Daylight Raid Hits Two Plants

LONDON, Jan. 15—(CP)—R.A.F. Lancasters drove home two more assaults in the newly-launched aerial offensive on German fuel sources today with a daylight attack on two Benzol plants at Bochum and Recklinghausen in the Ruhr.

These attacks were made after almost 1,300 American bombers and fighters from Britain pounded four railroad yards in southern Germany without interference from German fighters.

The American operation apparently was an emergency shift from the offensive on oil centres, 10 of which have been battered in the last three days by 3,000 or more bombers.

The American daylight blow by 600 heavy bombers, escorted by fighters, came after heavy R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. attacks against Berlin and German oil targets. The day raiders struck at Freiburg, Augsburg, Ingoldstadt and Reutlingen, all important links on the rail routes which the Germans use to shift troops.

Canadians Fail to Budge Huns

By DOUGLAS AMARON—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN HOLLAND, Jan. 15—(CP Cable).—A voice coming out of the darkness spoke the answer to the success of the German defence of their bridgehead south of the Maas River at Kapelsche Veer, 11 miles northeast of Breda. "That's the hell of a battle," it said. "You have to walk so far to get to it. Sometimes I envy the Germans. All they have to do is sit and wait." Men of the 1st Canadian Army were about to deliver an attack early Sunday on the German bridgehead—an attack which the enemy repulsed.

We didn't pay much attention to the words as the troops walked in single file forward from the starting line of the attack on the only bridgehead south of the Maas which the Germans hold along the western sector of the Canadian Army front.

But 12 hours later as the weary, muddy and blood-stained troops returned along that same road the significance of the words struck home. These D-Day veterans marched considerably more than three miles along slushy, slippery tracks into position, while the Germans sat and waited, prepared against almost any attack.

Kapelsche Veer is a small harbor on the Maas, a hamlet with half-a-dozen houses but rising slightly above this flat country so as to command all approaches from the southeast and the west. A canal south of the harbor made an island of this place and the reclaimed land on either side of it.

The Germans never were driven from this strong point. When the Canadian and Britisn armies struck to the Maas River line in November the enemy built strong defences in dikes, houses and other vantage points. So long as the Germans hold Kapelsche Veer their patrols can fan out across Canadian Army-held country to the south without the disadvantage of a wide river crossing.

From the opening shots of Sunday morning's engagement until the withdrawal order was given, it was a tough toe-to-toe slugging match. Both forces suffered losses but the Germans probably took the heavier blow.

American Serving In RCAF In Canadian Court Martial

By HAROLD FREEMAN—Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL, Jan. 15—(CP).—Sqdn. Ldr. Harold (Whitey) Dahl, who has served in the air forces of four countries and who once was saved from a Spanish firing squad by the picture of a New York vaudeville performer, today faced a Canadian court martial on undisclosed charges. The charges—to be made public after they are read at the opening of the court martial—arose out of investigations in Canada, Brazil and the United States.

The inquiry is being conducted by the RCAF, the service to which Dahl is attached, although he has been operating with the RAF transport command. After preliminary evidence is taken at Dorval airport, it is expected the court will adjourn to Brazil and then to the United States.

Sqdn. Ldr. Dahl, who came to Canada in 1940 from Urbana, Ill., to join the R.C.A.F., fought with the Loyalists in the Spanish Civil War. Shot down by General Franco's forces, we was court martialed and sentenced to be shot but was saved when Edith Rogers sent her picture to Franco with a plea that he spare Dahl's life.

Just a Hoax.

Miss Rogers told Franco in her appeal that she was Dahl's wife, and the hoax was not revealed until the following year when he married Eleanor Bone of Belleville, Ont., following his entry into the R.C.A.F. Franco stayed the execution as a result of the appeal and eventually Dahl was released after

Gas Explosion Wrecks Home

BRANTFORD, Ont., Jan. 15 —(CP)—Mrs. Blanche Howey died in hospital early to-day, bringing to two the number of deaths resulting from a terrific explosion which shattered her one-storey brick home just before 9 p.m. yesterday. Three other persons were injured.

The explosion set telephones at the fire hall and the police station jangling constantly. It lifted the house up from its foundation, scattering parts of it like a pack of cards over a wide area. Part of the roof came down near a neighbouring house and other parts of the building were found hanging in trees on the property. But the main part of the house settled back on the foundation. A tangled and broken pile of timber, bricks and mortar with house furnishings strewn in every direction.

Mrs. Howey was removed to hospital last night and died about mid-

Germans Making Stern Effort To Hold Reno Line

ROME, Jan. 13 —(AP)—Repeated German efforts to set up outposts south of the Reno River and east of the Senio along the British 8th Army's Adriatic battle line have been frustrated with heavy losses to the enemy, Allied headquarters announced today.

While bitter winter weather continued to restrict activity, the enemy dug in along the farther banks of these rivers from the Adriatic to the Apennines. It was apparent Field Marshal Kesselring was determined to hold the Senio-Reno line at all costs.

The Germans last night were reported strongly reinforced and employing the heaviest artillery fire met by the Allies since they cut their way through the Hitler line last May.

At the eastern extremity of the line a Toronto armored reconnaissance regiment of the 1st Canadian Corps clashed with the Germans in a fierce engagement Thursday night on the spit of land separating the Comacchio lagoon from the Adriatic Sea, it was reported last night.

(A Reuters News Agency report identified this unit as the Governor General's Horse Guards of Toronto, a unit previously reported serving as a reconnaissance battalion in the Canadian Armored Division in Italy.)

Farther west the Germans had established a bridgehead on the east bank of the Senio River, in the Fusignano area about 13 miles north and slightly east of Faenza, yesterday's communique said. The gamble was won after two previous attempts had been hurled back by Canadian units.

British 30 Miles From Mandalay

KANDY, Ceylon, Jan. 15 —(CP)—British troops driving down the Chindwin Valley in Central Burma have reached a point only 30 miles from Mandalay, Burma's second city 350 miles north of Rangoon.

In a 16-mile advance from Shwebo, spearheads of Lt.-Gen. Slim's British 14th Army entered Wetlet on the Myitkyina-Mandalay railway, approximately 30 miles north and slightly west of Mandalay, Allied Headquarters announced yesterday.

Other units operating in the Chindwin area have occupied Kani, a steamer station on the west bank of the Chindwin, 62 miles south of Kalewa, and also Alon on the Mandalay-Ye-U branch railiway.

Storming ashort on Burma's west coast, 32 miles southeast of captured Akyab, British commando forces occupied the town of Myebon in the fact of heavy Japanese artillery and machine gun fire.

A Chungking dispatch said Japanese troops are clinging desperately to the Burma road town of Wanting. Maj-Gen. Wedemeyer announced the Chinese now control all but one of the hills surrounding the town.

Many Lives Lost As V-Bombs Strike England

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 15 (CP Cable)—A woman was pushing a baby in a carriage down a quiet street when a V-bomb struck. Carriage and baby disappeared but the woman was only slightly injured....A 10-year-old girl was crossing a road while a warden watched. A V-bomb struck. The warden said "the child just vanished."....

They were just two of the scores of "incident" announced today as resulting from a recent flurry of attacks by jet-propelled Nazi terror weapons on southern England. Many lives were lost and a large large number of women and children maimed as buildings and homes crumbled from direct hits and blast.

(The German radio asserted today that V-bomb attacks have been directed against London "almost uninterruptedly for the past 48 hours." The air and home ministries, however, issued only the customary dawn to dawn report, noting damage and casualties from enemy air activity directed against southern England.)

Countless Deeds of Bravery

Behind the bare, daily official announcement that "casualties and damage were caused" lie countless examples of bravery amid blood and suffering while rescuers claw through rubble that once was a home in each of victims.

Mrs. Margaret Bowen, 53-year-old widow, had an amazing escape. She was asleep in a first-floor bedroom when the front of her home crashed into the street. Her bed was left on the edge of the open space.

In one district, a missile wrecked the home of Cpl. Thomas Martin, just an hour before he stepped off the train on leave from the Burma front. His mother and six other occupants escaped but there were fatalities in nearby homes.

"It shook me when I saw what had happened," Martin said. "We did not realize you people were having it as bad as this."

Zero Weather Slowing Allied Drive

Allies Batter Germans From Three Sides

By JAMES M. LONG,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

PARIS, Jan. 15 —(AP) — The United States 1st Army drove within 1½ miles to-day of the communications centre of Houffalize, pivot of a new improvised German defence line in the flattening Belgian bulge.

Heavy fog, a blinding snowstorm and a sharp drop in the freezing temperatures slowed the pace of three solidly linked Allied armies elsewhere, and again grounded tactical air forces late in the day. Clear weather during the morning had permitted some planes to attack the Germans on the southern part of the salient.

American 3rd Army troops were a bare three miles south of the town and British and Americans were last reported a little more than three miles away from the west.

Other 1st Army troops moved within 6½ miles of St. Vith northern anchor of the new German arc line spread from Wiltz northwest to Houffalize and thence northeast to St. Vith.

Strong Tank Force.

The 1st and 3rd Armies established contact southeast of Laroche, lopping off another segment of the virtually emptied western end of the salient.

Strong German forces including many rescued tanks were spotted behind the new line. It was not apparent whether Field Marshal Von Rundstedt would try for a stand of the Siegfried line.

Take Thiriment

North of St. Vith, the enemy mounted a series of counter-attacks against the U.S. 1st Army around captured Thirimont, touching off a violent tank and infantry battle. Despite snow and ice, the Americans made general gains of 1,000 yards on the northeast flank of the bulge between Stavelot and Malmedy.

The 1st captured 15 places overnight, biting deeper into the shoulder of the salient, and striking final blows to liquidate the western tip of the bulge, where contact was established with the 3rd Army southeast of Laroche.

Truce In Effect Across Greece

ATHENS, Jan. 15.—(AP). — A truce ending hostilities between left-wing E.L.A.S. militia and British troops went into effect to-day.

The peace with E.A.M. leaders was negotiated by Lt.-Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, British commander, who yesterday told cheering demonstrators his forces would protect the Greek people and their liberties against revolution from any quarter.

Moderates who were former members of the E.A.M. political organization of the E.L.A.S., said at a press conference to-day they had completely disassociated themselves from that movement.

The moderates said significantly they favored inclusion of Communist delegates in an all-party cabinet provided the Communists maintained no private armies.

After evacuating the areas prescribed in Scobie's terms, which became effective last midnight, the E.L.A.S. will hold 21 of 37 prefectures in Greece, representing about two-thirds of the country.

Arabs Petition Cairo Judge

Claim Jews Using Court For Propaganda

CAIRO, Jan. 15—(AP).—The judge in the trial of two young Jews who assassinated Lord Moyne disclosed today that a telegraph signed by "a number of prominent Arabs" accused him of permitting the court to become a platform for dissemination of Jewish propaganda.

One of the signers was the president of the Arab Union Association, a Nationalist organization.

The judge declared he would take no more notice of pressure from that quarter than he has from any other.

He manifested some impatience when defence counsel resumed the argument that patriotic sentiments induced in the minds of the defendants by the sufferings of Jews throughout history had motivated the slaying.

"I believe we can confine our statements more closely to the immediate motives," the judge declared.

However, he permitted the attorney to read excerpts from two books on the Jewish question.

The defendants—Eliahou Hakim and Eliahou Bet Souri—have confessed slaying Lord Moyne and his chauffeur. The prosecution has asked the penalty.

2 War Crises Reached Simultaneously

Luzon May Be Cleaned Up As Allies Complete Squeeze On Germany

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The global war has, perhaps more by design than by chance, reached two of its greatest crisis simultaneously — the start of the huge Allied squeeze on Germany and the successful launching of the invasion of Luzon, key Philippine island, from which the Allies can direct their combined might against Japan's ill-gained conquests and the Mikado's own domains.

Just as a guess, the two might be completed about the same time. That is, the Pacific Allies may have conquered Luzon and be ready to begin the decisive offensive just as their European colleagues have made the "kill." Should this happen it would be a most gratifying development, since it would release the vast Allied striking power in Europe for the launching of the all-out onslaught on Japan.

Thus we can say that the Allies are making solid progress which will continue with increasing momentum so long as the home-fronts safeguard it. Our main concern right now isn't so much military as in the unhappy thought that the current mutual sharp-shooting by self-appointed correctors among the citizens of the Allied countries may knock the "united" out of the "United Nations."

Under Full Pressure

The great Red drive against the German vistual line in Poland, which has opened so auspiciously, has put a new complexion on the war in Europe. For the first time we now have the Germans under full pressure from both main fronts, and simultaneously menaced by the Russian offensive through Hungary towards Austria. We soon shall have a good idea of how much pressure can be stood by the house that Adolf built.

On the erupting western front Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's plans seem to have gone awry. Having failed in his effort to break through and capture Leige, and maybe other vital Allied bases, he showed signs of intending to try to hold his position in the Belgian bulge while he lunged at other points in the Allied line which has been weakened by the withdrawal of troops to defend the bulge. But the great salient is being closed about him and he's having to make a costly retreat, though with fierce defensive action which he may expect to continue.

Face Tough U-Boat Program

Believe 300 Subs Loose In North Atlantic

LONDON, Jan. 15—(CP Cable).—The winter and spring of 1945 may see the Royal Canadian Navy up against as tough U-boat opposition as at any time in its history.

From high officials in Britain, Canada and the United States have come warnings that the U-boat once more is in the North Atlantic in force—perhaps 200 to 300 of them working in packs of 20 to 25. This is less than the number of 400 which were estimated operating in the North Atlantic during the peak period of submarine activity during the winter and spring of 1942 and 1943, but it means increased effort on the part of the Canadian Navy.

During the dark days of two and three years ago the still-growing Dominion force was responsible for only 20 to 40 per cent. of the North Atlantic convoy work. But today 90 per cent. of the convoy work on this key Allied supply route is the responsibility of the Canadian Navy.

The destroyers, frigates and corvettes flying the Maple Leaf emblem will be up against new and improved U-boats this winter. With the Allied invasion of France last summer and the capture of Germany's chief submarine bases there, enemy naval experts had to devise underwater craft which could travel long distances from ports in Norway and on the North Sea and in the Kiel Canal.

Allies Smash 243 Planes In Germany

Tremendous Raids Aimed At Oil Refineries

LONDON, Jan. 15 —(CP)—The R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. rounded out 24 hours of intense Allied air activity last night with heavy blows at Berlin and Germany's oil industry and railyards, and today United States fighter-escorted heavy bombers once more are over Germany, it was announced.

In last night's operations, British heavy bombers "in very great strength" poured tons of explosives on the Leyua synthetic oil plant at Hersourg and on a fuel depot at Dulmen.

Canadian heavies from four squadrons aided in the Merseburg blow, while other R.C.A.F. Halifaxes bombed railyards at Grevenbroich in the Ruhr valley in an all-Canadian show which air officials here called "extremely effective."

Today's U.S. 8th Air Force targets were not immediately announced.

1,000 Bombers

Use of the phrase "in very great strength" by the air ministry indicates at least 1,000 British and Canadian craft carried out the Leuna works attack. A small force of British craft struck a secondary blow at Berlin.

Yesterday great armadas of Allied planes blasted Germany's oil resources and communications, and, in the best flying weather in days, scourged Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's forces retreating in Belgium.

Allied headquarters said 235 German planes were shot down in the air and eight more destroyed aground, while Allied losses were given as 53 planes.

A special order of the day from Lt.-Gen. Spaatz informed men of the U.S. 8th Air Force assigned to attack German oil plants and depots that German fuel reserves were now critical. More than 900 heavy bombers and an almost equal number of fighters participated.

The German air force rose in strength to protect its oil supply, and the Britain-based U.S. planes knocked out 189 of them—149 falling to fighter planes which set a new record for the 8th Air Force. The previous record for a single day was 134.

A Fort Erie dispatch Wednesday said the Chamber of Commerce there had wired Mr. Mitchell, whose riding of Welland includes Fort Erie, drawing his attention to the fact Mrs. Macdonald had not yet received increased allowance for her triplets.

The telegram was not received and the minister's office said yesterday a check with Fort Erie Chamber of Commerce had disclosed that no telegram had been sent.

Houffalize

The Germans tightened their Houffalize defences overnight in an effort to check the U.S. 3rd Army driving up from the south. Presently at least, the town was the hinge of German defences.

Overnight, two dozen or more towns were captured including Tettingen, three miles inside Germany's Saarland opposite Luxembourg.

Rush Up Reserves

Allied Supreme Headquarters said the enemy was pouring reinforcements into the middle Saar and upper Alsace plain battlefields, where their earlier offensive thrusts had been brought to a standstill.

Today's Allied communique did not mention action along the Netherlands front where last night front dispatches told of a 1st Canadian Army assault on a German Meuse River bridgehead which the enemy repulsed after bitter fighting.

The U.S. 1st Army took Dinex on the Liege highway two miles north of Houffalize.

Between Malmedy and Stavelot along the northeast side of the bulge, the 1st Army captured Ligneuville, 6½ miles northwest of St. Vith, and four south of Malmedy. Beaumont was reached and Coulee, six miles northwest of St. Vith, was taken.

Near German-held Bovigny, 10 miles northwest of Houffalize, the Americans captured Baclain, Montle-Ban and Halconreux, all in an arc around the larger town. The Houffalize-St. Vith highway, last major traffic artery in the bulge, was cut yesterday and overrun today.

On the south side of the bulge, the 3rd was held to less spectacular advances.

One division thrust a mile ahead to Michamps, 4½ miles northeast of Bastogne. Infantry edged a quarter-mile into woods 3½ miles northwest of the Luxembourg town of Wiltz. The Germans fought resolutely south of Houffalize and east of Bertogne on two bulge roads. The enemy was reported attempting to stand on an arc line from Wiltz northwest to Houffalize, thence northeast to St. Vith.

Just north of the Haguenau forest area where the U.S. 7th Army attempted to halt enemy attempts to break through Maginot Line positions. Four Nazi tanks broke into Hatten last night, but had been driven off by midnight.

No changes were reported around French-held Strasbourg. The Germans last were reported 10 miles south and eight miles north of the Rhine city.

American planes, pounding continuously at enemy troop convoys, communications and airdromes, have harassed Japanese efforts to bring up reinforcements.

In five days, 26 locomotives, 300 freight cars, more than 400 motor vehicles and 11 tanks and armored cars were destroyed in American air attacks. Numerous enemy aircraft were knocked out in raids on airdromes.

On Thursday attack planes and fighters raked highway traffic while heavy bombers unloaded 90 tons of explosives on airfields in the Manila area and at Legaspi and Batangas to the south.

Naval patrol boats sank four troop-laden enemy barges off Leyte and two supply-loaded luggers off Cebu. On Leyte, mop-up crews killed 891 more Japanese in isolated pockets.

Night patrol planes hit Formosa, Japan's important supply funnel for the Philippines, setting buildings afire at Heito airdrome.

A petroleum refinery on Northern Borneo was set ablaze, and enemy-held airdromes in the Central Philippines, Celebes, the Moluccas, the lesser Sundas, Northern New Guinea and the Bismarck archipelago came in for their daily plastering.

John D. Craig Passes Away In His 87 Year

Prominent in business and community affairs of Peterborough through a long span from his youth until his retirement, John D. Craig died early this morning at the home of his son, Vernon R. Craig, 563 George street.

In declining health for more than a year, Mr. Craig recently became ill of a cold that developed into pneumonia with effects beyond the impaired resistance of his advanced years.

Descendant of pioneer farmers in South and Otonabee, Mr. Craig was in his eighty-seventh year. His great-grandfather and his grandfather were early settlers in the Peterborough district, originally in Smith and later in Otonabee, where his parents were married. His birthplace, however, was in Manvers township, near Bethany, Durham county, and he had been a resident of Peterborough all his life from boyhood excepting a year in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mr. Craig was engaged in the retail furniture business forty-one years at the northwest corner of George and Brock streets, at first under the partnership of Craig and Mooney, and eventually under his own name after the death of his business partner. In his youth he was a member of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club with the late J. J. Howden and others who have gone before him. He was also a member of the Pioneer Section of the 57th Regiment, was a Past Master and life member of Corinthian Lodge A.F. & A.M., and also for many years a member of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

During those later years of the last century and its turn, the volunteer fire department was a community institution which attracted many men of civic spirit to its ranks, and it occupied a first place in the town's interests. Mr. Craig was a member of the old department for twenty-five years, eighteen of them as assistant chief under his brother-in-law, the late Tom Rutherford. For sixty years he was one of the numerous Peterborough people whose summer vacations were spent at Stoney Lake, for a time at the west end, but half a century or more in the Crowe's Landing section of the east end, the scenic site of the family cottage.

Predeceased twenty years ago by his wife, the former Frances Rutherford, Mr. Craig is survived by two sons, Fred D. (sports editor of The Examiner) and Vernon R. Craig, of this city, and one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Dalrymple, of Los Angeles, Cal. The funeral will take place Wednesday at 2 p.m. from the funeral home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water street, to the Little Lake Cemetery. The service will be conducted by Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson, rector of St. John's Church.

night. Firemen Elmer Kelly died last night, as a result of over-exertion while trying to open a fire hydrant. His death came in an ambulance taking him to hospital.

The injured are Mrs. Howey's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Howey, and her grandson, Lyle Howey. Hospital authorities said this morning the condition of Mr. and Mrs. Howey was "fair" and that Lyle was "resting fairly comfortably."

Cause of the explosion has not yet been definitely determined. Police and fire department officials are investigating.

Blame Natural Gas

Reports at the scene of the accident last night were that escaping gas was the cause. Mrs. Blanche Howey is reported to have smelled escaping gas in the house in the evening and gone to a neighbour's home to telephone her son. Shortly after they came to her house, the explosion occurred. Lyle, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Howey, had been staying with his grandmother.

The explosion, shattering the normal quiet of a Sunday evening, shook half the city and startled thousands of persons. Firemen and neighbours removed the four Howey's from the disorderly heap of rubble.

Lyle half buried in lath and plaster, was rescued by Jack Oliver and Gordon Woodward. Woodward said Halley Howie visited his mother's house yesterday afternoon to remove a gaspipe as case of furniture could be properly placed. Later, Woodsaid, he telephoned Mr. Howey at Mrs. Blanche Howie's request to ask him to come back to her house because there was a strong smell of gas.

A short time after the telephone call the explosion occurred.

In Total Darkness

Little could be seen in the darkness but it was possible to piece together a picture of the fighting from wireless messages that poured in all night to the command post.

One force advanced upon Kapelsche Veer from the southwest and the other came in from the southeast. Tanks provided covering fire and Polish, British and Canadian artillery and Canadian mortars laid down a barrage. The mortars were under command of Capt. Arthur McAlister of Petitcodiac, N.B.

A permanent bridge took the eastern force on to the island but the western troops had to cross the Canal in boats or by a narrow foot-bridge which Polish engineers built early in the evening.

Strong patrols preceded both forces and western soldiers 'bumped' the enemy early, killing three Germans. By 12.45 a.m. all the troops were close to the main enemy positions and 10 minutes later the commander called down the barrage under which his attack went in.

For 10 minutes field, medium and heavy guns, three-inch and 4.2-inch mortars pasted the Germans with what the troops described later as "magnificent" fire. Close to 10,000 rounds crashed into the enemy positions during that brief period.

4 Hour Battle.

The troops advanced right behind the barrage and for the next four hours were engaged in close fighting with the Germans. The enemy recovered quickly from the effects of the shelling and fought back so fiercely that progress on both sides of the harbor was slow.

Dugouts were by-passed but instead of surrendering the Germans hurled grenades and fired machine-guns and were silenced in some instances only by the use of flame-throwers. Few prisoners were taken.

By 5 a.m. it was apparent that the advance had been too slow to hope for success before dawn and the Colonel reluctantly decided to withdraw. The remaining German positions were too close for daylight operations.

So the order to come back was given and the withdrawal completed by 7 a.m. The Germans, who must have been hard hit, didn't fire a shot at the retiring force.

Americans Serving

Miss Rogers had appealed to the U.S. State Department.

His flying experience in Spain was not the first for Dahl. Before he went to Spain he had served with the United States Army Air Force from 1931 to 1936 after doing some flying in Mexico.

Sqdn. Ldr. Dahl was stationed as an instructor in Canada after his entry into the R.C.A.F., and served at Camp Borden, Ont., and Moncton, N.B., before he was posted to the R.A.F.T.C. Subsequently he was stationed at the Transport Command station at Belem, Brazil, where the court is expected to reconvene after completing the Dorval phase of its inquiry.

Evidence will be taken at more than one place because of the distances separating various witnesses, with officials deciding that it would be better for the court to go to the witnesses than to bring all the witnesses to the court.

Group Capt. M. P. Fraser is presiding at the court martial.

Win Or Lose McNaughton To Retain Job

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Jan. 15 — (CP)— Defence Minister McNaughton gave indication in a public address Saturday that win, or lose or draw in the February 5 by-election in Grey North he will remain in the government as Defence Minister.

"I have put my hand to the plow and intend to discharge my responsibilities as Minister of National Defence," he said. "That is my duty and I am going to do it."

Later, speaking to newsmen, he said, "all a victory in the by-election would do is give me an opportunity to explain on the floor of the House of Commons. You cannot drop the load in the middle of the stream."

Gen. McNaughton who comes from Moosomin, Sask., said he thought it right and proper that the person a constituency sent to the Commons should be someone from that riding. He previously had committed himself to contest a Saskatchewan riding in a general election.

"But," he said, "this is a special by-election. It is necessary that a person with the responsibility of a minister should stand on the floor of the House to explain the policies of his department and give explanations."

For that reason, the general said, he was standing for election in Grey North.

The general said that last October it came to his notice there was a possibility of a shortage of army reinforcements. The prime minister sent for him, asked his advice. "I gave it," said Gen. McNaughton. "He asked me join the government and accept the responsibility of carrying out the advice I gave."

The first requirement was manpower, then ammunition, then equipment.

"The period since November has not been easy," he continued. "Our staff has been closely engaged in these problems all these weeks. Men in the thousands had to be moved from this country, but they now are ready to take their places with our men at the front.

"There will be no pulling of punches in the effort put forth.... There is only one way to get through the west wall and that is by the most lavish use of shells. We must have shells, guns and equipment to do it by machine power rather than by manpower."

Zeller Warns

"One such dangerous mistruth," he said, "is the fear . . . that to avoid post-war depression, freedom of enterprise must give way to some system of State Economic Direction and Control. A growing number of people are coming to believe they are faced with the dilemma of choosing either liberty or jobs."

If Canadians lose faith in free enterprise, Mr. Zeller continued, lack of publicity concerning the country's economic system is to blame.

"It is up to the businessman to speak out and tell what business really stands for," he said.

Toronto Girl Charged With Murder

TORONTO, Jan. 15. — (CP).— Georgina Slemensky, 32, was charged with murder last night, following the fatal stabbing of Antonio Litvak, 37, in a downtown Toronto residence, police said. She will appear in police court this morning for preliminary hearing.

Litvak was stabbed through the chest, just above the heart, by a heavy bread knife and died shortly afterward. Dr. Smirlie Lawson, Toronto coroner, described cause of death as "loss of blood."

Details of events leading up to the stabbing were pieced together from the story told by the woman during questioning. Police said the man and woman had been drinking and quarrel over going to a movie. Litvak is said to have struck the woman with a sugar bowl, opening a 1½ inch gash in her head, and then she seized the knife and stabbed him.

She then ran to a nearby drug store to telephone for a doctor and ambulance, and the clerk in the store telephoned police.

Litvak was dead when Police Constable Robert Grey reached the house a short time later.

Police said the woman, who is a native of Montreal, had been living with Litvak 4½ years as a common law wife.

3 RCAF Planes Missing In Raid

LONDON, Jan. 15—(CP Cable)—Halifaxes of the R.C.A.F. bomber group last night struck at railyards at Grevenbroich in the Ruhr Valley in an all-Canadian show, while Canadian-built Lancasters from four squadrons teamed with R.A.F. heavies to attack a synthetic oil plant at Merseburg, near Leipzig.

Three Canadian bombers were reported missing.

Today R.C.A.F. officials called the Grevenbroich atack "extremely effective."

Grevenbroich is close to the present western front and forms a junction from Dusseldorf and Cologne. Object of the attack was to destroy rolling stock and disrupt communications systems generally.

Planes from the Canadian bomber group joined other units of the R.A.F. bomber command in a similar attack on the Saarbrucken marshalling yards Saturday night.

Enemy flak was light and little fighter action was reported Sunday. The R.C.A.F. said the Ruhr searchlights were "quiet ineffective" and the Canadian fliers found their target well marked by Pathfinders.

RUSSIAN PILOTS WAITING FOR PLANES IN ALASKA—Fliers of the Russian Air Force are awaiting orders at Ladd Field, Fairbanks, Alaska, before taking off with lend-lease planes for Siberian bases. # Canadian Spitfire Wing Gets 11 Planes In 15 Mins.

LONDON, Jan. — 15—(CP. Cable). —Planes of an R.C.A.F. Spitfire wing shot down 11 FW190s in 15 minutes Sunday when they sighted 15 enemy aircraft taking off from Enschede airfield in the Netherlands near the German border.

Details were not given in a brief R.C.A.F. communique which said apart from this isolated action German air reaction was "very weak" and "operational reports indicate most German fighters encountered showed very little inclination to fight."

Canadian operations yesterday were mostly in the area east of the British-held line in Holland, where roads, rail lines and air fields were the principal targets.

"A very satisfactory score" was run up of enemy locomotives, railcars and motor transports destroyed and damaged. "In one operation alone," a communique said, "R.C.A.F. Spitfires shot up a locomotive and 30 freight cars and several vehicles during armed reconnaissance of the Munster area."

R.C.A.F. Typhoons joined in an attack on a rocket site east of Zwolle with 1,000-pound bombs. They scored direct hits on the approach to a railway bridge and an embankment.

Fliers taking part in the Munster show — carried out by the City of Oshawa Squadron — included Flt. Lt. W. Harten of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Flt. Lt. Neil Russel of Burnaby, B.C.

Soldiers Lead Theatre Service

The Evangelistic Service held Sunday evening in the Centre Theatre by the Peterborough Christian Business Men's Committee took the form of "Armed Services" night.

The soloist Melvin Dunn is a warrant officer from Ottawa and the speaker, Captain C. J. Feaver, was from Barriefield, Kingston, also his son, Flight Lieut. Douglas Feaver, who gave his testimony to the miraculous saving of his life in a plane crash as the result of the prayers of members of the church to which his mother belonged.

The speaker, Capt. Feaver, took as his text John 1: 29, "Behold the lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." These words spoken by John the Baptist pointed to Jesus Christ as the saviour of the world. The world today is in a similar condition to which it was at the time these words were spoken. Many nations are or have been held in bondage and the people are looking for a Deliverer and it is only through this same Jesus Christ that men and women as well as nations can be freed from the bondage of sin.

The speaker referred to the season people have just celebrated when they sang "O Little Town of Bethlehem"—the hopes, fears of all the years are met in thee tonight." It was on that day more than 1900 years ago that mankind was given the opportunity to be freed from the bondage of sin. We have all sinned and come short of the glory of God but through the sacrfiice of the Saviour, men can be forced from the power. The penalty of this bondage (sin).

Referring to the soldiers who were present, he told of a prayer meeting held the previous night amongst the soldiers, airmen and sailors of the S. and A. Christain Association at Barriefield at which prayers were offered for this meeting to be held in Peterborough. He was sure that their prayers would be answered.

Telling many instances of conversion among the soldiers, he pleaded with those present to make their decision and join the happiest class of people in the world.

Next Sunday the speaker will be Rev. Albert Scholl of Hamilton and Mrs. Hines of Hamilton will be the soloist.

Woodward will present the Victoria Cross to Mrs. Ferguson Hoey of Duncan, B.C., mother of the late Maj. C. F. Hoey, killed in the battle of Burma in February, 1944. It will be the first time a governor-general has presented the ribbon of the V.C. to a recipient or his next of kin.

Lydia E. Pinkham's VEGETABLE COMPOUND

"TIGHTS" is a good word to describe the close-fitting, moisture-proof wrapping now being used to protect gun barrels, radio parts and even fully assembled automatic weapons for delivery to our troops on the invasion beaches and in the field. Thus packed, stores can be safely put ashore through the surf and, if necessary, stored in the open.

In the case of automatic weapons, the heavy black grease formerly used is no longer required. Instead, the mechanism and barrels are lightly lubricated and all the soldier need do is to strip off the covering, clamp on the magazine, and the gun is ready to fire.

There are several types of this interesting wrapping, each with its own specific use. One is of cotton sheeting combined with "Cellophane" and coated with wax. It is strong, tough, impervious to sea water, rain, mud.

The use of "Cellophane" in this way is an example of how this familiar transparent wrapping material is being combined with other substances to meet and overcome new shipping problems. It also demonstrates another way in which Industrial Chemistry is helping in the war.

Utilities Chairman

Twenty years in any elective and administrative public position affirm a personal fitness for its duties beyond any further question of test and proof. With such a stretch of experience and popular approval, Gordon S. Matthews begins his twentieth year as a member of the Peterborough Utilities Commission and his nineteenth consecutive year as its chairman.

It has not been an easy period of trusteeship since 1926 with almost ten years of a searing depression and these last six years of war reaching to almost every crossroads of the world. Here in Peterborough industrial demand for electrical power has swung the full course of the pendulum of production from an extreme low, with unforeseen problems, to the opposite high. Every requirement upon the city's electrical utility has been met during that time perhaps with some strain, but at any rate with flexible capacity and virtually automatic adjustment to the variant needs.

Operation of the waterworks has been equally responsive to increasing population and consumption, pressure for fire protection, sustained volume for domestic and industrial uses, and a potable excellence that is gratefully recognized at every household tap. In fact so accustomed have the people of Peterborough become to these factors and qualities of service that they are accepted without much awareness, a high compliment to efficiency of administration and management. Incidentally, the Commission had built up a waterworks surplus fund for extension projects, but agreed some months ago the transfer of $50,000 to help finance the new Civic Hospital.

In all this work Mr. Matthews would be the first to acknowledge the fine cooperation of his fellow Commissioners, at present George A. Macdonald and Fred Hills, and to the vigilant ability of Ross L. Dobbin, utilities manager under the Commission. This occasion of the chairman's re-election invites a reference to occasionally mumbled notions in some quarters that the Commission carries on its affairs apart from press reporting. The reply to that opinion, if it still survives anywhere, is that the Examiner is notified of every meeting of the Commission, misses any only by oversight and then is reminded of it.

For all Mr. Matthews' twenty years, impressive record that it is, he has a long way to go to equal that of J. C. Breithaupt, who has been a member and chairman of Kitchener Water Commission for 46 years. Philip Gies, vice-chairman, has been a member 36 years; George Hainsworth, father of the famous hockey star, 25 years, and Albert Bunker a mere seven.

It must be that public utility commissioners possess some special and enduring merit all their own.

Admiral Nelles Retires

The retirement of Rear-Admiral Percy W. Nelles from the Royal Canadian Navy with the rank of full admiral ends a long and honourable naval career which began with the organization of Canada's Navy in 1908. Admiral Nelles like so many boys in later years who followed the navy is a graduate of the Lakefield Preparatory School and the Trinity College School, Port Hope. His name has been an inspiration to the Sea Cadets of the Grove School and scores of boys today are serving in Canada's Navy who got their first naval training in the Lakefield Corps. On many occasions Admiral Nelles has been a visitor to the school and he always inspired the boy who wanted to choose the navy as a career.

Admiral Nelles was one of the first [illegible]ven naval cadets to enroll when full [illegible]ization of the R.C.N. began, and [illegible] Canadian trained officer [illegible] rank of admiral. There [illegible]atisfaction throughout [illegible]romotion which recognizes the splendid services of Admiral Nelles previous to and during the war.

The story of the Royal Canadian Navy's share in this war has been too often told to need repetition here. It is a story of well-nigh incredible expansion, and of a naval contribution which man for man and ship for ship is unsurpassed by any in the annals of naval history. That contribution has been estimated as the winning factor in the Battle of the Atlantic, by appreciative critics in other countries and, without in the least attempting to belittle the part played by the Royal and United States navies, it must be admitted that there were many months during which the destroyers and corvettes of Canada were the chief protection of the North Atlantic life-lines to Britain and Russia.

Throughout the period of expansion and the strained days when the R.C.N. fought almost alone, Admiral Nelles was its active head. Under his quietly efficient leadership, Canadians went down to the sea in Canadian ships to make a place for this country in naval history. Admiral Nelles will take with him into retirement the consciousness of duty well done in a time of great emergency, and he will take as well the sincere thanks of a grateful nation for his service in its behalf.

Education Grants

As more information becomes available on the announced policy of the Ontario Department of Education towards grants for education, the relief that this is going to give to the ratepayers becomes more apparent. It is one of the most progressive steps towards aiding the ratepayer that has ever been taken by any government. While most cities, towns and villages were early aware of just how they would be affected by these new grants, the ratepayers of the rural schools were not. So to try to find out just what this new policy meant to the rural sections the Examiner has secured what the grants will likely be to the schools in the township of Otonabee.

On another page today we publish an outline of these grants which mean increases of from $288.88 to $427.91 on the 1943 costs and while the grants will be paid on the 1944 costs they will mean an increase if there is any change. In looking over these figures it becomes very apparent that the department has tried to set up an equitable distribution of grants to the various schools according to the school section's assessment. We believe that there was no other way at the present time to set up such a schedule, but as time goes on, we think that it will become more apparent that there needs to be a general revision of the whole assessment question.

At present a law is on the statute books providing for county assessors, but this is not compulsory, with the result that only a few counties have taken this forward step. Today no two local assessments are made in the same manner and every municipality is on a different assessment basis. This will affect the equitable distribution of education grants, for the percentage of the legislative grant is fixed on the local assessment of the school section, the lower the assessment per classroom the higher the grant from the Department of Education.

The Department has been making an effort to get away from the single administration unit and establish township areas. How these township areas are going to benefit in the new educational grants is readily seen. In the township of Otonabee there is one such area, which in 1943 took in six schools, and its grant is estimated to be $6,403.09 or more than $1,000 per school while the highest grant to the schools which are under individual management will be $633.84.

With the township school areas should also come the elimination of, the trustees' levy which has varied greatly according to the demands the trustees made on the township council. The unfairness of this system may be seen in North Monaghan where one farmer a couple of years paid a trustees' rate of three and one-half mills, while his neighbour paid 19 mills just because one man was a resident of number one section and the other a resident of number two school section, while for all intents and purposes their mill levy was the same for everything else in the township.

The Government in taking this advanced step in school grants has made it perfectly clear that boards in 1945 will defeat the main purpose of the grants if there is a rapid increase in expenditures. The first purpose must be a major reduction in the local school rates and then a very moderate use of the increased grants towards more and better equipment and improved school buildings and grounds.

But before these grants can be equitable to all ratepayers an assessment made on the same basis must come about.

Farming News and Views

By
HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

CANADA is favoured by a visit from Rt. Hon. R. S. Hudson, British Minister of Agriculture who is making a brief survey of farming here. He will get a first hand knowledge of a number of things relating to agriculture in which he is keenly interested. Mr. Hudson has been the most forthright Minister of Agriculture Britain has had. He was not a member of the Government just prior to Mr. Churchill becoming Prime Minister, but had previously been a Privy Councillor, and was one of the Joint Secretaries of the Foreign Office and Board of Trade, at this time.

He was doubtless chosen by Mr. Churchill for his present position because of the high importance of food and Mr. Hudson proved that he had the driving force to accomplish remarkable results. He made his policy and gave it leadership. He didn't form committees or groups to suggest policies, he announced the policy and then appointed War Agricultural Executive Committees in each county to see that it was carried out and gave these Committees wide powers to make his policy effective.

The Minister went so far as to take power to dispossess farmers who were not farming up to the standard it was possible for them to attain. This created some vigorous criticism but Mr. Hudson was ready to meet it, and even his critics have never failed to admit that the Minister had an objective at which he was aiming and that he rarely missed the mark. He has had some heated discussions in the British House of Commons, but he has not failed to carry his point.

His first interviews in Canada are characteristic of the man. He has no glowing promises to make, nor is he announcing what our future trade in farm products with Britain is likely to be. Trade is a world affair and will not be settled off hand. Mr. Hudson is here to learn about Canadian farming so that he will have a proper understanding of Canada's place in the future food supply, and we should be greatly pleased that he has come to look it over himself. On more than one occasion, in public speeches in England, Mr. Hudson has told his people that a great many cattle on farms in England are rather non-descript inferior cross-breds, and has stated that he was amazed to see some of them. Speaking at Carmarthen in October of 1943 Mr. Hudson said: "But the greatest need if we are to increase the efficiency of milk production is a better supply of good bulls and good heifer calves, and the end of indiscriminate cross breeding."

"Whether it is for milk production or for beef production, we must aim at the best foundation stock and the most suitable bulls for the purpose. If we do not, the livestock farmers will waste their efforts and their labour, and they will throw away on inefficient and unproductive stock the feeding stuffs which they grow with so much pains."

This was clearly a case of having convictions upon necessary cattle improvement, and expressing them.

He also remarked upon other occasions that it has been reported to him that the ordinary farm cattle in Canada were much better. He is here now and it is up to our people in authority to show him our farm beasts. It will be all right to show some of our pure bred herds, but keep in mind that it is the commercial animals he is most interested in and he won't be fooled for a minute by elaborate stables and show places.

Mr. Hudson should see the cattle that go through our stockyards, both steers for slaughter and cows for sale to Commercial dairymen. It won't do to explain that there were better cattle marketed before Christmas, and will be again by March and that January is an off month; he'll know that and will want to see things as they are on some of our farms where steers are fed or cows are milked, and I am sure he can be favorably impressed by seeing just how some of our farmers feed store cattle and milk for profit.

The British Minister farms quite extensively himself, and his wife operates a 300 acre farm. Mr. Hudson is a breeder of Percheron horses. He bought two mare at the Histon September sale in 1943 at approximately $1200 and $800 each.

IN an interview at Ottawa Mr. Hudson was asked about land settlement of soldiers, to which he replied: "We are not encouraging service men to go on the farms, but if they are determined, we advise them to work a year as laborers and then we will give them training." Such a plan could be modified to suit Canada, but we should not on any account repeat the twenty-five years we have experienced of long drawn out failures. Among service men in the Canadian Forces are men who worked on farms. I know a half dozen myself who were farm workers at good wages when they enlisted and nobody in the Soldiers Settlement offices can teach these boys anything about farming, but they can easily prove their competency by the testimony of the farmers they worked for. Men like these should be given a chance to select their own land and livestock and they will get along.

I READ with a good deal of interest the report of the speech of Dr. G. I. Christie, President of the O.A.C., to the Guelph Junior Board of Trade in which he made plain his attitude regarding the report recently published about the Ontario Agricultural College about to be "transformed" into a university, in which he said it was "erroneous and much beyond our ambitions." He referred to the O.A.C.'s present affiliation with Toronto University in complimentary terms and added, "We are not going to try to be a university." This is sound sense, and it seemed to me that something needed to be said about that fantastic story, which to anyone who has a grasp of Ontario's educational system must have seemed silly.

Dr. Christie can be depended to keep his feet on the ground. He knows the O.A.C. was founded as a farming school and it is his ambition to make it the very best and there is no more important feature of education in Canada.

As one of the interesting local symptoms of the world's disease, we invite attention to a barber in Poston, Arizona. ## TEMPORARY RESPITE

The Decline of the Beef Stew

(FROM THE NEW YORK TIMES)

PHILOSOPHERS have long pondered the problem of rise and fall among nations. Ingenious and logical hypotheses have been promulgated. There are those who believe that a nation's eating habits and its position among its peers have a direct correlation. We view with perturbation the decline of the beef stew.

We do not refer to quantity. A dish allegedly beef stew is commonly offered on menus. A concoction with that label is tossed together in many homes. It is the quality that needs attention. Beef stew, humble and plebian by reputation, can be one of life's gastronomical experiences. But it isn't a dish to be mixed in casual nonchalance.

First of all, one's attitude must be right. One should approach the making of a beef stew leisurely and with full concentration. If one is disquited about the stock market, if he wondering whether he should be putting on the storm windows or paying the month's bills he cannot receive all that beef stew has to offer.

A real beef stew should always be made in the morning. After the chunks of beef are half cooked, the vegetables should be added, and cooked right in the best flavored water. It is rankest heresy to cook the vegetables separately. A stew should contain white potatoes, carrots, onions, turnips, just a bit of cabbage, and plenty of sweet potatoes. It's unthinkable to rate a beef stew triple-A priority which doesn't have sweet potatoes. After the stew is cooked it should be set aside to cool. It is the reheating that brings out all the subtle nuances, the utterly delicious and the completely satisfying flavour. There's no proof that Jupiter served beef stew at the Olympian meals. But if he had known about it, ambrosia would not have received so much publicity.

An Ontario Winter

(FROM THE LETHBRIDGE HERALD)

ONTARIO has been having a winter season to make the headlines. Four storms in the past month have piled snow to the fence tops. Some records have been broken, such as when some of the Toronto daily newspapers didn't publish.

The people in the East have an ingrained idea that the North West, as they still call us, has a corner on all the bad winter weather. Nomenclature has something to do with this. When we have a driving winter storm that piles up the snow, Ontario shivers to read about it because we call it a blizzard. Down that way it's just a bad storm which, if our memory serves us aright, takes about three days to blow itself out, leaving roads blocked in all directions. The fact that some ten or a dozen Ontario men died in a December storm as a result of over-exertion while trying to walk through three and four-foot drifts is some indication of what an Ontario storm can do.

Then there's another misconception down East about our winter weather that comes from reading the temperatures in the daily weather chart. Forty below at Winnipeg, 50 below at Saskatoon, and probably 60 below at Fort McMurray—the Easterner wonders what kind of benighted heathen would live in such sub-zero temperatures. Well, we've withstood 56 below at Edmonton and 45 below here in Lethbridge with the sun shining bright in the heavens—that dry, cold, you know—but we've never been so cold in our lives as what we experienced in that dank cold at 20 below zero on the shores of Lake Huron. We'll take 50 below or 100 above in the high, dry atmosphere of the Western Prairies any time rather than 90 above or 20 below in the humid atmosphere down around the Great Lakes.

Let the Easterner enjoy his storms and his more normal temperature readings—we'll take our winter weather Western style which, for one thing, is far from monotonous, especially here in Sunny Southern Alberta's Chinook belt, where it may be 40 below in the morning and 60 above with the water running before nightfull.

R. L. S. and Anne Ide

Mrs. Anne Ide Cockran, who died in this city on Sunday night, was curiously linked with famous persons and events during the sixty-eight years of her life. Perhaps she was best known as the little girl whose birthday unhappily fell on Dec. 25 and to whom Robert Louis Stevenson obligingly deeded his own birthday, Nov. 13. This happened in Samoa, where Miss Ide's father, Henry Clay Ide, served first as Land Commissioner, then as Chief Justice, before becoming a member of the first Philippine Commission. Coming history had cast its shadow over Samoa even then, for it was there that the United States, Great Britain and Germany almost came to blows over their respective rights. Stevenson, incidentally, thought well enough of Henry Clay Ide to tell him that he had always thought his presence "the best thing that the treaty had brought us."

Again, Anne Ide was a member of one of the most famous globe-trotting expeditions in our history, the Taft expedition to the Philippines and Far East in 1906. This excursion resulted not only in a more enlightened United States policy in the Philippines but in the marriage of Alice Roosevelt to Nicholas Longworth and of Anne Ide to Bourke Cockran, the Democratic orator whose voice once cast a spell second only to that invoked by William Jennings Bryan's golden tones. Finally, and admittedly by a remote link, Anne Ide Cockran was a relatives by marriage of Winston Churchill, whose cousin her sister wedded. Stevenson, golden days in Samoa, Taft, the Philippines, life in Washington when Bourke Cockran was in his notable prime—her memories covered more than half a century of history, and the earlier years must have seemed to her at the last like fragments of a dream.—New York Times.

Have a Camomile?

Current shortage of cigarets, which threatens to become more serious as time goes on and military requirements increase, has become an extremely serious matter to millions of our fellow citizens of both sexes. Ordinary substitutes for smoking, such as chewing gum, being hard to find at present, The Associated Press made an inquiry as to what had been suggested in the past in similar emergencies.

The Bureau of Moral and Hygienic Education issued a pamphlet in 1917 proposing some remedies which, if they did not cure the tobacco habit, seem a form of penance that would make an addict hesitate before lighting up again, if another dosage was in prospect. Some of them recall the drastic prescriptions of ancient Chinese medicine, which only the toughest could withstand. For example: Camomile tea, taken at meals and at bedtime, was guaranteed to destroy all liking for tobacco. Also for anything else for some time, probably. A mixture of gentian, sassafras, lovage, licorice and marshmallow, if chewed frequently, would take the mind off cigarets, and a two-week course of steam baths would, it was said, eliminate nicotine from the system.

It seems to us that any one with enough strength of mind to try any of these formulas, when unrestricted by a strait-jacket, should be able to give up, without adventitious aid, the weed so detested by Dr. Charles G. Pease, Annette Hazleton and Little Robert Reed. — New York Herald Tribune.

Not in the Nazi Pattern

Loyal Belgians are a bit worried, as David Anderson writes from Brussels to this newspaper, about "American, Canadian and British soldiers who are being entertained by people who welcomed the Germans not so long ago." The soldiers respond in a friendly way to friendly overtures, and their hosts, anxious to be on good terms with whomever is in control, naturally don't enlighten them. This situation must doubtless repeat itself in every liberated country. Despite orders against fraternization, the American soldiers, with whom we are most closely concerned, may find it difficult to be rigidly cold toward seemingly amiable persons they may encounter in Germany itself.

Commanding officers in the field will have to deal with the situation and doubtless are capable of doing so. We at home have at least this much consolation, that Europeans in time to come may remember our sons as being good-natured while not actually in battle—even too good-natured — but they will not remember them as being cruel. If a choice has to be made, this is a good memory to leave—good for the future good-will we shall need, good for its contribution to a lasting peace. Germans in years to come may shrink in fear and shame from revising certain parts of Europe. But American soldiers who are valiant under fire and possibly too kindly at other times will never find a reproach to their honour anywhere they ever go. —New York Times.

A Bible Message

There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas called Didymus, and Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and two other his disciples. Simon Peter saith unto them, I go fishing. They say unto him, We also go with thee. They went forth and entered into a ship immediately; and that night they caught nothing.

But when the morning was now come, Jesus stood on the shore: but the disciples knew not that it was Jesus. Then Jesus saith unto them, Children, have ye any meat? They answered him, No. And he said unto them, Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find. They cast therefore, and now they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes....

As soon as they were come to land, they saw a fire of coals there, and fish laid thereon, and bread....

Jesus saith unto them, Come and dine. And none of the disciples durst ask him, Who art thou? knowing that it was the Lord.

Jesus then cometh, and taketh bread, and giveth them, and fish likewise.

This is now the third time that Jesus shewed himself to his disciples, after that he was risen from the dead. (John 21: 2-6, 9, 12-14.)

GOLD FOR FRANCE

Under their new treaty Russia will lend gold to France. A case of turnabout being fair play. France lent Russia about four billion dollars before the Bolshevik Revolution, lost it, and is now borrowing it back.

For the Cynics

To the waves of cynicism which has swept the United States as a result of developments in Europe, the New York Times makes a sensible reply. It admits frankly that the pending Polish frontier settlement is not being made in accordance with the strict ideals of the Atlantic Charter; that it is, in fact, a unilateral settlement forced by the physical power of Russia.

"Nevertheless," it says, "to jump from a frank recognition of this unmistakable fact to the conclusion, which some Americans are excitedly reaching, that the war against Germany has now been stripped of all its moral significance seems to us to be preposterous. There are many mitigating factors in the situation. There is the fact that Poland's present frontier in the east was itself established by force of arms. (Poland's arms, in this instance.) There is the fact that this frontier includes a very large non-Polish population. There is the fact that the alternative of the Curzon line was once accepted by the western powers as an approximately fair border. There is the fact that Russia has been invaded by Germany twice in a generation, across this same territory. There is the fact that the one great task before all of the United Nations still remains the defeat of Nazi Germany."

A settlement of the frontier, the Times believes, is highly desirable to speed the war, for "agreement on the Curzon line is apparently to be the go-ahead signal for a resumption of the battle in the east." Evidently it is with this in view that the United States government says it has no objection to an agreement "which would make an essential contribution to the prosecution of the war against the common enemy." But the Times wisely warns Russia of "the hazards of making decisions in a coalition war on the basis of unilateral action. This is isolationism. It engenders isolationism in others."

It has already engendered new hope among some American isolationists. — Winnipeg Free Press.

Union Labor On The Farm Reduced Annual Output

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Socialists tampering with agriculture has reduced the output of farms in Australia and New Zealand, in the opinion of Gordon Ross, M.P. for Moose Jaw and one of Canada's most successful farmers. Not only do the Australian and New Zealand farmers receive less than Canadian farmers for their products and pay more for their machinery, but they are seriously damaged by labor interference, Mr. Ross says in a pamphlet which summarizes his studies.

"Let me say," Mr. Ross writes, "that I believe the farmer in Australia and New Zealand is just as patriotic a citizen as the farmer in Canada, and if he has fallen down in the production of food for the war effort (as he has) it is because the price he received for his product is inadequate to give him a fair return. The New Zealand wool crop in the last two years has been reduced from 345,000,000 to 325,000,000 pounds; butter fat from 422,000,000 to 353,000,000 pounds; number of milk cows in production from 1,770,000 to 1,690,000; and hog production from 998,000 to 726,000. These reductions in production are easily understood in the light of conditions I have described.

"There is not so much labor involved in operating farms either in Australia or New Zealand as in Canada; therefore, the cost of production should be lower. Unfortunately, however, it is not, and I found the farmers a discouraged lot. In Australia I learned the dairy farmers are selling their milk cows, that they might free themselves to go to the cities and obtain work. These were good milkers, but they were being sold at prices ranging from $35 to $45 per head.

"Australia and New Zealand are agricultural countries. They export very little of anything but agricultural products, yet in Australia from 60 to 70 per cent of the people live in cities and towns, with about 60 per cent of New Zealanders living in urban centres. In both countries for some years there have been governments which call themselves labor governments, but which are more or less socialistic, and in both countries these socialistic governments are opposed mainly by farmers. In New Zealand the leader of the opposition is a farmer.

"In my opinion, labor and labor unions control both countries. Workers in all industries are unionized. Some of the farm workers in Australia are unionized; all New Zealand farm workers are unionized. In an agricultural country such as Australia, New Zealand or western Canada, practically all the wealth comes from the farms and that is all the wealth that can be distributed among the people in those areas. If certain sections of the population are able to demand and obtain a larger portion of that wealth, then the other sections of the population must, of necessity, take less."

Studying further labor conditions as they affect the general economy of the southern dominions, and hence the farmers, Mr. Ross found:

"In Australia, although there is no lack of coal nor a scarcity of miners, the war effort of the country has had to be curtailed to a great extent because enough coal could not be produced to stoke the factories. The miners refuse to allow a stockpile of coal to accumulate by staging frequent strikes. There are continual strikes in both countries, in the packing plants and food-processing plants, in order to raise wages and shorten hours. This, of course, makes for higher costs in the processing and lower returns to the farmers.

"The dock workers who handle the produce over the docks are unionized and have the closed shop and the check-off. The closed shop means that none but union workers can unload boats, and the check-off means that union dues are deducted from the pay envelope of the worker by his employer. If, for any reason whatever, the union decides that a worker may not join the union, he cannot obtain work in the industry so unionized. Further, if the union officials decide they have sufficient men in the union to handle available work, they simply close the book and will not permit anyone to join. That is the situation in Wellington, New Zealand, right now. The dock-workers have closed their books and will not take new members into their union.

"While I was in Wellington there were eight ships waiting in the harbor to be loaded for England with food products. For two days it drizzled a little, something in the nature of a Scotch mist. No dock-worker worked those two days. The shipowners told me the men have the power to determine if weather conditions are favorable for work. They had decided the weather was too bad and they would not load the boats, but they sat under shelter on the docks and drew their pay just the same.

"In another dockyard I saw a crane used in loading and unloading boats. The lifting capacity of this crane was seven tons, yet the superintendent of the dockyard told me that union regulations would not permit this crane to lift more than 1,200 pounds at a time."

Summarizing his observations, Mr. Ross said: "After a close study of agricultural conditions in Australia and New Zealand, and as a result of innumerable conversations I enjoyed with farmers and representatives of farmers' organizations, I came away convinced that the lot of the western Canadian farmer, under wartime conditions, is much to be preferred to that of his cousin 'down under,' and that western Canada farmers have nothing to gain and much to lose by assisting a socialistic government to gain power in Canada."

VALIANT ITALIAN GUERILLAS CONTINUE FIGHTING ON COLD NORTHERN FRONT—Although the outside world has heard little about them, these Italian 'Maquis' have been fighitng Fascist regimes since 1927. Their battle ground is in the snow-clad mountains of the French-Italian border, where they fight Italian Fascists and German Nazis alike. Although nominally Italian, these patriots call themselves French, having started their own separationist movement when Mussolini tried to make Fascists of them. The man in front here carries the Italian flag.

225 Blood Donations Apsley Year's Total

APSLEY, Jan. 15 — (ENS) — The War Service Club held its annual meeting at Mrs. W. Lean's home, but owing to the weather there was a small attendance. The president reported a satisfactory year, with blood donors transportation to the Blood Donor Clinic and securing of donors being the highlight. Two hundred and twenty-five blood donations have been given by citizens of Apsley and district, some of the donors travelling 100 miles in the round trip, and they are ready to go again when their call comes.

Twenty-two Christmas boxes were sent to local boys overseas, and 13 ditty bags sent to the Navy League of Canada. Each month gum or cigarettes, $3 to three Apsley soldiers and $36 to the Prisoner of War Fund, are sent out. Quilts were made and donated to a family who lost their home by fire. During the year 14 card parties were held with lunch and prizes donated by members. The treasurer reported receipts $306.36, expenditures $242.48, balance on hand $64.88. Money was raised by card parties, weiner roasts, and donation. Expenditures besides the P.O.W. Fund, cigarettes and gum included $36.64 to British War Victims Fund, $62.13 for Christmas boxes, postage on boxes $14.76, gas for blood donors' transportation $65.10.

Mrs. W. Lean took the chair for the election of officers. Officers for 1945 are: President, Mrs. T. H. Lean; vice-president, Mrs. James Downing; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. D. Newberry; Sewing Committee, Mrs. W. Lean, Mrs. W. Everett, Mrs. A. Downings, and Mrs. A. Montgomery; Wool Committee, Mrs. J. Downing and Mrs. J. McColl. At the close of the meeting the hostess served lunch.

Cadet Training To Be Extended

OTTAWA, Jan. 15—(CP).—If military planners have their way, there will be little or no curtailment in Defence Department cadet estimates after the war.

The school army and air force cadets have become an important source of potential manpower for both services, and the common-to-all arms training given in these junior units facilitates training programs when the youths actually enlist.

The sea cadets—usually not affiliated with schools, and sponsored by the Navy League—are being used as the only source of recruiting for the senior service, and courses have been so designed as to take the youngsters over the less difficult wrinkles of sea-going knowledge before they sign on for regular duty.

One military spokesman told a reporter recently that he intended to recommend that the Federal Government approach the Provinces with a view to having postwar voluntary cadet units established in all secondary schools in the Dominion. He thought it should be left to the schools to decide which service they wanted to support.

Mrs. Frank McFadden Elected WA President

APSLEY, Jan. 15—(ENS)—The annual meeting of the W.A. of Trinity United Church was held at Mrs. Don Newberry's home with a good attendance.

The president reported on the activities held through the year and felt that they had completed a successful year. The treasurer reported receipts $76.38, expenditures $39.76, leaving a balance of $38.42.

Mrs. W. Lean was asked to conduct the election of officers. Officers for 1945 are: President, Mrs. Frank McFadden; vice-president, Mrs. Hector Montgomery; secretary, Mrs. Don Newberry; treasurer, Mrs. John Tucker. All committees remain the same as last year.

At the close of the meeting lunch was served by the hostess.

Bulgars Refused To Send Army Against Russia

BERN, Jan. 15—(AP).—Prince Cyril created a sensation at the Bulgarian war criminals' trials in Sofia by suggesting that the mysterious death of King Boris III in 1943 might have been caused by a powerful dose of oxygen as he flew back from a visit to Hitler, the Swiss telegraph agency reported Saturday.

The Prince, on trial as former regent along with other political leaders, asserted the death of his brother was an enigma to him but might have resulted from a heavy dose of oxygen flowing into his air mask on the plane trip from Germany, according to an account of Friday's session carried by the Swiss agency.

The overdose, he said, could have provoked an embolism, or blood clot. The German radio announced Aug. 28, 1943, that the Bulgarian King had died of a heart attack and complications and denied the illness was brought on by a violent quarrel with Hitler.

As crowds outside the doors of the chambers of the people's tribunal chanted "Death to traitors," Prince Cyril told interrogators that the King had confided as long ago as 1942 that relations with Germany were not going well. The Bulgars had refused to send troops to the Russian front.

In his own defence, the Prince insisted he had no interest in politics and became regent at his brother's death only by mischance.

Court Councillor Gentchev earlier affirmed that Boris several times threatened suicide or abdication and expressed a premonition of death by saying, as he set out on his fatal trip to Berlin, that he would see his dead father.

Waterpower.... Source of Abundant

Electricity

CAN HELP PROVIDE MAXIMUM POSTWAR EMPLOYMENT

Thanks to an abundance of waterpower, Canada is a land exceptionally rich in electricity. Thanks to our great rivers and waterfalls, plentiful low-cost electric power is assured in the Dominion for years to come.

During the war years, more than one third of Canada's electric output has been supplying power for the war effort. When Victory is won and electricity can be released from this task, Canada's vast power reserves can prove an outstanding peacetime asset.

Applied to the further development of our great natural resources, electricity can make us one of the world's most-favoured lands. It can increase the efficiency of our factories, our farms, our transportation. It can bring new beauty, comfort, convenience and health to our cities and homes. It can raise our standard of living.

But, to reap the full advantage of our heritage of electric power—we must plan its usage now. Without slackening our war effort, we must plan ahead, to make more and more use of electricity in the promotion of maximum employment . . . in the building of a sturdy, prosperous postwar Canada.

Before and After — Illustrated to the left is a typical Canadian water-power site before and after the installation of a G-E equipped electric power station. Canadian General Electric, leader in Canadian electrification for 52 years, has played a leading part in the harnessing of Canada's abundant water-power to provide electricity for industry, agriculture, municipalities and homes.

At George St.

The Pack is going full swing now and at the last meeting some 39 Cubs and three officers were present. We were glad to welcome three new Chums to the Jungle, John Carter, George Clarke and Bobby Burrows and wish them good hunting. The evening was spent in checking up tests and getting things in shipshape order. Two or three relay games were played. Before the close of the evening Donald Stewart received his three-year service star; Jack Rolley one year Service star and Garry Gilders was present with his First Star.

With St. John's

The Scouts were under the care of the senior Patrol, the Scouter being absent owing to sickness in the home. We all trust that Mrs. Ford will soon be back on her feet. The evening was spent in games and Patrol instruction.

The Pack was at home to two visitors and also was pleased to have Mrs. Langhorne and Gord Clegg on hand to assist. A. B. Ron Gynane a former Rover Scout and Commissioner A. Hope did not just sit down and look on but also assisted. 24 Cubs were present and games of Cleanliness and Hare and Hounds were played. Knotting instruction was taken by Sailor Gynane, first aid by Mrs. Langhorne and Mr. Hope had a short talk to the New Chums about their Laws and Promise. Taking advantage of visitors several tests were passed Micheal Craig and Max Saunders passed Union Jack, Bobby Rogers, Hopping and Somersault, Jack Adams Compass; Roderick Delaney—skipping; George Nickson— Collectors badge; Bruce Dobson time; Bobby Martyn, Max Saunders and Micheal Craig—leap frog.

At St. Luke's

Bob Clark will remember Tuesday night for a long time for it was the occasion of his investiture into the World wide brotherhood of Scouts as before the Council Rock and the Pack, he took his promise as a Wolf Cub. Following the ceremony the Pack enjoyed two relay games, knotting and hopping then got to work studying their tests. Doug Baptie passed his knots on his first star work. The song of Killi Killi was sung at the Red Flower and the story of the "Gift that really counted" was told by Akela.

Wanted:— News: — We would like to hear from the many Packs and Troops that are still active and would certainly be glad to get further reports from the two sections of All Saints.

Whipper Confident Over Wagner Tilt

Whipper Billy Watson who has beat a long parade of bad men is not unduly worried over his clash with Strangler Bob Wagner in the main bout of the Tunney wrestling show at the Brock Tuesday night. "Wagner is big and tough but I have slowed down a lot of big and tough birds and I figure on doing the same with the Portland rowdy," said Watson. On the other hand Wagner is breathing fire. He declares that Watson's fancy moves will not be any use against the kind of relentless attack he is planning to use against the champ. There will be two other fine bouts on the bill. advt

The schedule games that are set for 9 o'clock on Tuesday evening have been postponed. This is being done in order that the ice may be prepared for the three big bonspiel days — Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The schedule games for 7 p.m. Tuesday will be played at that hour and will be ten ends.

We have a full entry for our men's bonspiel on Wednesday—play is to begin at 9 a.m. and those curlers who are in that draw are asked to be at the rink by that time.

Both bonspiels on Saturday went over big with twelve rinks entered in each. At the conclusion of the evening games, the ladies served coffee and cake. Don't be surprised if next Saturday all ices are occupied.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Peterborough's hockey setup is billed to get under way this week. Tonight the juvenile league, which incidentally has decided to play all its games at the Lakefield rink will start its schedule with a double-header there. The opening card calls for the team representing Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School to clash with the Y Cubs, sponsored by the Y's Men in the opening game at 7.30 o'clock with Lakefield juveniles tangling with Jim Buchan's Hawks in the second fixture, billed for 9 o'clock. Two fast and interesting games should be dished up for the benefit of the Lakefield fans and the Peterborough delegation which will be on hand. Incidentally tickets are being sold around town and should command a ready sale among hockey fans who want to help to keep the game alive. Tomorrow night the midget league, operated by the Peterborough Hockey Club and sponsored by the service clubs will start its schedule with a game at the Confederation Square rink between the North End Rotary team coached by Ned Vitarelli and the South End B'Nai B'Rith team coached by Art Heal and Honey Tompkins. Eddie Starr is billed to referee the opening struggle. Thursday night the East City Lions tutored by Eddie Starr and Jim Ellis will clash with the Western Zone Kinsmen who have been trained by Johnny Godfrey and Bun Kingdon. Ned Vitarelli will be the referee. These games start at 8 p.m.

Our demon statistician has been doing some figuring on the City Five Pin League scores for the first half and has produced a set of team averages that should be decidedly interesting for they afford a good line on the consistency of the teams and the quality of the rolling generally. As might have been expected the league leaders, Chris Graham's Empress team lead the parade with a team average per game of 1182. The other Empress team led by Ken Graham are in second place with 1141 and the Cleanrites occupy third slot with an average of 1132. The averages of the remaining teams are as follows: Fashion Craft 1105, Sunocos 1093, Outlaws 1087, Freeman's 1077, Westclox 1050, Ramblers 1047, Atlas Steels 1037, Old Timers 1020, Riley's 1006, C.P.C. 988, Plazas 987, Machine Shop 975 and Soldiers 907. It is an interesting feature of the league that the two Empress teams, Fashion Craft and Freeman's have only used 5 players each during the first half of the schedule. On the other hand the Soldiers have had no fewer than 19 trundlers in their lineup since the opening of the season.

The Old Timers

Says Bill Westwick in the Ottawa Journal: The suggestion that Frank Nighbor mightn't have gone so well in the scramble passing of today draws "Baz" O'Meara, of the Montreal Star, into the breach with a few observations. "Personally," writes Baz in part, "we don't think Nighbor would have scored more than about 30 goals while preventing about three times that many. For Nighbor could score, and in the type of hockey played today, where players get plenty of protection from referees, and there is none of the brutality noted in some old-time games, he would be a constant scoring threat. The 'Brain' would have been very prominent, and even his poke check would be pretty potent, too, because he was the kind of player who could adjust himself to any game. All interested are referred to Lester Patrick, an undoubted authority on such matters. Once in an interview some years ago Lester claimed the old-timers didn't go against very close checking. He also pointed out that there was not the same quality of goalkeeping. Also there has been a great upswing in the quality of coaching. It is stressed on forwards that they must prevent scoring as well as score themselves. Every coach keeps a check on those two departments. He subscribes to the old claim that a good athlete would be good in any age. Which is a pretty sound theory, too, because most star athletes usually have something above the ears, plus verstaility, to mark them above their fellows."

Debunking the Scoring

This column strings right along with Red Dutton in his orders to N.H.L. scorers to quit handing out assists that have not been earned. The manner in which the officials have been padding the averages by dishing out points for assists, regardless of whether they were merited or not has had the effect of making the official figures meaningless. Why for instance should a centre man be given an assist because the puck happens to drift from a face-off to a teammate who fires a goal? If the centre secured the draw and made the pass all well and good but the habit has been to hand out an assist even when the rubber accidentally landed close enough to a player for a goal-scoring play to be made. On the other hand we have to disagree with the N.H.L. boss on his ruling that an assist is not to be given on a goal scored on a rebound. It often happens that an attacking forward makes a beautiful play to beat the defence and is robbed by a sensational stop by the goalie. The latter usually has had to dive to make the save and while he is out of the play some bird camped near the crease slams the rubber into the empty net. Under the Dutton ruling the scorer would get a point but the other man who made all the play and brought the goalie down would not be entitled to an assist. We think under such circumstances he rates one.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 — (AP). — The other day this corner reviewed some of the notable baseball events that have taken place in the historic Polo grounds and found that space ran out long before it was time to stop . . . for the Polo grounds isn't merely a baseball park. It's a football field, too, and the scene of some great boxing matches and of big events in lesser sports.

Contrasts in Color

Eddie Brannick, the Giants, picks as his most vividly remembered game at the Polo grounds that 1933 duel between Carl Hubbell and Dizzy Dean when Hub hurled "one of the great games of his career" to win 1-0 in 18 innings . . . but Eddie might have chosen the all-star game the next year when Hubbell fanned five great American league sluggers — Ruth, Gehrig, Foxx, Simmons and Cronin — in succession.

Tenth Ave. Tech

In 1925 the football giants were organized and professional football in New York "caught on" when one of the best-publicized of all college stars, Red Grange, came to town with Chicago Bears and 70,000 people turned out to see him. The game wasn't much, but the old Polo grounds never has seen a crowd like it, and the customers kept coming back for more thrills.

The bout is carded for Cleveland's Arena the night of January 16. Bell has won 30-odd fights in a row. Robinson is uncrowned welter king.

Caps Strengthen Their Hold On Top Place

By The Canadian Press.

Indianapolis Capitals strengthened their hold on first place in the Western Division of the American Hockey League last night as a result of a 3-2 victory over Providence Reds at Indianapolis. The Reds had travelled from Pittsburgh where they had defeated Pittsburgh Hornets 8-3 Saturday night.

In other week-end A. H. L. games, Buffalo defeated Pittsburgh 6-4 on Sunday and gave up a 4-0 decision to Hershey Bears Saturday.

The Capitals were leading all the way but had to face a bitter third-period rally to hold off the challenging Reds.

Jack Hewson gave the Caps a 1-0 edge in the opening period and Johnn Sorrell lifted the score to 2-0 early in the middle stanza before Stan Kemp counted for Reds. French Poitras renewed the Indianapolis two-goal advantage in the third period before George Patterson added the second goal for Providence.

Len Halderson, suspended by Buffalo for "indifferent play," was reinstated Saturday and tickled the Buffalo fans Sunday by scoring three goals as the Bisons stopped Pittsburg 6-4. Roger Leger, Kenny Kilrea and Eddie Emerton added the other Buffalo goals while Howard Mackie, Doc Prentice with two, and Bob Walton scored for Hornets.

The Bisons were not as fortunate Saturday night when they faced the Bears at Hershey, for Nick Damore turned in yeoman service in brushing the puck away from the Hershey goal. The four goals for the Bears were provided by four players, Bill Gooden, Hec Pozzo, Jack Riley and Peggy O'Neil.

The lowly Reds had a field day at Pittsburgh Saturday and showed their heels to the Hornets all the way. Two-goals by Dede Klein and one by Johnny Mahaffy were not enough to prevent the Reds taking the game after P. Corteau had scored twice and Jacques Lavoie, Harvey Fraser, Manny Cutlaw, George Bellemarre, George Patterson and Rollie Forget one each.

Canadiens Take Two Games Over Week-end

By BOB NIELSEN,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Resounding week-end victories over the challenging Detroit Red Wings and revived New York Rangers put Montreal Canadiens firmly on the road leading to their second straight National Hockey League championship.

Added to their 7-4 humbling of third-place Toronto Thursday, the 8-3, 6-2 triumphs over Red Wings and Rangers marked the complete and easy disposal, within four days of the best opposition the league has to offer the Flying Frenchmen.

Sunday's victory at New York, snapping a five-game unbeaten string for the Rangers, maintained the Montrealers' four-point margin of leadership gained by Saturday's vanquishing of the Wings, who bounced back at home last night to inflict a 3-0 shutout on Toronto Maple Leafs.

In other two games, Boston Bruins stayed in the clutches of a disastrous losing streak by dropping their fifth and sixth straight decisions, 2-1 to Toronto and 4-1 to the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks.

In both week-end triumphs, Canadiens convincingly refuted the theory that they are completely reliant on the great Lach-Blake-Richard line.

Each of the trio scored once, and Lach had two assists, as the Habitants extended a two-year mastery over the Red Wings, but their other goals went to defencemen Butch Bouchard and Glen Harmon, third-line centre Buddy O'Connor and Wingman Dutch Hiller. It was Montreal's 14th victory in their last 16 starts against Detroit, the remaining two being draws. Ted Lindsay, Joe Carveth and Mud Bruneeau scored as Red Wings rallied in the final period from a staggering 7-0 deficit.

Second Line Good.

Ken Mosdell, who pivots for Murph Chamberlain and Ray Getcliffe on the Frenchmen's dependable second line, and Hiller were standouts of the New York victory with two goals each. Lach and Frank Eddolls for the others, while Ab Demarco turned in a fine two goal effort for the fighting Rangers.

An overflow crowd of 14,127 at Detroit watched young Harry Lumley score his first shutout in Wings' sixth victory of the season over Toronto. Lindsay, Mud Bruneteau and Jud McAtee were the Detroit scorers.

Bolstered by personnel shakeups, Black Hawks made it decisive in their first triumph in nearly a month and their fourth of the season. Bill Cowley scored for Boston in the first 28 seconds but the Rossmen were never in the game thereafter. Clint Smith tied it up before the end of the period, Lude Check made it 2-1 in the second and two recent recruits from Detroit, Butch McDonald and Don Grosso, added third-period insurance.

The Bruins, who usually give the Maple Leaf Garden fans their money's worth, pleased them only by losing Saturday night in one of the season's dullest displays. Veteran Bob Davidson fired the winner for Leafs early in the third period after Bill Jennings had nullified an earlier goal by Lorne Carr.

THOROUGHBREDS KEPT IN TRIM—A scene at Belmont Park, N.Y., where there is no racing under the Byrnes ban, but where many of the nation's racing thoroughbreds are kept in shape in an enclosed winter stable. Here horses owned by Earle Sande, former champion jockey, are given an early morning gallop. The horses are "Snake River" and "Stage Manager," both eligible for the Kentucky Derby which, under the present ban, will not be run this year.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Jan. 15—(CP)—Latest word from Vancouver is that the promoters now aren't too anxious to have the Allan Cup finals staged on the West Coast...Financial losses are envisioned in the offing since the series mightn't be too interesting...The Quebec Senior League, which probably will produce the eastern winner, has announced its champion can't travel all the way west for the finals, so the whole thing might shape up as a rather lacklustre and meaningless series.

Hot Stove League:

There has been some talk recently about this business of tossing things on the ice in Chicago and other places, with a civic bylaw proposed in Winnipeg to make this form of participant sport illegal. That brings to mind the old days down east when the boys really took things seriously. At one game in Fredericton some of the anguished bleacherites yanked the stove out of one of the dressing rooms (they had central heating system in those days) and heaved it out on the ice. Then they broke half the windows in the joint to provide lots of draft. That's why they call them the good old days!

Assorted Quotes:

Hal (Edmonton Bulletin) Dean: "As to turning the professional sports fan into a participant, that already seems to have been heeded in some quarters, judging by...The number of has been or youngsters getting into the game". Maurice (Winnipeg Free Press) Smith, commenting on Tiny Thompson's search for talent for Chicago Black Hawks: "Now he's looking for guys as good as he is. We think he'll find that a tougher job than winning the Vezina trophy ever was."..Hal (Guelph Mercury) Cole: "It would..be an interesting event if some of the places around here fortunate enough to possess a race track, made an attempt to stage at least one meet for ordinary horses—farm, milk, wagon, or anything other than recognized racers."

Golf Championships Will Not Be Held

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—The United States open, amateur, women's and public links golf championships will not be held in 1945, Morton G. Bogue of New York told the United States Golf Association delegates Saturday just before they re-elected him president of the organization.

Revealing that golfers had considered reviving the open last fall, but had changed their minds in view of present conditions in Germany, Bogue said he believed the interest of "our country and golf will best be served confining our activities to recreational golf and competitions in local districts."

Nelson Wins Phoenix Open

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 15.—(AP).—Byron Nelson stood off last-round sub-par rallies by Denny Shute, Akron, Ohio, veteran, and Sam Byrd, Detroit, to win the $6,666 war bond Phoenix golf open tournament by two strokes Sunday.

The Toledo, Ohio star's 72-hole score was 274, 10 strokes under par for the flat, three-bordered Phoenix Country Club course.

Shute, Professional Golfers' Association champion in 1936 and 1937, shot two brilliant 68's Sunday to place second with a 276.

Byrd, former baseball outfielder, bid strongly for the leadership with a last-round 68, three under par. His total was 277.

The victory was worth $1,333 in war bonds to Nelson. Shute collected $933 and Byrd $746.66, also in war bonds.

McSpaden Fades

Bob Hamilton, Chicago Professional Golfers' Association chapion, landed in fourth place after a sizzling 65 on the last round to give him 278, a stroke back of Byrd.

Hamilton, tied for the lead on the first day, faltered miserably on the greens Sunday morning, taking a 75. His afternoon round was the best of the day.

Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Sanford, Maine, last year's winner here, collapsed after being in the runner-up spot at the start Sunday, two strokes behind Nelson.

Jug ballooned to a 76 in the morning, and could do no better than a 72 in the aternoon. He finished in fifth place with a 283.

Going into the last nine, Nelson held only a one-stroke margin over Byrd. The Toledo star pulled away to a two-stroke lead on the 14th hole, where he ran down a 30-foot putt.

The colorful Virginian —Sam Snead — wound up in 10th place, shooting a 73 in the afternoon round. His drives straightened out Sunday, but he had difficulty putting.

Oshawa Loses To St. Mike's

By The Canadian Press

St. Michaels maintained their unblemished O.H.A. Junior "A" record Saturday night by sweeping to their 11th straight victory with a 5-1 decision at Oshawa, with Johnny McCormack turning in a sensational performance with four goals. Samanski of Generals notched the first tally in 8.58 of the first period but the students dominated thereafter. Costello was the other scorer for the Collegians.

Galt Red Wings went into a third-place tie in the standing with Oshawa by whitewashing St. Catharines Falcons 3-0 at Galt, the visitors enduring their third straight loss of the week but retaining the runner-up spot in the race four points below St. Mikes and four ahead of the Galt-Oshawa pair. Two goals were off the stick of Winn Mousseau, while Frenchy Mayer snared the odd counter.

Marlboros suffered their 11th setback of the season against a lone victory when Young Rangers set them bacg 6-3 on Toronto ice.

A BIG ASSIGNMENT

By the end of October the First Canadian Army had virtually completed its most important assignment since the beginning of the war—capture of the Schelde estuary surrounding the port of Antwerp.

ADDED PRIZE—Winner of the Los Angeles open golf tournament, Sammy Snead gets a long, lingering kiss by way of an added prize. The kisser is Mary Anna Bridgman, pretty co-ed hostess "Golf Girl" of the tourney.

Roseneath W.I. Hears Talk On Newfoundland

ROSENEATH, Jan. .8—(ENS.—Newfoundland, sometimes called the Gibraltar of the New World, because of her position between two worlds, or the Norway of the New World because of her rugged shore and deep inlets; because of her green hillsides during the summer months sometimes called the New Ireland; in point of time she is Ye Ancient Colony. This was the introduction to an address on Newfoundland delivered by Rev. R. C. White, guest speaker at the regular meeting of the W.I.

Newfoundland, said the speaker, was discovered by John Cabot in 1492. In 1583 Sir Humphrey Gilbert, half-brother to Sir Walter Raleigh, took possession of the island for Great Britain. The first white child was born in 1613. The first hundred years of her history, the French and English waged war for her possession, and in the harbor of St. John one can see the large iron ring in chain rock used to stretch a chain across the narrows to keep the French ships out.

Of the Government, Mr. White said, for many years she was ruled by an Irish Admiral, the first skipper to arrive from England in the spring was proclaimed Admiral, who usually ruled by bribery and physical force. In 1855 the first government by the people was set up. The island, after frequent elections, is now governed by a commission, partly chosen by Britain and partly selected by a local organization.

Fishing country.

Of Newfoundland's industries, Mr. White said she is the greatest dried codfish producing country in the world, exceeding Norway and Iceland. The fish is shipped to Spain, Portugal, Italy and West Indies. Its kindred industry is the seal fishing, a calling full of adventure, exposure and tragedy. It has been said of the seal fishery, "it is the story of wooden ships and iron men."

Not far from St. John's, said Mr. White, there is in operation the greatest iron mine in the world, Belle Island Iron Mine. The island is only six miles by two miles, the ore extends far under the waters toward the mainland. One mine extends for three miles under water, and is known as the submarine mine, and employs about 3,000 men, and the annual payroll is about $2,000,000.

The island has the greatest submarine cable station in the world. It is also the receiving point for the submarine telephone connection between New York and London.

New Educational Grants Will Aid Public Schools In Rural Sections

The Examiner requested R. F. Downey and F. B. Smitheram, public school inspectors, to prepare an outline of the new school grants and their application as information for the rural public of Peterborough county.

The following summary has been received from them:

The primary purpose of the substantially increased grants to school boards is to relieve the burden of school taxation on real property. In announcing the new scheme, the Department of Education emphasizes two main principles, i.e.

(a) that the increased grants from the provincial treasury are to be the means of lowering the burden of taxation for school purposes on real property.

(b) That the increased grants are to enable every community to provide for every Ontario child as nearly equal an educational opportunity as possible.

All rural school boards will receive in 1945 in the annual legislative grant an amount equal to 50 per cent. or more of the school operation costs for the calendar year 1944. In gross the Ontario Government will pay in school grants in 1945 50 per cent. of the cost of elementary and secondary education in the province. About 20 per cent. was paid in 1944.

Vary As To Population

For town and villages the scheme provides for a percentage of the board's operating costs for the next preceding calendar year, the percentage varying according to population as follows:

(a) 5,000 or more but less than 10,000 42 per cent. of the approved cost,

(b) 2,500 or more but less than 5,000, 50 per cent. of the approved cost.

(c) Less than 2,500, 60 per cent. of the approved cost.

For rural schools the grant is a percentage of the board's operating costs for the next preceding calendar year, the percentage running from 50 per cent. to 90 per cent., dependent upon the equalized assessment per classroom. There are four panels of assessment; e.g.

(a) $80,000 per classroom and above, 50 per cent

(b) $50,000 per classroom but under $80,000, 60 per cent.

(c) $30,000 per classroom but under $50,000, 75 per cent.

(d) Below $30,000 per classroom, 90 per cent.

The grant scheme offers special encouragement towards the formation of township school areas. No school board, however, will receive grants in excess of 95 per cent. of their approved operating costs.

Consolidate Grants

The Department of Education is attempting to consolidate all school grants. In consequence, assisted school grants, grants on equipment and accommodation, grants on transportation and fifth class, etc., will be incorporated under the heading "approved operating costs". Fewer special grants towards the teaching of special subjects will be necessary. Every school board will be expected to provide a full program of studies with both obligatory and optional subjects included and with ample equipment for use by teacher and pupils.

Since all expenditures are subject to approval before grants can be assured, there should be the closest understanding and co-operation between the school board and the inspector in each case.

Boards should be particularly careful to consult their inspector of public schools before purchasing any special equipment or installations from travelling salesmen.

Any rapid increase in expenditure by boards in 1945 will defeat the main purpose of the new grants and will give the province difficulties in meeting grants on the basis of 50 per cent. of costs in future years. The first accomplishment in 1945 must be a major reduction in local school rates, and then a very moderate use of the increased grants toward more and better equipment, and improved school buildings and school grounds.

Grants In Otonabee

For purposes of illustration only, the following table of grants to schools in the township of Otonabee indicates the extent of the increased payments by the Ontario government. The grants in this table are calculated on the basis of the operating costs for the calendar year 1944 and the equalized assessment of each school section.

| 1 | $ 295.70 | | $ 295.70 | $ 723.61 | | $ 723.61 | $ 427.91 |

Grants payable to school boards in other municipalities will be increased correspondingly. Ratepayers or municipal officials may obtain specific information relatives to their particular school sections by applying to their local Inspector of Public Schools.

$15,000 Damage In Fire At Legion Hall

Believed to have originated from a smouldering cigarette butt, fire early Sunday morning completely gutted the basement portion of the Canadian Legion Hall, on Murray street, causing damages estimated by Fire Chief George Gimblett at $15,000.

The fire started in one of the leather settees in the club quarters of the Hall, in the front part of the basement. Flames went up the wall, and spread quickly, burning through the ceiling in eight different places. Firemen under Chief Gimblett played four water lines on the blazing interior part of the Hall and fought for an hour before getting the blaze under control.

Miss Leone Magee, 207 Murray, and her brother, Sgt. Pilot "Mick" Magee, saw the flames shooting from a basement window at 3:37 a.m., when they were returning from a dance, and turned in the alarm.

Owned by the Canadian Legion in Peterborough, the office in the basement was the scene of an executive meeting Saturday night, although most of the participants left the building at 12 o'clock. There was also a dance upstairs which ended before midnight. Later, the caretaker locked up for the evening.

"Hot, smoky and generally dirty," is the way Fire Chief George Gimblett described the blaze. Deep snow retarded firefighters somewhat, although their work was made easier by almost a complete absence of spectators. During the fire, several of the firemen received the usual cuts and scratches, and several had to be taken into the fresh air after becoming slightly ill from smoke.

Except for being smoked up badly, the office of the Canadian Legion, Branch 52, was not damaged by the fire, and valuable files and papers were safe. Throughout the rest of the building, the only damage suffered was by the thick smoke the fire threw up.

Although the building has been insured, Chief Gimblett said today it is not certain for what amount the Hall has been protected.

Miss Magee lauded the Fire Department for the speed in which they arrived at the scene, and for their efficient and fast work at combatting the fire. She said that people living next door to the Hall had not even been awakened by the fire. Some, she said, awoke after everything was over.

Chief Gimblett, who is president of the Legion in Peterborough, said today that the monthly meeting scheduled for this evening has been cancelled, and that all other activities in the Hall have been postponed until further notice.

Honor H. L. Beal For Service During 50 Years

A framed life membeship will be presented to Harry L. Beal at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Horticultural Society Thursday, January 18, at 8 o'clock, in the board room of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Hunter street.

The life membership is a formal recognition of Mr. Beal's fifty year's of continuous active participation in the affairs of the society. He has held every office in the society, including the post of secretary-treasurer from 1901 to 1910. And one of his best seasons was last year as leader of the membership committee which showed an increase of 160 members.

Harry Beal has had full returns from the Horticultural Society in his sense of contributing something cumulative to the beauty of Peterborough, but he has also earned the tribute which will be paid to him Thursday night.

The framed life membership will be presented to Gordon K. Fraser, M.P. The program will include moving pictures entitled "Gardens of England" and "Gardens of the World" in natural color and with sound effects.

The public is cordially invited to this meeting. Officers will be elected and the year of 1945 surveyed. The Society made a big gain in membership and usefulness last year under the leadership of Mrs. G. K. Fraser with the energetic help of strong committees.

Snowstorms Sweep Across England

LONDON, Jan. 15—(CP-Reuters).—Heavy snowstorms swept most of Britain during last week in the worst snowfall since 1940, and in some parts of the country drifts up to 10 feet deep cut off towns and buried vehicles.

Thousands of persons in homes short of fuel became chillier than ever as bitter winds made the storm resemble a blizzard. Coal deliveries were held up and women and children struggled through snowbound roads to collect coal in baby carriages and barrows.

Civil defence workers were called out to help clear vital roads and thirty snow ploughs were used to clear roads.

Business Club Gives Aid To Bomb Victims

Six months ago conditions were such that it appeared probable that the bombings of the civilian life of Britain would by now be a thing of the past. This unfortunately has not proved to be the case, in fact the damage hat has been reported since last June has seemingly been of a more serious kind due to the robot bomb.

Any hopes that the local and district fund operating to alleviate the distress of those who had suffered in this manner could consider its job finished by this time are thus to some extent shattered. No one builds a house and leaves it without at least putting on the roof, and the task has been done in such a manner that no one would wish to see it left incomplete.

Only as recently as last Saturday reports direct from Britain spoke of attacks made that day, costing the lives of five children in one home, besides others, and of course they were accompanied by much damage, which would require assistance to tide them over all the horror and distress that has thus come into their lives.

In the early days of the operations of the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund the Business and Professional Women's Club of this city rallied to its support by sponsoring an effort responsible for raising funds that went into three columns of figures in monetary value, since which time they have supported it on various occasions.

Further assistance is today credited to them through Miss Aleitha V. Davidson, their treasurer, and (Mrs.) Bertha Austin, their president, which continues the good work done on former occasions, and like the fund itself, demonstrates a desire to pursue this humanitarian work until the need no longer exists.

When the Silver Moon Grill was first opened for business the proprietor, Henry Young, divided the receipts from the opening day equally between two charitable war funds, of which this was one. This brought a nice amount to its coffers, and ever since that time one of the fund's penny boxes has been making its silent appeal to give further help to the cause.

On Saturday another collection from this was made by the secretary of the fund, this netting the sum of $2.70, which was immediately made up to the even $5 by the same proprietor as when it first opened for business, who thus displays a continuity of interest that was evidenced long ago.

Production, Transportation Still Causing Coal Shortage

Transportation difficulties coupled with a 65 per cent. slash in production of hard coal at the mines are behind the present acute shortage of hard coal in Peterborough, according to Joseph Boland of the McCarthy & Johnston Coal Company.

Mr. Boland said the company is from a week to two weeks behind in deliveries, and that weather conditions in the past few weeks, tying up transportation, can be partly blamed. Along with a production cut-down in hard coal, coke is also on the "shortage" list, he added.

"We're miles behind in the delivery of hard coal, although we have managed to keep up the coke deliveries quite well," said H. H. Kelly, manager of the Peterborough Fuel & Transfer Company. "We have about 28 cars of coal between Peterborough and the mines, but where they are right now I don't know," he said.

Mr. Kelly said a letter he received recently told of shipping conditions off the docks at Midland, through which comes much of the coal for the company. "Snow is about five or six feet deep up there right now."

Can't Deliver

W. E. Taylor, of th H. B. Taylor & Son Coal Company, stated that his company can't get around to even half of the people who want coal at the present.

"The main trouble is a shortage of fuel, and difficulties caused by the bad weather we have been having," Mr. Taylor said. "Considerable time has been lost in the past few weeks by trucks getting stuck in the snow, he outlined.

Peterborough citizens have cooperated with the coal companies in many cases, Mr. Taylor stated, but there are still some paths or lanes that have not been shovelled clear

HOUSEHOLD FINANCE

Announces

1 { NEW REDUCED LOAN RATE OF 1½% PER MONTH

2 { LOANS UP TO $1,000 WITHOUT ENDORSERS OR BANKABLE SECURITY

3 { UP TO 20 MONTHS TO REPAY

Now you can borrow up to $1,000 at Household Finance and repay in monthly instalments—$37.47 a month repays $500 loan in 15 months

ONCE MORE the cost of borrowing at Household Finance comes down. Now Household's rate on any loan is only 1½% per month on the unpaid balance. With this new reduced rate Household, Canada's largest and oldest Small Loans Company, also announces the making of loans of $600, $700, up to $1,000, without endorsers or guarantors.

You save up to one-fourth

Household's business has steadily grown as one friend has told another about our service. With this growth have come lower operating costs. We want our customers to share in these savings. At our new reduced rate you save up to one-fourth, depending on the size of your loan and the repayment schedule you choose.

$100 loan, repaid in four monthly payments, costs only $3.78

Notice in the table below how Household's new rate reduces your monthly payments. You can now repay a $500 loan, for instance, in 15 monthly instalments of $37.47 each, a $300 loan in 12 monthly instalments of $27.50 each. To cut the cost of your loan to the limit, plan to repay as quickly as you are able. The sooner you repay the less your loan costs. A $100 loan repaid in six monthly instalments costs $5.32. If repaid in four monthly instalments, it costs only $3.78.

Surprisingly low also are the costs of larger loans when repaid in a few instalments. Here are some examples: $300 loan, repaid in 2 monthly instalments, costs $6.77; repaid in 4 monthly instalments, costs $11.33. A $500 3-payment loan costs $15.07, a $750 3-payment loan $22.61, a $1,000 4-payment loan only $37.78. Compare these costs with others!

Payments shown in the table below include principal and charges. Our one rate of charge includes all costs. You pay no discounts, fines or service charge, no extras of any kind. You are charged only for the money you actually use and only for the time you actually keep it.

All you do to get a Household loan

Getting a loan at Household Finance is a simple matter. And you do nothing more to get an $800 or $1,000 loan than you do to borrow $50 or $100. You merely give us some information about yourself and your job—and choose a convenient payment schedule from the table below. Household Finance loans are really confidential. We never require endorsers. At no time need you ask friends or employer to guarantee repayment of your loan. We lend on your earning ability and your willingness to repay.

Another Household Finance advantage is truly fast service. Your loan can usually be completed—the money actually in your hands—the same day you apply. In case of sickness or layoff, Household will show you every courtesy and consideration. Never once has the company foreclosed or garnisheed wages to collect a delinquent loan. If you have a job or a regular income, don't hesitate to apply for whatever amount you need—as little as $20 or as much as $1,000.

Money for most any purpose

You may borrow at Household Finance to pay your doctor, dentist, insurance, taxes, old bills, to help relatives, to finance your business—for almost any purpose. If a loan is the best solution to your problem, visit Household today. Or if it's not convenient to come to the office, just phone or write.

N., and Jessie Porter, of Lindsay, classmates of the bride, who also assisted in serving at the reception.

Prior to their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Keeler, (formerly Margaret Armitage) were entertained at a presentation at the Murco Farms, where the groom has been a member of the staff. Mr. Murphy, the president, read the address, and Mrs. Casey and Miss Patsy Murphy presented the couple with an occasional chair and a lamp. Following the serving of lunch, an evening of dancing was enjoyed.

Cavan Nurse Wed In White Sheer

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Armitage, Cavan, was the setting for a pretty wedding Saturday afternoon, when their eldest daughter, Margaret Alberta May Armitage, Reg. N., became the bride of Laughlin Edwin Keeler, son of Mrs. Florence Keeler, and the late Albert A. Keeler, of Sunderland. Rev. W. E. Honey of Cavan United Church, officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a floor-length gown of white sheer over satin, fashioned with a high neckline outlined with silk braid, with a wide band of silk braid at the fitted waist, and full skirt. She wore a fingertip veil of white net, caught to a matching floral headdress, and carried a white Bible. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, the gift of the groom.

Miss Wilda Armitage attended her sister as bridesmaid. She was frocked in floor-length white brocaded marquisette, with Sweetheart neckline, fitted waist, the bodice finished at the front with a row of tiny buttons. Her shoulder-length veil was of pink net, and she wore a corsage of pink carnations. She wore silver shoes, and a silver locket, the gift of the bride and groom.

Alton Madill, of Cavan, was best man. His gift from the groom was a fountain pen.

For the reception, the dining room was decorated in pink and white. Mrs. Armitage, receiving the guests, wore a powder blue crepe ensemble, navy blue accessories, and a corsage of yellow carnations. The groom's mother, also receiving, wore black sheer, and a corsage of yellow carnations. A buffet lunch was served, the table centred with the bride's three tier wedding cake, flanked with pink tapers.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Keeler left for a wedding trip to Toronto and other points, the bride travelling in a green printed silk jersey dress, black coat trimmed with silk fox fur, and matching hat, and a corsage of pink carnations. On their return, they will make their home on the groom's farm, near Lindsay. The bride is a graduate of Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, and has been on the hospital staff since her graduation.

Two Soldiers Win Calls At Centre Bingo

Those in attendance at the bingo in the Recreation Centre Saturday were specially favored with a musical program. During the sing-song which preceded the games, J. Hawthorne sang two solos, and also at the conclusion of the evening. W. Farr sang, assisted by Mr. Johnson at the piano. The regular sing-song was conducted by Al. Jones and Harry McClay of the CHEX staff, with Jimmy Abraham at the piano.

Long distance phone calls given as prizes during the evening were donated by the Smart Set Shop and Swartz Furniture Store. The former was won by L.-Cpl. A. D. Mann, of Mimico, and the latter by Pte. R. Kerallah, of Rimonski, Que. A shirt donated by Selkirk's was won by Pte. E. Blais; cigarettes donated by J. D. Fitzpatrick went to Pte. A. Fourmir, and Pte. H. Swatzky won the jig-saw puzzle given by Millard's.

Luck was with Pte. V. Masse. None of the boys were able to keep up with his winnings of four theatre passes. Passes to the Regent Theatre went to Sgt. Chatterton, Ptes. G. Berznk, N. Morin, E. A. Burke and V. Masse. Capitol tickets were won by Cpl. P. Corliel of Camp Borden, Ptes. D. Hooper, V. Masse, J. Moore and R. Cote. Those for the Centre Theatre went to Ptes. E. J. Lalonde, R. Leprise, V. Masse and R. Cote.

Committee member in charge was Mrs. W. Fanning, and senior hostesses were Mrs. L. Carlyle, Misses E. Young, R. Mulholland, H. Buller and M. Baird. Miss G. Cox was in charge of junior hostesses present, who were from Quaker Oats and the Jeanette Scott and Peter Robinson chapters of I.O.D.E.

Couple Observe 25th Anniversary

Miss Josephine Armstrong, Hart avenue, was hostess to a large gathering of friends at her home recently in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Carpenter, who were celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary. During the evening, the couple were presented with a complete set of crystal and several pieces of silver, with an address, read by Alex Thorne. Lunch was served by the hostess from a table covered with a lace cloth, and centred by a pretty wedding cake, made by the mother of the bride of 25 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter, who have spent all their married life in Peterborough, were married at the home of the latter's parents, in Douro, with Rev. Robert Pogue officiating. Miss Armstrong was the bridesmaid, and Arthur Carpenter was the best man. Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter have three sons and one daughter. One son, Gerald, is serving in Italy, and the others, Donald and Jack, live in Peterborough. Miss Frances Carpenter lives at home. In addition to their gifts, the couple received a large number of congratulatory cards and flowers.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Our recipes today will help you in planning and preparing healthful and appetizing meals. After the war, food knowledge will be a prime factor in building a healthy Canada. One thing to do is to increase your repertoire of meat dishes, by planning meals that include fancy meats. These meats, tastily seasoned or combined with piquant sauces, have new textures and flavors that are really a treat.

Braised Liver En Casserole

1 pound beef liver, ¼ cup flour, 1½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon shortening, 2 carrots (cubed), 1 onion (sliced), 2 potatoes (sliced), 1 cup meat stock, or (1 boiled cube dissolved in 1 cup hot water), 1 cup canned tomatoes, 1 small bay leaf.

Cut liver into two-inch squares, roll in flour which has been seasoned with salt and pepper and brown in melted shortening. Remove liver and brown carrots, onions and potatoes slightly. Remove vegetables and blend in any remaining flour left from dredging the liver. Stir in meat stock and tomatoes. Combine gravy with liver and vegetables, add bay leaf and pour into casserole. Cover and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for one hour.

Braised Stuffed Veal Hearts

Wash a veal heart. Remove veins and arteries and stuff with the following dressing.

1 cup fresh bread crumbs, 3 tablespoons shortening, ½ onion (chopped fine), ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¾ teaspoon savory. Brown the onion in hot shortening in a frying fan. Mix the seasonings with the bread crumbs, add the onion and mix well. Sew up opening to prevent dressing from falling out. Brown the heart quickly in a hot oven (475 degrees F.) for 20 minutes, then reduce the heat. Add 2 cups hot water, cover tightly and bake slowly at 300 degrees F. for two hours or until heart is tender. Remove heart from the pan and thicken the liquid with flour, diluted with a small quantity of cold water.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

Contributed by Our Readers.

Dear Mary Moore: With lettuce costing about 20 to 25 cents per head I handle it very carefully In dunning through my new cook book (that you recommended by the way) I found the following suggestion and when I made it up, my family enjoyed it so much I thought I'd make a try to get it in this department.

Stuffed Head Lettuce Salad.

One choice head Iceberg lettuce, 1 cake (4 oz.) white cream cheese, 1 tablespoon minced green pepper or chives, 2 tablespoons diced tomato or pimiento, 2 tablespoons grated carrots, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon Worchester sauce, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon minced onion. Remove any leaves that are not good looking from lettuce, then core it with a sharp knife much as you would core an apple. Cream the cheese until soft and add vegetables and seasonings and pack this tightly into centre of lettuce. Wrap in damp cloth and waxed paper and chill in refrigerator until ready to use. To serve slice head in quarters or sixths if very large. Pass French Dressing. Leone D.

I like this very much and it is brand new to me. Leaf through that cook book again. I recommend better than I knew!

JUDGING by the conflicting position of dominating planets on this day, it may be difficult to push ahead toward desired objectives or cherished ideals or ambitions, although there may be those ready to stand by and give the needed word of encouragement or perhaps more substantial cooperation. # Wood Chopper Breaks Back

BANCROFT, Jan. 15—(ENS)—Max Linkie, who resides south east of Maynooth, is believed to have suffered a broken back Saturday afternoon while working alone in the woods on his farm.

He was struck by a tree which jammed him to the ground, injuring his back and forehead. Mr. Linkie was lying there helpless for more than two hours before he was found by his son. The farmer was rushed to the Bancroft Red Cross Hospital and attended by Dr. O. W. Anderson, who expressed the belief that the man had broken his back, since he is paralyzed from the chest down.

Mr. Linkie, whose wife and two children live on the farm, was jobbing for Jack Fitzgerald of Maynooth.

Jewry Demands Restoration Stolen Property

TORONTO, Jan. 15.—A demand that the stolen property of Europe's oppressed and massacred Jews be restored to Jewish ownership was voiced last night by Dr. Nahum Goldman, president of the World Jewish Congress.

Dr. Goldman was addressing the sixth plenary session of the Canadian Jewish Congress, attended by delegates from across Canada. He stressed that the reconstruction of postwar European Jewry was not a specific Jewish problem, but must be solved in co-operation with the United Nations.

The vast problem of how to rehabilitate Europe's Jews after the war concerned many of the speakers at the session's first day of meeting, as did also the necessity of making Palestine a national Jewish homeland.

"The unparalleled slaughter of more than five million European Jews is in the final analysis the moral responsibility of the democratic world," said Dr. Goldman. The first demand must be that Jewish rights in Europe be restored, he said.

Property Restoration.

"Secondly, a serious attempt must be made to restore Jewish property," he continued. "We know that it is a diffcult problem, and that it requires a real effort, and sometimes courage, on behalf of the Governments of the liberated countries to do it. But without this restoration of Jewish property it will be impossible to restore European Jewry, and the firmness in this task will be the real test of their sincerity and good-will with regard to Jews.

"A question of real significance concerns the restoration of property to those millions of Jews who have been massacred. It would be a crime to leave their property in the hands of the Nazis or the quislings who stole it.

"Nor is there any moral justification, although there may be a legal one, for the Governments to become the heirs. These Jews were massacred not because they were Frenchmen, Dutchmen or Czechs, but because they were Jews. And the only morally legitimate heir to their property is the Jewish people."

Says Congress Real Claimant

Dr. Goldman said that not the local Jewish community, but the entire Jewish people of the world should become heirs to this property. Therefore the recognized body of the Jews of the world, the World Jewish Congress, "can be the real claimant."

"Naturally, part of this property will have to be used for the reconstruction of Jewish life in those countries where Jews survived and remain, whereas the other part of it will have to be used for the upbuilding of new Jewish life in Palestine, and to secure a safe future for the Jewish people there," he said.

Samuel Bronfman, president of the Canadian Jewish Congress, said that Canadian Jews are playing their full part in the war effort.

"For me the most important and eloquent statistic is that fact that 9.6 per cent. of the Canadian-Jewish population is today in the armed forces, a percentage which is greater that the national average," he said. "Over 16,000 of our youth today fight shoulder to shoulder with their brother-Canadians, for the cause of humanity."

Mr. Bronfman said that anti-Semitism was still prevalent in Canada. "The fact that the world was plunged into war by a philosophy which made race-hatred its cornerstone, has not, unfortunately, by itself served, as it should have served, to eradicate this plague from those mental slums in which it seems to thrive," he said. Additional positive action it appeared, is still necessary.

Problem of Palestine State

The setting up of a "free and democratic Jewish Commonwealth in Palestine" was said by Mr. Bronfman to be one of the rights which must be established for the Jews, after their slaughter in Europe. A Jewish State, along with the rehabilitation of European Jews, and punishment of the war criminals, would be justice for the 1,500,000 Jewish soldiers in the armies of the United Nations.

Fears Communism

TORONTO, Jan. 15 — (CP). — Maj. Richard Brown, recently returned from the Chinese province of Honan where he was a physician in a Church of England mission, said here Saturday that "Chinese Communism is a force that will have to be reckoned with after the war." He said in an address to the Women's University Club that Communism was much more widespread in China than was commonly supposed.

YOUNG FILIPINOS BURY THEIR DEAD—Grief comes early to these two Filipino boys, only 12 years old. They dig a grave for one of their family among the crude wooden crosses of a burial ground somewhere on Leyte Island in the Philippines. The firing has ceased and liberation is secure but these ragged youngsters reveal the hardships endured by the natives of the archipelago during the lengthy Japanese occupation.

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

SECOND MARRIAGES SUCCESSFUL.

Happiness Depends on Circumstances In the Individual Case.

Dear Miss Dix: Is the marriage of a divorced man or woman less likely, to turn out successfully than marriage between people in which neither one had been divorced,

WONDERING.

Answer It depends altogether upon the individual circumstances in the case. Also about the cause for which the divorce has been granted.

A man, for example, whose wife has divorced him because he was a drunkard or a gambler, or too lazy and trifling to support her, is certainly a poor matrimonial risk for any girl to undertake. Likewise a man has small prospect for happiness who marries a woman whose husband has divorced her because she was a virago or unfaithful to him. People who possess these faults rarely change, and if one man or woman finds them unendurable to live with, another husband or wife would be apt to find them equally difficult.

Experience Gained.

Generally speaking, both men and women who have been married make better husbands and wives than those who have never been married, and this is true whether they are either grass or sod widows and widowers. Whether a marriage is happy or unhappy, it is a great educational experience and teaches men and women forbearance, self-control, to give and take and to be good sports. Also, in marriage men and women learn not to expect too much of each other and to make excuses for the faults of others as they expect excuses to be made for their own.

And all of this counts in a second marriage: Then, too, in making a second venture both men and women are apt to use more judgment in their selection of their mates. They are burnt children who dread the fire. They have been through all the misery and heartaches of living with one who made their lives a torment to them and they want to be very sure that when they risk their happiness again, they are putting it into the right hands.

And for this reason the divorced man or woman frequently makes an ideal husband or wife and such marriages are often great successes.

Dear Miss Dix: I have been married six years and have never had a single peaceful day. My husband continually is finding fault with everything I do. He complains about his food, though I spend hours preparing his meals. He says I don't read enough. Then when I read, he says I am wasting my time and neglecting my housekeeping. He finds fault with me because I am not stylishly dressed, yet when I get a new dress he grumbles over my extravagance. How can I please such a man as this?

DISHEARTENED.

Answer: You can't. A lady angel from heaven couldn't. The only way to deal with that kind of a disgruntled grouch is to let him alone, and go along and do as you wish without referring to him. He wouldn't be pleased, anyway, so you might as well please yourself.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a girl with plenty of money, in love with a man who has nothing. I love him so much naturally I want to make everything easy for him, and when we go out I pay all expenses and even lend him money, which he forgets to pay back.

I am beginning to think that perhaps I am spoiling him and am doing him more harm than good. What do you think?

MARY L.

Answer: I think your young man developed into a first-class deadbeat and that you are demoralizing him. Perhaps no man can resist taking the easiest way and sponging on a woman who lets him, but it is bad for his morale. It makes him a grafter and kills his self-respect.

That is where the trouble comes in when the woman hold the purse instead of the man. It subverts the law of nature which intends that the man should be the provider and not the woman; that the man should be the giver and the woman the receiver. When this order is reversed, it invariably spells disaster.

My advice to you is to quit financing this young man and let him do a little of the spending himself. He is costing you too much if he is costing you your respect for him.

Here they are again—all three together! The famous All-Bran Ice Box Cookies that you can store (as long as 3 weeks!) and bake as needed ... the extra rich, easy-to-make All-Bran Brownies ... and the delicious Orange All-Bran Muffins that offer such a pleasant change for the family breakfast. We are happy to print the recipes again for you who may have missed, or mislaid them.

Repeated by Request

These 3 "special-feature" recipes

ALL-BRAN ICE BOX COOKIES

¼ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
1¾ cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk

Blend shortening and sugar well. Add grated rind and finely crushed All-Bran. (It's the tender nut-brown shreds of All-Bran that make these cookies so flavory—so completely different from any ice box cookies you ever tasted!) Sift flour, baking powder and salt; add to first mixture alternately with milk, mix well. Shape dough in rolls about 1½ inches thick. Wrap in waxed paper, covering ends well. Chill until firm. Slice and bake on ungreased sheet in moderately hot oven (425°F.) about 12 minutes. Makes 48 cookies. Dough may be stored in refrigerator three weeks.

Read This Amazing Guarantee

Eat an ounce of Kellogg's All-Bran every day. If after using just one package you do not agree that its continued use is a simple, pleasant, daily precaution to help you keep regular, mail the empty flat carton to us with a note stating the address of your grocer and the price you paid. We will refund you not only what you paid—but DOUBLE your money back.

ALL-BRAN BROWNIES

7 ounces semi-sweet chocolate
2 tablespoons butter
2 eggs
½ cup corn syrup
1 cup sifted flour
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup Kellogg's All-Bran
½ cup chopped nut-meats
½ teaspoon vanilla

Melt chocolate and butter over hot water. Beat eggs well; add corn syrup; beat until fluffy. Add chocolate mixture. Stir in flour, salt and All-Bran. (What a heavenly nut-like flavor All-Bran adds to these Brownies! What a rich, crunchy texture! No wonder this recipe is in such demand!). Add nut meats and flavoring. Pour into greased pan, making layer about ½-inch thick. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Makes sixteen 2-inch squares.

Clip these grand recipes now and get Kellogg's All-Bran from your grocer on your very next shopping trip. For rich, toasty flavor and soft, tender mixture in baking-day treats All-Bran just can't be beat! 2 convenient sizes.

Made and guaranteed by Kellogg, London, Canada.

ORANGE ALL-BRAN MUFFINS

¼ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup Kellogg's All-Bran
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1¾ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon soda
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup milk

Blend shortening and sugar well. Add egg; beat well. Stir in All-Bran and orange rind. (These tender, hot, melt-in-the-mouth muffins are sure to make a hit on a cold winter morning, and they are so easy to mix!). Sift flour, salt, and baking powder and soda. Add to Bran mixture alternately with orange juice and milk; stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans ⅔ full. Bake in moderately hot oven (400°F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Makes eight muffins.

Note! Anytime you have some of these muffins left over be sure to split and toast them for lunch. Toasting somehow seems to bring out more of the rich, "nutty" All-Bran flavor!

90-Day Limit For Pensions No Longer Law

OTTAWA, Jan. 15—(CP)—Veterans Minister Mackenzie announced to-day that an order-in-council has been passed making it possible for veterans of this war to apply for pension at any time after discharge. Previously the applications had to be field within 90 days of discharge.

Mr. Mackenzie said the 90-day limitation had been fixed in 1936 to bring some degree of finality to pension claims arising out of the First Great War.

"The procedure is functioning very well with regard to Great War cases, and it will not be disturbed for men who served from 1914 to 1918," said Mr. Mackenzie. However it did prove to be cumbersome for applications arising out of the present war."

The appeal procedure for veterans of this war also was changed by the order-in-council. Formerly, the veteran was required to proceed to an appeal hearing within six months of a decision having been rendered by the Canadian Pension Commission.

The applicant now may request a hearing before an appeal board of the commission at any time following a decision by that body.

Meanwhile, moving to replenish depleted coal supplies in Ontario cities, the Canadian Pacific Railway is rushing many carloads of coke from Sault Ste. The shortage has been aggravated by severe weather which has been doubly hard on householders' fuel bins.

50,000 Recruits Available Under New Plan

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—(CP). — A manpower potential of perhaps 50,000 men was made available for military call-up as a result of an announcement Saturday by Labor Minister Mitchell.

He said that effective to-day, all men discharged from the armed forces and who have not had service outside of Canada will be made subject to army draft regulations.

Affected most by the announcement are RCAF ground crew and administrative staff personnel who will be discharged between now and March 31, when the big Commonwealth Air Training Plan closes.

The Canadian ground staff of the plan totalled 62,830 when the peak period of training was reached last summer, but this number has been whittled down as the curtailment program was carried out. The regulation is not retroactive.

These Exempt

Present and future graduates of the plan and flying personnel engaged as instructors are exempt from the call-up, as are air force and navy personnel with operational experience from either coast —such as coastal command patrols and convoy escort.

In exempting flying personnel from call, Mr. Mitchell said the defense departments recognized these men provided an essential reserve which might be needed to meet future commitments.

An air force spokesman added that air crew men were trained at a cost of between $20,000 and $30,000 each and military planners conceded it would be a waste to make this flying potential available to the army and out of reach of an air force emergency call.

Essential Jobs

Mr. Mitchell said that if the medical category of the "dischargee" was below army standard he will be liable to direction to essential industry.

Previously only "dischargees" with less than three years' service in Canada could be recalled from military service. Several months ago the air force discharged 4,200 potential aair crew trainees who were transferred to the army.

Mr. Mitchell said the new ruling has two objectives:

1. To avoid a situation where men with service in Canada of three years or longer were exempted while men in the field might be required to continue to serve for a much longer period.

2. To obtain additional men needed for the army and essential industry.

PROMOTED OVERSEAS — PO Albert C. Jay, whose wife, nee Phyllis Armstrong, lives at 629 Stewart street, has been promoted to Flying Officer overseas. He enlisted in 1941 and has been overseas since April, 1944. FO Jay, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Jay, 220 Wolfe street, was formerly at Jay's Cigar Store.

Conservatives

Sarnia, vice-chairman, and Mrs. J. A. Johnton, secretary, all all Provincial executive officers.

Announcement by R. A. Bell, national director, of the appointment of Mrs. J. L. Hodges as co-ordinator of all women's organization in Canada, was accepted as further indication that women will be expected to take a place approximating that held by the men since the institution of the M.F. Act.

Women in the ranks felt much encouraged by these evidences of confidence and were never prouder than when, as one versed in oratory and English remarked, the wives of the leaders and other women spoke with such "ease, punch and effect."

Opportunity for Women

Addressing the women's meeting Mrs. John Bracken spoke of the widening field of opportunity and co-operation in women's organizations; of her pleasure in working with the women of the West and her desire to share in the greater field of Dominion politics. She noted that women occupy two places in the Senate, four in the House of Commons, have five seats in British Columbia, one in Alberta and two in Ontario. With the greater power accruing to women, and elections made harder by the absence of so many young men in the armed forces, the Federal Leader's wife expressed confidence that, as always, the Progressive Conservative women would rise to the occasion and a better Government would result.

Conveying greetings from her husband to the general session, Mrs. Bracken acknowledged the applause by saying: "I do thank you for the welcome given me — I realize it is partly due to my husband, but with 48.5 per cent of the electors being women I feel on sound premises when I urge that women be more active in selecting and electing candidates that will give Canada a Government worthy of her, and that you, all, will be behind our rehabilitation program. I thank you for your enthusiasm, and hope," said Mrs. Bracken, "that victory may be ours in the next election."

Mrs. George Drew made a plea not only for the fighting men, but for the war brides and their children, and a special sympathy for the widowed and orphaned. "All here will be strange to them," she said. "Let us see that they want not for our friendship and understanding."

Mrs. Dana Porter, wife of the Minister of Rehabilitation, acknowledged the warmth of the welcome given her, an Englishwoman, and launched out on an explanation of the Ontario rehabilitation program, the work already begun and that planned to help the men returning from the field of battle to find their places in a world at peace. Miss Evelyn Macdonald, a National vice-president, Mrs. M. McMillan, Mrs. J. M. Hughton, Ald. Mrs. Haney and others spoke briefly, Mrs. Conner and Mrs. Johnston presided.

A resolution from the Women's Section was passed, asking that the party endorse the policy of equal representation of women with men at all official meetings and that women of known ability be encouraged to allow their names to stand for nomination in pre-election conventions. This will be forwarded to Hon. P. C. McTague and Ontario President A. D. McKenzie.

DAVID HALL

LINDSAY, Jan. 15.—The funeral of David Hall, who died here in his 84th year, took place recently to Riverside cemetery.

Born near Lindsay, Mr. Hall learned the barbering trade, and worked in Peterborough, Toronto and Detroit. After the death of his wife ten years ago, he returned to Lindsay and continued his work in a shop on Lindsay street south until the time of his death, which occurred after a brief illness.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Etta Wilder, Detroit, and a son, Leonard, of Chicago; also one sister, Mrs. Robert McGill, Lindsay, and two brothers, George and Harvey of Peterborough, and James of Bay City, Mich.

Mr. Hall was well known in Peterborough. He conducted a barber shop with his brother, George Hall, on Charlotte street, near the curling rink for years. He was a prominent member of the Peterborough Curling Club at that time.

Convoy Destroyed

LONDON, Jan. 15 (CP)—A German supply convoy of seven or eight ships "was almost completely destroyed" by British home fleet units in darkness early Friday of the Norwegian coast south of Stavanger, the admiralty announced yesterday. Three or four of the ships, including a large tanker, were believed sunk and the others were damaged severely.

Select Chevrier

OTTAWA, Jan. 15—(CP)—Lionel Chevrier, parliamentary assistant to Munitions Minister Howe, was chosen as Liberal candidate in the next Federal election at a nomination meeting held at Finch Saturday. He has represented the riding in the House of Commons since 1935.

War Workers Up In Arms At Selfishness Of Women Passengers On Crowded Buses

From time to time, war workers have complained bitterly about the selfishness of non-business women using the buses during the rush hours, and one war worker invaded the Examiner over the week-end with fire in his eye.

"It isnt' that we don't respect women and want to pay every courtesy to them," he declared, "but sometimes you are just too exhausted to do everything you should. Friday night on my way to work at 5 o'clock, (I work on the night shift 7 to 7) the bus was crowded and another war worker and I remained seated. A women passenger, who had been down town shopping, approached me as she went to get off and delivered a stinging tongue lashing because she claimed I apparently had no respect for women.

"Now, not only do I work from 7 to 7, but during the daytime it is difficult with the noise to get as much sleep as I should. I also have three small children around the house which doesn't make it easier. I have every respect for the women of Peterborough, but when you are so tired, there are times you just haven't the ambition to move. These people have no business being on buses taking war workers to and from work in the first place, and should be the last to complain over the situations they enocunter." None of us have ever said anything in such circumstances but one of these times, we will really say something for which they will have a justifiable complaint.

Another prevalent complaint from factory workers also deals with women. During the noon rush hour, the Bus Company, uses buses marked "Special," which are meant for workers only. They run on a much restricted schedule because of the time limit. In spite of the signs, women will stand on the corners down town and try to crowd on with the workers. If the bus driver does get soft hearted and squeeze them in somehow, workers say they do nothing but complain about being jammed in and raise a fuss because the bus driver will not let them off until the return trip.

PROMOTING YOUR KING

WHEN YOU hold the trump king and see the ace in the dummy, you usually expect the declarer to have the next lower honors. So your king is threatened with being caught in a finesse toward the dummy—that is, if the ace has as many guards as your king, in the form of one or more lower cards. But if you can reduce the number of small cards accompanying the ace, by compelling the dummy to ruff, you may thereby promote your king into a trick winner

North: ♠ 6 4 2 ♥ A 7 5 ♦ 8 3 ♣ K J 10 6 4

West: ♠ J 10 9 ♥ K 9 2 ♦ A K Q J 4 ♣ Q 7

South: ♠ A K ♥ Q J 10 8 6 4 ♦ 10 9 6 ♣ A 5

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

West scored his diamond K and J and then, not wishing to let the dummy have a ruff, switched to the spade J. He did not realize that there are times when it is desirable to let the dummy ruff to make an extra trick above the contract.

South won the third trick with his spade K, then proceeded to catch West's trump K. He led the heart Q and sent it through, then the J on a similar mission. The A then caught the K. He led to his club A and finessed the J successfully. The club K then furnished a discard for the losing diamond remaining in his hand

All that West had to do, to hold the declarer to exactly his contract, was to lead a third diamond and make the dummy ruff. Then nothing could have kept the heart K from winning a trick.

There was really more than an extra trick involved. The contract itself might have been beaten by this procedure if South had guessed the club finesse in the wrong direction.

How should South play for his unsound contract of 4-Hearts after West leads the spade A, East ruffs the covered Q and returns the heart J?

7 Hurt In Fire At Hotel Resort

STE. AGATHE DES MONTS, Que., Jan. 15—(CP)—Seven person were seriously injured Saturday in a fire that razed the Laing hotel in this Laurentian mountain resort north of Montreal.

Mrs. Harry Hershenkoph, 33, of Montreal, suffered a probable fracture of the spine when she jumped from a second story window of the 3½ storey building.

The others injured, who suffered bone fractures, lacerated skulls or burns, are:

Phil Avreth, 27, Seymour Glickman, 24, and Morton Glickman, 12, of Montreal; Myer Burt, 26, Philadelphia, Mrs. Brenda Berlin, 23, of Ottawa, and Mrs. Tina Altmer, 35, of St. Jerome, Que.

The fire, which started apparently in the lobby where a woman was believed to have been cleaning the floor with benzine and steel wool, spread upwards through the wooden structure so quickly that firemen were unable to control it.

As flames engulfed the building, witnesses watched about 15 occupants jumping from first and second floor windows clad only in their night attire. Some landed in deep snow and suffered from cold and exposure.

JAPAN'S KEY DEFENCE LINES—Having cracked the first of four main Jap defence lines on Luzon when he landed successfully on Lingayen Beach (1) and took San Fabian, Gen. MacArthur marched from Lingayen Bay along the Tarlac Valley to the Agno River (2) and turned the flank of what could have been a good second Japanese defence line. However the invading forces have encountered but light resistance as yet. The Japanese are now expected to make the Ft. Stotsenburg area (3) a major defence region. Finally will come the defence of the Mallolas swamp section (4) just 20 miles from Manila.

2 Soldiers Face Looting Charges

PARIS, Jan. 15 — (AP) — Testimony of high stakes at army poker games was introduced today as the fourth group of American soldiers accused of looting military supply trains in French black market deals went on trial before an army general court martial.

Lieut. Robert O'Reily of the Army Criminal Investigation Division, who worked as a fireman in a railway battalion while investigating the looting outbreak, testified he watched poker games at which soldiers paid as high as 8,000 francs ($160) to see the last card of a seven-card stud poker game.

"There was an incredible amount of cash money around the barracks," he said, "also whole cases (50 cartons) of cigarettes and whole cases of chocolate bars."

Lieut. O'Reily said he was present on a number of occasions when men planned the next train looting.

Today's defendants were Sgt. Fran C. Pozzi, Chicago, and Sgt. Walter G. Thorsell, Portland, Ore.

A meeting of the executive to plan the program for this year is called for next Wednesday afternoon at the home of the president, and Mrs. Gordon Jarvis offered her home for the February meeting. It was decided to serve a light lunch at future meetings. Plans were then made for the annual meeting to be held Tuesday evening, Jan. 23. Refreshments will be served by members of the association. Mrs. T. Sweet and Mrs. T. Dickson will have charge of arrangements for Communion Sundays and the latter will act on the Flower committee.

Full-Dress Debate On Greek Situation

LONDON, Jan. 15—(CP)—A full-dress debate on the general war situation and Greece will be held in the House of Commons next Thursday and Friday, with Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden participating, a government whip announced today.

Members are eager to hear from the Prime Minister before his conference with President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin.

A bloc of Labor and Independent members served notice they would demand that Britain, possibly in conjunction with the United States and Russia, make plans for an election in Greece as soon as possible, in addition to a plebiscite on whether the Greeks wish King George II to return.

Unkind Destiny

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 15 — (AP). — An unkind destiny arranged a rendesvous at the Morgantown airport yesterday in which the mother of a veteran combat flier saw his bomber crash in flames, killing her son and three other soldiers. The body of Capt. L. V. (Jack) Keck, 28, who flew more than 50 missions against the Japanese in India and Burma, was identified by members of his family.

Enquiry Opens Into 5 Crashes

TORONTO, Jan. 15— The court of inquiry at Malton, investigating the crashes of five R. C. A. F. Anson training aircraft and crash-landings of two more from No. 1 Air Observer School at Malton early Friday morning, is expected to conclude today. Opening sessions were held Saturday morning and afternoon.

Nineteen men bailed out of the five aircraft, which subsequently crashed. Of 28 planes which took off from Malton Thursday night, 18 got down safely at Malton and three came in at Camp Borden.

Investigation was ordered by Group Capt. D. S. Blaine, senior air staff officer at No. 1 Training Command, still under the process of amalgamation with No. 3 Training Command, Montreal, into No. 1 Air Command at Trenton.

No official reports on the investigation Saturday, which was closed to the press, were released by the R. C. A. F., but it is understood the chief issue is the weather report received by Dominion Skyways, Ltd., civilian company which operates No. 1 AOS.

A company offical said after the crashes that the storm had come up suddenly without warning from the meteorological bureau or the Departmetn of Transport.

Dr. John Patterson, controller of Meteorological Services, denied this report.

LONDON — (CP). — Air Commodore Frank Whittle has been elected an honorary member of the Institution of Mechanical Engineers for his pioneer work on jet propulsion. Honorary membership is rarely granted.

WORLD'S LARGEST BOMBER AND TRANSPORT ARE UNVEILED — The 212-foot wingspread of the world's largest experimental bomber, the U.S. Army's XB-19-A, makes a toy of the parked car and the tiny figures of the men under it at Detroit, Mich. Each of the plane's propellers are 16 feet across, the landing wheels are eight feet in diameter and the plane weighs 80 tons and can carry 18 tons of bombs or 124 armed men.

The newest cargo plane, exceeding all existing transports in range, payload and size, is this C-97 unveiled at Wright Field in Ohio. This flying freight-train has a maximum speed of well over 300 miles per hour and it can carry over 100 fully equipped infantrymen 2,000 miles, non-stop, in less than 10 hours.

Juvenile Lodge 220 Installs Officers

RESEARCH still goes forward. Twenty-four years ago industrial research with Nickel was greatly intensified. The Nickel laboratories in Canada, the United States and Great Britain have since discovered hundreds of new ways in which Nickel and its alloys can be used to make better products. This research has been a valuable aid in the great expansion of Canada's Nickel industry.

When the war is won, these laboratories will again direct their efforts toward new peacetime uses for Canadian Nickel. They will be aided by the great store of knowledge gained during the war.

Canadian engineers and metallurgists, who are constantly seeking better materials with which to make better products, are invited to make use of this store of information obtained through the years of Nickel research.

Thus will science and industry, working together, broaden the use of Nickel, and so help keep the Canadian Nickel mines and plants operating and men employed.

Huns Give Up Houffalize To 1st Army

Montgomery's Forces At Full Speed Score New Gains

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Jan. 16 — (AP). — The Belgian road centre of Houffalize, once at the heart of the vanishing Belgian bulge, was captured today without a fight by the United States 1st Army.

Behind Houffalize, the German stand on the Salm River cracked as American troops beat slowly down the last six miles to St. Vith, a door for Nazi withdrawal to the Siegfried Line forts. British troops were last reported mopping up stragglers north-west of Houffalize.

The capture of Houffalize narrowed the bulge to 15 miles west of the German frontier. The penetration, started a month ago, had extended to 40 miles almost to the Meuse and Verran about 2,000 square miles. Only about 400 remained today in Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's grasp.

Have Little Left

It seemed at best that the Germans would be able to hold only a buffer bump a few miles deep in front of their thick fortress line. When the Germans attacked, Hitler told his generals that the offensive might knock one of the Allies out of the war.

Armored scouts entered Houffalize at 10 p.m. last night. The Germans apparently had abandoned the strategic town at the crossroads nine miles northeast of Bastogne and 18 southwest of St. Vith. Formal occupation was slowed by burned out wreckage of German equipment cluttering roads around the outskirts.

Meantime the British 2nd and U.S. 3rd Armies continued to press upon the fast-diminishing bulge.

(A Reuters News Agency front dispatch reported troops of Field-Marshal Montgomery "going full speed ahead.")

U.S. 1st Army units were within six miles of St. Vith, a key enemy-held base only four miles from the German frontier and 29 miles north-east of Houffalize.

Lt.-Gen. Hodges' troops were smashing the Germans' "last hope" stand short of the Siegfried Line on the Salm River north and south of Vielsalm.

To the south-east Lt.-Gen. Patton's U.S. 3rd Army had stabbed two miles across the German border in a drive down the Moselle Valley to within 4½ miles of Trier.

Clean Out Woods

Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's troops were engaged in ferreting out stragglers and suicide squads from the snowy woods west and northwest of Houffalize, after leading the Allied thrust

Premier Won't Change Views On Surrender

LONDON, Jan. 16 — (AP). — Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today he was in complete agreement with President Roosevelt's views on the Atlantic Charter and the objectives now were just the same as in 1941, although all of them could not be achieved immediately. When the members pressed Mr. Churchill to give a report as soon as possible on what parts of the charter were "valid immediately," the Prime Minister shot back:

"I really do not think there is any need to go into that. It has been very well described by the President as a standard of aims—an indication of the direction in which we are proceeding. It is not law."

Mr. Churchill told the newly-reconvened House "The war will be prolonged until unconditional surrender has been obtained."

The Prime Minister said he had already made a statement about the application of the Atlantic Charter to the British Empire, and especially India. He asserted that the objects, purpose and principles of the charter were being achieved already by the process of extending self-government, but he did not elaborate.

Mr. Churchill announced that British casualties in Greece between Dec. 3 and Jan. 1 — the period covering the major part of the Greek civil war — totalled 2,101, of which 237 were killed.

The Prime Minister sought to turn aside questions concerning the tangled Greek situation, saying "I should be glad if members will be good enough to await a statement which will be made on behalf of the government in the course of the coming debate."

Debate Thursday

A full-scale war statement has been set by Mr. Churchill for Thursday.

The House cheered as Mr. Churchill refused to budge from his "unconditional surrender" stand.

Great Drive Gains 38 Miles Warsaw Almost Surrounded

LONDON, Jan. 16 — (CP). — Russian troops in a great new offensive have struck forward 38 miles in a 75-mile wide break-through between Warsaw and the power-drive salient already thrust across southern Poland to within 49 miles of German Silesia and within 21 of Krakow, Premier-Marshal Stalin announced tonight. The German High Command said Schlossberg, 13 miles inside East Prussia to the north, had fallen to still another Soviet offensive.

The newest push, Stalin said in an order of the day, sprang forward from Vistula River bridgeheads at Warka and Pilawy Sunday. The Soviet columns joined, capturing Warka, 28 miles south of Warsaw, Grojec, 15 miles farther northwest, and more than 1,300 other places, including Jedlinska, seven miles north of the German Bastion of Radom.

Forty-three Soviet generals led the drive, Stalin said. It is under the leadership of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov, who commanded Russian forces which destroyed the German 6th Army at Stalingrad.

Radom is within 45 miles of Kielce, on the northern shoulder of the first great Soviet winter offensive now beating into the outer salients of the Nazis' Krakow-Warsaw defence line.

Russian armies were ripping gaping holes in Nazi defences along 600 miles of front, and seriously threatening one of the main rear communication lines of Warsaw.

Nazi broadcasts said "major penetrations" had been made by the Soviets in the Vistula-Bug triangle north of Warsaw and from the Narew bridgeheads south of East Prussia and said Premier Marshal Stalin's winter offensive was intended to be the deciding battle of the war.

Marshal Ivan Konev's 1st Ukrainian Army, pounding westward toward Krakow in southern Poland, fought its way into the outer salients of defence of the Nazis' Krakow-Warsaw railway line, reported to be one of the strongest German fortified zones in southeastern Europe.

This railway, connecting the Polish capital with Silesia's coal mining and munitions industries, is one of Warsaw's chief arteries of supply.

Konev's steamroller already was in possession of Kielce on the Warsaw-Krakow line and only about 49 miles from the border of German Silesia.

Shoving westward without support of aviation because of fogs, sleet and snow, Konev appeared to be heading straight for the Warsaw-Silesian line on a sector 20 miles wide.

The Berlin radio claimed the Russians had sprung a new offensive in the Jaslo area of southern Poland,

Co-op Venture Saves Island

VANCOUVER, Jan. 16—(CP).—A frontier woman, familiar with good times and bad, told the Royal Commission inquiring into co-operatives here how an isolated North Pacific isle, rocky, wooded Graham Island in the Queen Charlotte, escaped economic disaster by organizing a co-operative. She was Mrs. S. L. Simpson, a clam digger from this island peopled mostly by Haida Indians and English, Dutch and Scandinavian settlers. So poignant was her story of an island people fallen on hard times and saving themselves by their own efforts that Mr. Justice E. McDougall, Commission chairman, described her submission as "probably the most human document we have ever seen."

She told the Commission yesterday that the Massett Co-operative Association, formed in 1942 as a non-profit organization, raised the standard of living of all persons "appreciably, and, most important, has given birth to a new feeling of confidence in the future."

On Graham Island, 500 miles north of Vancouver and 40 miles from the closest Alaskan Islands, nearly all the people live in the villages of Old and New Massett where a clam fishing company was their mainstay until it closed in the 1930's.

Dairy Producers Are Failing To Meet Increased Demand

REGINA, Jan. 16—(CP).—W. C. Cameron of Ottawa said in an address here today that statistics showed it was becoming increasingly difficult to meet an ever-growing domestic demand for dairy products of all kinds, to fill contracts for cheese to Britain, to contribute to high priority requests for dairy products and to maintain what was considered a desirable balance in production in Canada.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the dairy farmers of Canada, Mr. Cameron, who is chief of the Federal dairy products grading and inspection service, said the immediate future did not hold prospects of any substantial increase in milk production in any of the United Nations nor were there any surpluses of milk products while the demand continued great.

The food values of dairy products were widely recognized and it was believed by many that the dairy industry would enter the post-war period in as favorable a position as any branch of agriculture.

Highest Production Needed.

Milk production should be maintained at the highest possible levels, particularly in butter-producing areas such as Western Canada and none should relax the support given the various control measures made necessary by the war.

Bevin To Beat Old Sweat Shops

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 16.—(CP Cable.)—Labor Minister Bevin, asking Parliament to-day for what he described a five-year national fair-wage law, said it was a "declaration by Parliament that the day of what was known as sweated industries is past."

Speaking before the bill was given second reading without division, Mr. Bevin declared stability was needed to give confidence to men returning from the forces that they are to have a fair deal.

Supporting the measure, Arthur Greenwood, Labor, said it was in line with the general march of events and "it would be disastrous if, after the war, we marched backwards instead of forwards."

"I think this may well prove to be a beacon for many other countries and I hope it will be studied by the international labor organization," he added. "I do not believe we, as an industrial nation, can profit out of the poverty of our neighbors."

Mr. Bevin said industrial councils would be given power to fix remuneration, including guaranteed weekly wages and provision for holidays.

For five years employers would be under obligation to observe the terms of employment as settled by agreement, Bevin explained.

Lone Garrison Blocks British

MYITKYINA, Burma, Jan. 16 — (CP). — The Japanese garrison at Wanting remained the sole obstacle to opening of the new India-China supply road today with the fall of the twin enemy stronghold at Namhkam to besieging Chinese forces.

Namhkam, last Japanese bastion in north Burma, was captured by troops of the 30th Division of the Chinese 1st Army under Gen. Sun Li-Jen, which slipped through the jungle and stormed the town from the rear.

Fall of Namhkam climaxed six weeks of bitter fighting, during which the Japanese have clung desperately to a 25-mile stretch needed to complete the new overland supply route to China.

Reports from the Salween front indicated that the Chinese, who have been steadily closing in on the old Burma Road town of Wanting, had stepped up their drive to capture that stronghold.

The first truck convoy with war supplies for China in more than 2½ years already has arrived in Myitkyina after a 26-mile trip from Ledo, India, and is now awaiting the green light.

The drive on Mandalay, capital of northern Burma, continued. Lt.-Gen. Slim's British 14th Army troops had driven 20 miles south from Swebo and are less than 30 air miles from Mandalay.

Yugoslav King Receives Dr. Subasic

LONDON, Jan. 16 —(CP Reuters)—King Peter of Yugoslavia, who rejected the advice of the British government and of his own administration headed by Dr. Ivan Subasic, to agree to establishment of a regency in Yugoslavia, to-day received Dr. Subasic for the first time in three weeks, it was learned.

The meeting followed an interview the King had yesterday with Foreign Secretary Eden. The King also received to-day Marshal Tito's two representatives in the Subasic cabinet, War Minister Gen. Restrictz and the Deputy Premier, Drago Mausic.

Establishment of offical contact between the King and Prime Minister is expected to pave the way for solution of the Yugoslav political situation.

Jap Emperor May Flee To Korea

CHUNGKING, Jan. 16 —(AP)— Some Chungking quarters said today they were convinced that the transfer of Emperor Hirohito and his government to Korea was being anxiously considered in Tokyo.

The army newspaper Sao Tang Pao declared Premier Kuniaki Koiso and his government would fall soon, because the Japanese position was becoming more serious daily.

"He cannot throw peas on the ground and make them sprout into soldiers," the newspaper said. "Tokyo should not merely consider a change in premier, but should think seriously about surrender."

(Analee Jacoby, the magazine correspondent, said yesterday in a broadcast from New York that reliable sources reported some high Japanese officials were pressing for transfer of the Japanese capital to Korea to escape bombing.)

American Survivor Years In Philippines

WITH THE U. S. FORCES ON LUZON, Jan. 16 (AP) — An American who spent nearly three years leading thousands of armed Filipino guerillas against the Japanese, came out of the Luzon hills to-day eager to tell about enemy forces and learn the welfare of his parents back home.

He is Capt. Robert Lapham, 26, of Davenport, Ia., who began his hit-and-run warfare against the Japanese with 20 men and six rifles. He was ordered by Gen. MacArthur to go through the enemy lines in February 1942 to organize guerilla bands.

Empire Casualties Exceed Million Mark To Nov. 30

LONDON, Jan. 16—(CP).—British Empire casualties from the start of the war in September, 1939, to last November 30 totalled 1,043,554, Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today. The United Kingdom suffered the heaviest casualties—635,107, Mr. Churchill said, listing Dominion casualties as:

Canada, 78,985; Australia, 84,861; New Zealand, 34,115; and South Africa, 28,943.

India has suffered 152,597 casualties, he said, and the Colonies 28,946.

Of the total, 282,162 were killed, 386,374 were wounded, 294,438 were prisoners, and 80,580 were missing.

The total does not include service personnel dying from natural causes, civilian casualties, or losses of merchant seamen.

These casualties, in five years and two months of war, compared with 1,089,919 Empire deaths and 2,400,988 wounded in the four years and three months of the First Great War.

Mr. Churchill gave this breakdown of casualties, listing Newfoundland with the United Kingdom:

Allies Gaining Fast In Luzon

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ADVANCED COMMAND, Jan. 16 — (AP). — U.S. 6th Army motorized columns are rolling down a twisting provincial road within 98 miles — 80 miles airline — of Manila against no more opposition than an occasional sniper but other American forces are in a foot-by-foot fight with hill-entrenched Japanese on the extreme northeast flank defending the vital Manila north road.

(Tokyo radio, which is hinting strongly that Philippines reverses are leading up to the ouster of Premier Kuniaka Koiso, quoted an imperial headquarters communique as acknowledging that "the enemy is gradually closing in on our forces on the central plains of Luzon.")

Turbulent Greece to Hold Election Soon

Comparative Peace Reigns Temporarily In International Hot-spot

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

A truce finally has halted the clash at arms between Greek Leftist insurgents and British troops, but we can hardly expect this to end such a violent eruption, especially since Greece is politically volcanic by nature—and has become one of the hottest of the International hot-spots.

However, the Allies will breathe easier with even temporary cessation of a politico-military imbroglio which has stirred the emotions of the United Nations deeply. It even has produced a divergence of views among the Big Three.

Opponents of Prime Minister Churchill's intervention with arms—and he has encountered strong opposition at home—have charged that Britain is playing power politics and is violating the principle of self-determination. Mr. Churchill has replied that he is trying to help Greece, that Britain will resist any attempt to "impose by violence a Communist dictatorship" in the little Balkan state, and that the Greeks will be permitted to choose their own form of government.

Decide Their Own

The next big step in the Greek affair—provided the lid can be kept on the fighting—presumably will be the holding of a post-war plebiscite to decide whether Greece is to retain the monarchy or adopt some other form of government.

King George of Greece, who recently agreed to a regency pending the plebiscite, came to the throne in 1922 and quit the country 15 months later as the result of the revolution which produced a republic.

In 1935 the Greeks recalled George by plebiscite. Within a few months late Gen. (Little John) Metaxas, Minister of War, established himself as the real ruler of Greece. On his advice George dissolved parliament. All political parties were abolished and the constitutional rights of the people were suspended. Metaxas became one of the toughest dictators Europe has seen.

That was the position when the war forced George to leave Greece again. He will have to account for his stewardship in the plebiscite.

Largest Prisoner Exchange

5,000 Huns Being Swapped For 2,500 Allies

BERN, Jan. 16 —(AP) — The largest exchange of prisoners in this war will begin tomorrow at Kreuzlingen. Involved are about 9,000 person—5,000 German prisoners against 2,500 wounded Britons, Americans, Canadians and South Americans, plus 900 German civilians and an equal number of Americans in Germany.

The exchange was arranged by the Swiss Government, which had made plans for British and American newspapermen in Switzerland to go to Kreuzlingen but, at the request of the British and United States Legations, press representatives of the two countries were barred for reasons of "military security."

The British minister, Clifford Norton, instructed the British press to stay away and the American counsellor, Klahr Huddle, at a conference with the American press representatives read a state department cable saying "no publicity" was desired in Switzerland.

No restrictions were placed on Swiss correspondents, but Huddle said they would not be allowed to board the exchange trains.

32,000 Gratuity Cheques

72,000 Applications Have Been Received

OTTAWA, Jan. 16 (CP)—Defence headquarters announced today that more than 32,000 war service gratuity cheques have been mailed to discharged army veterans.

"In future there will be a systematic issuance of cheques every 10 days to cover the payments to the veterans who establish their claims," said the department.

So far there have been 72,000 applications for mustering-out pay and "every effort is being made to facilitate the necessary investigations and documentation."

Headquarters outlines this procedure:

"Applications must first go to the paymaster - general. The records branch gets them next and after verification of service, the applications are forwarded to the dependents' allowance branch for information as to dependents' allowance.

"The paymaster-general finally computes the claim and the treasury department next comes into the picture where the combined information is checked and compared with their ledger sheets, and then the cheque-issuing branch prepares the cheques.

"Before they are finally mailed they are again checked and the cheque numbers and amounts entered on the treasury department's ledger sheets."

Reds Hold Trump Cards; Baffle Hun

By JON KIMCHE,
Reuters Military Correspondent.

LONDON, Jan. 16 —(CP-Reuters) —The Russians do not believe in leading with the ace of trumps. Their strategy all along has been to puzzle the German High Command as much with what they might do as by what they actually do. Marshal Ivan Konev's offensive in Poland is perhaps the Jack or Queen; the King and the Ace are still in Stalin's hands.

This is one of the causes of German uncertainty about the real nature of the Soviet assault. Konove's bridgehead force is made up according to German estimates of four infantry armies and one tank army, altogether about 40 infantry divisions and eight tank brigades with an exceptional allocation of artillery.

After making allowances for the long Hungarian front, where it is estimated another 70 Russian divisions are engaged, this still leaves a formidable and uncommitted force of Russian infantry and; armor; probably something like 150 first-line divisions and about another 60 to 70 divisions.

Konev's first objective is to make it impossible for the German High Command to derive any practical benefits even if they guess Russian intentions correctly. Konev is making for the lateral communications immediately behind the German lines. He has cut the main road and one of the railways from Krakow to Warsaw.

The opening phase of this battle is essentially a struggle for lateral communications.

This has been one of the chief reasons for the delay which has puzzled some people, and injustifiably irked others. The Russians had not only to restore the ordinary Polish railway system scorched by the Germans; they had also to create a system of lateral feeder roads and railways from the East Prussian frontier down to the Carpathians.

By means of these improved and newly outlet communications the Russians are able to switch troops and reserves and so maintain the initiative they have now gained.

Beer Drinking Hits All-Time High

TORONTO, Jan. 16 (CP)—Ontario is drinking 76 per cent more beer than in November, 1939, Chief Liquor Commissioner William G. Webster said today, stating that "we are at an all-time high for the sale of beer in Ontario."

Referring to beer sales figures for November, 1944, Mr. Webster said the latest complete tabulation shows Ontario drank 26 per cent more beer that month than in the same period in 1943. He said 3,500,000 gallons were consumed in Ontario in November, 1944, and 2,760,000 gallons in November, 1943.

Urges Study Price Levels

REGINA, Jan. 16—(CP).—A study to determine the price level of milk and cream in relation to hogs, beef and poultry required to maintain a balanced production should be undertaken in Canada, said the report of a research committee presented to the dairy farmers of Canada annual meeting today by Erle Kitchel of Toronto.

The study should indicate the relative amount of fluctuation in the price of milk and cream that will result in a shift of production to or from dairying, the report said.

The total solids and solids-not-fat of milk used for manufactured milk products in Canada should be determined.

The best methods of housing dairy cattle and the storage of feed should be ascertained and a study made of the cost of distribution and storage of milk and dairy products, the cost of transport inter-provincially and for export.

The report said there should be study to determine the relative value of various products sold the farmers, such as feed and machinery and to establish whether the quality of material used was up to the highest possible standard and full value was given.

City Council Endorses Ice Supply Proposal

City council unanimously approved the proposal of the purchasing committee to provide an emergency supply of ice this year for the accommodation of citizens who have not refrigerators.

As a matter of both report and record, the council's action was outlined in the committee's recommendation:

"Reg. Turner, manager of the Sanitary Ice Supply, was present on the invitation of the Chairman of this Committee. Mr. Turner said that his present equipment would produce sixteen tons of ice a day but said that he was unable to store more than 500 tons of ice. He could not promise to supply the City with sufficient ice for its needs unless his equipment was enlarged considerably. He admitted that the situation in respect to supplying citizens with ice in 1945 was the same as that existing in 1944.

We recommend that the Council endeavor to harvest and store an emergency supply of ice to meet the citizens' needs, and that the snow on the Curtis pond be removed immediately."

gayen gulf, into Tarlac province where they captured the high junction of Camiling in an over-all gain of 30 miles. From Camiling a lateral road runs 11 miles east to Paniqui on the Manila north road.

That strategic highway, No. 3, which more and more will figure in the Luzon campaign, links Manila with the summer capital of Baguio. Japanese forces in the Gaguio area northeast of the expanding American beachheads at Lingayen gulf must hold the road as the last connection between them and other forces of Lt.-Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita trying to struggle up bomb-cut roads from the Manila sector under constant aerial attack.

Reach North Road

One U.S. force already has reached the Manila north road by driving to Urdaneta, 27 miles east, and slightly south, of Lingayen town.

But the first determined enemy stand is being made much nearer Baguio against 6th Army units striving to push east along nine miles of concrete road from coastal Damortis to Rosario.

Damortis is on the extreme northeast flank of the 45-mile-wide beachhead, being some nine miles north of San Fabian, one of the original landing points. Rosario is two miles east of the Manila north road which winds 16 miles northeast from there to Baguio.

Carrier planes of the U.S. 7th fleet are ripping apart enemy strongpoints in the foothills with rockets as the slow advance continues.

It was a different story from the southern advance into Tarlac province. A field dispatch said only an occasional sniper was encountered and a few enemy planes made ineffective attacks as converging columns rolled into Camiling from Mangatarem, 11 miles to the northeast, and Bayambang, 10 miles to the northwest.

Key China Ports Fired By Carrier Planes

PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 16 —(AP) —Swinging north from the Indo-China coast where they sank or damaged 69 ships, U. S. 3rd Fleet pilots bombed Hong Kong, Swatow and Amoy along 350 miles of China's coast Saturday for the first full-scale carrier raid of the war on these posts vital to Japan's lifeline.

Admiral Nimitz gave no details in his communique yesterday of the bold China coast blow, which took the Americans behind the big Japanese base of Formosa, bombed anew at the same time.

Nimitz disclosed that 3rd Fleet pilots sank 41 Japanese ships and damaged 28 in wiping out two convoys off Indo-China on Thursday. His preliminary estimate of 25 ships sunk and 13 damaged had been reported Friday.

In the Indo-China sweep American fliers destroyed 112 planes—77 on the ground—and damaged about 50 others in their westernmost penetration of Japan's inner defences.

They also pounded key facilities at Saigon and Camranh Bay, Indo-China ports in enemy hands.

Oil refineries in the Saigon area, vital fuel source for Japan, were damaged. Fires were started in the Saigon navy yard. Oil storage facilities, warehouses and buildings in the Saigon are were set ablaze. A large dock at Camranh Bay, one of Asia's best harbors, was demolished.

Sixteen American planes were lost in the Indo-China raids.

The 41 ships destroyed totalled about 127,000 tons; the 28 damaged amounted to about 70,000.

After this bold crossing of the South China Sea, the carrier force headed north to start its assault Saturday on key ports along the China coast and Formosa.

Dairy Producers

The increase in total milk production in the first five years of war was 80 per cent. greater than the increase during the five years preceding the war. During 1943 production was greater by 1,753,436,000 pounds than in 1939.

Of the increase, only 16.12 per cent. was used in the manufacture of butter; 23.77 per cent. in cheese-making; 14.30 in concentrated milk products; 38.30 in fluid milk sales, and 7.51 in ice cream.

Butter Production

Mr. Cameron said it had been difficult to maintain an exact balance between production and consumption of butter. There was uncertainty as to the quantity of dairy butter produced and the extent to which former producers had switched to shipping cream to creameries for the manufacture of creamery butter to obtain the Government subsidy.

Prisoner-of-war parcels required from 126,000 to 200,000 pounds of butter a week. High priority demands for butter, such as those from the British Admiralty, could not be protected while the demand from industrial users, restaurants, hotels and other public eating places had been rising steadily. The prices received by farmers for other products had a bearing on milk production.

Cheese production in the first five years of war increased from 125,233,000 pounds in 1939 to 164,827,000 in 1943 while the proportion of total milk production utilized in cheese manufacture rose from 8.6 per cent to 10.58.

During 1943, 3,706,513,000 pounds of fluid milk were used an increase of 694,998,000 pounds compared with 1939, but there had been no material change in the proportion of the total milk production used in the fluid milk trade and for farm use and no dislocation in the production balance of the various dairy products had been caused.

this remote outpost, served only by a bi-monthly steamship service from Prince Rupert. Many people had to have relief assistance.

In 1942 the co-operative was formed and of 700 people including women and children, 300 were paid-up members. About 90 per cent. of the adult working population hold shares and participate in some phase of the co-operative's activities. There are, among them, fishermen, clamdiggers like Mrs. Simpson, cannery workers, truck drivers, storekeepers, wireless operators, the minister, the magistrate and district nurse.

Prosperity Came.

Comparative prosperity came to Graham Island as a result.

Two years of operation showed a small surplus and one year a loss. But, said Mrs. Simpson, $150,000 has been paid out in wages to members. Clamdiggers who were paid 1½ cents a pound by the commercial cannery now receive four cents a pound.

Workers receive two-thirds of their wages immediately. Ten per cent. is held for the required legal reserve. To assist in financing, 23¼ per cent. is held in a fund and distributed at each year's end.

Examination of operations of the British Columbia Co-operative Seed Association occupied a large portion of the afternoon session of the Commission.

Thomas Blake of Vancouver, representing the association, was questioned by E. T. Parker of Halifax, Commission counsel; R. H. Tupper of Vancouver, appearing for several feed companies; and G. S. Thorvaldson of Winnipeg, representative of the Income Taxpayers' Association of Canada.

Unconditional

Rhys Davies, Labor, inquired:

"Do you not think that these threats against the Axis powers have a tendency to stiffen the people of Germany behind their leaders and prolong the war, and would you be good enough to reconsider your policy to see whether you could not employ your unrivalled power to bring this misery in Europe to an end?"

"No sir," Mr. Churchill shot back. "We don't take that view at all. I think the House would be overwhelmingly against our attempting to make peace by negotiation."

The cheering was renewed.

"At any rate our allies would be overwhelmingly opposed to such a course.

"It is quite impossible to discuss these things during this question period. An opportunity may occur in debate to discuss them. I am not of the opinion that the demand for unconditional surrender is prolonging the war.

"In any event the war will be prolonged until unconditional surrender has been obtained."

Ben Riley, Labor, continued to press the point, asking whether it was appreciated that the "slogan 'unconditional surrender' has great political value for Hitler and his gang."

"I don't think that is so," the Prime Minister replied.

One member cried "Don't make mischief!" when Emmanuel Shinwell, Labor, asked whether Mr. Churchill had "taken notice of the declaration by General Plastiras (the Greek premier) on two occasions that it is the intention of his government to clear out the E.L.A.S. (leftwing army) forces from Greece, and whether the British government supports Gen. Plastiras on this policy, and intends that British troops and British arms shall be used for that purpose."

Mr. Churchill replied: "I won't be drawn into this." Mr. Shinwell then asked whether Mr. Churchill would deal with the declaration made by Gen. Scobie (Ronald N. Scobie, British commander in Greece) with regard to the position of minorities in Greece, and whether Gen. Scobie was entitled as a military officer to deal with political affairs".

"I think he had done admirable," Mr. Churchill replied and the House broke into cheers."

"I read what he said," Mr. Churchill added. "His impromptu remarks seem to have been singularly well chosen when replying to the applause of enormous crowds which have streamed past his headquarters."

"They were shouting for the return of the monarchy," Mr. Shinwell asserted.

Mr. Churchill had a brief verbal sparring match with William Gallacher, Communist.

When Mr. Gallacher asked whether the House could expect "a better-balanced statement" on Greece than that given by the Prime Minister before the Christmas recess, Mr. Churchill replied:

Likes Government

"Mr. Gallacher must not get too excited about these matters or he will fall into the danger of a Trotskyite deviation to the left."

Continued questions about statements made by the new leaders of Greece brought from Mr. Churchill the comment:

"I cannot be responsible for the day-to-day remarks that are made by the head of the Greek government."

"I have every reason to believe that the present government in Greece is extremely democratic," he added "as a matter of fact I believe it is composed entirely of Republicans."

"Is not the Prime Minister encouraging Gen. Plastiras to make these truculent remarks by his own truculent observations calling them (the armed opposition) bandits and all the rest of it?" asked Mr. Shinwell.

"I have been sometimes provoked, I admit," said Mr. Churchill, "when I have seen the efforts made by some people in this House greatly add to the difficulties of our troops."

Asked on whose authority Nea Taper correspondents in Greece were prevented from interviewing members of the E.L.A.S. forces, Mr. Churchill said that when the delegates came from the lines they were given safe conduct by the commander in chief.

"It would therefore be irregular," he said, "for him to allow them to see any person other than himself or his duly authorized representative. Such delegates remain under guard until they return to their own lines.

"While fighting is in progress it would obviously be undesirable for persons to cross into E.L.A.S. territory and in fact only international Red Cross representatives are allowed to do so."

Capt. John Dugdale, Labor, asked the Prime Minister why, in view of his own experience as a war correspondent, he "does not trust British war correspondents to report fully and frankly and with a due sense of responsibility."

Mr. Churchill replied: "I really am not going to give a general measure of complete confidence to all war correspondents, wherever they may be and from whatever country they derive. Now I am always doubtful about correspondents who come from one side to another across the fighting lines."

Dahl Faces 10 Theft Charges In RCAF Trial

MONTREAL, Jan. 16 — (CP). — Sqdn. Ldr. Harold (Whitey) Dahl faced an RCAF court-martial Monday on 14 charges of improper disposal of Government-owned property ranging from a vacuum cleaner to the scrap remains of damaged aircraft.

The charges dealt mostly with alleged transactions undertaken when Dahl was officer commanding the RAF Transport Command station at Belem, Brazil, and the time of the transactions claimed by the Crown ranged from Oct. 1, 1943, to April 30, 1944.

Dahl, who has served in the United States, Spanish and Canadian Air Forces at various times since 1931, was a member of the RCAF, attached to the RAFTC, while he was stationed at Belem.

Several of the charges were alternative counts. In all, 10 different transactions were mentioned in the formal charge, most of them connected with the Brazilian Sociedale General de Exportacao Limitada, to whom the Crown claims Dahl sold various pieces of equipment without authority.

Many Items Involved

The vacuum cleaner was mentioned in the first charge, which claimed that Dahl had "improperly delivered possession" of it to an unknown person while it was "the property of the public."

Other charges dealt with the disposal of damaged aircraft, radio transmitters, an astral compass, signal cartridge pistol, emergency life raft assemblies and a motorcycle. The value of things mentioned in the various charges was given as ranging from about $80 to about $1,500.

Dahl, who once was saved from a Spanish firing squad by the photograph of a New York vaudeville performer, sat quietly through the legal preliminaries and while each charge was read to him. He pleaded not guilty to each charge in turn.

Hearings Are Open

Earlier, the defense had claimed that the hearing should be in camera, on the grounds of security but the suggestion was over-ruled with the court taking note of a defense objection to the decision.

The court martial proceedings are expected to continue at Dorval airport here for two or three days, after which the court will adjourn to Brazil to hear witnesses who could not be brought to Montreal. It then probably will adjourn to a point in the United States before winding up in Montreal.

into the western tip of the shrinking salient.

The 3rd Army gained up to 1½ miles on a 10-mile front northwest and southeast of Bastogne. Oubourcy, four miles northeast of Bastogne, was captured.

Third Army battle reports said the Germans were using secondary roads from Houffalize in an orderly withdrawal eastward.

Just west of Houffalize, the line-up of the 1st and 3rd Armies indicated that the time might be nearing when Lt.-Gen. Bradley would resume his command of the original 12th Army Group, including these two armies and the U.S. 9th, now guarding the Roer. The U.S. 1st and 9th Armies came under command of Field Marshal Montgomery, 21st Army Group Commander, when the Germans were threatening to break through to the Meuse.

As the slender tip of the salient collapsed under British pressure, the Germans to the northeast fought like mad. First Army forces suffered heavy casualties yesterday in trying to get into the tiny settlement of Sterigny, six miles northeast of Houffalize. A battle went into its fourth day at Thirimont, four miles southeast of Malmedy.

about 85 miles southeast of Kielce, and 70 east of Krakow. This apparently was intended to guard the left flank of the drive into the Warsaw-Krakow line.

This drive into the Warsaw-Krakow line was meeting the first mass of German reserves now, however, and progress may be slowed. If the Russians interfere with traffic over the trunk railway southwest of Warsaw, they would strike one of the biggest blows to Nazi hopes of holding the Polish capital.

A Moscow communique said Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukraine Army overran some 400 towns yesterday in its greatest one-day victory since shoving off west of the Vistula last Friday.

The Russian effort apparently still was growing. Berlin announced that Red Armies were on the move in 10 key sectors from the Baltic to Yugoslavia.

Moscow's long-silent victory guns sounded off in volume again for the capture of Kielce, announced by Premier Stalin in an order of the day. Kielce, a six-way road junction, lies 93 miles south-west of Warsaw and 80 miles east of the German frontier.

Konev's forces also seized Jedrzejow and Wodzislaw, junction points on the way to Krakow and Zlotniki, 17 miles south-west of Kielce. Then, plunging across the Warsaw-Krakow highway west of Jedrzejow, they captured the village of Trzcheniec in a 16-mile advance.

On the southern flank the fall of Palecznica placed the Russians only 21 miles northeast of Krakow, a key point in the enemy's Polish defence line and guardian of the route to Silesia. Capture of Glogowlany, 28 miles north of Krakow, brought the Konev forces within 50 miles of the frontier.

Berlin broadcasts announced "deep penetrations" of German lines at Warka and Pulawy, 30 and 65 miles southeast of Warsaw; in the Bug-Vistula triangle immediately north of the ravaged Polish capital, and along the Norew River, 30 miles to the north.

The Soviet command maintained silence concerning any moves in these areas as well as in East Prussia, where Berlin has been reporting activity since Saturday. Last night the German radio said Red Army troops had broken into the highway town of Schlossberg in East Prussia.

The battle of Budapest appeared finally approaching an end. With latest-announced Russian advances, Red Army troops now hold some 90 per cent of the battered Hungarian capital. The Moscow communique said 4,790 prisoners were taken there Sunday.

4 Index Groups In Slight Slump

TORONTO, Jan. 16—(CP).—The tone was a bit soft in the early Toronto session today and all four index groups were down a bit at noon. Volume was 458,000 shares for the first three hours.

Chesterville was again a trading leader, moving in heavy volume on a gain of 19 cents to 2.10. The Yellowknife issues were strong. Frobisher gained 25 cents, Bear and Conwest 6 and Trans-Resources 2. Other strong golds were San Antonio, Aunor, Upper Canada, West Malartic and Wasa Lake. McIntyre gained a point to 62.

Ventures and Labrador were stronger base metals and minor declines appeared for Steep Rock and Hudson Bay.

Senior oils and utilities showed a margin of losses over gains. B.C. Pulp and Paper was a strong issue in the paper group, gaining ¾. Steel of Canada and Western Steel Products firmed ¾ to a point.

Western oils, including Home, Calgary - Edmonton, Vermilata, Anglo-Canadian, East Crest and Mid-Continent were moderately weak.

Chicago Hotel Fire Kills 14

CHICAGO, Jan. 16 —(AP) —At least 14 persons were killed and a dozen or more injured in a fire that swept through a seven-storey hotel on the edge of the loop early to-day.

The bodies of 11 persons were found in the ruins of the blaze, said Assistant Fire Marshal A. J. Millaney. An unidentified woman was fatally injured when she leaped from a third-floor window of the stone-and frame General Clark hotel. None of the victims had been identified. Fireman, responding to an extra-alarm call, fought for three hours before getting the blaze under control.

Cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

The blaze spread throughout the structure quickly and the victims were believed trapped in their rooms by the rapidly moving flames.

About 40 persons in the hotel, which contained 75 rooms, were rescued or fled to the streets on fire escapes.

Hundreds of spectators saw several of the trapped occupants leap to safety into firemen's nets from upper rooms of the blazing building. At least a dozen were carried down ladders by firemen. Flames and smoke billowing above the north side of the loop were visible for miles.

Rabbi Criticizes Teaching Method

TORONTO, Jan. 16— (CP) — Methods of teaching religion in Ontario's Public Schools were criticised by Rabbi Abraham Feinberg here last night at the Six Plenary Session of the Canadian Jewish Congress. He said those methods were too "doctrinaire" and not "teaching the real spirit of Christianity as brotherly love."

Emphasizing he did not object to teaching of "genuine christianity" in Ontario Schools, he said he felt children should be taught tolerance and interfaith ideals so that intolerance would be eradicated.

Joseph Fine of Montreal said the extent of anti-semitism in Quebec had been exaggerated by enemies of national unity. While French Canada had its bigots, the same applied to other parts of the country.

The Royal Bank of Canada Annual Meeting

Morris W. Wilson, President, says continued Canadian development depends on world-wide system of trading based on international monetary and exchange stability. Urges Canada be one of first to approve principles of Bretton Woods Conference.

Sydney G. Dobson, Vice-President and General Manager, reports total assets at all-time peak with year's increase greatest in history of bank; southern branches in unique position to facilitate Latin-American trade.

The vital importance to Canada's future welfare of a healthy foreign trade based on international monetary and exchange stability was emphasized by Morris W. Wilson, President of the Royal Bank of Canada at the bank's Annual Meeting.

Canada owed her economic development from earliest days, said Mr. Wilson, to foreign trade and the level of pre-war exports would not only have to be maintained after the war, but actually expanded, possibly to double their pre-war value, if Canada was to secure an adequate national income.

FOREIGN TRADE PROBLEMS

"Normally we export considerably more to Great Britain and other countries of the Empire than we import from them. On the other hand, our imports from the United States are usually in excess of our exports to that country. Under normal exchange conditions it was relatively simple to adjust this situation. Our sterling balances, accumulated through exports to the Empire, were readily exchangeable for U.S. dollars with which to pay for what we purchased in the United States.

"War-time experience, however, has shown the difficulties which arise when this multilateral adjustment of trade balances breaks down. As a result of the control of sterling made necessary by the war, Canada has been forced to depend upon her own devices for liquidation of British balances, through interest-free loans, mutual aid, and the repatriation of Canada securities. We were also forced to restrict purchases and travel in the United States, in order to reduce the demand for U.S. dollars, thereby making it easier for us to pay for essential imports. If the world should be divided into exclusive trading areas after the war, as is frequently suggested of which one might be based on sterling and another on the U.S. dollar, Canada would be in a peculiarly disadvantageous position since she properly belongs in neither group. Our memebrship in the British Commonwealth of Nations, and the coincidence that our unit of currency is named "dollar" as in the United States, create an anomalous situation, and obscure our true position in the eyes of many. Because of these factors, and our own selfish interests, we are compelled to prefer a world-wide system of trading. There is no altruism about it.

CANNOT STAND ALONE

"If international trade on the broadest scale is not fully restored, what can Canada do independently to preserve her foreign markets? There are certain obvious measures, notably maintenance and improvement of the quality of our exports, vigorous salesmanship, and the acceptance of imports from countries to which we export, up to the limit either of their capacity to sell to us, or of our ability to absorb their products. These are basic principles which Canada can and should adopt, whatever the rest of the world may do.

"What other alternatives will be normally available to us? In the first place, we might have to restrict our exports to the ability of foreign markets to pay for our products. Since many of our major export commodities are produced on a scale out of all proportion to our own consumption, the subsequent unemployment of men and resources, the agricultural depression, and the social problems which would arise, would build up a load that our economy and constitution could not support. Secondly, Canada might provide credits to countries desiring to import goods on a basis similar to the credits which have been established during the war, but with the hope of ultimate repayment. Finally, we could subsidize exports.

"Furthermore, as I stated a year ago, I believe it would be sound policy for Canada not only to extend liberal long-term credits to countries who are actual or potential buyers of Canadian products, but in special cases to make outright gifts of foods, raw material, finished goods and machinery to assist and hasten the rehabilitation of such countries.

"Thus far could we go, independently of the policies of other powers. But a moment of consideration will show how slight our hopes of success would be without international co-operation."

Mr. Wilson reviewed the function of gold as an international currency prior to and after the last war but pointed out that the "gold standard" was never entirely automatic in its operation. "The system could never have been maintained," he said, "without the unrivalled supremacy of the City of London in the foreign exchange and international investment markets, the degree of liquidity it maintained, the great foreign loans it floated, the willingness of Great Britain to accept imports of goods and services for payment on loans and last but by no means lease, the knowledge and experience of the great London banks and financial houses.

NATIONS FORSAKE RULES

In the second place, all countries observed the code of economic ethics set up by the gold standard. Fundamental changes in this system took place following the last war, said Mr. Wilson, and the international economic system, disrupted by the war, remained out of balance and the disequilibrium became intensified. Countries ceased to abide by the rules and no longer sought to adjust their domestic policies to the requirements of the gold standard system and with the breakdown and abandonment of the standard in 1931, each country set out on its own course. "Instead of adjusting domestic prices and production to the needs of international exchange stability and balanced payments on international account, countries began to manipulate exchange rates, as a means of increasing domestic and foreign trade in order to maintain employment at home. International trade became disrupted, with every country seeking to force its exports on others, but to reduce imports to a minimum. Competitive exchange depreciation, higher and higher tariffs on imports, quantitatives quotas and bulk purchases, and similar measures, were utilized by all countries in greater or less degree. Well over a third of total world trade was conducted on a basis of crude barter. With the collapse of the gold standard, there disappeared the only operative system for the coordination of national economic policies; in its absence, sovereign countries, acting independently and without regard for the external repercussions of their policies, inevitably drifted toward international economic chaos."

Upon this chaos, said Mr. Wilson, had now been superimposed the new disequilibrium of a second World War. The great importing countries including Great Britain and those of Europe had suffered devastation, destruction of their industrial machinery and, particularly Great Britain, loss of overseas markets. Other countries, notably those of North America, had found their industries and agriculture greatly expanded. "In order to maintain employment" said Mr. Wilson, "it will be necessary for these countries and particularly Canada, to export to an extent greater than was necessary even before 1939."

BRETTON WOODS

Mr. Wilson dealt at length with the Bretton Woods Conference last July when the experts of forty-four countries sought to evolve a system of international control of foreign exchange and investment with a view to providing exchange stability. He readily admitted that the Bretton Woods program was no panacea for post-war problems but he pointed out that practical businessmen were largely in agreement with the Bretton Woods experts. Meeting at Rye, N.Y., last November, businessmen from fifty-two countries, including Canada, recommended a Multilateral Trade Convention for all countries to provide for the progressive lowering of trade barriers; the elimination of quotas and import embargoes; the abandonment of discriminatory trade practices; the abandonment of national sales and production monopolies.

"It appears to me," said Mr. Wilson, "that the next step in preparation for the general resumption of foreign trade after the war must be discussions and agreement between governments on commercial policy. If some standard of commercial policy is not established prior to the resumption of general trading, we may see the continuance of the predatory practices of the pre-war era.

"Canadian economic development, in the future as in the past, depends upon the maintenance and development of international trade. Monetary stability is one of the prerequisites of international trade. For Canada, therefore, monetary stability is of paramount importance. If we acknowledge these premises, our course of action is clear. We must implement the measures necessary to secure them. I sincerely hope that Canada will be one of the first to approve the principles of the Bretton Woods agreements, leaving the Government free to deal with matters of detail in consultation and agreement with the other countries concerned."

GENERAL MANAGER'S ADDRESS

In presenting the Annual Balance Sheet Sydney G. Dobson, Vice-President and General Manager, pointed out total assets were now at the record level of $1,790,251,802, and that the increase in assets during the year was the greatest in the history of the bank. The liquid position was exceedingly strong, he said. Total Liquid Asset representing 81.62% of the bank's Liabilities to the Public. Noteworthy was the increase in the number of Deposit Account Customers which now totaled 1,450,000. Proifts for the year, after providing for Dominion Government Taxes, amounted to $3,821,183., an increase of $385,894.

Mr. Dobson reported steady development of the bank's foreign business in the Caribbean and South American. "The South American countries", he said, "are potential purchasers of large quantities of equipment of all kinds for modernizing and expanding already established manufacturing facilities, for developing new industries, and carrying out public works programs. A growing interest in Canada and Canadian products is evident, and it is hoped that our manufacturers, exporters, and importers will reciprocate this interest. Our well-placed branches are in a unique position to offer assistance in the development of trade between Latin America and Canada."

TRIBUTE TO STAFF

The General Manager reported that the staff, not including those in the armed services, now totalled 8,205. "In Canada 71% are young women, compared with only 21% in 1939. While the more experienced officers have been under great personal pressure, because of the need to train and help inexperienced newcomers, these new members of the staff have learned quickly, fitted in readily, and performed splendidly the duties alloted to them. All of our officers serve with a sense of public responsibility as well as of duty to the bank.

"Leave of absence for military service has been granted to 2,255 of our officers since the war started, of whom 2,154 enlisted from Canadian branches. This is equal to 74% of the Canadian male officers who were under 45 at the war's outbreak."

Looking to the problems of the postwar years, Mr. Dobson stated that one of the bank's first considerations would be the placing in satisfactory positions of the members of the staff who were serving in the various armed services. "This matter," he said, "is foremast in our minds and is being given careful study. The affairs of customers in many cases will undergo great changes in the transition period from war production to peacetime needs. In this transition we shall be called upon to play an important part in assisting financially in helping to bring about this change. It may be necessary for us to revise to some extent the existing practice of making loans for short terms only, and in certain circumstances to consider loans extending over a period of two, three, or five years to meet changed conditions.

"I am not implying that we should depart from our policy of prudent banking, but because of our large holdings of readily negotiable Government securities, we may, without risk to our liquidity, assist deserving borrowers with longer term loans.

"Your bank is strong financially and exceedingly well equipped to handle post-war financing, and we shall consider it our patriotic duty to play our full part in assisting business generally in becoming reestablished."

Bradburn Wants Public Sites Investigated

That something should be done this year about sites for the public buildings that are definite prospects, and thereby open the way for the considerations of private investments which may follow the lead of community action, was the suggestion Alderman Bradburn made Monday night in urging that some onward step be taken as soon as possible.

Some reference to the market and that phase of the civic program which was discussed last year preceded Alderman Bradburn's comment that the Town Planning Commission might be able to bring in an early report of prospective locations of civic buildings—Civic Hospital, Memorial Centre, City Hall.

It transpired that the market survey made last year by three specialists of the Dominion and Ontario Departments of Agriculture had been left incomplete and stymied until the council supplies some final scrap of information that has not yet been forwarded.

Mayor Hamilton remarked that there was no present likelihood of market action this year, and that he did not see any prospect of a change for what might be called the uncertain present, and for that reason he felt the question might be left aside for a while.

Alderman Dutton said nothing much could be done in furtherance of Alderman Bradburn's general suggestion for some preliminary action until a master plan of the city was available.

Want To Settle It

"I'd like to see us get something settled," Alderman Bradburn replied, and that remark related only to inceptive stages for any or all of the buildings. Two of them are now in the hands of building committee. The Community Memorial Centre has actually reached that stage, and the Civic Hospital is only a few paces from it.

Engagement of an expert in town planning to prepare a master plan and report for the guidance of the local Planning Commission and the Council has already been discussed as an advisable preliminary, and will likely be considered further in committee.

From the brief reference to the market Monday night it seems to have receded a long way from the ambitions of a year ago. The snags of realities are more deterrent after the experience of the 1944 window shopping that produced nothing but the market survey that has since been left in suspension.

CAMPBELLFORD, January 16 — (ENS) — At the Rotary luncheon Monday, Rev. G. N. Maxwell, minister of St. John's United Church, spoke on "Rehabilitation." To an almost 100 per cent attendance, he said that: "When the Great War ended abruptly in 1918, servicemen returned home to find this country unprepared for their reestablishment in civilian life. Due largely to the efforts of the Canadian Legion this will not be true, after this war is over, for the Legion has enlisted the co-operation of the Dominion, Provincial and Municipal Governments to be prepared for demobilization. He outlined a few of the services available to the men and women on receiving their discharge.

These are: "Vocational Guidance" by competent advisers in choosing a post-war job. Thanks to the Legion the men will be allowed to keep their uniforms and receive $100 for clothing. Employees are to be reinstituted into business in industry in the same terms as when they enlisted. The veterans Land Act provides them with assistance in purchasing and stocking a farm, a small holding or a fishing business.

Loans are made at 3½ per cent. interest payable over a 25 year period. There is a limit on farms of $6,000 and smaller holdings, $4,800. If a veteran owns a farm the loan is $3,200 with $2,500 maximum, for equipment or livestock.

In gratuities, the Dominion of Canada will pay $7.50 a month for each month's service in Canada and double this amount for each 30 days overseas. A sum of money, equal to the gratutiy may be borrowed by servicemen at any time within 10 years of their discharge. In education the speaker explained that these services come under the Department of National Defence and provide for instruction by corresrespondence course or otherwise in camps, in hospitals, in alien countries and Canada and even to prisoners of war through the International Red Cross. They provide for education after demoblization in any field, at any time, in school, technical school or university.

Free Tuition.

This bill applies mainly to the water supply for fire protection and street cleaning. The Commission's letter pointed out that the levy on the city was unchanged although there was a considerable increase in the quantity of water used by the city and also an increase in the number of fire hydrants.

First of the requisitions for the 1945 budget was the $47,500 total of the estimates of the Board of Police Commissioners which was sent on to the finance committee.

The statement quoted Chief John Thompson's requirement of a minimum of 21 men and a police matron for the work of his department this year.

Minimum monthly payments of $35,000 to the Board of Education and $2,500 to the Catholic School Board until their requisitions have been received and approved were endorsed.

Brig. C. Hepburn Praises Loyalty Shown By Canadian People

Despite the troubled condition of the world today, one of the great signs of encouragement is the fact 44 nations have banded together, declared Brigadier the Rev. Canon C. G. Hepburn, Principal Protestant Chaplain of the Canadian Army (Active), who spoke at an open meeting of citizens, held under the auspices of the Peterborough Unity League.

"Not only have these nations banded together for the common purpose of defeating their enemies, but also for working together, and remaining together for the days to come", he said.

Brig. Hepburn spoke on the theme of "Unity", breaking the subject into three distinct sections, loyalty, liberty, and love. One of Canada's outstanding public speakers, he gave incidents a cloak of individuality by relating an anecdote here and there, or by reverting to an amusing dialect when the occasion permitted.

"Loyalty has a very deep meaning, and is a word that is sometimes used much too lightly", he said. In the desire for unity, there is no loss of loyalty, he pointed out. Senator Bouchard is still a French-Canadian, and still a Roman Catholic, but still, he is a greater Canadian because he felt that certain things must be said, in the interests of truth, he said.

About differences in Quebec and otther parts of Canada, Brig. Hepburn urged that people try to find out why there is a difference. Then, it will be seen that things which unite Quebec and the rest of Canada are much greater than those which divide.

Laud French-Canadians

Paying tribute to French-Canadian regiments overseas which have played an epic part in the battles being waged against the enemy, he said that the French are just as loyal citizens as any, under proper leadership.

"One of our difficulties here in Canada is also one of our glories. Canada is such a diversified country we should glory in the many-sided character of our nationhood," Brig. Hepburn stated.

"Liberty" is also a word often misused, he said. "No individual can live unto himself in any community."

Rules and regulations might be interpreted by some people as being just the opposite of liberty, was a major point in this section of Brig. Hepburn's address, but he said, "I defy any intelligent person to think up one game that has no rules. How then, in God's name are we going to play the game of life with all its complex problems unless we have a set of rules."

Under the democratic system, he said, we have rules, and if we don't like them, we try to change them. Ballots, not bullets, settle problems in the democratic way.

"Here is something positive, 'Love God, and do anything you like'!"

Love was the final salient feature in Brig. Hepburn's inspiring address. He rapped some of the actions of the "bobby sox and no brains" parade, and also verbally spanked Frank Sinatra fans. "It is pure emotion", he said, "like the music of the jungle, it has a seductive effect. It is a poisonous and subtle danger."

Brig. Hepburn advised a little more patience and more sanity, and that people use their liberty with restraint and understanding.

He spoke of some people being "almost mesmerized" by the radio, pointing out that certain things are popular, but not healthy.

Instead of listening to some news reporter "croak his laryngitis" from Holland, he said, turn off your radio, and turn on prayer. "Get your news from a better world; from a letter, of fine music, or a book with a message, or a few lines of poetry."

A combination of the three things, loyalty, liberty, and love, means a combination of three fundamentals, that can make for unity in this beloved Canada, he said.

Brig. Hepburn was introduced by Rev. W. A. Filer, of All Saints' Anglican Church. Captain Harry Marsh, who recently returned from overseas, thanked the speaker.

During the evening, three selections were sung by Mrs. James Goldie, accompanied by Gwen Craw, at the piano. Mrs. Goldie sang the popular "I Am A Canadian", "O Pray For Peace", and "Rule, Britannia".

Ken. Currie, chairman of the Unity League, was chairman of the meeting.

A Report From Southern Alberta

Every year we receive a report on the progress of Southern Alberta in a special edition of the Lethbridge Herald, the principal newspaper of the district; the Herald is published by Senator W. A. Buchanan, who is well-known in this city, and who began his newspaper career in Peterborough. The report this year is a splendid one in every field—agricultural, industrial and financial. The farmers in the district—which includes 18 large areas surrounding Lethbridge—were once known to the rest of Canada for the immensity of their farm debt totals, and it was commonly supposed that these would never be paid. But the 1944 report shows that most of these debts have been paid, and the Southern Alberta area has bought $30,000,000 worth of Victory Bonds and war certificates. The best crop year in the district was 1942, and it is not expected that it will be equalled soon, but in 1944 the production total was $72,000,000—a notable record.

In the city of Lethbridge more than a quarter of a million dollars' worth of building was done during the year, in spite of the shortages of materials and labour. Plainly the city and its district have made the best use of the opportunities which the war has brought to settle with the past and prepare for the future. Undoubtedly it must be ranked high among the progressive communities of Canada.

We feel that a great measure of its progressiveness may be attributed to its excellent newspaper. A newspaper reflects the temper of the district in which it is read and it also, to a considerable extent, influences that temper. From time to time the Herald has talked to Lethbridge and its environs like a Dutch uncle, but its advice has always been sound. No newspaper, unaided, can pull a district out of a depression, but it can do a great deal to help, and the Herald has done everything for Lethbridge and Southern Alberta that a good newspaper can do.

Enemy Propaganda

Perhaps Germany's greatest weapon today is propaganda and Goebbels and his experts are experts in hatching up cunning tricks with which they attempt to stir up strife among the Allies. Their latest and one which for a time caused considerable American indignation was the German radio station masquerading as the BBC. It faked a broadcast attributing to Field Marshal Montgomery all the credit for stopping the German drive in Belgium. This faked broadcast after referring to the appointment of Field Marshal Montgomery to command the northern group of armies said:

> "Montgomery found no defence lines, the Americans somewhat bewildered, few reserves on hand and supply lines cut. He took over the scattered American forces, planned his action and stopped the German drive. The Battle of the Ardennes can now be practically written off, thanks to Montgomery".

This program smoothly dovetailed with a widely popular BBC broadcast which American troops listen to and we can imagine just how infuriated American troops at the front would be to hear this. It completely hoodwinked them and also many Americans in the United States.

It was a cunning trick by Goebbels in trying to stir up trouble between Britain and United States and this is only one of the many which have been tried and will be tried.

Do You Keep Letters?

Judging from the reports of the Post Office Department, more people are writing letters today than ever before; the mails are crammed with correspondence directed to men abroad and friends at home. We wonder what is going to become of all these letters?

Most of them will end in the fire or the salvage basket. But a few will be preserved, and these will grow in value with the years until, a century or more from now, they will be the stuff of which history is made. You doubt it? Then look through recent biographies and histories and see how heavily they rely upon letters for their colour and authenticity.

One of the best judgements on letters that we know was written by a historian of genius, Lytton Strachey, who said:

> Good letters are like pearls: they are admirable in themselves, but their value is infinitely enhanced when there is a string of them. Therefore, to be a really great letter writer it is not enough to write an occasional excellent letter; it is necessary to write constantly, indefatigably, with ever-recurring zest; it is almost necessary to live to a good old age. What makes a correspondence fascinating is the cumulative effect of slow, gradual, day-to-day development—the long, leisurely unfolding of a character and a life.

Are you a letter-writer of this character? It is not necessary to pack your letters with painfully-wrought passages of description in order to write great letters. Liveliness and spontaneity are the secrets, though some skill in the handling of your native tongue does not come amiss. The modern home does not provide much space for keeping anything, but if you are the receiver of good letters you might make space for a few bundles of them in a trunk or a cupboard. Your children and your children's children will be glad to have them.

Virtue Is Its Own Reward

Virtue is its own reward, but when one has been led to expect that $10,000 is also the reward of virtue, it is somewhat damping to have it snatched from under one's nose.

Recently a young clerk, getting the small salary of $44 a month, prevented a hold-up in a Montreal branch of the Provincial Bank of Canada; with great presence of mind he shot the robber, who died of wounds before he could be brought to trial. The clerk trustingly claimed the reward which the Canadian Bankers' Association offers to anyone who prevents a bank robbery; the sum of the reward is described as "up to $10,000". But the young man was told that the giving or withholding of the reward was absolutely at the discretion of the Bankers' Association, and that body does not reward employees who save their banks from robbery, because it is part of their duty. Thus the young man learned that for $44 a month his employers hired not only his abilities as a clerk, but also his entire stock of courage and resource, and loyalty even to the length of manslaughter in defence of their money.

The clerk took the case to court, and Mr. Justice Loranger, who considered the case, found that the Bankers' Association was within its rights in refusing to give the young man a reward. The judge, however, left no one in any doubt about what he thought of such behaviour, and we think that the public will agree with him.

The young man has learned one or two valuable lessons. He has learned that virtue is strictly its own reward in the eyes of the Bankers' Association, and he has learned what it feels like to kill a man in defence of the investors' money. Armed with these invaluable lessons, he should have a great career; or it may be that, having dared to sue the high gods in court, he will prefer to seek a profession other than banking. As for the rest of us, we have learned that the Bankers' Association has a very firm grasp of the law as it relates to promises, and keeping money. In this connection there keeps recurring to us the name of a character in a play who insisted upon the strict letter of the law in the matter of a promise: was it Shylock, by any chance?

NOTE AND COMMENT

The street railway strike in British Columbia cities is a walkout so far as the public is concerned.

A great deal of space is wasted arguing whether or not New York can be bombed. Why worry? If it doesn't happen in this war it will certainly happen in the next.

Somehow we do not believe that Robert Ripley was even remotely interested in the announcement that Premier King had asked the electors of North Grey to support General McNaughton.

There seems to be a certain amount of discontent in Toronto because the Don Jail has been found to be old and unsanitary and incapable of modernization. Perhaps we are a teeny-weeny bit inhumane, but may we ask why a jail should be modern and sanitary when so many people who are guilty of no crime but poverty have to live in ramshackle and dirty shacks and tenements?

Municipal Government Here and in Britain

(By C. H. IRESON)

THE fact that municipal elections are now over and new councils entering upon their duties for 1945 affords a good opportunity to point out some vital differences between English and Canadian municipal government and procedure.

These may roughly be divided into two sections:

1. (a) Composition of the council.
   (b) Election of mayor.
2. The status of a city.

AN English council consists of a mayor, aldermen and councillors. Only the latter are elected by a popular vote, for a term of three years, one-third retiring annually. Aldermen are elected by the councillors for a term of six years and generally consist of men who have done good public and civic work in the past. The average rates of representation is one alderman to three councillors and elections are held annually on November 1. The mayor is not elected by a popular vote, but, on the following November 9 by a vote of the combined body of aldermen and councillors. By law it is not necessary to elect a member of the council but that is almost invariably done.

FOR the first nine years after incorporation in 1850 Peterborough's mayors were elected by the council—but then the present system of a popular vote was introduced. The mayor is chairman of the local bench of magistrates and at the expiry of his term of office he has a distinctive standing as ex-mayor and is a magistrate ex-officio. Incidentally there are not in England any paid police magistrates but all police court—or to be more accurate—procedure at Petty Sessions are carried out by unpaid justices of the peace. Exceptions to this are the London Metropolitan district and seventeen large boroughs which have paid magistrates known as Stipendiaries. There are no crown attorneys.

A MAN who serves as mayor, whether he be alderman or councillor, at the expiration of his mayoral term, resumes his place in the council until he completes his term of office as alderman or councillor as the case may be.

ONE difference in procedure which is important and interesting as that in the Canadian system there seems to be an unwritten law, that when a man has served as mayor, he should retire from the municipal field and not be considered a suitable aldermanic candidate.

This seems rather unfortunate for the following obvious reasons: Men who serve as mayor naturally get a close and intimate knowledge of civic business, and, with their disappearance from the council the benefit of all this special knowledge is lost to the community. This has frequently happened here and elsewhere and a striking example of how this works out might have existed here this year. If Mayor Hamilton had not decided to accept the mayoralty this year, all the intimate knowledge he has acquired during the last seven years would not be available to following councils and this would be a calamity. This loss seems to be unavoidable under our Canadian procedure and it is suggested that it would be a perfectly proper course to allow a retiring mayor, after an arduous term of office, to be nominated and elected an alderman at an ensuing election. It is understood that the present usage is not due to any legal requirement, but is merely a custom which might be honored in the breach rather than the observance.

AS to cities there is considerable difference in the meaning of the word "city" in England and Canáda. The matter seems to us a little complicated but an endeavour will be made briefly to clarify the position. In Canada a town that obtains a population of 10,000 can be granted a charter as a city and the matter is concluded. In England however there are two types of cities, ecclesiastical and municipal. The former include those places which have a cathedral and are the head of a bishop's diocese or see and do not enter at all into the sphere of municipal government. Our own city of Peterborough and the English Peterborough afford a striking example of how this works out. We are a city by virtue of our population but the other Peterborough with some 45,000 inhabitants is not a city in a municipal sense but is, in an ecclesiastical one having a splendid and famous cathedral. This cathedral is a direct descendant of a Saxon monastery founded in 656 A.D.—over twelve centuries ago. As the monastery became the beautiful cathedral of today so the small community which gathered around it has become the modern Peterborough. Its original name was Medeshamstead—the house in the meadow. In municipal matters it is a town or borough—to use the more correct term and is governed by a council of a mayor, 9 aldermen and 27 councillors.

MUNICIPAL cities are comparatively rare in England. As a matter of fact there are nearly twice as many more in Ontario than there are in all England—the province having 28 and the Old Country 16. The latter have been granted the honour of cityhood by Royal Charter and the head of the municipality is known as a Lord Mayor. In referring to English cities any reference to the city of London is omitted as it has a constitution and jurisdiction dates back to the Norman Conquest.

THE largest city in England is Birmingham with an estimated population in 1940 of 1,002,634 and is governed by a council consisting of a Lord Mayor, 34 aldermen and 102 councillors. There are four other cities with a population of over half a million—Liverpool (created 1880) 855,639; Manchester (1853); 822,400; Sheffield (1893) 523,000; Leeds (1895) 522.000. Up to 1938 there were ten of these municipal cities but by a local government act of that year six more towns were promoted to the rank of cityhood. These were Stoke-on-Trent, Portsmouth, Leicester, Plymouth, Norwich and York.

THIS dual meaning of the word city naturally causes confusion. Many ecclesiastical cities are quite small for example Lichfield, birthplace of Samuel Johnson, has only a population of 8,848, but has a charter as a municipal borough with mayor, aldermen and councillors. Then again places larger than our Peterborough have no charter at all but are governed by an urban district council—e.g. Enfield with a population of 67,874.

MANY of the ancient boroughs have fallen upon evil days and have merely a village population. For example Woodstock in Oxfordshire has only a population of 1,484 and is still fully equipped with a mayor, aldermen and councillors.

TURNING back to municipal government affairs, England has no board of control. There is no police commission and those who pay the piper call the tune as to discipline appointments etc. There is a general appeal to the home office, and, subject to a satisfactory inspection of the local police department, the government makes a substantial grant in aid of police administration.

This article is not written in any spirit of controversy or as an attempt to argue as to the merits or demerits of either system or any part of it but with the idea of giving some brief explanation of differences in the municipal setup, which are rather confusing to our people.

THE VOICE OF THE TURTLE

Employment by Fiat

(NEW YORK HERALD-TRIBUNE)

THE thesis that "if we can achieve full employment during war we can do it in peace" is reflected in the proposal recently put forward by a subcommittee of the Senate Military Affairs Committee. Frankly advanced for the purpose of stimulating discussion, this report embodies a program for making full employment a matter of government responsibility. Along with his regular budget estimates each January under this proposal, the President would estimate (1) the number of jobs needed in the ensuing fiscal year to provide full employment and the dollar volume of the national product, at the expected level of prices, needed to provide the stated number of jobs; (2) the volume of investment required to assure such a national product, and (3) the volume of investment and expenditure actually in prospect.

The proposal contemplates that if investments in prospect are less than the volume required the President shall set forth a program devised, first, to encourage non-Federal expenditures; second, to provide government expenditures sufficient to make up any shortage that remains.

In its December issue the National City Bank letter discussed the fallacies underlying the phrase "Full employment—or else." In a "postscript" to that article, the January issue takes up briefly the subcommittee's specific proposal. The pitfalls of measuring full employment itself, the bank letter observes, great as they are, would be insignificant compared with the difficulties of making the estimates called for under this plan. If there is any subject upon which the government should be a supremely competent authority, it notes, that is the estimation of its own expenditures. Yet in four of the five most recent peace-time budgets estimates of expenditures were off from 14 to 32 per cent. "Nothing in the record of statistical projection and prophecy," it finds, "justifies a belief that estimates such as those called for in this plan could provide a guide reliable enough to warrant the government undertaking policies having such potentialities for evil as well as good."

As to the proposal that the government be prepared to step in and make up any indicated shortage of investment, such spending would inevitably tend to fall in one of two categories—work which serves no economic purpose and is not self-supporting, "the costs of which would fall on all business and all the people in the form of taxes or inflation of the Federal debt," or activities intended to be self-supporting, but competing with private enterprise. In either case, the City Bank's economists declare, "private investment would be discouraged and the gap to be filled by government spending would widen. There would be set in motion a vicious circle whose logical end would be steadily increasing totalitarian controls and destruction of private enterprise."

This study takes an effective parting shot at the "example" of full employment furnished by Germany in the '30s. It reminds those who employ this illustration that the German economy of that period was essentially a war economy, in which the inflationary consequences were suppressed by regimentation and strict controls, including depression of wage rates and suppression of labour unions; in short, the Nazi system against which we are now fighting. The responsibility of every one—of labour not to price itself out of jobs; of employers to conduct their business with vision, seeking to serve the people with more and better goods at lower costs, "and of the government, not to make work, but to provide the environment under which investment can go forward and enterprise function."

People of Moderate Means in War

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

WHEN the full story of the Canadian war effort comes to be written, there are few groups who will deserve higher praise than the Canadians of moderate means. Upon them the weight and restriction of wartime regulations have fallen with an especial severity. Their incomes have been frozen as far as increases are concerned without being protected by a "floor." They received no cost-of-living bonus. Their income taxes have vastly increased, as well as numberless other miscellaneous taxes, visible and invisible, to which they are subject.

In addition to all this, it is to the people of moderate means that the Government looks for a substantial and essential part of its victory loan receipts, as well as for the receipts from the purchase of war savings stamps and certificates. Then, in addition to what the Government demands, the people of moderate means are also expected to support not only the various charities whose peacetime work continues in war, but to respond to the special appeals from such organizations as the Red Cross, the Y.M.C.A. and the Salvation Army which have taken up special war duties.

These many contributions would place the people of moderate means high in the scale of those who have made Canada's war effort possible. But though so much has been demanded of them or expected of them by government and private organizations, the people of no class in Canada's communities have been more generous in giving of their time and effort in the various voluntary wartime work and services.

All this has been done by the people of moderate means while trying, under great difficulties, to discharge the independent responsibilities of their class, such responsibilities as educating their children, meeting their own medical expenses, paying for various types of insurance, particularly to make provision for their old age.

But the tribute which the people of moderate means have earned has been deserved not only by the extent of their contribution but by the spirit in which they have been made. Without demonstration or complaint they have given all that has been asked of them and have added their voluntary gifts.

Finally, no other class in Canada has suffered more from the anxieties and tragedies of war, as their sons have fought and died on land, sea and in the air. Even in the final sacrifices of war, they have never been found wanting.

Such is the wartime record of the people of moderate means. Such will be the basis of their expectations for a fairer and more equal deal in the arrangements of post-war Canada.

THE CABLED GIBE

It is never easy for a Briton to evaluate American utterances, to remember in face of some hostile expression the great weight of favourable sentiment, or to know for how many or how few the hostile voice may speak. The gibe is cabled; the friendly remark is not, and the Briton, being human, retains the gibe as the voice of America and reacts all the more violently within because his own opportunities for expression have been so strictly curbed.

Our own impression is that the British are oversensitive, attaching undue importance to comparatively unrepresentative utterances. But that there is a duty to restraint and responsibility upon Americans, also, cannot be denied.—New York Herald Tribune.

A Bible Message

And Moses called all Israel, and said unto them, Hear, O Israel, the statutes and judgments which I speak in your ears this day, that ye may learn them, and keep, and do them.

The Lord our God made a covenant with us in Horeb.... I am the Lord thy God, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage. Thou shalt have none other gods before me....

These words the Lord spake unto all your assembly in the mount out of the midst of the fire, of the cloud, and of the thick darkness, with a great voice....

Ye shall observe to do therefore as the Lord your God hath commanded you: ye shall not turn aside to the right hand or to the left. Ye shall walk in all the ways which the Lord your God hath commanded you, that ye may live, and that it may be well with you, and that ye may prolong your days in the land which ye shall possess. (Deut. 5: 1, 2, 6, 7, 22, 32, 33.)

Letter To The Editor

EVERY BUSHEL NEEDED

Sir,—I wonder if the average busy urban reader has paused to ponder the following item in the news from Canberra: "Jan. 12—(AP).—More than 2,000,000 sheep have perished due to Australia's worst drought since the country was settled by whites. The country's most productive acres have been turned into huge dust bowls. About 750,000 square miles—one-third of the continent—particularly the southeastern portion, is affected?"

This rural Canadian measures the above disaster, with the following yardstick: According to the statistics bureau (Ottawa) in 1943 the total number of sheep in the Dominion was 3,459,000, and the combined area of the three Western provinces (Manitoba-Saskatchewan-Alberta) is given in the Canada Year Book as 753,000 square miles!)

The picture in Australia is dark enough, at the moment, without further detail—but the question in this reader's mind is: What are the prospects for next year's yield from those parched acres, in terms of either meat or wheat?

Drought, as you doubtless know, has a cycle pattern and a tendency to feed on the preceding season's lack of moisture. I am glad that Canada still has a sizable "emergency war reserve" of the vital breadgrain; although I note that the experts figure that the carryover at the close of the present crop year (July 31, 1945) may be down to 200 million bushels, or just about 33⅓ per cent. the "in store" supply as recently as July 31, 1943.

In the circumstances, not alone in Australian fields but in terms of human hunger around the world, I feel that the less we hear about "surplus" Canadian wheat, the better? Apparently Nature has more ways of balancing her cereal accounts "than this world dreams of".

It is my conviction that every last bushel in Canadian bins will be called for; that more "food" will be shipped in the next half dozen years than since September, 1939.

Passmore-Perdue Vows Solemnized

Against the background of the fireplace decorated with flowers and candelabra, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Manning of London, Ontario, Winnifred Irma Perdue and Bandsman Edward Murray Passmore were united in marriage at a pretty ceremony of interest on Saturday. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. H. R. Phoenix of Toronto and the late Edward Perdue of Peterborough, and the groom, with the R.C.A.M.C. Band, stationed at Camp Borden, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet S. Passmore of Forest, Ontario.

Rev. Gladstone E. Wood officiated, and Mrs. F. W. Manning played the wedding music. During the signing of the register, W. Hugo Manning sang "Because."

Given in marriage by Fred Manning, the bride was charming in a street-length frock of gold crepe, with a corsage of pink and yellow roses. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Frank Acheson, as matron of honor. She wore a street-length cinnamon brown wool jersey dress, with a corsage of pink carnations and violets. Bandsman Jack Fearnol was best man.

After a buffet luncheon served to the guests following the ceremony, the bride and groom left for a wedding trip to Windsor and Detroit, the bride travelling in a green wool dress, with green coat trimmed with mink, and brown accessories. On their return they will make their home in Toronto.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Cheese is a highly concentrated, economical, form of food. Cheese contains many essentials minerals and vitamins, proteins to build new tissue and repair old tissues; minerals to build strong bones and teeth; vitamin A, for maintaining healthy mucous membranes in the nose, throat and eyes; vitamin B for vim, vigor and vitality; vitamin C, essential for normal body growth. Following are some recipes using cheese.

Cheese Biscuits

2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 cup of grated cheese, ¾ cup milk.

Sift together dry ingredients, add butter and mix in with a fork. Add cheese. Add milk to soft dough. Turn out on a floured board. Pat out with hands to ½-inch thickness, cut with small cutter and place on greased pan. Bake in hot oven 10 to 15 minutes.

Baked Potato and Cheese

6 large baked potatoes, 2 cups grated cheese, 1-3 cup hot milk, 2 teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon paprika.

Cut hot baked potato in half, lengthwise, and scoop out centres. Mash thoroughly. Add cheese to hot milk and beat with egg beater until smooth. Mix with the potatoes, add seasonings and whip until light and creamy. Refill the potato shells, return to hot oven (450 degrees F) and bake until brown on top.

Since cheese is such a concentrated food, it should be eaten in small amounts and should be associated at the same meal with bulky foods; such as fruits and vegetables. Cheese should take the place of meat or eggs and not to be used merely as an addition to a meal, already heavy with protein and fat.

Young Women's Auxiliary Joins Senior WMS Group

The Young Women's Auxiliary officially became affiliated with senior department of the Women's Missonary Society, and their officers for the new year were installed, at a special meeting Monday evening in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. A history of the founding and activities of the group was given by Miss Mary Greer.

Miss Greer's account explained that the work of the Young Women's Auxiliary was outlined to a group of eight girls, who had been invited to the home of Mrs. Harry Morgan, in 1931. The group, largely drawn from the AMOS Bible Class, decided to organize into an Auxiliary, and Mrs. C. E. Blewett was appointed by the WMS to act as "mother" for the new Auxiliary. Miss Lily Kay, now Mrs. George Coleman, Jr., was the first president.

Miss Aleitha Davidson, loaned to the Society by the Fraser Auxiliary, was president during 1932-33, and in 1933, Mrs. Walter Perks, then leader of the Senior Mission Band, brought her group into the Auxiliary. Mrs. Perks was president in 1933-34. During the years Miss Mary Greer was president, 1935-36-37, free-will givings through envelopes, and topics from study books were inaugurated, while a library was started in 1938-39-40, when Miss Marjorie Nesbitt was president, and it was also decided to sell Christmas cards to add to the expense fund, she reported.

An important change in the order of service was instituted during Miss Margaret Morgan's presidency, 1941-42, when members decided, because of the stress of war time, that the National Anthem and a prayer for the nation should be included in the service. Miss Agnes Finnie was president in 1943, and in 1944 Miss Harriet McGeary was in the chair, when plans for the Auxiliary's graduation from the Young Women's Department into the senior department of the Women's Missionary Society were laid.

Mrs. S. Johnston was in charge of the formal installation of officers for 1945, as follows: Honorary President, Mrs. S. Johnston; Past President, Miss Harriet McGeary; President, Mrs. C. R. Hagerman; Vice-Presidents, Miss Verna Johnston, Mrs. R. Buchanan, Miss Margaret Parker; Secretary, Mrs. J. Hemphill; Treasurer, Miss Marjorie Nesbitt; Glad Tidings, Miss Ethel Rae; Sewing and Recreational convener, Miss Marjorie Best; Reading and Fellowship convener, Mrs. D. Dickson; Study convener, Mrs. R. McDermid; Devotional convener, Miss Harriett McGeary; Telephone committee, Mrs. W. Armstrong, convener; Welcome and Welfare convener, Mrs. P. Hawthorne; Social convener, Mrs. A. R. Wragge; Pianist, Mrs. Pearl Read.

Mrs. F. H. Rowan brought greetings to the group from the Peterborough Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society.

Auxiliary Hears Mrs. S. Johnston

The program for the January meeting of the St. Paul's Auxiliary Women's Missionary Society, was planned in keeping with the season. Mrs. S. Johnston was guest speaker, and gave an address on "Happy New Year."

She felt that these words were used too often without any real meaning behind them. 'Every new year begins with joyous anticipation but changes to a montonous routine all too soon," she said. "Happiness comes from within, and comes when Christ has a place in our lives. Not only the world of nature but the world of men is new, when men are Christians." She went on to explain that emphasis was placed then on the "other fellow," and ordinary tasks took on a new meaning. "Giving becomes a privilege, and prayer becomes communion with a friend," Mrs. Johnston continued. She also pointed out that "if we sow sparingly of happiness, likewise will we reap sparingly of happiness."

Mrs. L. R. Mitchell, accompanied by Miss M. R. Rannie, sang a solo, "I Walked To-day Where Jesus Walked." Mrs. A. Sollitt moved the vote of thanks on behalf of those present, to Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. Mitchell.

Brave Women In Holland To Help Refugees

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

SOMEWHERE IN HOLLAND, Jan. 16 (CP)—Netherlands women, exiled from their country by the occupation, or forced to flee from their homes by the Nazi conquerers, have been repaid for their years of training and waiting in Britain.

More than 300 of them are back in their own country now, as members of the Vrouwen Hulp Korps—Volunteer Women's Corps, bringing help to their countryfolk now when their need of help is great.

One detachment of 25 women clad in the khaki of the corps which is the same as the battledress worn by the C.W.A.C., work in this frontline town in a refugee centre. Dutch farmers, fleeing before the flood waters that the Germans have released on their farms, are brought here before being sent to Belgium for safety.

The women, whose commandant is a kindly grey-haired woman who married an Englishman, play an important part in the assistance of the refugees. Often they drive the lorries that venture across a bridge which the Germans are still shelling to collect the people.

When there are no refugees to be brought to the centre, they drive out into the flooded country, not far from enemy lines, to collect food for the centre. At the centre itself, which is in a large monastry, the women help feed the weary, hungry evacuees.

They work in the office where a record is kept of everyone who passes through the centre. Several are nurses, while the head of the hospital is a courageous Dutch woman doctor who escaped from Holland after the Germans had marched in.

Early Training

For more than a year these women prepared themselves for this job in England. They studied first aid. They learned to drive heavy trucks and to keep the cars serviced, how to stem epidemics and how to operate canteens.

Last year, in the cold, damp English spring, they lived and trained rigorously under canvas. Now they are all vigorous and healthy; equipped for the hard life they live here within constant sound of the guns, and for whatever should come later.

Their goal as they trained was to help with the rehabilitation of their own country, but when they came to Holland, in the wake of the army, they found other work to do first.

"This is a sad job," said the commandant. "People are pitiful when they have left their homes, everything behind them. Our work will be happier later when the days of repatriation comes and we are bringing people back to their homes."

NEW YEAR'S BABY BOY—The first baby to arrive in Peterborough in 1945 was Daniel Frederick Buller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Buller, 178 Lansdowne street. He is shown above with his mother, and is the youngest of three children, the other two being girls. Mr. Buller is a transport driver.

SUDDEN, activity, born of a clever or ingenious idea or plan, possibly of a strong and inexplicable emotional urge, may be responsilbe for an unusual leap forward in the direction of cherished hopes and ambitions. Unlooked for openings or opportunites arise, with friendly air or approbation from surprising success. These should be quickly and definitely grapsed, although with caution shrewd and well-balanced activities or operations, since an element of the subtle and exceptional are factors. Social, domestic, romantic and emotional engagements may give much gratification.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for an exciting, intriguing and stimulating drift of events, perhaps into unforseen, peculiar or curious adventures or experiences, affecting both personal and business affairs with far reaching denouements. There will be much stirring, about change and fresh ventures, in which ingenuity, originality, and clever strategies may be conspicuous—perhaps sensational or spectacular. Talents as well as emotions may be found active or under peculiar impetus under either of such categories. With wariness, astute maniplation and the inspiration of dependable friends or admirers much is to be gained, with increased personal gratification and happiness.

A child born on this day will have exceptional talents, ingenuity, enterprise and skill, and may carve a notable future for itsel, with friends and admirers adding to the attainment of rewards and happiness.

WAR WIFE DESERVES MEDAL
Lonesome, Bored Woman Prey To Pleasure And Flattery

A war wife says:

"Here is a situation that burns me up: At all the training and recreational centers, married men are entertained exactly as if they were single, and not an eyebrow is raised in their direction. But no efforts are made to cheer up the war wife. If she has any recreational outlet whatever, she must join one of the wives' clubs and be deprived even of the stimulating conversation of men. Just let her dare to look at a man or dance with one or step out with one, and up and down the full length of Main Street you can hear the gossips howl. And if she takes a job and works outside of her home, she is accused of neglecting her children. I call this situation unfair, intolerable and lousy."

It is quite true that the war wife, whether she stays at home or follows her husband from camp to camp, has a pretty thin time of it, and if she emerges from the experience without having acquired a soured disposition and a bed-raggled reputation, she deserves to have a hero's medal pinned on her breast.

War of Tongues

For her husband at the front has fought no harder battle than she has with loneliness and boredom, nor been in any more danger from the bullets of snipers than she has from the tongues of the neighbors. Naturally the chief sufferers are the young and pretty brides, accustomed to good times, who find themselves relegated to the society of Mama and Papa and other women, with no amusement except writing letters to their husbands and knittings sweaters.

But the elderly women, who are camp followers with children, do not escape scotfree. For it is a dreary experience to be a stranger among strangers, living in uncomfortable surroundings and with nobody to talk to except the baby.

These things make life drab enough to the woman whose husband is overseas, but nobody knows

His RHEUMATIC PAIN disappeared years ago

Many men and women, at the approach of their forties start to have various aches and pains which are attributed to "middle age". But not Mr. and Mrs. Patrick. They have enjoyed good health for 20 years. Mrs. Patrick writes:—

"For the past twenty years we have always taken a small dose of Kruschen in our early morning cup of tea — we never miss, not even on a holiday. My husband and I both largely owe our extremely good health to this treatment, and we are never afraid to say so. My husband, although 55 years of age, feels and looks no more than 45. He is a picture of health. Before he started with Kruschen, he suffered with rheumatic pain in his arm, but though this disappeared years ago, he will not give up his Kruschen."

—(Mrs.) L. C. Patrick.

Kruschen is a combination of natural salts which stimulate your liver, kidneys and digestive tract to healthy, regular activity. Kruschen helps ensure internal cleanliness, and to keep the blood-stream pure.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable of all Drug Stores. 25c and 75c.

Tourist Trade Compensates Export Decline—Porter

TORONTO, Jan. 16 — Canada must regard the tourist business as a major factor of its national economy in the postwar era, Ontario Planning and Development Minister Dana Porter yesterday declared at the annual meeting of the Toronto Convention and Tourist Association in the Royal York Hotel.

Basically an exporting nation, Canada always would be faced with periods in which its export trade would decline and unemployment would develop in many industries, he stated. Doubting that Government efforts, including subsidization of the construction industry, would overcome this problem, Mr. Porter pointed out that the tourist business offered positive means of bringing money into the Dominion to compensate for shrinking trade revenues.

Rehabilitation Possibilities

C. Q. Ellis, who was re-elected president of the association, said in his annual report that the tourist industry was being carefully surveyed for its possibilities for the rehabilitation of men and women returning to civilian life from the armed forces, and for the possible employment of many now engaged in war industries. Plans were already advanced for handicraft training, for education in hotel and resort operation, and even for instructing guides for visiting hunters and fishermen.

Indications were that travel will reach unprecedented proportions when the war ended and restrictions were lifted from gasoline and tires, Mr. Ellis said. "It is the duty of your association to use its enterprise, intelligence, experience and energy to bring to Toronto a large share of that travel," he added.

Many Conventions in Toronto

Although the number of conventions and conferences held on the North American Continent in 1944 dropped to 49 per cent of prewar figures, 320 were held in Toronto last year, T. H. R-McNally, executive vice-president of the association reported. Toronto's figure represented 97 per cent of its prewar average and the 320 meetings brought to the city 67,500 persons, whose spending was estimated at $2,526,262.

Tourist and vacation business in 1944 reached record volume, with Ontario receiving almost as much as the rest of the Dominion combined, he said. Toronto's share was approximately 500,000 tourists and vacation visitors and their spending was computed to be $4 million.

Mr. R-McNally expected an even larger flow of tourists this year. "The steamship companies now have bookings in excess of those at the beginning of any previous year and enquiries both for next summer and for post-war vacationing are steadily increasing," he said.

Mayor Saunders, who was elected honorary president of the association, reported that the Board of Control had voted to contribute toward the association's work, matching dollar for dollar up to $12,500 funds raised by the association itself.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

The green light was virtually given night baseball and other sport events yesterday at Washington by the war committee dealing with conventions and trade exhibitions. Such large gatherings, except where they tie in with war essentials, are banned after Feb. 1 in the United States but the government committee took the view athletic features would not require a special permit even if they were held at night. The use of fuel for extra lighting is to be restricted but the "brownout" rule will not apply to arclight sport fixtures.

Fernand Majeau and Jean Pusie have been reinstated as amateurs, it was announced by Quebec Amateur Hockey Association last night Pusie, long in pro ranks, is slated for a Montreal league team.

Bob Walton of Pittsburg Pirates, with 51 points, moved to within one point of the leading Bob Gracie of the same club in the week's scoring table of the American Hockey League released last night at New Haven. Courteau, Providence, and Cunningham, Cleveland, were tied for third with 46 points.

President Mervin (Red) Dutton of the National Hockey League has ordered a ban on unearned assists—variously known as cheap, phoney, complimentary — awarded by allegedly benevolent scorers in the respective big-time hockey cities. Dutton said yesterday at Montreal all clubs have been notified, and he added emphatically "if they don't follow the instructions, we'll have to do something else."

Buffalo fighters made a clean sweep of the Knights of Columbus international invitation amateur boxing card at Buffalo last night. Lightweight Charley Basile outpointed Bobby Gleeson of Hamilton, Ont. Middleweight Bill Bender defeated Bill Cochrane, Port Colborne, Ont., with body blows that had the husky Canadian puffing from the first round on.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 — (AP) — In the current "Inter-American" magazine, Janice N. Bauman reviews the amateur baseball world series at Caracas, Venezuela .... The article largely deals with squabbles, pop-bottle pitching, knife-wielding and a final argument when Mexico's team had to forfeit the deciding game because most of the players walked out in protest of a Venezuelan umpire's decision.... In conclusion, she quotes an exultant fan; Caracas: until now games as the birthplace of Bolivar; hereafter to be known as the Brooklyn of South America."

One-minute sports page.

A hint on what may happen when they start reclassifying 4-F athletes: a year or so ago Rochester had a swell shortstop, Al (Red) Schoendienst, who was considered a cinch to stick around and maybe go up to the Cardinals because an eye injury had put him in 4-F .... But Al was reclassified and inducted .... the other day owner Sam Breadon of the Cards received word that Schoendienst had been discharged.

Streak stuff: Waterville, Maine, High School is shooting for its 50th consecutive basketball victory tonight. And Dartmouth's hockey team has played 45 without a loss .... Six Eastern United States colleges already have entered the West Point track relays, January 27. Five of them might as well save transportation and let the cadets run time trials.

Draft Board Recalls Pep

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 16 — (AP)—Willie Pep of Hartford, the world's featherweight boxing champ (New York version) who has a medical discharge from the United States Navy, today faces a pre-induction physical examination here, the result of which may set a trend for the country's sports scene.

Pep, who served a nine-months hitch in the Navy, is the first big-name athlete called by his draft board for re-examination since the recent announcement of the selective service plans to force non-essentially employed 4-Fs into war work.

If Willie is accepted for Army service, despite his Navy medical discharge, it might mean that hundreds of professional athletes, now classified as 4-F, may be placed in khaki or blue.

Since his discharge from the Navy for "physical disability," Pep (Papaleo) has made 16 ring appearances, winning all, 14 decisions and two knockouts. He has won 83 of 84 fights, 62 in a row before being outpointed by Sammy Angott March 29, 1943.

Columnist Says Players Scarce

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 —(CP) — Dan Parker New York Mirror sports columnist, concluded regretfully today that New York-bred boys never will become hockey players good enough for the National League.

"Hockey players, it seems, are born, not made," Parker wrote in his column in which he told of seeing a Metropolitan amateur Hockey League game here Sunday. "If any of them (New York boys) ever becomes a Major League hockey player it will be either through mistake or a miracle."

The columnist lauded Hank (Toujours) D'Amore of Niagara Falls, Ont., New York Rovers star, saying:

"If his parents had chosen to settle in South Brooklyn, Hank probably would have wound up as the centre of his neighbourhood football team and never donned a pair of ice skates. But geography decided his sports destiny and he's on his way to the Major Leagues.."

MONT TREMBLANT, Qce., Jan. 16.—(CP).—Marian Zajac, a Polish Air Force officer attached to the RCAF, led 57 competitors Sunday in the Laurentian zone's double downhill ski event, speeding down the trails in the combined time of 2:25.2.

Zajac, a veteran of operations over Europe, is stationed at Montreal's Dorval Airport. He has represented Poland in international ski competitions.

Here's the situation: Makers of telephone equipment have been busy on orders of all kinds for the armed services. For them, the time to start reconverting still lies ahead. Even after war needs have been met, these manufacturers must make a major change-over before they can resume normal production of supplies for civilian use . . . Which means that we must continue to defer many requests for telephone service, awaiting the day (we hope it may not be too long delayed!) when materials in adequate volume and skilled manpower again become available. The applications on our waiting list will be filled as promptly and fairly as possible, on a first-come-first-served basis.

Lach Gets Nine Points Over Week-end

MONTREAL, Jan. 16 —(CP) — Elmer Lach, speedy centre-star of Montreal Canadiens, netted nine points in the week ending Sunday and advanced to a first-place tie with his teammate, Toe Blake, in the official National Hockey League statistics released to-day. Lach added three goals and six assists, bringing his total to 46.

Blake, playing the same number of games, was able to accumulate three goals and one assist, while Maurice Richard, the third member of the Habitants' first string added three goals and an assist to bring his total to 43 and set him in third place behind Lach and Blake.

Syd Howe of Detroit Red Wings and Bill Cowley of Boston Bruins continued hot in pursuit of the leading Toe Blake and added three points each to bring their totals to 40.

Richard continued to set the pace among goal-getters, his total reaching 28 while Lach dominated the assists column with 33. Pat Egan's record as the league badman was unchallenged, the Bruins' defenceman's total in the penalty box rising to 50 minutes.

Frank McCool of Toronto Maple Leafs lead the league goaltenders in shut outs with two and his goals against average stood at 3.322, second only to Bill Durnan of Montreal who has average of 2.367 goals scored on him in 22 games.

Babe Ruth took a $17,000 salary cut to play with New York Yankees 11 years ago to-day. He received $35,000 for a one-year contract and retired a year later. Including his 1934 salary his aggregate income from the Yankees over a 15-year period was $842,000.

Hollywood and HERE

By HYE BOSSIN

There is much lack of satisfaction with the way Academy awards are made and a number of opposition honors are being bestowed. The most recent was by the Hollywood Writers' Mobilization. Now Hollywood trade unions are threatening to set up their own awards . . . Gloria Jean, who was being groomed by Universal to replace Deanna Durbin when that young lady wouldn't co-operate, has just been released by the studio. She's still a great attraction, however, drawing $3,000 for each personal appearance . . . A film story of the life of Billy Rose, small-sized producer of giant attractions, is being planned and Esther Williams, originally a swimmer, may play the role of Eleanor Holmes, wife of Rose, who was a great swimmer in her day.

Latest accusation about stories being stolen from the original author has to do with "Wilson." Complainant wants $500,000 . . . There was a sign in front of a Brooklyn theatre recently which read: "No show tonight. Leading man drafted" . . . A soldier in the Pacific named Storm wrote Gale Storm that he and his wife were giving their baby that name. Child was born during a hurricane . . . Quebec has Sunday movies but there seems to be growing or inspired opposition to their continuation . . . Although the Ontario Government hasn't announced officially that it will impose an amusement tax on theatre tickets soon, newspaper reports have caused labor unions in Toronto and other places to protest against the possibility.

Lynn Bari, working with Fred MacMurray in "First, Last and Always," is happy because at last she can wear shoes in a love scene. Usually she is so much taller than her leading man that she has to go shoeless but MacMurray is a lanky lad.

Miss Bari's success is the result of perseverance and not overnight discovery and a publicity campaign. Thirteen years ago she came to Twentieth Century-Fox studios as a stock girl. Stock girls, during the period they are receiving training in dramatics, appear in night club scenes and others requiring pretty young ladies.

After 13 years at the same studio, during which time she has played every kind of a role, she will act as Mrs. Eddie Rickenbacker, a star part.

First act of Ginny Simms, as mayor of Northbridge, California, was to give the Chamber of Commerce cuspidor to the scrap drive . . . Lucille Bremmer, a redhead, plays Judy Garland's sister in MGM's "Meet Me in St. Louis." She quit a good job as a Radio City Rockette a few years ago to try the movies. Every top studio in Hollywood but MGM tested her and said she wouldn't do. So she went back to dancing in choruses and one day an MGM producer saw her and gave her a test . . . They are trying to get Humphrey Bogart to sing in his next film but he refuses on the grounds that it will make him sound like a softie . . . John Payne, who used to be married to Ann Shirley, should be Gloria DeHaven's husband by now.

Marmora Team Beats Tweed Second Straight

MARMORA, Jan. 16.—(ENS). — Stirling-Marmora Combines continued their winning streak in junior 'B' hockey, defeating Tweed on the home rink on Monday night by 8-4. The homesters were without Trumble, who did the hat trick against the same opponents on Friday evening. This time it fell to the lot of Cousins to get three goals in a game which was exciting and marked with many penalties. The Combine centre also had two assists to his credit. The Combines led at the end of the first period 2-1. Tweed took the lead in the second period after eight minutes of play, but later Lavender evened the score again and before the period closed Stapley netted, to bring his team into the lead once more. In the final period, Thompson opened the scoring to make the count 4-4. Then Cousins, who had had ill luck with previous shots, beat Trudeau on a pass from Goodchild. Four minutes later he scored again through L. Gehan's assist. Lavender added another goal within a minute and two minutes before the final bell sounded, Cousins got the eighth goal, again through L. Gehan's fumble. The best crowd of the season witnessed the game.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Jan. 16 — (CP). — Cassandra's who have been prognosticating woe all over the place and forecasting the end of all major professional sports in the United States and possibly Canada, were set back on their heels by the announcement there would be no restriction on lighting for night baseball games and other owltime sports.

That makes it look as though the U.S. Government doesn't intend to snuff out baseball immediately, since the latest revelation is an indication professional sports can continue as far as the officials are concerned.

Of course, the only drawback is that, if all the much-discussed 4-effs are thrown into war plants or culled through for material fit to shoulder a rifle or do K.P. at home Army camps, it will still be tough to get enough players to get any kind of a baseball game going —one-o-cat excluded.

Perhaps the idea is to soften the blow to the long-suffering public. Even a sandlot and sack might look fairly respectable under the lights, but in the bright sunshine, no.

Away, Silver!

The horse fanciers in Western Canada seem to be stocking up on four-footed free-wheeling equipment now that there is such a surplus of same on the shelf south of the border.

Out in Vancouver, there is talk that several new horses will be imported, now that it's been established that the beasts can be shipped up here if the deal is legitimate and not just a dodge to circumvent U.S. anti-racing laws.

Calgarians, too, are interested, and several reported purchases have been mentioned.

If enough nags are bought up and sent to the green pastures of the Canadian West, it might mean some interesting racing out there next summer — if no monkey wrenches are thrown into the Canadian racing set-up.

St. Kitts Move Nearer The Top

By The Canadian Press.

St. Catharines Saints tightened up the Ontario Hockey Association senior race last night with a 4-2 victory over Staffords in the scheduled tilt at Toronto, the result enabling the Garden City squad to match Hamilton Majors in games won with five conquests apiece. But Majors cling to leadership in the standing by a margin of two points by reason of two tie matches with the same Staffords. Toronto continues in the hole with a mere four points, six below Saints, on the strength of one victory and two split decisions in nine starts.

In this second straight win for St. Catharines, the Saints overcame an early Toronto 1-0 lead when Blink Bellinger equalized and repeated before the close of the first period. Goble scored No. 3 for the visitors for the only counter of the second chapter and each team had a goal in the final frame. It was Bellinger who virtually decided the issue with his two in the initial round.

Apart from Bellinger and Goble, Fritz was a Saints' scorer and assists went to Wallace, Comfort, Adamson, Concessi and Fritz. Dafoe snared both of Staffords' counters and assists credits were awarded to Drummond, Seafred and Calhoun. There were only four penalties.

Boston Bruins Have Chance To Break Tie

By FRED KERNER,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

The Boston Bruins have a chance to-night to gain a lap on New York Rangers in the battle for the fourth place play-off spot in the National Hockey League standings for which the two teams now are tied. That chance comes as the Bruins entertain Toronto Maple Leafs in Boston. And as the Leafs have proven a soft touch as far this season on Boston ice, the Rossmen can be pardoned if they seem ultra-confident of the outcome.

Aside form the Boston-New York battle for a chance at the Stanley Cup scramble, there is little right now in the race among the top teams to give the fans something to gossip about. Hence they can be pardoned if they get around to discussing the annual awards.

And when the talk comes round to awards, you can rest assured that the most of it is about the rookie award.

Tiny Thompson, a goalie of no mean ability in his days with Boston and now chief scout for brother Paul's Chicago squad, commented two years ago that Frank McCool, Toronto's netminder, "gets results and that's what counts."

That was when the angular Irishman played for Calgary Army —a team that made the Western Canada Allan Cup semi-finals, losing to Victoria Army 3-2 in the five game series. Thompson said then that McCool was not the best netminder in the world to watch, because of his serious style, but added he had high regard for the Calgary-born sports writer.

This season McCool—who's not as cool as his name— has earned himself a pair of N. H. L. shutouts, something which up until two weeks ago, no other goalie had done even once this year. In 28 games he's had 93 goals scored on him. That average of 3.32 goals per game ranks him second in the league in respect to fewest goals scored against.

Only two goalers have won the rookie award in the 12 years it has been given. In 1936 Mike Karakas was pronounced the outstanding rookie of the year and in 1939 Frankie Brimsek took the freshman honors.

There will be ample support for Steve Wochy, Detroit's prize rookie. Rookie Wochy is fifth highest goal scorer in the N. H. L. to-day with 15 goals, only three behind his teammate Mud Bruneteau, and is second highest goal-getter on the Wings.

Canadians Mine Tunnel Trap Germans

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC, Jan. 16—(CP Cable) — The Governor General's Horse Guards, a Toronto armored reconnaissance unit, was the formation which helped liquidate a German company last Thursday night it was permitted to disclose today.

Aided by Italian Partisans, the Toronto unit killed 22, wounded eight and took 40 prisoners when the Germans sought to establish an outpost on the south side of the Reno River south of the spit of land separating Lake Comacchio from the Adriatic, about 10 miles north of Ravenna. The Germans were attacked by the Canadians in tanks after British gunners laid down a barrage.

On Saturday, meanwhile, other Germans were wiped out by Alberta troops on the Senio River near Fusignano, 13 miles north and slightly east of Faenza.

Two Alberta infantrymen, who saw shovels coming through the enemy-held dike on the opposite side of the river, made a note of the spot. That night an enemy patrol came through. The Canadians let the Germans infiltrate their positions and then crossed the river and they mined and booby-trapped the tunnel. The Germans returned a half hour later and had just got nicely in the tunnel when the mines exploded, causing the dike to cave in on top of them.

PALESTINE A DOMINION?

CAMBRIDGE, England — (CP). — Samuel Landman, former secretary of the international zionist association, urged in an address to university students here that Palestine should be incorporated within the Empire with the eventual status of a self-governing Dominion.

STREET FIGHTING IN BUDAPEST—German tank columns hammered a number of salients into the Russian lines on a broadening front 15 to 19 miles west and northwest of Budapest, while Soviet forces struck back north of the Danube in a counter-drive that threatened to roll up the flank of the Nazi relief army. # Farmers Given 94 Millions In '43

By R .K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 16.—(CP).— The Agriculture Department has estimated that Canadian farmers in 1944 received approximately $94,-142,000 in subsidies and bonuses from the Dominion treasury compared with $77,044,130 in 1943. The 1944 figures are approximate as all returns have not been received.

There were several changes in the 1944 subsidies compared with the previous year, but last week Agriculture Minister Gardiner said the intention was to continue last year's subsidies in 1945 without any important alteration.

Hog premiums were started early in 1944 and $13,400,000 in premiums were paid during the year. The bonus is $3 on each grade "A" pig marketed and $2 on each grade "B1." It applies only to pigs graded under government supervision so pigs butchered on farms and marketed as dressed pork do not rate the bonus.

The premiums are designed to encourage hog raisers to improve their products and to market their pigs to government-inspected abattoirs. A few years ago the bulk were slaughtered on farms and this interfered with the Department's efforts to improve the quality, as most of them were never graded. Last year roughly 8,750,000 pigs were slaughtered at abattoirs and about 2,500,000 slaughtered on farms.

Bonuses for wheat acreage reduction were discontinued last year so this item for $31,017,799 in the 1943 list was reduced to $8,200,000 in 1944, covering payments deferred in previous years. Marked increases were shown in most of the subsidies to the dairy industry, chiefly because of increases in the rates.

Fertilizer subventions were down because of a new system of figuring these subventions which did not work out so advantageous to farmers.

Big Increase.

There was a big increase last year in government assistance to growers of crops for the canning industry and also in the drawbacks granted on feed wheat.

The list issued by the Department did not indicate what it might cost the Dominion treasury to keep the price of wheat, basis No. 1 Northern at the head of the lakes at $1.25 a bushel.

Officials contended it was impossible to estimate this drain on the treasury because some of the wheat the Wheat Board buys at $1.25 is exported, for instance, as a gift to Greece and under mutual aid agreements.

Canadian millers buy roughly 50,000,000 bushels of wheat to grind into flour for domestic use each year and on every bushel bought at $1.25 they get a drawback of 47½ cents. This is not regarded as a subsidy either to the farmers or the millers but to the consumers, since the effect is to keep down the price of bread. The drawbacks are paid through the Prices Stability Corporation.

In fact, none of stabilization board payments is included because, although indirectly some of them may reach the farmers, the object is to keep down consumer prices:

Earliest Quality Tomato Yet Developed —Valuable For All Parts of Canada

Of immense value for the North and West and other short season districts. Highly desirable for all other areas too as an extra early sort producing fine quality ripe fruit as much as two weeks or more before most other varieties. # British Spirit Described To Rotary Club

The immortal spirit and faith of the average British citizen during the great Nazi air raids of 1940-41, was a major point in an address by Brigadier the Rev. Canon C. G. Hepburn, Principal Protestant Chaplain of the Canadian Army (Active), to the Peterborough Rotary Club Monday afternoon. Ministerial Association members were guests for the meeting.

In swift deft strokes, he painted a poignant word-picture of life in London during the blitz, and of the courage and confidence shown by average people that has won the admiration of the world. Occasionally, Brig. Hepburn drew from his richly-humorous store of English memories some anecdote to illustrate an incident in his talk and throughout his address, the humor and wit symbolic of Britain in her darkest days, was a feature.

Imparts Confidence

Brig. Hepburn said that Big Ben, London's famous timepiece, is symbolic of Britain.

"When I first heard Big Ben in 1940, a feeling of confidence, and security surged over me, a feeling that come what may, Old Ben would be there, booming out the hours; in the same place, and with no excitement. That is symbolic of the British people. Of course, they are not infallible. Sometimes we become irritated at them in normal times, when they appear to us to be slow. I heard a saying once, 'You can't frighten an Englishman, but you can't hurry him either'. The confidence I felt when Big Ben boomed, I felt time and again in England. In spite of death, or casualties, or strain, the British are carrying on their work just the same", he said.

Brig. Hepburn spoke of Nelson's Monument, standing still in Trafalgar Square. "I just stood there and looked at it when I first saw it, and when you think of how long it has been there, and what it stands for, it is certainly symbolic of the British people", he said.

An impressive symbol is that of the flock of pigeons who come to the base of Nelson's monument, he said. They came back every day of the blitz, confident they would be fed, and that there would be people there to feed them. And there were, always, Brig. Hepburn recalled.

These and other tales, Brig. Hepburn offered as the outward and visible signs, of inward and spirtual truths. Brig. Hepburn was introduced by Rotarian Chris Graham, and thanked by Rotarian J. A. Dewart.

Veteran of Two Wars

Brig. Hepburn served with distinction in the first Great War, and returned home to become Rector of All Saints Anglican Church, in Ottawa, where he remained for many years. When the present war broke out, he volunteered for active service and proceeded overseas early in the conflict. Promotion was rapid, and he returned to Canada in the autumn of 1943 he was a lieutenant-colonel, and Deputy Assistant Principal Chaplain overseas. Upon his return to Canada, he was promoted to his present rank and appointed Principal Protestant Chaplain in succession to Bishop Wells, retired.

Miss Cora Charlton entertained the meeting with two vocal selections, including "Arise O Sun", accompanied by Harry Northrop at the piano. The singer then led the members and guests in singing "I Am A Canadian". Rotarian Art E. Cauley presented the vocalist with a gift.

Among the special guests were Captain Harry Marsh, Flying Officer William Hamilton, D.F.C., and Major James Turmbull.

Mrs. Tully suffered a cut one the forehead and nose and Mr. Tully was thrown on the road but was unhurt. Mr and Mrs. Tully were on their way to Dartford and were able to drive the car home. SERVING IN HOLLAND—FO. Floyd (Bud) Loveless, overseas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Loveless, Delora, wrote that he expected to meet his brother, LAC. James L. Loveless on New Year's Eve. Both are serving in Holland.

CHILDREN MARRIED—A police hunt in three cities ended when Ted Bonifield, 16, and his sweetheart, Nellie Walls, 15, returned home to Baseline (Detroit suburb) united in the bonds of matrimony. Parents of the runaways, who had instigated the hunt, accepted the marriage philosophically and indicated no steps would be taken to annul the union.

Chandos Councillors Plan Post War Study

At the first 1945 meeting, members of the Chandos Council decided to set up a committee to deal with planning and development of post war construction. The committee will consist of the Council as a whole, on a motion of John Reynolds and Harold Campbell.

On a motion by Reynolds and Campbell, the Chandos Council approved the building of a road from Havelock to Coe Hill, via Chandos Township, and the road by-law for a total of $6,500 for 1945 was also passed.

Councillors made several appointments for 1945. They included Theo Post as weed inspector; Irwin Hilker as Fence Viewer; and Charles Post as sheep valuator. They were all appointed to fill vacancies.

It was also decided that the Road Superintendent's salary should be raised five cents an hour and the Clerk was instructed to make application for the road subsidy for 1944.

Hospital Bill Draft Studied By Council

Provision for the appointment of an advisory board of twenty-five members by the Board of Governors of Peterborough's Civic Hospital was included in a draft of its Private Bill which was reviewed by the council Monday night with only several slight alterations in the text.

The advisory board was recommended by the Ontario Minister of Health, Hon. Dr. R. P. Vivian and may be made up of representatives of organized labor, service clubs, county agricultural associations, county Women's Institutes and city women's organizations, Canadian Legion, Chamber of Commerce, Automobile Club, Ministerial Association, legal profession, and probably others.

Mayor Hamilton commended the proposal of the Minister of Health, remarking that in his experience he was firmly in accord with the enlisting of many citizens in such public projects as a means of disseminating facts and information and thereby obtaining popular interest and support.

The council spent an hour in considering the elements of the proposed Bill to authorize and incorporate the new hospital. It was read clause by clause by City Solicitor Huycke, and in the words of Mayor Hamilton it represented a great amount of study and other preparation by the special hospital committee of which Alderman Sands is chairman.

Mother Loses All 4 Sons Proud Of Them

By JOAN CAPREOL
Reuters Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 16.— (CP-Reuters).—A London mother who, only a few days ago, learned that the last of her four airmen sons had been killed in this war, to-day said she felt no bitterness but was "desperately proud of them all."

"I can only feel that it is a glorious thing to have brought up and educated four sons who never gave me a moment's trouble and who have now so willingly given their lives for their country," said Mrs. Irene Lane, whose four boys were all sons of her first husband, the late Dr. Patrick Garland.

The first son to lose his life was FO. Donald Garland, who was awarded the Victoria Cross in June, 1940 for leading an attack on a bridge over the Albert Canal which was allowing the Germans to advance into Belgium. Five crews volunteered for this hazardous duty. Only one man came back.

Mrs. Lane, on the arm of her eldest son, Flt. Lt. Patrick Garland, of whose death in a flying accident at the age of 35 she has just recently learned, went to Buckingham palace to receive the medal from the king.

The death of another son, Flt. Lt. John Garland was announced in March, 1943, and PO. Desmond Garland's death in action was reported in September, 1942.

Mrs. Lane, her face lined with suffering but with her lips still smiling, said: "In the last war I lost every young friend I had.

"All the young fellows of my own age were killed. My own boys were only little toddlers at my knee then and I remember saying, 'Thank God that there will be no more wars to take my boys from me when they grow up,' but I was wrong and now they have all gone."

TORONTO, Jan. 16.—(CP). —A majority deicsion handed down in Ontario Court of Appeal has ruled that an ordinary fire insurance policy does not cover a dwelling or its contents if the tenant or tenant-owner of the dwelling resides elsewhere for more than 30 consecutive days. The decision reversed judgment of Mr. Justice J. Keiller McKay at Hamilton.

Ernest H. Howson Re-elected Head Of Cemetery Co.

E. H. Howson was re-elected president of the Little Lake Cemetery Company at the annual meeting, Monday afternoon, along with the other 1944 officers and directors, following a successful year.

This is the second year for Mr. Howson and the other officers are vice president, Mayor James Hamilton; secretary-treasurer, Miss E. J. Saunders and superintendent, C. F. Kitney. Directors are: E. A. Peck, K.C., R. J. Kidd, H. A. Morrow, W. J. Thompson, Dr. J. E. Middleton, Herbert I. Bradburn and William P. Eastwood.

Mr. Howson reviewed the year's work explaining that the Board had secured what it considered an ideal site comprising some 50 acres on the east side of the Otonabee River immediately across from the present cemetery. A survey is being made of the new property, he said, and in due course it will be landscaped, and within three or four years should be available for use.

"For the past few years your directors have been faced with the problem of securing additional cemetery space, as available lots in the present cemetery are rapidly being used up. Obviously, the site chosen had to be close to the city and had to conform to cemetery requirements as regards soil, drainage and elevation.

"As you will notice from the financial statement, the year's operations show a profit of $621.23, while 1943 showed a surplus of $548.40. Investments were increased by $600 during the year.

"In spite of the labor shortage, the superintendent was able to maintain a fair staff and the cemetery during the past year presented its usual well-kept appearance.

"In closing, I would like to express our appreciation of the able manner in which the superintendent and secretary-treasurer have performed their duties. Personally, I am also gratified for the 100 per cent co-operation of all the members of the Board."

The superintendent, Mr. Kitney, reported on his work during the year.

"It looked in the early part of the season as though considerable of the routine work of the cemetery would have to be neglected, as we were shorter handed than we were the year before. We succeeded in getting a small gas engine from the Outboard Marine and rigged up one of the old discarded power motors. This we were able to use on the lots and with three hand mowers we kept the grass cut. This released two men for flower work, making it possible to look after all the flower orders. We were unable to clean the roads each month, and by leaving the grass on some unused ground, we think we kept thigs fairly respectable.

"During the summer we relaid some of the old water lines, which have given us considerable trouble, because they were laid across the lots where they sagged and could not be drained, the result being that the frost in the winter burst them. We laid the new lines along the roads and in the paths on solid ground. New lines were laid in Section 'X' and Section 'P,' making approximately 2,500 feet of line laid with stand pipes and taps.

"Section "X" at the south end of the cemetery was finished grading and sodded and is being sold for single graves. There are 455 grave in this section of which 86 are already sold.

"Through the cooperation of the city, county and Jupp Construction Company we were able to oil and chipp about one and a half miles of road at a cost of $681.89.

"Last March we ordered a Barco gas hammer for breaking through the frost and digging hardpan. It was delivered in December, but we haven't had a chance to test it as yet.

"During the year there have been 284 interment, 63 lots sold, 57 single graves, 45 foundations for monuments, 12 plots under permanent care."

Home And School Associations Hear Talk On Venereal Disease

The Home and School Council, in an effort to make parents more conscious of venereal disease, held an open meeting on Monday evening in the Y.M.C.A. with Mrs. E. Chambers presiding.

Introduced by Mrs. C. H. Crowe, Dr. R. A. Kelly, M.O.H. for Peterborough, was the speaker, and started his talk by showing a sound film on venereal disease sent from the Provincial Department of Health. The pictures pointed out that this disease is no respector of persons, and is a major public health problem.

"Only by everyone coming forward voluntarily and having a painless blood test," stated Dr. Kelly, "will there ever be any way of checking the disease. There have been 50,000 new cases reported in Ontario since the beginning of the war and 13,000 in Ontario in 1943. If a blood test shows positive, the disease can be cured by injections and medical treatment," Dr. Kelly said. "There should be more clinics, especially in the rural districts and longer hours to permit the working public to get attention. There should be additional personnel to look after these people. Public opinion must change, too, because those who go for treatment are doing their duty in helping to stamp out the disease.

"Blood tests should be made on all persons before being employed, before marriage and well before child-birth. The public," said Dr. Kelly, "should be educated to be on the alert for and guard against V.D. The Provincial Department of Health will help out on any public effort along this line, with finances, literature, speakers, films, radio talks, etc., but the leadership must come from the community.

"Such a campaign is likely to be under way this spring," said Dr. Kelly, "and everyone has a part to play in the fight against venereal disease."

Dr. Kelly answered questions put to him by the audience, and stressed the fact that parents should educate and train their children in the home for a cleaner, healthier and happier life. The schools, too, should co-operate when the children reach high school age.

The meeting closed with the singing of God Save the King.

Alberta Starts Survey To Find Jobs

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 16 — (CP). — The Alberta government is making a province-wide survey to get facts and details on post-war reconstruction and employment opportunities, Premier Manning of Alberta said in an interview today.

Mr. Manning said he hoped the over-all Dominion picture on post-war planning would be clarified at the earliest moment by a Dominion-Provincial conference. Provincial and municipal governments should know what the Dominion's plans were and what assistance they could expect before they become tied up with too many commitments on individual projects.

Mr. Manning is spending a few days in Ottawa taking up a number of matters with the Federal Government in advance of the forthcoming session of the legislature. He expects to see Finance Minister Ilsley and Agriculture Minister Gardiner.

There have been no recent developments in negotiations for refunding Alberta government bonds on which there were defaults some years ago, the Social Credit premier said. The government would like to get the matter settled but there is nothing happening at the moment.

Too Many Ifs

"There is a great deal of talk about post-war projects which depend on somebody else doing something," said Mr. Manning.

"Municipalities talk of doing certain things if the provincial government or the Federal Government does something to help them. That even permeates business and commercial fields. I don't like to see post-war plans based on too many ifs and buts."

The province-wide survey opens today and is being carried on by a committee of the legislature in co-operation with boards of trade and chambers of commerce. It is hoped it will be completed in time for a report to the legislature at the coming session.

While the Alberta government wants Dominion-Provincial co-operation, it is opposed to centralization of control of "money or anything else," said Mr. Manning. It would like to see the Dominion assume part of the cost of services which are under provincial jurisdiction but of national interest, such as health and education but leave administration to the local government.

Commitments made already by the Federal Government in the field of social legislation, such as family allowances, were serious. The provinces should get their revenue sources back after the war without any new measures of centralization. If the Federal Government continued making commitments which would increase Federal Government money requirements, the prospects of this were lessened.

Willie Pep Taken For Army Service

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 16 — (AP). — The New Haven Register says that Willie Pep of Hartford, holder of the world's featherweight boxing championship in New York and several affiliated states, was accepted today for general army duty at the New Haven induction centre.

Pep served nine months in the U.S. Navy before he was granted an honorable discharge for medical reasons in June.

New Jap Planes

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 16 —(AP) —The Japanese Domei Agency today said a new Japanese fighter plane, the Hien (Flying Swallow), now was in action and had "already proved its mettle" in combat against American B29s raiding Japan. Other recently-announced new types of enemy aircraft are the Gekko (Moonlight)), the Tenzan (Heaven-Mountain), the Gingo (Milky Way,) the Susisei (Comet) the Toryu (Dragon-Slayer) and the Raiden (Lightining).

WO. II R. P. JOHNSTON

Service Medal Given WO. P. Johnston

WO. II R. P. (Perc) Johnston, who has been serving in the R.C.A.F. since August 1940, has been awarded the Canadian Efficiency Medal for 15 years service in the armed forces. His wife lives at 44 Lafayette avenue.

It is only recently that the Air Force has recognized the previous service in the Army of one of their men and that is how WO. Johnston became eligible. He spent about eight years with the 4th Field Battery and the Prince of Wales Rangers (RF) prior to enlisting, and his R.C.A.F. service has counted double.

Prior to enlisting, the airman was employed at the Canadian General Electric Company, and at the present time he is stationed at St. Eugene, Ont., where he is a physical training and drill instructor. He is the son of Mrs. B. Middleton, 660 Reid street, and a brother, Garnet, is with the R.C.A.F. at Lachine.

Bethel Baptist Raises $4,000

The members and friends of Bethel Baptist Church enjoyed a bountiful congregational supper in the basement of the church Monday at seven o'clock. Les Mountney moved a vote of thanks to the ladies for their fine provision of supper.

The regular annual congregational meeting of the church was then held in the church auditorium. The pastor, Rev. L. E. Jones, was elected chairman for the evening and Miss Verna Buchanan clerk. Wm. F. Welsh read the report of the financial state of the church; Myron Hill, the Sunday school report; Miss Edna Pomeroy reported for the Y.P., and Mrs. M. Long for the Women's Mission Circle. Total offerings for the year were about $4,000, of which amount $775 was given to missions, an increase of fifteen per cent. over last year.

The nominating committee's report was adopted and several changes in office were made from last year. The official board of the church for 1945 will be Rev. L. E. Jones, chairman; Miss V. Buchanan, clerk; and Wm. F. Welsh, Myron Hill, John Foster, Arthur Brodie, Mrs. John Smith.

Spirited Debate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 —(AP)—Senator Burton Wheeler (Dem.-Mont.) set off a cracking debate in the Senate yesterday by asserting that Europe is falling into Russia's grasp while the United States delays taking a firm stand against power politics. An administration supporter, Senator Claude Pepper (Dem.-Fla.), said that if Senator Wheeler "persists in urging the abandonment of the purpose of unconditional surrender in this crisis, it might cost more American lives than any statement Mr. Morgenthau may have made about destroying German industry."

40,000 Lost

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 —(AP)—American losses from Dec. 16 to Jan. 7 in the German counter-offensive are slightly under 40,000, including 18,000 reported missing. Secretary of War Stimson announced yesterday, saying that during the same period the Germans suffered overall losses of 90,000.

Bailieboro W.A. Assists Robomb Victims

Events of the last six months have very solidly established the fact that even with the Allied armies pressing close to the frontiers of the enemy nation in Europe, the civilian population of Britain are still far from being immune to attacks from the air, reports of the last few days confirming this to a marked degree.

Robomb attacks made on the London and south-eastern parts of Britain only as recently as Sunday, took a heavy toll in life and property, which included children and a church where a service was in progress, and serves as a definite illustration that no relaxation of effort to counteract the disaster that follows from such, could really be considered possible at this time.

Anything that is worth doing at all, is worth doing well. Past records have shown that in the giving of assistance to alleviate the sufferings of those afflicted through enemy attacks on the civilian life of Britain, this from a local standpoint has prevailed in the past, which in itself should act as a spur to continue the good work until the need no longer exists.

This city was privileged to have as a visitor on Monday, Brigadier Rev. Canon C. G. Hepburn, M.C., of Ottawa, principal Protestant chaplain, who has served a long period in the heart of the Empire at London, during the blitz. From a fine address given by him before the Rotary Club, using the outward symbols as a sign of inward grace as his theme, many of those present must have felt a thrill of satisfaction that the local and district fund had accomplished so much on behalf of those afflicted in Britain.

Paying great tribute to the fortitude with which the civilian population of Britain had stood up against the terror of war from the skies that might fall on them at any moment, he unconsciously aroused in the writer a wish that all of those who have given of their means to assist those who had been afflicted in this manner, might also have heard the message he conveyed at this time.

The Bailieboro Women's Auxiliary today takes a hand in sending some aid to those whom the most recent attacks have placed in a desolate position, and there probably never was a time in which their beneficience could have been more well expended.

In so doing they also uphold the true features of an auxiliary, which implies something that is always of a helpful nature, which they extend to a much wider field of usefulness, than that just encompassed by their own immediate district.

Another penny box collection is also included today, from a visit paid by the secretary of the fund to the boxes at the Bank of Toronto.

how to deal with the situation. A mother can't go gadding around in search of pleasure with an infant in her arms and a yearling clinging to her skirts. Nor can she leave them alone at home, with no one to see that they don't set the house on fire, or get smothered in their crib.

Obviously it is impossible to mitigate these women's lonesome evenings by bringing gay and entertaining people, who never heard of them, to their houses to buck them up. And if the wife does take matters in her own hands and starts out to hunt for pleasure, she does it not only at the peril of her good name, but also of her happiness. For a lonesome and bored woman, fed up with her own society, is the most vulnerable creature in the world. She is starved for pleasure, for flattery and for love-making, and she is the easy prey for any wolf who happens along.

Furthermore, she is being cruelly unjust to her husband because her conduct in stepping out with other men, no matter how innocent it may be, fills him with jealousy and suspicion that add the last touch to the suffering he is enduring.

Undoubtedly life is hard on the war wife, but how to make it pleasanter, nobody knows.

Strike Likely To End Soon

VANCOUVER, Jan. 16 — (CP). — Prospects of ending the strike of 2,700 street railwaymen in Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster — now in its eighth day — appeared brighter today as efforts were underway to bring parties of the deadlock together.

O. A. Rowan of San Francisco, International Union representative, who arrived during the week-end to attempt a settlement and get the street cars running again, expressed hope last night that a conference could be arranged.

He seeks to have officials of the British Columbia Electric Railway and the Street Railwaymen's Union (A.F.L.) meet with F. E. Harrison, Federal Department of Labor representative, and himself.

Yesterday Mr. Rowan conferred with company officials and Mr. Harrison. He said the company officials maintained the company could not negotiate with other union representatives until the men returned to work.

The strike began in the morning of Jan. 9 after the workers failed to gain increased wages and improved working conditions following negotiations extending over several months.

Murder Trial Opens In Old Bailey

LONDON, Jan. 16.—(CP).—Paratrooper Karl Gustav Hulten, 22, of Cambridge, Mass., to-day pleaded not guilty when he appeared in Old Bailey on charges of murdering George Edward Heath, a taxi-driver.

His co-defendant, strip-tease dancer Mrs. Elizabeth Marina Jones, 18, also pleaded not guilty.

It was the first time a United States soldier has ever faced murder charges in the famous old courtroom. The jury of 12 includes three women.

Hulten heard himself accused by his co-defendant of "cold-blooded murder."

A statement, attributed to Mrs. Jones, in which she described the shooting of Heath, known as "the man with the cleft chin," was read in court.

"That is cold-blooded murder," said the statement. "How could you do it?"

"People in my profession haven't time to think what they do," Hulten was quoted as replying.

Hulten, in pleading innocent, spoke in a firm voice, in contrast to the barely audible "not guilty" plea by Mrs. Jones, self-described as a "bad girl." Her husband was in the British airborne forces and is listed as missing in action.

Hulten drew pictures on a piece of blotting paper as the crown counsel read the details of the alleged crime, quoting them as the words of Mrs. Jones.

Her statement referred to Hulten as "Ricky" and told how they had hired Heath and directed him to drive them to a lonely spot.

"I heard a click and saw that Ricky had his automatic in his right hand," Mrs. Jones was alleged to have stated. "I realized he was going to frighten the driver with his gun to take his money.

"Heath leaned over from his seat with the obvious intention of opening the nearside door. As Heath was leaning over I saw a flash and heard a bang.

"Heath moaned heavily and turned a little towards the front. Rick said to him 'move over or I will give you another dose of the same.' He seemed to understand what he said because he moved further to the left hand side of the front seat. His head slumped on his chest. The next thing I realized was that Ricky was in the driving seat and the car was moving."

Mrs. Jones said Hulten told her to go through Heath's pockets before they rolled his body into a ditch. She said she took the wallet.

L. Byrne, opening for the Crown, introduced testimony in which both Hulten and the girl blamed each other for the crime. He contended that "although hers was not the hand that fired the shot, as a matter of law Jones is just as guilty as the person who actually did fire the shot."

Mr. Byrne quoted Hulten as saying:

"I would not have been here but for the girl. I wanted to go for a walk, but she didn't want to. We went into a shop doorway and she started yelling for a cab. The first one was a naval car. The next one was Heath's car and he stopped. Had it not been for her, I would not have shot Heath."

United States May Transfer Ships To Britain

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER, Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 —(AP) — Sale or transfer to Britain of a substantial amount of the war-built United States merchant fleet is receiving serious consideration from administration officials.

The idea has been suggested at various times as a result of the enormous amount of shipping now under American control, and of Britain's cargo deficit. Backing for it is so strong that it appeared likely to-day to become one of the main proposals for helping Britain recover from the effects of the war.

It may also become one of the focal points of controversy over the extent to which United States assistance should be given Allied countries. There appears to be a strong sentiment here also for trying to make the United States the world's leading martime power after the war.

There is a generally accepted policy of treating all the Allied countries on a basis of equal opportunity. Under this, France and other nations which have suffered heavy shipping losses as a result of the war would have opportunity along with Britain to acquire some of the American merchant fleet.

Decisions with respect to the fleet along with any recommendations which might be made to Congress on the subject, appear to be still somewhat in the future.

The United States has some 55,000,000 tons of shipping in hand. At the beginning of the war it had 11,000,00 tons. World tonnage as the war approaches its conclusion in Europe is about 95,00,000 whereas the beginning of the war it was 72,000,000. Thus the ocean-going cargo capacity at the disposal of the United States has gone up while that in the control of all other countries has decreased.

Judge Refuses To Release Asylum Inmate

MONTREAL, Jan. 16 — (CP).— Latest step in a case involving a $500,000 fortune, a request by Marie Loretta Lessard to have her husband, Garnet Napier Coyle of Perth, Ont., released from Verdun Protestant Hospital for Mental Patients, was rejected in Superior Court yesterday by Mr. Justice Pierre F. Casgrain.

Mr. Justice Casgrain ruled a patient's sanity must be proved before his release from an asylum could be ordered, and he accordingly annulled a writ of habeas corpus previously granted in the case.

The Judge said a person detained in an asylum cannot be discharged through habeas corpus, even if statutory requirements have not been complied with, so long as it is established the patient is insane.

The $500,00 fortune belongs to Coyle, but at present is administered by the Royal Trust Company. Mrs. Coyle would have shared in the fortune if her husband had been released from hospital, according to testimony during the hearing.

Mr. Justice Casgrain said Coyle who was heard by the court during the hearing, was examined by Dr. Adrien Plouffe, mental disease specialist, and found to be "insane and dangerous."

"The court," he remarked, "cannot ignore the evidence given by Dr. G. E. Reed, superintendent of the Verdun Protestant Hospital, and other psychiatrists, to the effect that Coyle was mentally ill and, in view of his condition, there was no chance of recovery and that it would be dangerous to grant him his freedom."

The Judge indicated he could grant Coyle his freedom if his sanity was proved beyond doubt, but this did not happen at the trial, he said.

Mrs. Coyle also sought the release of her husband on the grounds he was not a resident of Quebec Province at the time he was examined medically and sent to the institution. But the Judge ruled Coyle remained a resident of Quebec even if he married in Perth and remained at an hotel three for several months after his wedding.

Noted Athlete Dies At Age 57

TORONTO, Jan. 16.—Death yesterday ended the career of one of Parkdale's best-known sportsmen, Alex Cromar, 283 Garden avenue, who in his heyday was known far and wide in hockey and rugby circles as a member of the Parkdale Canoe Club teams and as a Canadian championship paddler.

Mr. Cromar, 57 suffered a stroke five or six years ago, and had been seriously ill since last fall.

He had been a member of Parkdale Canoe Club, now the Boulevard Club, for 38 years. He played hockey on club teams in 1906-7-8, but continued to star on the gridiron until 1912. His last game was in the O.R.U. playoffs, when Parkdale played Varsity, on whose line-up were such stars as Hugh Gall and Smirle Lawson.

An all-round athlete, Mr. Cromar was coxswain for a Parkdale Canoe Club crew which won the Canadian championship. His proficiency as a five-pin bowler won him in 1937 a prize for the high average, and he was given a special award for not having missed a contest in 11 years.

Born in Parkdale, he lived there all his life. He was educated at Queen Victoria Public School and Parkdale Collegiate. Later he became a printer and was employed by the firm of Moncur, Roberts and White.

Bishop Settles Church Argument

SCOLE - WITH-BILLINGFORD-AND-THORPE - PARVA, England, Jan. 16—(CP).—Parishioners who protested against their rector's plans for dominoes, concerts and debates in the church hall in this Norfolk town instead of dances and whist drives, have won out.

Dr. P. M. Herbert, Bishop of Norfolk, has told Rev. David Warburton:

"Control of the church hall is vested in the church council. If this body permits whist drives and dances, there is no one except the people who elect them who can interfere with their decisions."

Shoot Prisoners

WITH THE U.S. 1ST ARMY IN BELGIUM, Jan. 16 (AP)—German officers in several instances recently have ordered American prisoners shot because of food shortages, German captives reported yesterday.

Behind Scenes Adviser Aids Churchill

By FRED BACKHOUSE, Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Jan. 16 —(CP) — A man who knows most of the secrets of British Wartime diplomacy got his name in the papers the other day and newspaper deference libraries added another cutting to the unrevealing six they already had on Major Desmond John Falkiner Morton.

Less is known publicly about Maj Morton, 54-year-old personal assistant to Prime Minister Churchill, than about any important man in Whitehall.

When Maj. Morton received the K. C. B. in the New Year's honors the vast reference room of Press Association could turn up nothing earlier on him than two paragraphs of May, 1940, announcing that D. J. F. Morton, head of the Intelligence Section, Ministry of Economic Warfare, had been transferred to the Prime Minister's office.

In civil service circles his associates say Maj. Morton has one of the ablest brains in Whitehall. "The Chief" consults him on important problems at all hours.

Mr. Churchill first met Morton during the First Great War when Morton was A. D. C. to Earl Haig and the future Prime Minister was on a visit to General Headquarters in France. Haig, always suspicous about visits by politicians to the front, detailed the young Major as guide. That was the beginning of a friendship which has lasted since.

Superficially, Maj. Morton is in some ways the antithesis of Mr. Churchill. He's tall, unmarried and a faultless dresser in the Foreign Office tradition of bomburg hat and pinstripe trousers. Unlike his chief he speaks perfect French, German and Italian and can get by in Russian and a few other languages.

Rev. Clayton Kidd Closes Pastorate

Rev. Clayton Kidd, pastor of the Nazarene Gospel Service, 213 Charlotte street, for the past 4 years, has announced the bringing to a close of his pastorate here. The farewell services will be held this coming Sunday.

LEAVE A TRUMP OUT

DRAWING ALL of the defenders' trumps is a better habit to have than failing to draw them. That is, if you are going to act according to habit. But there are times when the entry situation, or losers to be discarded, or some other factor, should impel the declarer to refrain from taking out all of the hostile trumps. It is better to look over the situation and base the trump-drawing plan on the specific factors that appear at the time.

West led his spade A and, seeing East's 9, repeated with the Q, which the K covered, East ruffing. The heart J was returned. South, realizing that a No Trump game would have been a cinch, was so peeved at himself for his rebidding of the four-card heart suit, getting him into a crazy contract, that he played almost without thinking.

Winning the heart J with the Q, he next overtook the diamond K with the A, led dummy's last trump to finesse the heart 9, scored the heart K and A, finishing the defenders' trumps, ran his four clubs and then gave up two more spades at the end, being down one.

Simple planning could have pulled that bum contract through Winning the third trick with the heart Q, he could have cashed the diamond K scored the club A, ruffed a club in dummy, used the diamond A to discard a spade, ruffed a diamond with the heart 9, scored the heart A and K and the club K and Q, and then could have given up the last spade to West's J.

House Shortage Caused By Absurd Laws

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 16 (CP)—The housing shortage in Canada is a result of "absurd" municipal regulations affecting property taxation, Jamieson Bone, president of the Ontario Property Owners' Association, said today in an address to a service club luncheon here.

Suggesting municipal governments adopt the British system of municipal taxation where "property is taxed on a revenue-producing basis," Mr. Bone said Canadian municipalities have forced property to pay "whether it is income-producing or not."

Present regulations, he said, have resulted in a situation where the building industry and its Allied trades cannot prosper.

"If the owning of property is economically unsound," he continued, "and if the landlord is specially singled out for particularly harsh treatment, then there won't be any more houses."

Describing property rental laws as "Fascist," Mr. Bone said present rental regulations "look like the work of a maniac—one determined to destroy the last vestige of liberty remaining to individuals of the property-owning group."

He said the fact Canada must meet her war expenditures "doesn't mean we can keep on spending billions in peace-time unless for revenue - producing, self - amortizing schemes."

Discussing government losses as a result of debts suffered by defaulted municipalities, he said a number of cities in Canada still were in default.

"Some like Windsor compounded with their creditors like an ordinary bankrupt," he said. "Others like Moose Jaw have for years made no attempt at a settlement."

The provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were in the same "burglar class."

"Alberta has several millions of dollars of debentures in default both as to principal and interest and is making no serious attempt to pay them. Saskatchewan threatens the Federal government with default of their provincial bonds if the $18,000,000 borrowed for seed grain from the Dominion is not partly or entirely forgiven."

Mr. Bone said he had written to Finance Minister Ilsley suggesting Ottawa follow Ontario's policy of taking over defaulted municipalities in regard to defaulted provincial governments.

Wide awake and pleased with the prospect of becoming a Canadian is little Elaine Cawker, shown below, with his mother, Mrs. Rosina Cawker, shortly before disembarking at an eastern port. # Delivered Mail 62 Years Ago Via Horse Back

LINDSAY, Jan. 16 — (ENS) — Joseph Blair, pioneer resident of Haliburton county now celebrating his 75th birthday, has lived all his life in the Minden district. At the age of twelve, on April 7th, 1883, travelling on horesback he delivered the first mail in Haliburton county from the Minden post office to the scattered families in the district.

Mr. Blair's father, William Blair, came from Scotland nearly a century ago to the town of Cobourg. Later he, along with five other families from that town journeyed fourth in oxen drawn carts to establish a settlement in the wilds of Haliburton. They named the settlement Blairhampton. The only business of the county was lumbering and the Blair colony made a sparse living by supplying feed and meat to the lumbering camps.

Grain was taken to the grist mill at Minden on home-made sleighs known as "jumpers" and it was customary to carry an auger and axe to make new runners on the trip. At that time the round trip to the village of Haliburton took twelve hours and can now be travelled by car in fifteen minutes.

Joseph Blair purchased property on the Minden-Haliburton highway in 1926 and operates a roadside inn called Victory Bend. "I had no idea that the V would become so appropriate during this war," Mr. Blair states, "but as my property is situated at a sharp turn in the highway I changed the name of the place from Allsaw to Victory Bend. It was in recollection of the last war that I took the V as signifying Victory but I hope that it is appropriate for this war," he said.

He gives credit to the outdoor life he has led for his present health and activities. He has one daughter, Mrs. Nellie Hobden, wife of the Warden of Haliburton county, and five sons, Alvin, Bert and Ross of Oshawa and Everett and Harry of Haliburton.

Forestry Units Only Canadians In Bulge Action

By DOON CAMPBELL
Reuters War Correspondent

FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY'S HEADQUARTERS, Jan. 16—(CP-Reuters).—Canadian lumbermen, felling timber deep in the Ardennes one mid-December Sunday night, swooped axes for guns when Field Marshal Von Rundstedt launched his great offensive.

Four companies of the Canadian Forestry Corps were putting away their axes when the warning came that the German attack was expected.

Maj. A. V. M. Roxby, M.C., of Kelowna, B.C., the area sub commander, doubled the guards, threw out pickets, and sent patrols to nearby bridges and Laroche and Ortheville.

The Canadians waited, tense and watchful. The message came through on Tuesday that the Germans had made a break-through. The forestry companies moved back across the Meuse.

Foresters halted on the St. Hubert-Rochefort road and men were organized into parties for patrol and defence duties.

Both units at the request of the Americans stayed to strengthen the slender garrison. A German patrol came close to Canadian positions at Champion and shots were exchanged through the heavy mist. The Germans fell back.

Outside of Canadian parachutists, reported in action in the Ardennes up to January 11, the Foresters were the only Canadian troops so far reported to have taken part in helping stem the German thrust.

Dairy Farmers Won't Tolerate Pre-War Prices

REGINA, Jan. 16 — (CP) — Dairy farmers should never again have to tolerate conditions such as those existing in the 30s when farm labor was supplied at from seven to 15 cents an hour, R. H. M. Bailey, Edmonton, president, said at the opening of the three-day dairy farmers of Canada annual meeting Monday.

"We must prepare to secure a price for our products that will warrant the payment of labor on a reasonable basis," Mr. Bailey said, speaking before some 70 delegates representative of all the provinces.

"We are not going back. So we might as well make up our minds to start building the road along which we desire to travel." Although labor conditions for the dairy industry would be more difficult this year farmers were being asked to produce 500,000,000 pounds more milk than in 1944.

Difficulties were to be faced as many other lines of farm production offered more net return with less labor.

Farmers should not be "misled" into believing that the agricultural prices stabilization act provided for a minimum price for primary products regardless of selling prices. The important purpose of the act was to arrange for the export of surplus products and the maintenance of reasonable prices on the domestic market.

Mr. Bailey said the prices stabilization board might establish selling prices rather than floor prices.

He advocated post-war continuance of the Dominion-Provincial Agricultural conference and better organization of dairy farmers so they might go to the federal government and receive even greater recognition than in the past.

Pastoral Letter Encourages Farm Interest

TORONTO, Jan. 16 —(C P) — One-third of Canada's population lives on the land but "they do not receive their proportionate share of of the National Income," said one portion of a pastoral letter read in most Roman Catholic churches throughout Ontario Sunday.

The letter announced plans by the church to encourage those now engaged in farming to interest young people in agriculture as a career particularly returned serviemen, and to lend the full suport of the church in Ontario to improving the temporal, cultural and spiritual lot of the farmer.

The message was signed by the Archbishops of Kingston and Toronto and by the Bishops of London, Sault Ste. Marie, Hamilton, Alexandria and Peterborough.

There are 270,167 persons, 14 years of age and over, working 179,188 farms throughout this Province, the pastoral letter said.

However, the Bishops deplored the prevalent tendency to magnify the disadvantages of rural life with the reminder that "there are other values of living besides money-income."

"The farm and farm-home are capable of providing a far better living, in the full sense of the word, than that enjoyed by the average wage-earner in the city," the letter continued.

The letter gave unqualified support and blessing to Co-operatives and Credit Unions of a "sound, Christian" type. In this connection, the Bishops inserted the following quotation from Pope Pius XII.

"For the same purpose, small and medium holdings in agriculture, in the arts and trades, in commerce and industry, should be guaranteed and promoted.

The letter deplored "the failure to marry of many rural young men" and the postponement of marriage until late in life as evils responsible for the decline of many rural parishes.

300 Years Ago Calvert Forged a Link of Friendship

FAR BACK in the 17th Century, Calvert, a famous statesman and Secretary of State to King James I, was one of the earliest pioneers in joining together, for the good of mankind, the Old World and the New.

In 1622 Calvert founded a colony in Newfoundland and, later, a colony in Maryland. Thus, over 300 years ago, Calvert forged a link between Great Britain and America which has strengthened throughout the years.

The mutual understanding between the British Commonwealth and the United States . . . fostered three centuries ago by Calvert . . . flourishes today in the combined operations of British, American and Canadian fighting forces. To strengthen that great partnership is our duty in the peace that lies ahead.
